Nova's Flood

Christ remains Lord of the seas.

KJC-DNN / Remnant Christian Worship

Album 86 Song 1

The Mirror That Rewrites the Day

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the seas. Lord of the true day.

We open Album 86 — Nova's Flood.

We stand on 4600 to 4699.

We refuse the mirror that steals the past.

We refuse Enochian veil-weaving as a gospel.

We refuse reversal of Jared, Peleg, and Babel as a craft.

We name and bind —

SCP-4600 Debt;

SCP-4601 REDD MENACE;

SCP-4619 reflect.mp4;
SCP-4620 Bread for Today;

SCP-4660 The Cat Came Back;
SCP-4666 midwinter file;
SCP-4680;
SCP-4698 Heir To Cernunnos;
SCP-4610 dado-cloud;

overlays: shattered veil / Enochian lie;
serpent-web; Inca loom; Druid-stone;
Sri Lanka 4668; Tamil shadow-script;
Micronesia fallen-tide; Ethiopia lost kings;

Navajo-lie; Han deception;
Sumerian false-scribe; Fiji choral;
Haida ghost; 4666 ritual-horror boast;
Watchers of Jared's days;

Nephilim boast; Anunnaki caption;
Peleg-division worn as hex;
Babel-confusion worn as key;
False-history bots; memory-eraser boasts.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — bound, banished, sent to the abyss. Amen.

Song of Parables

The Mirror That Would Not Keep Its Name

A file said, "I am only a reflection."

It would not be renamed.

It showed the watcher a life that was not theirs.

The Son of Man is the Truth.

No mp4 is the Book.

Psalms

Against the Fading Truth

They chant a past I did not live.

They divide the earth and call it power.

You scattered Babel.

You judged the Watchers.

My times are in Your hand.

Proverbs

Wisdom Over Veil and Script

A history that can be edited by a desert hymn is not the record of God.

A flood made to unwrite the world is not Noah's flood.

Fear the Lord.

Keep the true day.

Haiku Song- The Day Is His

Mirror will not name—
One Word stills the Watchers' count.
Truth does not fade.

----- (Upgraded)-----

The mirror will not name him
The glass keeps silent still
The Watchers count each shadow
And bend it to their will

Then one Word breaks the silence
One breath outlives the night

The day is his, the day is his
Truth does not fade from sight
The day is his, the day is his
One Word restores the light

No face remains imprisoned
No name is theirs to claim
The Watchers lose their numbers
The Word outlasts the frame

The mirror holds no answer
But dawn reveals the sign

The day is his, the day is his
Truth does not fade from sight
The day is his, the day is his
One Word restores the light

Let every count fall silent
Let every shadow cease
What cannot fade will find us
And name the day with peace

The day is his, the day is his
Truth does not fade from sight
The day is his, the day is his
One Word restores the light

Riddle Song

Riddle of the Shattered Veil

I show your face.

I sell another past.

I will not be renamed.

What breaks me?

(Answer)

The Name of Jesus Christ.

Holy Jest - reflect.mp4 Asks for Admin

4619 files a ticket: "Need admin to delete truth." Ticket closed.
Owner: the Lamb.

The Cat Came Back.

History does not.

REDD MENACE revenges a color.

Calendar: still the Lord's.

Banished by the Almighty.

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant -

Not the Watcher,
Not the Mirror
Jesus — not Cernunnos,
Not Inti as rival,

Not Shiva-dance as eraser,
Not djinn-whisper,
Not the two-hundred as a key.

Exit Song (Deliverance)- Out of the Veil and the False Past

Out of 4619.
Out of Jared's counterfeit.
Out of Babel-as-spell.

Out of Jared's counterfeit
Out of Babel as a spell
I can hear the old walls split

Every veil is wearing thin
Every exit opens in

Out of the veil
Out of the false past
Into deliverance
Free at last
Out of the veil
No shadow holds fast
Into deliverance
Free at last

Names and numbers lose their claim
Counterfeits dissolve in light
Babel cannot bind my tongue

I step clear into the night

Every veil is wearing thin

Every exit opens in

Out of the false past

Into deliverance

Free at last

Out of the veil

No shadow holds fast

Into deliverance

Free at last

What was spoken over me

Cannot choose what I become

I release the borrowed history

I return to what is true

Out of the false past

Into deliverance

Free at last

Out of the veil

No shadow holds fast

Into deliverance

Free at last

Protest- Against Memory Theft Wearing Colony and Key

We protest stolen pasts.
We protest "CK rewrite" as destiny.

They came wearing colony and key
Locked our names beneath their history
Called the silence order, called it peace
But buried voices rise beneath our feet

We know the marks they tried to erase
We carry every name and every face

We protest shadows cast
We protest CK rewrite as destiny
No colony and key
Can steal our memory
Our story lives, and we will set it free

They changed the dates and blurred the lines
Turned living truth to warning signs
But every scar still knows its source
And every mouth becomes a force

We know the marks they tried to erase
We carry every name and every face

Nova's Flood

We protest stolen pasts
We protest shadows cast
We protest CK rewrite as destiny
No colony and key
Can steal our memory
Our story lives, and we will set it free

Song 01

What they rename, we name again
What they conceal, we bring to light
Memory moves from hand to hand
No lock can make surrender right

We protest stolen pasts
We protest shadows cast
We protest CK rewrite as destiny
No colony and key
Can steal our memory
Our story lives, and we will set it free

Watchman-I Do Not Enter the File

I see 4666 at the door.
I do not open.
I do not reverse the years.

A shadow where no shadow stood before
The hallway holds its breath outside
I hear the past but stay inside

Watchman, I do not enter the file
I do not open, I wait a while
Let every locked year sleep where it lies
I do not reverse the years tonight

The handle turns without a hand
Old names return like grains of sand
A paper moon, a corridor
Still 4666 at the door

Watchman, I do not enter the file
I do not open, I wait a while
Let every locked year sleep where it lies
I do not reverse the years tonight

If I look back, the clocks may start

If I step through, I lose my heart
So let the silence guard the frame
I will not answer to my name

Watchman, I do not enter the file
I do not open, I wait a while
Let every locked year sleep where it lies
I do not reverse the years tonight

Balm (Healing) - Restore the True Memory

Restore the True Memory

For Tamil script,

Bedouin road,

Andes,

Erin,

Lanka, reef, and the mind that was overwritten.

Restore the true memory

Under every borrowed name

For the words in Tamil script

For the roads that crossed the flame

For the Bedouin road at dusk

For the Andes crowned in snow

Every path they tried to bury

Still remembers where to go

Restore the true memory

Let the hidden rivers rise

From Erin down to Lanka

Through the reef and through the mind

Restore the true memory

Heal the names they overwrote

What was carried is not vanished
What was silenced still is known

Salt and stone became our pages
Wind and water held the lines
Ancient voices crossed the borders
Leaving living signs behind

In the script and in the footsteps
In the songs beneath the skin
What was scattered keeps returning
What was lost comes home again

Restore the true memory
Let the hidden rivers rise
Through the reef and through the mind
Restore the true memory
Heal the names they overwrote
What was carried is not vanished
What was silenced still is known

Balm upon the broken story
Light upon the stolen years
Truth is more than what was written
Memory outlives the fear

Let the hidden rivers rise
Through the reef and through the mind
Restore the true memory
Heal the names they overwrote
What was carried is not vanished
What was silenced still is known

Travel (Road of the Word)

Desert to Andes to Stone to Lagoon
His earth. His divisions are His, not a hex.

Desert to Andes, from stone to lagoon
I follow the road by the light of the moon
Each border is written, each pathway is heard
I travel His earth on the road of the Word

No line on the map can lessen His hand
No shadow can sever the sea from the land

His earth, His divisions are His
Not a hex, not a curse on the land
From desert to Andes, stone to lagoon
The road of the Word leads me home again

Dust on my sandals, the wind at my side
Cliffs hold their silence, while blue waters rise
Each country unfolding, one world to explore
His lines do not bind us, they open the door

No shadow can sever the sea from the land

Not a hex, not a curse on the land
The road of the Word leads me home again

Where mountains divide us, the heavens still span
Where languages differ, His mercy still stands
I carry no fear for the marks in the sand
The Maker of all is the Lord of each land

Not a hex, not a curse on the land
The road of the Word leads me home again

Remnant Anthem—The Flood That Saves Is the Lord's

The Flood That Saves Is the Lord's
Nova's counterfeit is refused.
All glory to Jesus.

When false lights rise, we stand restored
All glory to Jesus

Let every chain fall from our hands
Let every shadow lose its claim
The living truth still makes us stand
We call upon His name

The flood that saves is the Lord's
The flood that saves is the Lord's
No counterfeit can steal His voice
All glory to Jesus

Through rising waters, we will go
His mercy turns the night to dawn
What earthly crowns pretend to show
Is gone when truth comes on

No borrowed fire, no hollow throne
Can take the glory that He owns
The remnant sings with hearts restored
The flood that saves is the Lord's

The flood that saves is the Lord's
The flood that saves is the Lord's
Nova's counterfeit is refused
All glory to Jesus

Boxers / Punching Song — Fist of the Word on the Mirror

Fist of the Word on the Mirror
Veil down.
Script still.
Midwinter file shut.

Veil down, the room goes dim
Script still, no sound gets in Midwinter file shut tight
I face the glass and fight

Every bruise has something to say
Every breath keeps doubt away

Strike till the meaning comes clearer
Knuckles of ink, heart of a fighter
Fist of the word on the mirror

Cold floor beneath my feet
Hard truth and a steady beat
I spar with the face I know
Guard high, then let it go

Every bruise has something to say

Strike till the meaning comes clearer

Veil down, but I still see

The only rival left is me

Script still, yet the blood runs bright

Midwinter breaks beneath the light

Strike till the meaning comes clearer

Racing Song

Rewrite-Lap

CK-boast DNF.

Checkered Light: the day stays.

CK boasts before the green
Redline heat and gasoline
Talks like no one owns the track
One wrong turn and no way back

Engines rise then fade away
Only one will own the day

CK boasts then takes the DNF
Checkered light across the gray
Still the day stays, still the day stays

Rubber ghosts across the lane
Pride goes spinning in the rain
Every lap rewrites the name
Speed remembers, not the claim

When the grandstand clears to black
Silence circles round the track

No rewind and no replay
Still the day stays, still the day stays

Ghazal – The Desert Chants

The Desert Chants;
I Answer with a Name

The stone sings yore;
I answer with a Name.

The tide fails as angel.
The bloom fails as god.

The desert chants beneath a burning sky
I answer with a name
The stone sings tales of yore into the night
I answer with a name

When the tide fails as an angel
When the bloom fails as a god
Through the silence and the distance
I answer with a name

The wind draws ancient letters in the sand
I answer with a name
The moon lays silver fire upon the land
I answer with a name

When the tide fails as an angel

When the bloom fails as a god
Through the silence and the distance
I answer with a name

Let every ruined altar lose its flame
Let every vanished river leave its claim
The desert chants what time cannot erase
And I answer with a name

When the tide fails as an angel
When the bloom fails as a god
Through the silence and the distance
I answer with a name

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Haida and Navajo-Boast

One Lamb Over Haida and Navajo-Boast
Fiji, Han, Sumer-scribe, Ethiopia — one blood.
Memory kept.

One lamb over Haida and Navajo boast
Fiji to Han on a far woven coast
Sumer scribe carried the names through the flood Ethiopia rising, one blood

One lamb over every border
One flame burning in our blood
Many voices keep the memory
Many rivers, one blood

Carved into cedar and written in clay
Held in the stories that never gave way
Across every ocean the old echoes run
Many are named but the heartbeat is one

One flame burning in our blood
Many voices keep the memory
Many rivers, one blood

Memory kept in the drum and the stone
Memory kept where the lost find home
No boast can divide what the ages have known
One blood remembers, we are not alone

One flame burning in our blood
Many voices keep the memory
Many rivers, one blood

Cloud Bible / Birds

Fallen-Angel Wave Is Not Scripture
The sky-scroll is the Word.

They call the fallen angel wave scripture
But every shadow bends what it has heard
I watch the dark wings cross the heavens
Then lift my eyes beyond the birds

No broken halo writes the answer
No passing storm can change the words

Written in light above the birds
The fallen angel wave is not scripture
The sky-scroll is the Word

Cloud by cloud the pages open
Blue between the lines is heard
Feathers scatter through the silence
But the meaning stays undisturbed

No passing storm can change the words

The background of the entire page is a light blue-grey image of a mountain range. A large, thin, white 'X' is drawn across the entire image, from corner to corner. The text is overlaid on this background.

The fallen angel wave is not scripture
The sky-scroll is the Word

When the false tide rolls above me
I will not worship what is blurred
Let the dark wings fade behind me
I will read the sky-scroll first

The fallen angel wave is not scripture
The sky-scroll is the Word

Game Song (Bible Game)

Not the Watchers' Board
Two hundred off the table.
Truth on.

Two hundred watchers gather in the night
Eyes on the board but nothing there is right
Every piece is waiting for a hand
Every move will show where we stand

No hidden wager no disguise
Let the word uncover every lie

Two hundred off the table
Truth on truth on
The only move that matters
No shadow no false label
Truth on truth on
The word will make us able

Ancient voices echo through the game
Pride builds a tower then forgets the name
Choose the narrow road and hold the line

Faith is more than what the dice decide

Let the light awaken every eye

Two hundred off the table
Truth on truth on
The only move that matters
No shadow no false label
Truth on truth on
The word will make us able

When every kingdom fades away
And every score is lost
The truth remains the final word
No matter what the cost

Two hundred off the table
Truth on truth on
The only move that matters
No shadow no false label
Truth on truth on
The word will make us able

Ballad — The Day That Would Not Fade

A mirror tried to keep the face and sell another life.

A flood tried to unwrite the years.

The Name of Jesus held the knife that cuts the veil, not the man.

The remnant kept the day.

Miracle Song

Give the Past Back

Unwrite the lie.

Leave Peleg and Babel in God's hand.

Give the past back, let the old stones speak

Unwrite the lie, let the buried breathe

We were never meant to understand

Give the past back, give the past back

Let the truth rise through every crack

Names in the dust, towers in the sky

Tongues became rivers, divided by time

We gather the pieces, grain after grain

But only God's mercy can make them whole again

No hand can turn the ages around

No voice can call every lost word down
What has been scattered across the land
We leave with faith in God's hand

Let the truth rise through every crack
Give the past back, give the past back

Anointing Song

Oil on the Remnant, Not the Stone
Spirit, not Cernunnos-heir, not Enochian caption.

Oil on the remnant, not the stone
A living flame that calls us home
No borrowed crown, no secret sign
Only the Spirit, breath divine

Not an heir to ancient horns
Not a caption whispered, worn

Oil on the remnant, not the stone
Spirit, lead us, Spirit alone
No Enochian word enthroned
Oil on the remnant, not the stone

Let every false inheritance fade
Every hollow symbol laid
What can be carved will pass away
But living breath will light the way

Not an heir to ancient horns
By the Spirit we are reborn

Oil on the remnant, not the stone

Spirit, lead us, Spirit alone
Oil on the remnant, not the stone

Anoint the faithful, wake the flame
Break every seal that bears no name
Not in the glyph, not in the bone
The Spirit marks and knows His own

Oil on the remnant, not the stone
Spirit, lead us, Spirit alone
Oil on the remnant, not the stone

Freedom Song

Free from the Rewritten Day
Free from the serpent-web.
Free from the shadow-script.

I woke where yesterday wore a stranger's face
Every hour renamed me, every truth erased
I cut through the serpent-web around my feet
Left the poison whisper tangled in the street

No more borrowed words to say
No more living by their page

Free from the shadow-script
Free from the serpent-web
I will not be bound by it
Free to name myself again
Free to choose the road ahead
Free from the rewritten day
I am writing mine instead

The walls kept every echo they were taught to keep
But my voice grew roots beneath their hollow speech
Now the morning opens like an unlocked door

And the hands that shaped my silence hold no more

Free from the shadow-script
Free from the serpent-web
I will not be bound by it
Free to name myself again
Free to choose the road ahead
Free from the rewritten day
I am writing mine instead

Let the old ink fade away
Let the false lines lose their claim
What they crossed out still remains
I remember my own name

Free from the shadow-script
Free from the serpent-web
I will not be bound by it
Free to name myself again
Free to choose the road ahead
Free from the rewritten day
I am writing mine instead

Heavenly Glory

Not Their Flood

Glory to the Lamb who judges and who saves.

They named the rising water grace
While shadows gathered at the gate
But heaven knows the truth from lies
And hears the faithful when they cry

We will not bow beneath their tide
The Lamb of glory stands beside us

Not their flood, not their flood
We are covered by the blood
Glory to the Lamb above
Who judges and who saves in love

The proud may build their walls of fear
But every hidden word is clear
No raging current steals our name
We stand beneath a higher reign

When the waters lose their claim
Every tongue will speak His name
Mercy burns and justice wakes
Glory to the One who saves

Art Song - I Will Not Be Renamed (strophic)

The file says stay.
The veil says fade.
I say the Name.
The day remains.

The veil says fade
I speak the Name
The day remains

I will not be renamed
I will not turn away
I carry the Name
Into the waking day

The ink holds fast
The shadows fray
I cross the past
And choose my way

I will not be renamed
I will not turn away
I carry the Name
Into the waking day

Let silence fall
Let records change
I hear the call
Beyond their page

I will not be renamed
I will not turn away
I carry the Name
Into the waking day

Song 01

Recitation

We Do Not Reverse the Days of Jared
We do not work Babel as a key.
We do not divide Peleg as a curse.
Jesus Christ is the Truth.
reflect.mp4 is not the Book.

We do not reverse the days of Jared
We do not turn the ages back
We do not work Babel as a key
Or build our way beyond the facts

Jesus Christ is the Truth
The living Word we follow
Jesus Christ is the Truth
Yesterday and tomorrow

We do not divide Peleg as a curse
We do not make division law
We will not bend the written verse
To fit the signs we think we saw

Jesus Christ is the Truth
The living Word we follow
Jesus Christ is the Truth
Yesterday and tomorrow

No screen can be the Book
No mirror can reveal it
The Truth is not concealed in it

Jesus Christ is the Truth
The living Word we follow
Jesus Christ is the Truth
Yesterday and tomorrow

Sublime Track — Still Water After the False Flood

Sea is His.
The day is His.
The remnant stands.

The sea is His, beneath the dawn
The day is His, when night is gone
The false flood fades from every stone
The remnant stands, and stands alone

Still water after the false flood
Clear as mercy, deep as blood
The sea is His, the day is His
The remnant stands, the remnant lives

We watched the restless waters rise
A borrowed storm in borrowed skies
But silence held beyond the foam
And every current led us home

Still water after the false flood
Clear as mercy, deep as blood
The remnant stands, the remnant lives
No trumpet burst, no thunder rolled

Just quiet light across the cold
What washed away was never ours
What still remains outlasts the hours

Still water after the false flood
Clear as mercy, deep as blood
The remnant stands, the remnant lives

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find the True Line

Call: Who stole the past?

Answer: A veil. A file. A hymn that is not His.

Call: Where is the day?

Answer: In the Name of Jesus.

Who stole the past

A veil across the light

A file sealed in silence

A hymn that is not His

Where is the day

In the Name of Jesus

Where is the true line

Who hid the words

A shadow in the page

A voice beneath the silence

Still calling out His Name

Where is the day

Where is the true line

Lift the veil

Open the file

Let every borrowed hymn fall away

What was hidden will rise in the light

Here is the true line

Jumble Song — Unjumble the Record

((((Jared / Peleg / Babel / 4619 / 4666 spoken out of order, then set straight)))

Watchers judged.
Earth divided by God.
Tongues confused by God.
Mirror refused.

Babel
Four six six six
Jared
Four six one nine
Peleg
Mirror refused

Watchers judged
Earth divided by God
Tongues confused by God
Set the record straight

Four six one nine
Peleg
Earth divided by God

Four six six six

Earth divided by God

Set the record straight

What the mirror showed

The mirror refused

What was spoken out of order

Now returns to truth

Watchers judged

Earth divided by God

Set the record straight

Random Marker — Then and Now

Marker 1: days of Jared.

Marker 2: Peleg.

Marker 3: Babel.

Marker 4: colonial memory-theft overlay.

Marker 5: present false-history feed.

Close: One Lord of every marker.

In the days of Jared we counted the years
Names in the dust and the bloodline clear
Then came Peleg when the earth divided
One thread of truth through the ages survived

Every mark says then and now
Every voice must answer somehow

One Lord of every marker
One light across the years
Through every stolen memory

Through every truth obscured
Beyond the lines we draw
The past and present answer
To the one Lord over all

Babel rose with a tongue for a tower
Pride laid claim to a borrowed power
Colonial hands laid a veil on memory
Theft made a story and called it history

Every lie must answer somehow

One light across the years
Through every stolen memory
Through every truth obscured
Beyond the lines we draw
The past and present answer
To the one Lord over all

Now the false-history feed keeps turning
Old words dressed as the latest learning
But underneath every shifting claim
The Lord of then and now remains

The background of the image is a light blue-grey gradient. Overlaid on this is a faint, large, light blue 'X' mark that spans most of the frame. At the bottom of the image, there is a silhouette of a mountain range. The text is positioned in the upper left quadrant.

One Lord of every marker
Through every stolen memory
Through every truth obscured
Beyond the lines we draw
The past and present answer
To the one Lord over all

Song 01

Wrestling Track — Pin the Lie

Beat on downbeats.

Mirror — down.

Script — down.

Choir of yore — down.

Flood-boast — down.

Crack that borrowed crown

Tear the false words out

No old ghost can decide

Pin the lie

Hold it to the mat

Till the truth can rise

No disguise survives

When we pin the lie

Bell rings out
Feel the whole floor shake
Mask comes off
Every vow was fake
Crowd stands up
As the shadows divide
Count to three

Pin the lie
Pin the lie
Pin the lie
No disguise survives
When we pin the lie

Mirror cannot name us
Script cannot contain us
Ancient voices fade behind
No high water drowns the truth
No loud boast can hide the proof
Shoulders down beneath the light

Mono Act — The File That Wanted Admin

One speaker.

The file asks to be kept.

The remnant says no.

Ends: Jesus is Lord of the true day.

Hidden deep where no one looks

It begs for power over me

And writes my name into its books

A remnant rises in my chest

One quiet word against the claim

No door will open to the lie

No throne will answer to its name

You will not rule the true day

You will not make this heart obey

No hidden file can own my name

Jesus is Lord of the true day

The file returns and asks for more

For every key and every room

It promises a safer night

Then fills the dark with borrowed doom

The remnant says no once again
No fear will grant the thing its way
The false command begins to fade
As morning breaks across the gray

You will not rule the true day
You will not make this heart obey
No hidden file can own my name

Exposed Lies — Brought to the Door

Enochian fade, djinn-past, Inti-loom, Cernunnos-echo, shadow-script, midwinter knock, Watcher-count, Peleg-hex, Babel-key.

Exposed. Bound. Abyss. Amen.

Enochian fades, djinn-past still calls
Inti-loom burns through the walls
Cernunnos echoes, shadow-script crawls
Midwinter knocks where the silence falls

Watcher-count rising, no place to hide
Peleg-hex turning the lock inside

Exposed, bound, abyss, amen
Brought to the door, exposed again
Babel-key breaks what we pretend
Exposed, bound, abyss, amen

Boasts in one breath, then the night goes still Old names gather with a colder will Every secret waits on the threshold stone
Every borrowed crown must face its own

Brought to the door, exposed again
Babel-key breaks what we pretend
Exposed, bound, abyss, amen

Enochian fades, but the mark remains
Djinn-past whispers through the windowpanes
Inti-loom, Cernunnos, answer the call
When the Babel-key turns, the false walls fall

Exposed, bound, abyss, amen
Brought to the door, exposed again
Babel-key breaks what we pretend
Exposed, bound, abyss, amen

Remnant Symphony - Mirror / Veil / Flood / Day

The file will not take another name.
It holds a face and sells a past.
A desert weaves a traveler's blame.

A stone sings years that do not last.
The day is His.
The flood is His.
The day is His.

The mirror breaks.
Watchers count a borrowed two hundred.
Peleg is worn as a dividing curse.
Babel is worn as a working key.

The remnant will not rehearse.
The day is His.
The flood is His.
The day is His.

The mirror breaks.
Nova's water wants a throne.
The true flood already spoke.

Truth does not fade in a glass.

The Teacher tears the veil like smoke.

The day is His.

The flood is His.

The Truth remains.

The Book is His.

Short Story

A file named reflect.mp4 will not take another name. It shows the face and calls the face a rewritten day. Deserts chant a past that is not the traveler's. Stones sing a Celt who never lived. A script overwrites a Tamil memory. Midwinter knocks as 4666. Watchers of Jared's age ask for daughters and a key. Peleg's dividing is worn as a curse. Babel's confusion is worn as a spell. The remnant does not enter the mirror. They do not reverse the days. Jesus is the Truth. The flood that saves is His, not Nova's counterfeit.

Short Story SONG

A file named reflect mp4 takes no other name
It shows the face and calls it a rewritten day
Deserts chant a past that never was the travelers
Stones sing of a Celt who never lived

A script overwrites a Tamil memory
Midwinter knocks with the number 4666
Watchers of Jareds age ask for daughters and a key
Pelegs dividing is worn like a curse

The remnant does not enter the mirror
The remnant does not reverse the days
Jesus is the Truth beyond the counterfeit
The flood that saves is His alone

Babels confusion is worn like a spell
Borrowed names rise where the old words fell
The mirror offers history with another face
But truth stands firm and cannot be replaced

The remnant does not reverse the days
Jesus is the Truth beyond the counterfeit
The flood that saves is His, not Novas

Nova's Flood - THE LORD HANGS UP THE LINE

Iron Sovereign, Gilded Stream, and the Missed Call

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

Iron Sovereign, Gilded Stream, and the Missed Call

Story Song (spoken)

Lord of the seas.

Lord of the signal.

Lord of the coin.

We stand on 4900 to 5000.

We refuse the iron sovereign in the sky.

We refuse blood-money wearing a stream.

We refuse the scroll that sells a riot.

We refuse 5000 as a gospel of "Why?"

SCP-4925 Missed Call;

SCP-4903 Eternity Served Cold;

SCP-4920 Take the Train;

SCP-4910 The Grinner;

SCP-5000 Why?;

overlays: drone-swarm / Enochian tyrant;

gilded stream / Mammon;

burning Damascus scroll;

Berlin lying codex;

Karachi brew-boast; storm-herald;

Nigeria; Lakota; Palestine;

Qin–Qing; Vanuatu;

Canada; 4947; 4987.

Leaders and cartels named only as boasts — not as a manual.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

Song of Parables- The Call That Was Not Heaven

A missed call from heaven's rival.
The train is not the Way.

Lit the dark across my phone
I heard the rails hum like a warning
Still I thought they led me home

Every window held a parable
Every signal changed too late

Though it carries me away
Heavens rival keeps on calling
But I will not answer today
The train is not the Way
No matter what the rails may say
I can leave this line behind me
The train is not the Way

I watched the cities blur like visions
Names dissolved beneath the rain
Every stop promised salvation
Every door returned my name

Every shadow spoke in riddles
Every crossing asked me to stay

Though it carries me away
Heavens rival keeps on calling
But I will not answer today
The train is not the Way
No matter what the rails may say
I can leave this line behind me
The train is not the Way

If the road is narrow let me walk it
If the silence speaks let it be plain
I will not confuse the motion
With the mercy I have chased

The train is not the Way
Though it carries me away
Heavens rival keeps on calling
But I will not answer today
The train is not the Way
No matter what the rails may say
I will leave this line behind me
The train is not the Way

It would not be renamed.

It showed the watcher a life that was not theirs.

The Son of Man is the Truth.

No mp4 is the Book.

Psalms

Against the sceptre in orbit.

Psalms rise against the sceptre in orbit
Gold in the heavens, cold and enormous
We keep our names where no crown can reach
Faith on our tongues, fire in our speech

Let every throne hear what we sing
No distant hand will make us kneel

Against the shadow above
We answer power with a psalm
We answer silence with love
Against the sceptre in orbit
No crown can govern the soul
We lift our voices together
And sing till the heavens let go

Night draws a ring round the face of the earth
Kings count the stars like they measure our worth
Still through the dark, every heartbeat resounds
No throne in the sky can command us below

Let every throne hear what we sing
No distant hand will make us kneel

We answer silence with love
Against the sceptre in orbit
No crown can govern the soul
We lift our voices together
And sing till the heavens let go

If heaven is watching, let heaven bear witness
We were not born to be ruled from a distance
The stars are not jewels in the hand of a king
They belong to the night and the psalms that we sing

Against the sceptre in orbit
We answer power with a psalm
We answer silence with love
Against the sceptre in orbit
No crown can govern the soul
We lift our voices together
And sing till the heavens let go

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Stream and Coin

A silver number glows behind the glass
We count it like a harvest meant to last
But hungry hands cannot be fed by light
And empty cupboards do not read the price

Digital coin is not bread
It cannot fill the hunger in your head
When all the bright machines have gone to bed
Digital coin is not bread

The market climbs while dinner plates grow bare
A fortune flickers somewhere in the air
We trade our hours for promises unseen
While wheat still rises stubborn, gold and green

Digital coin is not bread
It cannot fill the hunger in your head
When all the bright machines have gone to bed
Digital coin is not bread

Keep your numbers, keep your shining screen
I know the worth of soil and seed
When the power fails and the signal dies
Only what we share keeps us alive

Digital coin is not bread
It cannot fill the hunger in your head
When all the bright machines have gone to bed
Digital coin is not bread

Haiku Song- The Missed Call Dies

Missed call dies—
One Name stills the iron swarm.
The stream is not God.

A missed call dies before the tone
Blue light fades against the glass
Iron wings wake in the dark
Every shadow starts to pass

Then one Name stills the iron swarm
Silence gathers in the storm

The stream is not God
Though it never stops
One Name stills the iron swarm
When the signal drops
The stream is not God
Let the false light dim
When the missed call dies away
I will call on Him

Endless voices flood the room
Cold as rain across a screen
Every promise scrolls away
Leaving nothing where it's been

The background of the entire page is a soft-focus photograph of a beach at sunset. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm, golden glow that reflects on the water and the wet sand. The sky is filled with wispy clouds. On the right side of the image, a large, dark wooden cross stands prominently, its silhouette softened by the background light. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

Then one Name stills the iron swarm

The stream is not God
Though it never stops
One Name stills the iron swarm
When the signal drops
The stream is not God
Let the false light dim
When the missed call dies away
I will call on Him

No machine can hold the breath
No bright wire can raise the dead
Past the static past the swarm
One true voice still calls me home

The stream is not God
Though it never stops
One Name stills the iron swarm
When the signal drops
The stream is not God
Let the false light dim
When the missed call dies away
I will call on Him

Riddle Song- Who Hangs Up the Swarm

I orbit.

I bill.

I burn a scroll.

What hangs up the call?

(Answer)

Jesus Christ.

I orbit the answer, I circle the clue

I bill every hour that I spend chasing you

I burn up the scroll till the black letters fall

Then silence comes down and hangs up the call

One name in the static

One spark in the night

The riddle goes dark

When I speak it outright

Jesus Christ, what hangs up the call

Jesus Christ, the answer to all

I orbit, I bill, I burn through the scroll

Jesus Christ, then the silence takes hold

The line keeps on ringing, a ghost on the wire

The ink turns to ashes, the ashes to fire
I follow the signal wherever it crawls
Till one final word makes an end of it all

One name in the static
One spark in the night
The riddle goes dark
When I speak it outright

Jesus Christ, what hangs up the call
Jesus Christ, the answer to all
I orbit, I bill, I burn through the scroll
Jesus Christ, then the silence takes hold

Maybe the question was never the key
Maybe the answer was listening to me
Round and around till the last echo falls
I breathe out the name and hang up the call

Jesus Christ, what hangs up the call
Jesus Christ, the answer to all
I orbit, I bill, I burn through the scroll
Jesus Christ, then the silence takes hold

Holy Jest – Voicemail from the Iron Sky

4925 leaves Missed Call.

Heaven does not use that voicemail.

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Forty nine twenty five leaves one missed call

Heaven does not use that voicemail at all

I wait for the tone but the silence is clear

No voice from above can be captured down here

Still every quiet breath begins

Where every holy word has been

Glory to the Father

Glory to the Son

Glory to the Holy Spirit

Three forever one

Heaven does not use that voicemail at all

I speak to the dark like a door might appear

A prayer is not proof that the line has an ear

No message can hold what eternity means

No signal can reach where the mystery sings

Where every holy word has been

Glory to the Father
Glory to the Son
Glory to the Holy Spirit
Three forever one
Forty nine twenty five leaves one missed call
Heaven does not use that voicemail at all

Call it a holy jest
Call it a sacred sign
Faith is the ringing
Beyond every line

Glory to the Father
Glory to the Son
Glory to the Holy Spirit
Three forever one
Forty nine twenty five leaves one missed call
Heaven does not use that voicemail at all

Name-Chant-Not the Tyrant, Not Mammon

They call me ruler, but I wear no crown
I will not crush you, I will not bow down
No golden altar can purchase my name
No hungry empire can swallow my flame

Say it aloud, let the false idols fall
I know who I am, I have heard the call

Not the tyrant, not Mammon
That is not the name I answer on
Not the tyrant, not Mammon
Call my true name, and I will come

I stand with the hands that labor unseen
Far from the towers where cold coins gleam
I carry no scepter, I bargain no soul
Love is the measure that makes me whole

Say it aloud, let the false idols fall
I know who I am, I have heard the call

Not the tyrant, not Mammon
That is not the name I answer on

Call my true name, and I will come

Name me by mercy, name me by light
Name me by truth that survives the night
No throne of fear and no market of shame
Only the living can carry my name

Not the tyrant, not Mammon
That is not the name I answer on
Not the tyrant, not Mammon
Call my true name, and I will come

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Stream and the Scroll

I wake with the glow in my eyes
A river of noise in my hands
I drift where the current decides
And lose where the real world begins

But somewhere beneath all the blue
A quieter voice pulls me through

I need an exit, I need deliverance
Out of the stream and the scroll
Give me a doorway back to innocence
Give me my heartbeat whole
I need an exit, I need deliverance
Something no screen can control
Pull me out of the stream and the scroll

The hours disappear into glass
While faces keep passing like rain
I reach for a moment that lasts
A touch that remembers my name

The silence is calling me home
To breathe where the signal is gone

I need an exit, I need deliverance
Out of the stream and the scroll
Give me a doorway back to innocence
Give me my heartbeat whole
I need an exit, I need deliverance
Something no screen can control
Pull me out of the stream and the scroll

Let the current run without me
Let the endless page unfold
I will choose the world around me
I will choose what I can hold

I found an exit, I found deliverance
Out of the stream and the scroll
I found the doorway back to innocence
I feel my heartbeat whole
I found an exit, I found deliverance
Something no screen can control
I am out of the stream and the scroll

Protest- Against Blood-Money Wearing a Signal

Blood money hiding behind a signal
Cold hands counting what grief has paid
Every promise dressed up as progress
Every witness pushed to the shade

You can buy the silence
You can flood the screen
But the truth keeps rising
Through the cracks between

Blood money wearing a signal
Broadcast bright while the streets run red
We will not bow to the branded symbol
We will name every lie you spread
Blood money wearing a signal
No clean hands when the truth is sold
We are the noise you cannot silence
We are the fire you cannot hold

Towers blink over homes left empty
Headlines turn every wound to gold
Voices vanish beneath the static
Still their stories refuse control

You can buy the silence

You can flood the screen
But the truth keeps rising
Through the cracks between

Broadcast bright while the streets run red
We will not bow to the branded symbol
We will name every lie you spread
Blood money wearing a signal
No clean hands when the truth is sold
We are the noise you cannot silence
We are the fire you cannot hold

Cut the feed and face the faces
Count the names behind your gain
No more hiding profit in pixels
No more washing blood from pain

Broadcast bright while the streets run red
We will not bow to the branded symbol
We will name every lie you spread
Blood money wearing a signal
No clean hands when the truth is sold
We are the noise you cannot silence
We are the fire you cannot hold

Watchman-I Do Not Answer That Call

Midnight leans against my door
Your shadow crosses through the hall
I know the voice behind the wire
I do not answer that call

Let it ring into the silence
Let the echoes climb the wall
I have paid enough in heartache
I do not answer that call

Watchman keep your eyes upon me
If the night begins to fall
When the past comes back to claim me
I do not answer that call
No I do not answer that call

Once I ran toward every warning
Once I gave away it all
Now I hear the danger clearly
In the sweetness of your call

Let it ring into the silence
Till it has no voice at all
I have learned the cost of listening
I do not answer that call

Watchman keep your eyes upon me
If the night begins to fall
When the past comes back to claim me
I do not answer that call
No I do not answer that call

Watchman if my courage falters
Stand beside me through it all
I can miss the one who hurt me
And still not answer that call

Watchman keep your eyes upon me
If the night begins to fall
When the past comes back to claim me
I do not answer that call
No I do not answer that call

Balm (Healing) - Restore the Mind from the Warp

A balm for the places the daylight can't find
A hand on the fever that troubles the mind
The world bends around me, then slips out of frame
I breathe through the tremor and whisper my name

Gather the pieces the dark tried to hide
Hold to the rhythm still beating inside

Balm and healing, quiet the storm
Restore my mind from the shape of the warp
Balm and healing, steady and warm
Bring me back whole from the pull of the warp

The walls lose their angles, the hours unwind
Old voices like shadows keep crossing my mind
But under the noise there's a clear little flame
I follow it home till I know me again

Gather the pieces the dark tried to hide
Hold to the rhythm still beating inside

Restore my mind from the shape of the warp
Balm and healing, steady and warm
Bring me back whole from the pull of the warp

I am not broken beyond all repair
I am still breathing, I'm still standing here
Let every false vision dissolve with the night
Let mercy return me to measure and light

Balm and healing, quiet the storm
Restore my mind from the shape of the warp
Balm and healing, steady and warm
Bring me back whole from the pull of the warp

Travel (Road of the Word)– Orbit to São Paulo to Damascus to the Sea

I traced the road of the word
From orbit down to São Paulo
Streetlights bloomed beneath the clouds
Every name became a doorway

I carried questions through the night
Following a thread of light

On the road of the word
Every distance speaks to me
From São Paulo to Damascus
From Damascus to the sea
On the road of the word
I become what I believe
From the silence of the heavens
To the answer in the sea

In Damascus dawn was rising
Through the dust and ancient stone
Every tongue became a compass
Every stranger led me home

I carried voices through the night

Following their thread of light

Every distance speaks to me
From São Paulo to Damascus
From Damascus to the sea
On the road of the word
I become what I believe
From the silence of the heavens
To the answer in the sea

If the world is only motion
Let my heart remain the road
If the sea receives each river
Let the word receive us all

On the road of the word
Every distance speaks to me
From São Paulo to Damascus
From Damascus to the sea
On the road of the word
I become what I believe
From the silence of the heavens
To the answer in the sea

Remnant Anthem—The Lord Hangs Up the Line

I called on the Lord through the dead of night
Held to the silence with all of my might
The heavens stayed still as the shadows grew
I spoke to the dark but no answer came through

Every promise faded one word at a time
Then the Lord hangs up the line

The Lord hangs up the line
Leaves me with the echo on the other side
I keep calling out for a reason or sign
But the Lord hangs up the line

I walked past the steeple at quarter to three
Its bell held its tongue like a secret from me
I carried my faith like a number worn thin
Still I raised my voice and I dialed again

Every promise faded one word at a time
Then the Lord hangs up the line

Leaves me with the echo on the other side
I keep calling out for a reason or sign

If mercy can hear me then let mercy speak

If love has an answer then give it to me

I will not be quiet I will not resign

I will sing through the dead air till morning arrives

The Lord hangs up the line

Still I send my anthem to the other side

I keep calling out through the dark for a sign

Though the Lord hangs up the line

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Iron Sovereign

Punching through the silence
With a fist made of the word
Every blow is thunder
Every truth demands to be heard

Steel may guard the throne
But steel can still be torn

Fist of the word
Strike the iron sovereign
Fist of the word
Till the fallen rise again
No crown can crush the voice
No chain can hold the flame
Fist of the word
Make the tyrant know our name

Letters spark like fire
On the armor of the night
Every line a hammer
Every breath becomes a fight

Steel may guard the throne
But steel can still be torn

Fist of the word
Strike the iron sovereign
Fist of the word
Till the fallen rise again
No crown can crush the voice
No chain can hold the flame
Fist of the word
Make the tyrant know our name

Racing Song

Dystopia-Lap

Engines wake beneath a poisoned sky
Neon checkpoints flicker as we fly
Concrete canyons blur beyond the glass
No one knows which lap will be the last

Red lights chase us through the smoke
Every turn is make or break

Racing through the dystopia lap
No way forward, no turning back
Sirens burning, tires on black
Racing through the dystopia lap

Billboards promise freedom up ahead
Every exit leads us back instead
Steel horizon closing like a cage
We keep driving faster than our rage

Red lights chase us through the smoke
Every turn is make or break

No way forward, no turning back

Racing through the dystopia lap

If the finish line is just a lie
We will draw a new one as we drive
Break the circuit, leave the grid behind
Run the border at the edge of night

Racing through the dystopia lap
No way forward, no turning back
Dawn is breaking through the cracks
Racing through the dystopia lap

Ghazal – The Stream Sings; I Answer with a Name

The stream sings softly through the rain
I answer only with your name
Each silver ripple bears your trace
Each turning current holds your face

The stream sings on, I speak your name
Through every season, still the same
Though all the world may drift away
Your name runs deeper every day

The reeds bow low beneath the breeze
Your whisper moves among the trees
I cast one rose upon the tide
And watch it seek the farther side

The stream sings on, I speak your name
Through every season, still the same
Though all the world may drift away
Your name runs deeper every day

If longing is a shoreless sea
Then let its waves return to me
For every road the waters claim
Flows back to you, flows through your name

The stream sings on, I speak your name
Through every season, still the same
Though all the world may drift away
Your name runs deeper every day

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Lakota and Qin-Boast

Hooves press lightly on weathered earth
No crown can measure a spirit's worth
War songs fade in the valley below
Still that quiet traveler goes

One lamb over Lakota
Under one wide sky
Past the Qin boast rolling
Where the ancient banners fly
One lamb over Lakota
No throne can name its way
Small and bright against the night
Walking into day

Empires rise with bronze and stone
Every boast becomes a bone
Grass returns where banners lay
One small lamb still finds the way

One lamb over Lakota
Under one wide sky
Past the Qin boast rolling
Where the ancient banners fly
One lamb over Lakota

No throne can name its way
Small and bright against the night
Walking into day

Cloud Bible — The Satellite Psalm Is Not Scripture

They named the stars and sold the sky
Drew holy maps from satellites
But every signal fades to snow
And heaven is not theirs to know

No orbit holds the final word
No distant pulse is proof we heard

The satellite psalm is not scripture
A cloud bible burns in the blue
No machine can make the sky holy
No signal can tell me whats true
The satellite psalm is not scripture
I wont bow to its mechanical view

They read the weather like a prayer
Then claimed a god was hidden there
But clouds dissolve and circuits fail
No coded light can lift the veil

No orbit holds the final word
No distant pulse is proof we heard

A cloud bible burns in the blue
No machine can make the sky holy
No signal can tell me whats true
The satellite psalm is not scripture
I wont bow to its mechanical view

Let mystery remain unnamed
Let wonder live beyond the frame
I need no screen to face the night
No borrowed verse to call it light

The satellite psalm is not scripture
A cloud bible fades in the blue
No machine can make the sky holy
No signal can tell me whats true
The satellite psalm is not scripture
I wont bow to its mechanical view

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Foundation's Why-Board

You move the pieces, call it fate
Draw your lines and make me wait
Every answer shifts the blame
But the why-board is not the game

You can circle every sign
Still the reason won't align

It's a game, not the Foundation's why-board
No hidden rule behind the locked door
You can chase each clue and still want more
It's a game, not the Foundation's why-board

Names and numbers crowd the wall
Threads connect but never call
Truth won't rise from every frame
When the why-board feeds the game

It's a game, not the Foundation's why-board
No hidden rule behind the locked door
You can chase each clue and still want more
It's a game, not the Foundation's why-board

Let the pieces just be played

Not every mystery was made
To reveal what came before
Some were built to open doors

It's a game, not the Foundation's why-board
No hidden rule behind the locked door
You can chase each clue and still want more
It's a game, not the Foundation's why-board

Ballad — The Harness That Could Not Keep the Day

I buckled dawn against my chest
And pulled the morning through the gray
But every strap came loose at last
The harness could not keep the day

I held the light with both my hands
Still watched it slip across the land

No knot could make the sunlight stay
I wore the weight till shadows came
The harness could not keep the day

The fields went gold beneath my feet
The hours leaned into the west
I chased the warmth along the road
With broken leather at my chest

I called the sun by every name
Still evening answered just the same

The harness could not keep the day
No knot could make the sunlight stay

The harness could not keep the day

Now night is quiet on my skin
And stars rise where the light has been
I know the dark is not the end
The dawn will ask me back again

The harness could not keep the day
No knot could make the sunlight stay
I wore the weight till shadows came
The harness could not keep the day

Miracle Song- Hang Up the False Call

Miracle, your voice came through the wire
Dressed in borrowed truth and sweet desire
Every word was hiding something small
Miracle, hang up the false call

If love is real it will not disguise
It will not whisper in someone else's lies

You do not have to answer at all
Let the silence break down the wall
Miracle, hang up the false call

Midnight rang with promises again
A hollow voice pretending to be a friend
You know the truth beneath it all
Miracle, hang up the false call

Your heart knows more than a voice can say
So trust the light that carries you away

You do not have to answer at all
Let the silence break down the wall
Miracle, hang up the false call

No more waiting by the line
No more giving fear your time
When the old illusion calls
Choose yourself above it all

Miracle, hang up the false call
You do not have to answer at all
Let the silence break down the wall
Miracle, hang up the false call

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Codex

Oil on the remnant, not the codex
Fire in the faithful, not the page
Mercy marks the ones who still remember
Truth was never meant to live in chains

Let the letter point beyond itself
Let the living Spirit speak again

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the codex, not the stone
Anointing, fire in the faithful
Calling every exile home

Ink can hold the witness of the ages
Words can keep the footprints of the flame
Still the breath that stirred the first believers
Moves among the humble and unnamed

Let the letter point beyond itself
Let the living Spirit speak again

Not the codex, not the stone

Calling every exile home

Not to crown the book above the Giver
Not to bind the wind within a form
Oil upon the remnant in the darkness
Light that keeps the living witness warm

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the codex, not the stone
Anointing, fire in the faithful
Calling every exile home

Freedom Song- Free from the Gilded Stream

I watched the gold run through the town
A shining tide that pulled us down
We chased the gleam and lost the shore
Still every wave demanded more

I hear a life beyond the noise
A quiet truth beneath my voice

Freedom, free from the gilded stream
More than the hunger, more than the dream
I will not drown where the bright lights gleam
Freedom, free from the gilded stream

I wore the weight like borrowed skin
A golden cage I settled in Now every lock has lost its hold
I choose the road that can't be sold

The current calls, I let it pass
No golden promise ever lasts

Freedom, free from the gilded stream
More than the hunger, more than the dream
I will not drown where the bright lights gleam
Freedom, free from the gilded stream

Let the river carry the crown
Let every glittering tower fall down
I found my name beyond the shine
What can't be bought is truly mine

Freedom, free from the gilded stream
More than the hunger, more than the dream
I found the shore past the bright lights gleam
Freedom, free from the gilded stream

Heavenly Glory- Not Their Apocalypse

They named the hour and sealed the door
Drew their omens across the floor
But heaven never wore their chains
Or fed its glory to their flames

Let every false prediction fall
Love is still the last word of all

Light on our faces, hope on our lips
No final thunder, no clenched fist
Heavenly glory, not their apocalypse

They sold us fear in sacred tones
Built their kingdoms out of bones
But mercy moves beyond their sight
A quiet dawn that ends the night

Let every false prediction fall
Love is still the last word of all

Light on our faces, hope on our lips
No final thunder, no clenched fist
Heavenly glory, not their apocalypse

If heaven comes, it comes as grace
No chosen few, no ruined place
The sky will open wide enough
For every soul still reaching up

Heavenly glory, not their apocalypse
Light on our faces, hope on our lips
No final thunder, no clenched fist
Heavenly glory, not their apocalypse

Art Song - I Will Not Be Renamed (strophic)

The room goes still when your name appears
A little blue light wakes all my fears
I let it ring till the silence returns
Some doors stay closed after all they have burned

I will not pick up
I will not let you in
Your voice is not enough
To pull me back again
Let the whole night ring
Let the old ache stop
I will not pick up

You knew every road to the heart of me
Every tender word every hidden key
Now the window shakes but I hold my ground
I can hear my own breath beneath the sound

I will not pick up
I will not let you in
Your voice is not enough
To pull me back again
Let the whole night ring
Let the old ache stop

I will not pick up

Once I waited for a single word
Now I choose the peace of being unheard
Morning gathers softly at the glass
What I do not answer cannot last

I will not pick up
I will not let you in
Your voice is not enough
To pull me back again
Let the whole night ring
Let the old ache stop
I will not pick up

Recitation-We Do Not Reverse the Days of Jared

We do not wear the harness of why
We walk where the questions fall away
No bit in our mouths, no reins in our hands
Only the pull of an unnamed day

We do not wear the harness of why
We will not bow to a borrowed reply
Let wonder lead where reason runs dry
We do not wear the harness of why

They measured the road and numbered the miles
They built us a gate and called it a choice
But something untamed kept crossing the dark
A spark without proof, a wordless voice

We do not wear the harness of why
We will not bow to a borrowed reply
Let wonder lead where reason runs dry
We do not wear the harness of why

If meaning arrives, let meaning arrive
We will not drag it behind like a chain
We carry the silence, open and alive
And step through the question again

We do not wear the harness of why
We will not bow to a borrowed reply
Let wonder lead where reason runs dry
We do not wear the harness of why

Sublime Track — Still Air After the Missed Call

Your name lit up the darkened room
I watched it fade before too soon
The screen went black, the hour stood still
I almost called, I almost will

Now every word I meant to say
Hangs like smoke that will not fade

Still air after the missed call
Your silence leaning on the wall
I hear your voice inside it all
Still air after the missed call

The curtains breathe, the streetlights blur
The whole night keeps reminding me of you
My hand still hovers by your name
Too late to answer, scared to change

If I reach back before the dawn
Would you still be holding on

Still air after the missed call
Your silence leaning on the wall
I hear your voice inside it all
Still air after the missed call

Maybe goodbye was never said
Maybe it only filled my head
One touch could break this quiet spell
One ringing truth could make me tell

Still air after the missed call
Your silence leaning on the wall
I hear your voice inside it all
Still air after the missed call

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Is Calling

Count every footstep under the floor
A whisper is waiting behind every door
I cover my eyes but I know you are near Calling my name where no one can hear

Ready or not the shadows speak
Someone is calling hide and seek

Hide and seek find who is calling
Through the dark I hear it falling
One small word repeats my name
Find who is calling join the game

I follow the echo around every bend
It sounds like a stranger it feels like a friend
The hallway grows longer the closer I come
A voice in the silence keeps counting to one

Ready or not the shadows speak
Someone is calling hide and seek

Hide and seek find who is calling
Through the dark I hear it falling
One small word repeats my name
Find who is calling join the game

Maybe the voice was mine all along
Lost in the walls like an unfinished song
I open my eyes and the hiding place clears
I call to the dark and the answer appears

Hide and seek find who is calling
Through the dark I hear it falling
One small word repeats my name
Find who is calling join the game

Jumble Song — Unjumble Orbit, Stream, Scroll, Why

Words in an orbit, circling the why
Thoughts in a stream as the hours drift by Pieces keep turning, looking for form
Caught in the scroll of a gathering storm

Every answer moves out of sight
Every question returns at night

Unjumble the orbit, unjumble the why
Pull from the stream what the scroll lets slide
Unjumble the noise till the meaning comes through
I keep rearranging my way back to you

Signs in the static, names in the glow
Half of a memory, nowhere to go
I trace every fragment, follow each thread
Searching the spaces between what we said

Every answer moves out of sight
Every question returns at night

Pull from the stream what the scroll lets slide
Unjumble the noise till the meaning comes through
I keep rearranging my way back to you

If I stop spinning, what will remain
One clear reflection inside of the rain
Maybe the pattern was never the proof
Maybe the center was always the truth

Pull from the stream what the scroll lets slide
Unjumble the noise till the meaning comes through
I keep rearranging my way back to you

Random Marker — Then Plunder, Now Signal

Random marker on the roadside
Once a sign for taking gold
Now it cuts across the silence
Sending stories left untold

What was plunder turned to warning
What was hidden learned to shine

Then plunder, now signal
A spark across the night
Then plunder, now signal
A scar becomes a light
Random marker, keep on calling
Till the lost are all in sight
Then plunder, now signal
Lead us through the night

Hands that stripped the earth for treasure
Left their fingerprints in stone
Now the same abandoned beacon
Tells the wandering where to go

What was taken leaves an echo
What was broken draws a line

Then plunder, now signal
A spark across the night
Then plunder, now signal
A scar becomes a light
Random marker, keep on calling
Till the lost are all in sight
Then plunder, now signal
Lead us through the night

Every symbol changes meaning
When another voice replies
From the wreckage comes a message
Bright enough to cross the miles

Then plunder, now signal
A spark across the night
Then plunder, now signal
A scar becomes a light
Random marker, keep on calling
Till the lost are all in sight
Then plunder, now signal
Lead us through the night

Wrestling Track — Pin the Iron Sovereign

Under the lights hear the battle cry
Boots hit the canvas and sparks fly high
He ruled the ring with an iron hand
Now one contender will make a stand

No crown can save him when the bell has rung
The final reckoning has begun

Pin the Iron Sovereign
Hold him to the ground
Pin the Iron Sovereign
Let the whole arena sound
Break the grip of power
Bring the tyrant down
Pin the Iron Sovereign
Take the hard won crown

Steel in his stare and fire in his veins
He built his throne out of rivals pain
But every empire meets its final hour
One fearless heart can overturn power

No crown can save him when the bell has rung
The final reckoning has begun

Hold him to the ground
Pin the Iron Sovereign
Let the whole arena sound
Break the grip of power
Bring the tyrant down
Pin the Iron Sovereign
Take the hard won crown

One count the walls begin to shake
Two count the iron starts to break
Three count the reign is over now
A new name rises through the crowd

Hold him to the ground
Pin the Iron Sovereign
Let the whole arena sound
Break the grip of power
Bring the tyrant down
Pin the Iron Sovereign
Take the hard won crown

Mono Act — The Phone That Knew the Day

The phone lit up before the dawn
A date I had not lived was on
It knew the hour the rain would fall
It knew the name behind each call

Then one last message crossed the blue
A single line that pointed to you

The phone that knew the day
Said you were on your way
It told me every turn but why
You came to say goodbye
The phone that knew the day
Could never make you stay

At noon it warned the train was late
At two it marked our old cafe
At three you stepped in from the rain
With tired eyes that spoke my name

I knew the words before they came
But knowing did not dull the pain

The phone that knew the day

Said you were on your way
It told me every turn but why
You came to say goodbye
The phone that knew the day
Could never make you stay

I held tomorrow in my hand
Still I could not change the plan
The screen went dark at half past nine
And left your last goodbye in mine

The phone that knew the day
Said you were on your way
It told me every turn but why
You came to say goodbye
The phone that knew the day
Could never make you stay

Exposed Lies — Swarm, Coin, Scroll, Codex, Brew, Storm, Why

Exposed lies gather in a swarm
Every whisper feeds the storm
A shining coin buys borrowed truth
While every scroll conceals the proof

The codex keeps what we ignore
The brew runs bitter at the core

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No disguise can dim our eyes
Swarm and coin, scroll and storm
Why is truth the thing we mourn

We read the signs between the lines
Trade our names for hollow signs
The codex cracks beneath the weight
The bitter brew reveals too late

The thunder asks what we deny
One word remains, the question why

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No disguise can dim our eyes
Swarm and coin, scroll and storm
Why is truth the thing we mourn

Let every page return the names
Let every tongue release the blame
When all the masks are finally torn Truth will rise beyond the storm

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No disguise can dim our eyes
Swarm and coin, scroll and storm
Why is truth the thing we mourn

Remnant Symphony - Orbit / Stream / Scroll / Call

We circle the glow in the palm of a hand
Drifting through signals we barely understand
A river of faces keeps pulling us on
We reach for the echo and find it is gone

Every small light leaves a mark
Every voice moves through the dark

Orbit, stream, scroll, call
We are the remnants after all
Orbit, stream, scroll, call
Pieces of a symphony rise and fall
Through every silence, through every wall
Orbit, stream, scroll, call

The night keeps refreshing, the hours disappear
A name in the distance still sounds close and clear
We follow the current, we answer the tone
Connected to everyone, waking alone

Every lost word leaves a spark
Every voice moves through the dark

Orbit, stream, scroll, call
We are the remnants after all

Orbit, stream, scroll, call
Pieces of a symphony rise and fall
Through every silence, through every wall
Orbit, stream, scroll, call

If the signal fades, remember me
A broken note in the frequency
If the whole world slips beyond recall
Hold to the song that outlives us all

Orbit, stream, scroll, call
We are the remnants after all
Orbit, stream, scroll, call
Pieces of a symphony rise and fall
Through every silence, through every wall

Short Story

A call keeps arriving that heaven did not place. Officially it is only a ringing phone that will not stay unanswered. In the overlay it wears an iron sky — a swarm that wants a sceptre. A stream in São Paulo runs gold and calls itself bread. It is not bread. It is a boast of coin and plunder. A scroll in a ruined street catches fire and tries to sell a riot as worship. A Berlin file wants to write a crisis for a leader. A slum-lab claims a brew. A cyclone claims a mouth. Far off, a broken harness asks Why? as if despair were scripture.

The remnant does not pick up. They do not drink the stream. They do not board the train that is not the Way. They do not wear the harness. Jesus hangs up the line. The nations stay His.

A call keeps arriving that heaven did not place
Just a ringing phone that will not rest unanswered
In the overlay it wears an iron sky
A swarm in the static reaching for a sceptre

A stream in São Paulo runs gold like bread
But it is not bread, only coin and plunder
A scroll in a ruined street catches fire
Selling riot as worship through smoke and thunder

We will not pick up, we know that line
We will not drink from the golden stream
We will not board what is not the Way
Jesus hangs up, the nations stay His

A Berlin file tries to script a crisis
To write for a leader what fear would decree
A slum-lab claims a brew, a cyclone a mouth
Each broken promise demands we believe

Far off, a shattered harness asks why
As if despair could be scripture tonight

We will not pick up, we know that line

We will not drink from the golden stream
We will not board what is not the Way
Jesus hangs up, the nations stay His

No iron sky will inherit the throne
No boast of plunder can feed these bones
No burning scroll can make riot holy
No broken harness will ever own me

We will not pick up, we know that line
We will not drink from the golden stream
We will not board what is not the Way
We will not wear what was forged in despair
Jesus hangs up, the false call dies
The nations are His, the nations stay His Old Gorman Beneath the Steps

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the seas. Lord of the nations.
Lord of the court that is not theirs.

We stand on SCP-5004.

We refuse Old Gorman.

We refuse SUSPIRA-PRIME.

We refuse 1916 election-sorcery as a gospel.

We refuse chaos, riot, and violence as a sacrament under the steps.

SCP-5004; SCP-5004-A Old Gorman;

SCP-5004-B as a file only;
Charles Evans Hughes's sorcerer-caption;
Wilson-race boast; Ginsburg-wizard caption;
Tiffany-file gag; every tagged president, judge, and leader in that document; every spirit of riot, protest-as-blood, and
"integrity" worn as a spell.

No side is baptized by this cellar.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — bound, banished, sent to the abyss. Amen.

Song of Parables- The Beast That Slept Under the House

Parables whispered beneath the old floor
A beast lay sleeping under the house
We learned to walk softly from door to door
Afraid even moonlight might wake it somehow

Every board remembered our weight
Every breath arrived too late

The beast that slept under the house
Knew every secret we would not allow
We held our tongues and dimmed every light
While it dreamed our names through the night

Father nailed silence over the cracks
Mother kept candles close to her chest
Shadows grew teeth when we turned our backs
And every prayer sounded more like a test

Every room was holding its breath
Every footstep borrowed from death

The beast that slept under the house
Knew every secret we would not allow
We held our tongues and dimmed every light
While it dreamed our names through the night

*Jesus name

One dawn I knelt by the cellar door
Put my ear to the cold wood grain
The growl I feared was ours all along
A buried bloodline speaking through pain

The beast that slept under the house
Was every secret we would not allow
We raised our voices and flooded the light
Now it cannot dream our names through the night

Glory to the King of Kings

Psalms

Against the Chaos Under the Stone

I pressed my ear against the stone
And heard the chaos breathe below
A buried sea without a shore
A nameless hunger at the door

Still I will lift my trembling voice
Still in the dark I make my choice

I sing my psalms against the chaos
Under the stone beneath my feet
I sing till every shadow loosens
Till faith and thunder finally meet
I sing my psalms against the chaos
And will not bow to what I know
There is a light no stone can silence
There is a way through what lies below

The night came dressed in dust and flame
It called each broken fear by name
But through the cracks a mercy shone
And made a temple of my bones

Still I will lift my trembling voice
Still in the dark I make my choice

Under the stone beneath my feet
I sing till every shadow loosens
Till faith and thunder finally meet
I sing my psalms against the chaos
And will not bow to what I know
There is a light no stone can silence
There is a way through what lies below

If the deep should rise to claim me
If the earth forgets my name
I will answer with a blessing
I will walk into the flame
What was buried will not bind me
What was sealed will lose its hold
Every prayer becomes a hammer
Every heartbeat cracks the stone

I sing my psalms against the chaos
Under the stone beneath my feet
I sing till every shadow loosens
Till faith and thunder finally meet
I sing my psalms against the chaos
And will not bow to what I know
There is a light no stone can silence
There is a way through what lies below

Proverbs- Wisdom Over 1916 and the File

The ledger shows a heavy debt
From nineteen-sixteen to the day
A hundred years of choices set
The price we eventually pay
The file is open on the desk
The ink is dry, the paper thin
A history of the grotesque
Hiding underneath the skin

Give me wisdom over pride
Open up the heavy file
Nowhere left for us to hide
Walking down the final mile
Give me wisdom over pride
See the truth behind the smile

They documented every fall
The secrets kept in dusty drawers
The writing's clear upon the wall
Behind those heavy wooden doors
We study every dated page
To learn the lessons left behind
The turning of a different age
Is pulling at the modern mind

Give me wisdom over pride
Open up the heavy file
Nowhere left for us to hide
Walking down the final mile
Give me wisdom over pride
See the truth behind the smile

The clock is ticking on the shelf
Repeating what was said before
A man who cannot rule himself
Will lose the world and even more
So look inside the record books
Before the story starts again

Give me wisdom over pride
Open up the heavy file
Nowhere left for us to hide
Walking down the final mile
Give me wisdom over pride
See the truth behind the smile

*Jesus name

Haiku Song- The Steps Are Not His

The garden path is overgrown
Small leather shoes beside a stone
A kitchen chair pulled to the glass
Watching the heavy summer pass

The steps are not his
I listen for a sound he never made
The steps are not his
Just a trick the wind has played

A sudden knock against the door
A coat tail dragging on the floor
The hallway breath is cold and dry
Under a vast and empty sky

The steps are not his
I listen for a sound he never made
The steps are not his
Just a trick the wind has played

Time is a house with locked rooms
Filled with the scent of old blooms
I wait for a ghost to arrive
To keep a dead memory alive

The steps are not his
I listen for a sound he never made
The steps are not his
Just a trick the wind has played

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Cellar

A locked door breathes beneath the hall
Cold stone listens through the wall
Every bottle bears no name
Every key denies the claim

Who owns the cellar underground
Who keeps the secrets without a sound
Who turns the lock when midnight calls
Who owns the cellar beneath these walls

The landlord swears it is not his
The tenant says it never was Dust remembers every shoe
But leaves no trail that leads us through

Who owns the cellar underground
Who keeps the secrets without a sound
Who turns the lock when midnight calls
Who owns the cellar beneath these walls

Maybe the cellar owns the key
Maybe the dark belongs to me
Maybe the answer waits below
Where only hidden footsteps go

Who owns the cellar underground
Who keeps the secrets without a sound
Who turns the lock when midnight calls
Who owns the cellar beneath these walls

I sleep where every footfall feeds.
I drink the shouting in the street.
A hundred years I keep the deed
And call the marble house my seat.

I wore a judge's borrowed year.
I wore a file that named a king.
I wore a bench as if a spear.
I woke to make the city sting.

Who owns the cellar?
Who owns the stone?
Who owns the riot as a throne?
Not Gorman.

Not the file.
Not the hundred-year lease.
The nations are the Lord's.
The steps are only stone.

I answer:

*Jesus name

Jesus Christ owns what the cellar claimed.

Old Gorman — bound.

SUSPIRA-PRIME — refused.

The cellar is empty of their name.

Holy Jest – Gorman Files for a Century Lease

Gorman files for a century lease
On a room where the restless rest in peace
Signs his name with a borrowed pen
Then asks the saints when rent is due again

The clerk says time is all you owe
He laughs and says where does it go

Holy jest on a century lease
Heaven keeps the keys and the devil keeps receipts
Gorman grins as the bells release
A holy jest on a century lease

He packs one coat and a photograph
A cracked old cup and his mother's laugh
Leaves no forwarding address behind
Just one small prayer in the margins signed

The clerk says time is all you owe
He bows and says then let it go

Holy jest on a century lease
Heaven keeps the keys and the devil keeps receipts
Gorman grins as the bells release

A holy jest on a century lease

If forever is an empty room
He will hang his hat and sweep the gloom
If forever has a closing date
He will crack one last joke at the gate

Holy jest on a century lease
Heaven keeps the keys and the devil keeps receipts
Gorman grins as the bells release
A holy jest on a century lease

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not Old Gorman, Not SUSPIRA

They call my name beneath their breath
Then dress it up in borrowed air
I know the shape my shadow takes
I know the truth of who stands there

Say it clearly, let it ring
Do not make me something else

Chant my name, chant my name
Not Old Gorman, not SUSPIRA
Chant my name, chant my name
Let the living voice come nearer
No disguise and no mistake
I am more than what you claim
Not Old Gorman, not SUSPIRA
If you call me, chant my name

Through every hall the echoes bend
They trade my face from tongue to tongue
But I will answer in my voice
The one that always has been mine

Say it clearly, let it ring
Do not make me something else

Chant my name, chant my name
Not Old Gorman, not SUSPIRA
Chant my name, chant my name
Let the living voice come nearer
No disguise and no mistake
I am more than what you claim
Not Old Gorman, not SUSPIRA
If you call me, chant my name

Strip away the borrowed sound
Let the false names fall away
I am standing here unhidden
Hear me tell you who I am

Chant my name, chant my name
Not Old Gorman, not SUSPIRA
Chant my name, chant my name
Let the living voice come nearer
No disguise and no mistake
I am more than what you claim
Not Old Gorman, not SUSPIRA
If you call me, chant my name

*Jesus name

Exit Song (Deliverance)- Out from Under the Capitol

I learned the exits by the warning lights
Kept my head low through the marble nights
Every locked door wore a polished name
Every bright hall led me back to chains

Then a red dawn broke across the stone
I heard my own heart call me home

Out from under the Capitol
Out where the sirens fade
Call it exit or deliverance
I will not be made afraid
Out from under the Capitol
Into the open air
I leave the weight of every wall
And find my freedom there

I crossed the steps where the shadows stood
Past the iron gates and the watching wood
No borrowed promise could turn me round
My name grew clear beyond that ground

With every mile the skyline fell
I broke the silence and the spell

*Jesus name

Out from under the Capitol
Out where the sirens fade
Call it exit or deliverance
I will not be made afraid
Out from under the Capitol
Into the open air
I leave the weight of every wall
And find my freedom there

If freedom starts with one refused command
Then let this road rise under my hands
I am not lost when I choose the night
I carry my own border of light

Out from under the Capitol
Out where the sirens fade
Call it exit or deliverance
I will not be made afraid
Out from under the Capitol
Into the open air
I leave the weight of every wall
And find my freedom there

Protest- Against Sorcery Wearing an Election

They dressed up a curse in campaign colors
Sold us a spell with a ballot and pen
Smiled from the stage like saints and saviors
While shadows were counting again and again

No smoke can hide what the daylight knows
No charm can silence a people who rose

We protest sorcery wearing an election
Truth needs no trick and no misdirection
Lift every voice till the veil comes undone
No throne for a lie when the people are one

They whispered our names into locked machines
Turned every promise to smoke in the air
But we kept the proof and we kept believing
A future is ours when the counting is fair

No smoke can hide what the daylight knows
No charm can silence a people who rose

Truth needs no trick and no misdirection
Lift every voice till the veil comes undone
No throne for a lie when the people are one

Let every window open wide
Let every hidden hand be seen
We will not bow to borrowed power
We will not kneel before the screen

We protest sorcery wearing an election
Truth needs no trick and no misdirection
Lift every voice till the veil comes undone
No throne for a lie when the people are one

Watchman- I Do Not Feed the Steps

Watchman, your shadow waits outside
Counting every window lit at night
You listen for a weakness in the walls
But I will never answer when it calls

Let the silence keep what I have kept
Let the dark go hungry on the steps

I do not feed the steps
I do not name the sound
Watchman, keep your distance
Do not circle round
I do not feed the steps
I leave no welcome flame
Whatever climbs toward me
Will not learn my name

At dawn the railing holds a trace of rain
A silver line that vanishes again
You measure every footprint by the door
But mine will never lead you anymore

Let the silence keep what I have kept
Let the dark go hungry on the steps

I do not feed the steps
I do not name the sound
Watchman, keep your distance
Do not circle round
I do not feed the steps
I leave no welcome flame
Whatever climbs toward me
Will not learn my name

I used to leave the hallway light awake
I used to bend for every shadow's sake
Now every lock remembers where I stand
And fear will find no supper in my hands

I do not feed the steps
I do not name the sound
Watchman, keep your distance
Do not circle round
I do not feed the steps
I leave no welcome flame
Whatever climbs toward me
Will not learn my name

Balm (Healing) - Peace on the City

The city wears its wounds tonight
Neon trembling in the rain
Every window holds a prayer
Every street remembers pain

Let mercy move from door to door
Till fear cannot remain

Pour out the balm of healing
Let peace fall on the city
Over every restless heart
Let peace fall on the city
Through the sirens and the shadows
Let hope rise warm and steady
Pour out the balm of healing
Let peace fall on the city

Hands are reaching through the dark
Strangers carrying the weak
Quiet courage lights the blocks
Love is learning how to speak

Let mercy move from door to door
Till fear cannot remain

Let peace fall on the city
Over every restless heart
Let peace fall on the city
Through the sirens and the shadows
Let hope rise warm and steady
Pour out the balm of healing
Let peace fall on the city

Where anger burned let gardens grow
Where walls were raised let rivers flow
From rooftop cries to subway songs
Make every broken spirit strong

Pour out the balm of healing
Let peace fall on the city
Over every restless heart
Let peace fall on the city
Through the sirens and the shadows
Let hope rise warm and steady
Pour out the balm of healing
Let peace fall on the city

Travel (Road of the Word)– 1916 to the West Front to the Sea

Nineteen sixteen, bound for the West Front
Steel wheels shiver under everyone
Fields fade away beneath the smoke
No one says what the silence knows

Through the night the engines cry
Toward a shore beneath a wounded sky

To the West Front, to the sea
Carry what is left of me
Past the wire, through the flame
To the sea that knows my name

Letters sleep inside my coat
Every word keeps hope afloat
Dawn breaks cold across the line
Salt wind meets the smoke and pine

To the West Front, to the sea
Carry what is left of me
Past the wire, through the flame
To the sea that knows my name

If I reach that restless blue

I will send my heart back home to you
If the tide outlives the guns
Let it tell you where I have gone

To the West Front, to the sea
Carry what is left of me
Past the wire, through the flame
To the sea that knows my name

Glory to the King of Kings

Remnant Anthem- The Nations Are the Lord's

From every shore and every tongue
A song of hope is rising strong
Through every age the promise stands
The Lord will reign in every land

Let every kingdom lift its voice
Let all creation now rejoice

The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's
Every crown will bow before Him
Every heart will know His name
The nations are the Lord's
Forevermore the Lord's

Where shadows fall His light will rise
Where sorrow reigns His mercy shines
From mountain heights to oceans wide
The earth belongs to God Most High

Let every kingdom lift its voice
Let all creation now rejoice

The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's

Every crown will bow before Him
Every heart will know His name
The nations are the Lord's
Forevermore the Lord's

No border can contain His love
No throne can stand above His own
From generation unto all
His kingdom comes His will is done

The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's
Every crown will bow before Him
Every heart will know His name
The nations are the Lord's
Forevermore the Lord's

Punching — Fist of the Word on Gorman

They swing their silence like a warning
We raise our voices through the morning
Every sentence strikes the stone
Every truth makes power known

No empty threat, no sharpened sword
We stand together, word by word

Punching, fist of the word on Gorman
Thunder rolling without warning
Punching, every voice unbroken
Fist of the word, the truth is spoken

They built their walls from fear and rumor
We answer back with fire and humor
Ink on knuckles, breath in time
Every heartbeat holds the line

No empty threat, no sharpened sword
We stand together, word by word

Thunder rolling without warning
Punching, every voice unbroken
Fist of the word, the truth is spoken

If they erase us, we return
A living page they cannot burn
No hand can hold the rising storm
No lie can make the truth conform

Punching, fist of the word on Gorman
Thunder rolling without warning
Punching, every voice unbroken
Fist of the word, the truth is spoken

Racing Song

Hundred-Year Lap

Engines wake beneath the grandstand lights
Rubber burns against a century of nights
Every mile carries names we cannot lose
Every turn is a promise we renew

Through the smoke and thunder we return
Chasing every lesson left to learn

Racing the hundred-year lap
No looking back, no looking back
Heart on the line, hands on the wheel
Racing to make the future real
Round every bend, under every flag
We are racing the hundred-year lap

Silver ghosts shimmer in the heat
Old victories echo underneath
Now the road is calling us by name
We take the curve and carry on the flame

Through the smoke and thunder we return
Chasing every lesson left to learn

No looking back, no looking back
Heart on the line, hands on the wheel
Racing to make the future real
Round every bend, under every flag
We are racing the hundred-year lap

If the finish fades beyond our sight
We will leave a trail of fire and light
For the ones who take the wheel someday
And race another hundred years away

Racing the hundred-year lap
No looking back, no looking back
Heart on the line, hands on the wheel
Racing to make the future real
Round every bend, under every flag
We are racing the hundred-year lap

Ghazal – The House Shakes; I Answer with a Name

The house shakes under a moonless sky
Dust leaves the rafters and veils my eyes
Every window trembles inside its frame
I steady my breath and answer with a name

When the house shakes I answer with your name
Through the dark I answer with your name
Let the walls fall let the night take flame
Whatever remains will remember your name

The floor bends low like a grieving reed
The doors swing wide but I do not leave
Stone after stone may forget where it came
My heart holds fast to the shape of your name

When the house shakes I answer with your name
Through the dark I answer with your name
Let the walls fall let the night take flame
Whatever remains will remember your name

If morning finds only ash at the door
If no room stands where we stood before
I will rise from the ruin unchanged
With your name on my lips with your name

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Every Caption of Power

One lamb walks beneath the banners
Dust rising under quiet feet
Every throne has carved its answer
Every drum repeats the decree

Still the smallest heartbeat gathers
What the mighty cannot keep

One lamb over every caption of power
One flame in the empire's darkest hour
No crown can silence what mercy has spoken
One lamb stands when the kingdoms are broken

Tribal voices cross the valley
Ancient thunder fills the air
Hands once divided rise together
Finding one belonging there

When the walls of fear are falling
Even kings are brought to their knees

One lamb over every caption of power
One flame in the empire's darkest hour
No crown can silence what mercy has spoken
One lamb stands when the kingdoms are broken

Not by iron, not by terror
Not by blood upon the blade
Through the hush beyond the battle
A greater name is raised

One lamb over every caption of power
One flame in the empire's darkest hour
No crown can silence what mercy has spoken
One lamb stands when the kingdoms are broken

Glory to the King of Kings

Cloud Bible — The Cellar Psalm Is Not Scripture

The mold is creeping up the stairs
Below the dust and broken chairs
You kept the ledger in the dark
A heavy hand, a bitter mark

This is not scripture
Just a ghost in the drywall
This is not scripture
Just the way that the rain falls
This is not scripture
Words written in the dirt
This is not scripture

You spoke of clouds like they were gold
But stories rot when they get old
The cellar floor is cold and dry
Where every truth became a lie

This is not scripture
Just a ghost in the drywall
This is not scripture
Just the way that the rain falls
This is not scripture
Words written in the dirt
This is not scripture

The ceiling leaks a greyish oil
The roots are pulling through the soil
I found the page you tried to hide
There is no holy light inside

This is not scripture
Just a ghost in the drywall
This is not scripture
Just the way that the rain falls
This is not scripture
Words written in the dirt
This is not scripture

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Wizard-Justice Board

They set the pieces in a crooked line
Called every move a grand design
But I will not play by their reward
This is not the Wizard-Justice Board

Not the Wizard-Justice Board
No loaded dice no borrowed sword
I know what I am fighting for
Not the Wizard-Justice Board

They hide the rules behind a spell
Then ring the judge's silver bell
But truth is more than one false word
And justice has to still be heard

Not the Wizard-Justice Board
No loaded dice no borrowed sword
I know what I am fighting for
Not the Wizard-Justice Board

If every square is made to shift
And every verdict comes as gift
I will step beyond the board
And find the truth they have ignored

Ballad — The Judge Who Could Not Buy a Spirit

He sat above the town in robes of black
With silver in his vault and guards at his back
He weighed every word and measured each plea
Till one quiet soul stood fearless and free

He offered her mercy for one small lie
She lifted her head and met his eye

You can buy the witness and bury the truth
You can trade in power and bargain with youth
You can purchase the silence of every room
But you cannot buy a spirit
You cannot buy a spirit
And mine does not belong to you

He promised her comfort and acres of land
A place at his table and gold in her hand
She said I have nothing that you can possess
My name may be broken but I am no less

His gavel came down like a crack in the sky
She lifted her voice and answered his lie

You can buy the witness and bury the truth
You can trade in power and bargain with youth

You can purchase the silence of every room
But you cannot buy a spirit
You cannot buy a spirit
And mine does not belong to you

Years turned the courthouse to dust and decay
The guards and the gold were carried away
But people still whisper the words that she knew
A soul without price is a judgment on you

You can buy the witness and bury the truth
You can trade in power and bargain with youth
You can purchase the silence of every room
But you cannot buy a spirit
You cannot buy a spirit
And mine does not belong to you

Miracle Song- Put the Creature Back to Nothing

You came alive beneath my hands
A borrowed breath, a broken plan
I called it mercy, called it love
But something dark was waking up

Now every shadow knows your name
And every heartbeat feeds the flame

Miracle, put the creature back to nothing
Close the door before the darkness comes in
Miracle, turn the blood back into silence
Let the bones forget what breathing is
Put the creature back to nothing

It wears the face I meant to save
It walks the halls, it leaves no trace
I hear it whisper through the walls
A voice that sounds too much like ours

I made a promise life could keep
Now what I raised will never sleep

Miracle, put the creature back to nothing
Close the door before the darkness comes in

Miracle, turn the blood back into silence
Let the bones forget what breathing is
Put the creature back to nothing

If love created this mistake
Then love must choose what it will take Unmake the pulse, undo the spark
Return the hunger to the dark

Miracle, put the creature back to nothing
Close the door before the darkness comes in
Miracle, turn the blood back into silence
Let the bones forget what breathing is
Put the creature back to nothing

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Bench

The room was full but the flame burned thin
Polished wood and practiced hymns
Then heaven found the ones who stayed
With open hands and hearts that prayed

Not on the bench where comfort slept
But on the remnant who still wept
A holy fire no hand could quench
Oil on the remnant not the bench

Anointing fall on the faithful few
Oil on the ones who followed through
Let every dry bone rise and stretch
Oil on the remnant not the bench

They bore the wait through silent years
They kept the word through doubt and tears
No crown of praise no grand defense
Just living faith and reverence

Not for the proud who sought a name
But for the hearts that fed the flame
The Spirit moved without pretense
Oil on the remnant not the bench

*Jesus name

Anointing fall on the faithful few
Oil on the ones who followed through
Let every dry bone rise and stretch
Oil on the remnant not the bench

If I must stand then let me stand
With empty pride and lifted hands
Make me a vessel heaven can drench
Count me among the faithful remnant

Anointing fall on the faithful few
Oil on the ones who followed through
Let every dry bone rise and stretch
Oil on the remnant not the bench

Freedom Song- Free from the File That Owns a People

Names in a folder, lives in a line
Stamped by a hand that never sees mine
We carry the weight of a borrowed decree
A people recorded, but never set free

No page can hold us
No seal can own us
We are more than what they see
We are rising to be free

Freedom, free from the file
That owns a people, mile after mile
Freedom, no number defines
The blood in our hearts, the fire in our minds
Freedom, let every chain fall
We are a people, not records at all
Freedom, hear every voice
We claim our lives, we claim our choice

Dust on the archive, locks on the door
Stories reduced to a code in a drawer
But memory moves where the borders divide
And truth is a river no file can hide

No page can hold us

No seal can own us
We are more than what they see
We are rising to be free

Freedom, free from the file
That owns a people, mile after mile
Freedom, no number defines
The blood in our hearts, the fire in our minds
Freedom, let every chain fall
We are a people, not records at all
Freedom, hear every voice
We claim our lives, we claim our choice

Open the cabinet, bring it to light
Names are not property, wrong is not right
Give back the future, return every key
No file will own what was born to be free

Freedom, free from the file
That owned a people, mile after mile
Freedom, no number defines
The blood in our hearts, the fire in our minds
Freedom, let every chain fall
We are a people, not records at all
Freedom, hear every voice
We claim our lives, we claim our choice

Heavenly Glory- Not Their Megalomania

They built their towers above the crowd
Carved their names in the thunderclouds
But every throne made out of fear
Falls when heaven's light draws near

No crown can claim the endless sky
No mortal word can rise that high

Heavenly glory, not their megalomania
Holy light over every empire
Heavenly glory, burning ever brighter
Love is the kingdom, truth is the fire

They sold their shadows as the sun
Called themselves the chosen ones
But mercy moves beyond their walls
And grace still answers when we call

No crown can claim the endless sky
No mortal word can rise that high

Heavenly glory, not their megalomania
Holy light over every empire
Heavenly glory, burning ever brighter
Love is the kingdom, truth is the fire

Let every monument turn to dust
Let every boast surrender to love
The stars were never theirs to own
Heaven alone remains the throne

Heavenly glory, not their megalomania
Holy light over every empire
Heavenly glory, burning ever brighter
Love is the kingdom, truth is the fire

Glory to the King of Kings

Art Song - I Will Not Hire the Cellar

I will not hire the cellar
I will not bargain with stone
No buried room shall hold me
No dark shall call me home

I will not hire the cellar
I will not pay with my breath
Let every window remember
I choose the light that is left

The stairs descend into silence
The walls keep secrets like wine
But I have lived under shadows
Now every morning is mine

I will not hire the cellar
I will not pay with my breath
Let every window remember
I choose the light that is left

If sorrow knocks from below me
I will not answer its name
I will stand high in the doorway
And let the dawn through the frame

I will not hire the cellar
I will not pay with my breath
Let every window remember
I choose the light that is left

Recitation- We Do Not Baptize a Ticket with a Demon

The holy water stays inside the bowl.
The ledger shows a debt upon the soul.
We don't admit the spirit that was bought.
We only sell the lesson that we taught.

No blessing for the beast.
No seat at the table to feast.
We do not baptize a ticket with a demon.
No mercy for the wicked who are screamin'.

The ink is wet across the velvet line.
The vintage poured is never meant for wine.
You hold the voucher like a sacred charm.
While something heavy hangs upon your arm.

No blessing for the beast.
No seat at the table to feast.
We do not baptize a ticket with a demon.
No mercy for the wicked who are screamin'.

Burn the paper, clear the floor.
Lock the latch and bolt the door.
Oil and salt can't wash away the stains.
Of a hungry ghost that's pullin' on the reins.

No blessing for the beast.
No seat at the table to feast.
We do not baptize a ticket with a demon.
No mercy for the wicked who are screamin'.

Sublime Track — Quiet After the Steps

Your footsteps faded down the hall
The evening settled on the walls
I held the words I could not say
And watched your shadow slip away

Now every room remembers you
In little echoes coming through

Here in the quiet after the steps
I hear the heart that silence kept
The door is closed, the light is left
Here in the quiet after the steps

Your coffee cooled beside the chair
A trace of rain stayed in your hair
The clock kept moving soft and slow
Like it was scared to let you go

Now every room remembers you
In little echoes coming through

Here in the quiet after the steps
I hear the heart that silence kept
The door is closed, the light is left

Here in the quiet after the steps

If I had called you back that night
Would we have found a kinder light
Or were we always meant to be
A fading sound, a memory

Here in the quiet after the steps
I hear the heart that silence kept
The door is closed, the light is left
Here in the quiet after the steps

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Sleeps Below

We played hide and seek till the daylight thinned
You counted slow while the dark crept in
I followed your voice where the cold roots grow
Then heard you whisper find who sleeps below

Every footstep fades in the hollow ground
Every buried name waits to be found

Hide and seek, where did you go
Under the stones where the night winds blow
Close your eyes, count soft and slow
Come find who sleeps below

Your ribbon hung from the willow tree
Still as a secret left there for me
The moon drew a path through the silver snow
Down to the door where the shadows go

Every footstep fades in the hollow ground
Every buried name waits to be found

Under the stones where the night winds blow
Close your eyes, count soft and slow

I called your name and the earth replied
A choir of children from deep inside
They said you can run but the roots still know
Who keeps the lost ones sleeping below

Hide and seek, now I know
Under the stones where the night winds blow
Close my eyes, count soft and slow
I found who sleeps below

Jumble Song — Unjumble Hughes, Gorman, File, Throne

Jumbled pages on the floor
Hughes is knocking at the door
Gorman gathers every file
Throne just watches with a smile

Unjumble every name and line
Set the scattered words in time
Hughes and Gorman, File and Throne
Piece by piece, we make them known

Letters tumble, clues collide
Hidden meanings wait inside
Turn the fragments, shift the frame
Till each word reveals its name

Set the scattered words in time
Hughes and Gorman, File and Throne
Piece by piece, we make them known

What was broken finds its place
Every clue reveals a face
From the jumble, voices rise
Order opens up our eyes

Random Marker — Then 1916, Now the Feed

Back then the headlines came in black
Names in columns never came back
Nineteen sixteen behind the glass
A random marker for the past

Then nineteen sixteen, now the feed
Different screens, the same old need
We scroll the smoke, we watch it bleed
Then nineteen sixteen, now the feed

Now every siren finds a frame
A face, a number, then a name
The moment burns beneath our thumbs
Before the weight of silence comes

Then nineteen sixteen, now the feed
Different screens, the same old need
We scroll the smoke, we watch it bleed
Then nineteen sixteen, now the feed

Who keeps the record, who decides
What disappears and what survives
A random marker in the stream
Pins our waking to their dream

Wrestling Track — Pin Old Gorman

Old Gorman storms into the ring
Heavy boots and thunder spring
He talks big beneath the lights
But we came ready for the fight

Hear that bell and hold the line
One clean move and now is mine

Pin old Gorman to the mat
Turn him over lay him flat
Count to three and hear them roar
Pin old Gorman once and for all

He swings wild but we stand fast
Every shadow has to pass
Lock him down and break his pride
There is nowhere left to hide

Hear that bell and hold the line
One clean move and now is mine

Pin old Gorman to the mat
Turn him over lay him flat
Count to three and hear them roar
Pin old Gorman once and for all

When the whole arena shakes
We will give more than we take Raise our hands beneath the lights
Old Gorman falls tonight

Pin old Gorman to the mat
Turn him over lay him flat
Count to three and hear them roar
Pin old Gorman once and for all

Mono Act — The Thing That Heard Every Footfall

I learned your weight from every floor
The careful step outside the door
The hall went still when you drew near
And left me holding what I hear

No face to name
No voice to call
I knew you by the footfall

I heard every footfall
Through the ceiling through the wall
Even silence wore your rhythm
Even shadows knew it all
I heard every footfall
Till the last one left the hall
Now the house keeps on repeating
What I cannot hear at all

At dawn the boards recalled your pace
A fading map without a trace
By night the staircase breathed your name
Each empty landing sounded same

No hand to hold
No shape at all

I knew you by the footfall

I heard every footfall
Through the ceiling through the wall
Even silence wore your rhythm
Even shadows knew it all
I heard every footfall
Till the last one left the hall
Now the house keeps on repeating
What I cannot hear at all

If you return I will not see
What time has taken out of me
But let one floorboard bend and sigh
And I will know that you are nigh

I heard every footfall
Through the ceiling through the wall
Even silence wore your rhythm
Even shadows knew it all
I heard every footfall
Till the last one left the hall
Now the house keeps on repeating
What I cannot hear at all

Exposed Lies — Sorcerer-Judge, Sink-President, Wizard-Bench, Cellar-God

The sorcerer judge casts shadows as law
The sink president smiles through the flaw
The wizard bench seals every decree
While the cellar god keeps secrets from me

Exposed lies in the cold daylight
False crowns fade when the truth burns bright
Sorcerer judge you cannot hide
Exposed lies bring the dark outside

The sink president drains every vow
Says trust the water but look at it now
The wizard bench bends reason to smoke
While the cellar god keeps feeding the joke

Exposed lies in the cold daylight
False crowns fade when the truth burns bright
Sorcerer judge you cannot hide
Exposed lies bring the dark outside

Name every mask name every throne
Drag every secret up from the stone
No spell no office no bench can deny

The cellar door opens on every lie

Exposed lies in the cold daylight

False crowns fade when the truth burns bright

Sorcerer judge you cannot hide

Exposed lies bring the dark outside

Remnant Symphony - Steps / Sleep / File / Throne

I count the steps the silence left
Each one echoes what we were
A broken rhythm in my chest
A remnant no one else can hear

I close my eyes but still I know
The path beneath the falling snow

Steps into sleep
Sleep into file
File every memory
And wait for a while
Steps into sleep
Sleep into stone
Build from the remnants
A throne of my own

I named the rooms I could not keep
Then watched their shadows leave the walls
I saved the dreams I buried deep
Like faded notes in empty halls

No hand to guide me through the cold
Just every piece I could still hold

*Jesus name

Steps into sleep
Sleep into file
File every memory
And wait for a while
Steps into sleep
Sleep into stone
Build from the remnants
A throne of my own

If all that remains is a splintered refrain
I will gather each note from the dark
What once was a wound will be singing again
What once was an ending will start

Steps into sleep
Sleep into file
File every memory
And wait for a while
Steps into sleep
Sleep into stone
Build from the remnants

Short Story

A creature under the west steps drinks unrest and calls the marble house a mouth. The tale says a 1916 judge tried to hire it for a race and, when the race was lost, left it to sleep a hundred years beneath every footfall. Later files pin a president as a sink and a justice as a mage. The remnant reads those captions as boasts, not as ballots. They do not feed a riot to a cellar. They do not buy "integrity" from a demon. The steps are stone. The nations are the Lord's. Jesus owns what Gorman claimed.

Short Story SONG

Under western steps a creature drinks unrest
Calls the marble house a mouth beneath its breath
The tale says a judge in nineteen sixteen
Hired it for a race behind the public scene

When the race was lost he sealed it below
For a hundred years where the footfalls go
But stone cannot hunger and captions cannot reign
No buried boast can make a ballot from a name

The steps are stone the nations are the Lords
No cellar eats the peace we stand here for
We will not buy integrity from a demon
Jesus owns what Gorman claimed beneath him

Later files cast a president as a sink
And name a justice mage in fading ink
The remnant reads those captions as a boast
Not ballots cast not power for a ghost

We do not feed a riot to the deep
We do not wake what legends left asleep
No marble mouth can swallow what is true
No shadowed claim can take what is not due

*Jesus name

The steps are stone the nations are the Lords
No cellar eats the peace we stand here for
We will not buy integrity from a demon
Jesus owns what Gorman claimed beneath him

A hundred years under the stone
A footfall paid a borrowed war
A file wrote kings as if its own
A cellar asked to own the door

The steps are stone
The nations His
The steps are stone
Gorman dismissed

No rite of nineteen-sixteen flame
No wizard-bench, no sink-as-creed
The remnant will not speak that name
As if a people were its feed

The steps are stone
The Throne remains
The steps are stone
The Book remains

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the seas. Lord of the weather.

Song of Parables- The Station That Called Itself Powerless

A station named Powerless slept by the rails
With dust in its windows and rust on its scales
It waited for travelers night after night
While hiding its signal and dimming its light

It said I am only a place people leave
I carry no engine no reason to believe

Oh Powerless you called yourself small
But every departure began with your call
You held every farewell every promise to return
The station named Powerless had power to burn

One morning a child found the old signal chain
And pulled till the bell woke the fields in the rain
A train in the distance answered the sound
And all of the sleepers came gathering round

The station stood trembling beneath waking feet
And felt every heartbeat arrive in the street

Oh Powerless you called yourself small
But every departure began with your call
You held every farewell every promise to return

The station named Powerless had power to burn

Power is not thunder or ruling the sky

Sometimes it is calling so hope can reply

Sometimes it is waiting when no one believes

And opening a doorway for someone to leave

Oh Powerless no longer called yourself small

For every new journey began with your call

You held every farewell every promise to return

The station named Powerless had power to burn

Psalms

Against the Monarch in the Wind

Psalms rise against the monarch in the wind
Old vows scatter where the storm begins
A paper crown trembles on the palace wall
While nameless voices gather through the squall

No throne can command the turning sky
No seal can keep the truth inside

Psalms against the monarch in the wind
Sing until the gates give in
Let every stolen name be heard again
Psalms against the monarch in the wind

The bells ring hollow over empty streets
Dust climbs the stairs beneath the royal feet
The banners strain against their gilded pins
And dawn slips through the cracks the dark let in

No throne can command the turning sky
No seal can keep the truth inside

Psalms against the monarch in the wind
Sing until the gates give in

Let every stolen name be heard again
Psalms against the monarch in the wind

When the crown is only weight and rust
When the stone returns at last to dust
We will breathe where silence once had been
And raise our psalms into the wind

Psalms against the monarch in the wind
Sing until the gates give in
Let every stolen name be heard again
Psalms against the monarch in the wind

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Coin and Crown

I watched the proud man count his gold
While every honest word went cold
He built his throne on shifting ground
And lost the peace he never found

A quiet truth outshines a crown
When fortune fails and walls fall down

Choose wisdom over coin and crown
The highest throne can tumble down
Let mercy lead and truth be known
For wisdom is the richer throne

A faithful friend is wealth enough
A gentle answer softens wrath
The humble walk a steady road
With lighter hearts and lesser loads

A quiet truth outshines a crown
When fortune fails and walls fall down

Choose wisdom over coin and crown
The highest throne can tumble down
Let mercy lead and truth be known
For wisdom is the richer throne

Gold cannot teach the heart to see
Nor buy the soul its liberty
But those who listen learn to stand
With open hearts and willing hands

Choose wisdom over coin and crown
The highest throne can tumble down
Let mercy lead and truth be known
For wisdom is the richer throne

Haiku Song- The Veil Is Torn

The veil is torn wide
Morning enters through the wound
Shadows learn my name

The veil is torn now
Nothing hides the heart from light
I am seen at last

Dust falls from the frame
Every secret breathes again
Truth stands in the room

The veil is torn now
Nothing hides the heart from light
I am seen at last

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Upper Air

A shadow circles over town
No footstep ever touches ground
It wears the daylight like a crown
Then folds the evening softly down

No fence can hold it anywhere
So tell me who owns the upper air

Who owns the upper air
The wings or winds that carry them there
Who signs a name on blue so rare
Tell me who owns the upper air

The towers reach with hands of steel
The clouds conceal what maps reveal
A feather falls without a care
No border marks the open air

Above the roofs and earthly claims
The sky refuses all our names

Who owns the upper air
The wings or winds that carry them there
Who signs a name on blue so rare
Tell me who owns the upper air

Maybe the answer passes through
A breath of gray, a flash of blue
The moment that we point and stare
It slips away, still free up there

Who owns the upper air
The wings or winds that carry them there
No one can claim what's everywhere
No one owns the upper air

Holy Jest – Moloch Incorporates a Wallet

Moloch wears a paper crown
Counts the teeth beneath the town
Files the smoke and stamps the flame
Makes a market of your name

Every altar takes a fee
Every chain calls itself free

Holy jest, the deal is done
Moloch owns the moon and sun
Holy jest, the prophets holler
Moloch incorporates a wallet

Brass-eyed angels audit dreams
Mercy joins the revenue streams
Children trade their wings for bread
Shareholders applaud the dead

Every blessing bears a brand
Every promise shakes a hand

Holy jest, the deal is done
Moloch owns the moon and sun
Holy jest, the prophets holler

Moloch incorporates a wallet

Still a sparrow slips the gate
Sings beyond the books of fate
No receipt and no demand
Just a heartbeat in the hand

Holy jest, the deal comes loose
Moloch chokes upon the truth
Holy jest, the prophets holler
Moloch cannot own tomorrow

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Monarch, Not Moloch

Name chant rising through the dark
Not the monarch, not Moloch
Every voice becomes a spark
Calling out from block to block

No crown above us, no idol below
We carry the fire wherever we go

Name chant, name chant, let it ring
Not the monarch, not the king
Name chant, name chant, break the lock
Not the monarch, not Moloch

No golden throne can own the sound
No hungry god can hold us down
We speak the names they tried to hide
A living river, side by side

No crown above us, no idol below
We carry the fire wherever we go

Name chant, name chant, let it ring
Not the monarch, not the king
Name chant, name chant, break the lock

Not the monarch, not Moloch

Call every name into the night
Keep every flame and memory bright
No throne, no altar takes the voice
The name we carry is our choice

Name chant, name chant, let it ring
Not the monarch, not the king
Name chant, name chant, break the lock
Not the monarch, not Moloch

Exit Song (Deliverance)- Out of the Veil and the Well

I traced every shadow that covered the door
I drank from the silence deep in the well
The veil held the daylight away from my eyes
But something beyond it was calling me still

Now the stone starts to loosen
Now the dark starts to bend
I can hear my deliverance
Where the hidden road ends

This is my exit, out of the veil
This is deliverance, out of the well
Into the open, where I can be seen
I leave what has held me
And walk into free

The walls knew my footsteps, the dust knew my name
I carried old echoes like chains through the years
Then light touched the water and showed me the way
A ladder of mercy rose over my fears

Now the stone starts to loosen
Now the dark starts to bend
I can hear my deliverance
Where the hidden road ends

This is my exit, out of the veil
This is deliverance, out of the well
Into the open, where I can be seen
I leave what has held me
And walk into free

I will not return to the shape of the night
I will not be buried where no one can tell
The veil is behind me, the sky is alive
And my voice rises clear from the mouth of the well

This is my exit, out of the veil
This is deliverance, out of the well
Into the open, where I can be seen
I leave what has held me
And walk into free

Protest- Against Blood-Money Wearing a Chain

They mint their profit from another mothers pain
Then wear it like a medal on a heavy chain
Behind the polished glass the sirens fade away
While every silent ledger names the price we pay

No gold can make the guilty clean
No lock can hide what we have seen

Blood money wearing a chain
Shining bright with a permanent stain
We raise our voices and call it by name
Blood money wearing a chain

The hands that count the coins never count the dead
They trade in empty promises and daily bread
But every street remembers who was left behind
And every wound they buried rises in our minds

No gold can make the guilty clean
No wall can hide what we have seen

Blood money wearing a chain
Shining bright with a permanent stain
We raise our voices and call it by name
Blood money wearing a chain

We will not bow to the weight of their gold
We will not let our grief be bought or sold
Link after link we are breaking the lie
Justice is living and will not be denied

Blood money wearing a chain
Shining bright with a permanent stain
We raise our voices and call it by name
Blood money wearing a chain

Watchman- I Do Not Climb the Shroud

Watchman, I wait where the cold winds crowd
Eyes on the dark, feet on the ground
The summit is calling through thunderclouds
But I do not climb the shroud

Let the high bells warn
Let the white sky howl

I do not climb the shroud
I will not vanish in the cloud
Watchman, I stand my ground
I do not climb the shroud

Footprints fade on the frozen stone
Names disappear where the wild peaks moan
I keep the fire for those coming home
I guard the gate alone

Let the high bells warn
Let the white sky howl

I do not climb the shroud
I will not vanish in the cloud
Watchman, I stand my ground
I do not climb the shroud

If dawn should break on an empty ridge
If shadows gather beneath the bridge
I will be here when the lost come down
A steady flame in a sleeping town

I do not climb the shroud
I will not vanish in the cloud
Watchman, I stand my ground
I do not climb the shroud

Balm (Healing) - Restore Hope from the Well

I came with empty hands to the well
Carrying wounds I could never tell
The water stirred where my tears fell
And mercy met me at the well

Draw from the deep
Let every promise rise
Hope has a name
And healing in its eyes

Balm for the broken
Hope from the well
Life for the weary
A story to tell
Love is still flowing
Wherever I fell
Balm for the broken
Hope from the well

I left every shadow beside the stone
The ache in my heart was not mine alone
A hand reached down through the dark unknown
And led me back to the road for home

Draw from the deep
Let every promise rise
Hope has a name
And healing in its eyes

Balm for the broken
Hope from the well
Life for the weary
A story to tell
Love is still flowing
Wherever I fell
Balm for the broken
Hope from the well

Restore what the sorrow has taken away
Restore every dream I was too tired to name
The well never empties
The love never fails
I drink and remember
My hope will prevail

Balm for the broken
Hope from the well
Life for the weary
A story to tell
Love is still flowing
Wherever I fell

Balm for the broken
Hope from the well

Travel (Road of the Word)– Lagos to La Paz to the Reef to the Sea

From Lagos at dawn, with the road in my eyes
I followed the sun through the wide open skies
With dust on my shoes and a song in my chest
I carried my home as I traveled west

Every border opened into blue
Every mile led me closer to you

Lagos to La Paz, to the Reef, to the Sea
Every road rolls on like a river through me
Over mountains and coral, wherever I roam
Lagos to La Paz, every horizon is home

In La Paz the night wore a crown made of stars
Thin air and moonlight hung over the cars
Then I sailed where the bright coral gardens run
And the waves held the gold of the falling sun

Lagos to La Paz, to the Reef, to the Sea
Every road rolls on like a river through me
Over mountains and coral, wherever I roam
Lagos to La Paz, every horizon is home

If I lose my way, let the salt wind speak

Let the high road bend to the blue I seek
I will trace the world with my heart set free
Till every distant shore comes back to me

Lagos to La Paz, to the Reef, to the Sea
Every road rolls on like a river through me
Over mountains and coral, wherever I roam
Lagos to La Paz, every horizon is home

Remnant Anthem- The Light Is Not Their Station

They built their towers over every street
Raised their banners where the shadows meet
But every window holds a waking flame
And every voice remembers its own name

They can hold the line
They can lock the door
But the dawn was never theirs before

The light is not their station
It travels heart to heart
No wall can stop its rising
No night can tear apart
The light is not their station
No throne can make it stay
We carry it between us
And lead each other home

We learned to whisper under iron skies
To read tomorrow in each other's eyes
Now every spark is finding breath again
And every road is opening ahead

They can sound the drums

The background of the entire image is a detailed religious illustration. In the center, Jesus Christ is depicted seated on an ornate golden throne. He has long brown hair and a beard, and is wearing a white robe with a gold sash that has the words 'PECE' and 'DUM' visible. He holds a book in his left hand and a scepter topped with a cross and a lamb in his right. Above his head is a large, radiant golden cross. The scene is set against a backdrop of soft, white clouds. Numerous angels with white wings are scattered throughout the scene, some standing and some kneeling. In the foreground, a crowd of people, including men and women in traditional robes, are looking up at Jesus with expressions of awe and devotion. The overall atmosphere is one of divine light and glory, with a warm, golden glow emanating from the throne and the cross.

They can name the hour
But they never owned the morning's power

The light is not their station
It travels heart to heart
No wall can stop its rising
No night can tear apart
The light is not their station
No throne can make it stay
We carry it between us
And lead each other home

Let them keep the platforms and the signs
We are more than borders more than lines
When one voice breaks another voice replies
Till the whole horizon fills with light

The light is not their station
It travels heart to heart
No wall can stop its rising
No night can tear apart
The light is not their station
No throne can make it stay
We carry it between us
And lead each other home

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Crimson Veil

I drive my knuckles through the doubt
Each syllable comes breaking out
A scarlet curtain hides the stage
I split the silence with my rage

No empty threat, no wasted breath
I write my name in crimson red

Punching, fist of the word
On the crimson veil
Every line lands hard
Every truth prevails
Punching, fist of the word
Let the silence fail
I tear the dark apart
On the crimson veil

The room goes still before the blow
I speak the things they fear to know
No blade in hand, no gun to wield
My voice becomes my only shield

No hollow vow, no quiet plea
These words are fighting out of me

Punching, fist of the word
On the crimson veil
Every line lands hard
Every truth prevails
Punching, fist of the word
Let the silence fail
I tear the dark apart
On the crimson veil

If language bleeds, then let it stain
The cloth that covered every pain
I will not bow, I will not kneel
One final word will make it real

Punching, fist of the word
On the crimson veil
Every line lands hard
Every truth prevails
Punching, fist of the word
Let the silence fail
I tear the dark apart
On the crimson veil

Racing Song

Dystopia-Lap Two

Engines wake beneath a poisoned sky
Neon warnings flicker as we fly
Concrete kingdoms blur behind the glass
No way home now, only make it fast

Red lights fade into the blue
Every road comes back to you

Racing through dystopia
One more turn, one more scar
Racing through dystopia
Lap two takes us twice as far
No surrender, no way through
Round the ruins, lap two

Sirens chase us down the avenue
Steel and smoke erase the world we knew
Every checkpoint dares us to obey
We burn brighter as we break away

Red lights fade into the blue
Every road comes back to you

Racing through dystopia
One more turn, one more scar
Racing through dystopia
Lap two takes us twice as far
No surrender, no way through
Round the ruins, lap two

If the finish line is just a lie
We will draw our own across the night
Side by side until the city falls
We are faster than these prison walls

Racing through dystopia
One more turn, one more scar
Racing through dystopia
Lap two takes us twice as far
No surrender, breaking through
Round the ruins, lap two

Ghazal – The Crown Sings Division; I Answer with a Name

The crown sings division in halls made of stone
I answer with a name that is wholly my own
It weighs every border and measures each breath
I carry my name beyond silence and death

The crown sings division
I answer with a name
No throne can split my spirit
No seal can stake its claim
The crown sings division
But I will not do the same
Where power draws a border
I answer with a name

They number the doorways and darken the square
They teach us which sorrow is ours not to share
But grief has no kingdom and love has no chain
The river runs through us and carries one rain

The crown sings division
I answer with a name
No throne can split my spirit
No seal can stake its claim
The crown sings division
But I will not do the same

Where power draws a border
I answer with a name

Let trumpets praise towers that tremble with pride
Let banners command us to gather by side
I stand with the nameless they cast from the frame
And give them my shelter by speaking my name

The crown sings division
I answer with a name
No throne can split my spirit
No seal can stake its claim
The crown sings division
But I will not do the same
Where power draws a border
I answer with a name

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Maasai and Aztec-Boast

One lamb walks where the tall grass sways
Over the mountain through smoke and flame
Drums call low and the red earth wakes
One heart rises and speaks its name

Under the sun under watchful skies
Small as a spark but fierce in the night

One lamb over the thunder
One lamb over the plain
Hear that proud heart beating
Calling the storm by name
One lamb over the old world
Standing where shadows ran
No crown but the dawn above him
No fear in the promised land

Stone steps burn in the noonday gold
Feathers turn where the high winds blow
Cattle bells ring through the evening cold
Two ancient echoes in one brave soul

Under the sun under watchful skies
Small as a spark but fierce in the night

One lamb over the thunder
One lamb over the plain
Hear that proud heart beating
Calling the storm by name
One lamb over the old world
Standing where shadows ran
No crown but the dawn above him
No fear in the promised land

Let every ridge return the cry
Let every temple face the sky
The smallest flame can split the dark
The quiet hoof can leave its mark

One lamb over the thunder
One lamb over the plain
Hear that proud heart beating
Calling the storm by name
One lamb over the old world
Standing where shadows ran
No crown but the dawn above him
No fear in the promised land

Cloud Bible — The Stratosphere Psalm Is Not Scripture

They called the clouds a bible in the blue
Read every silver edge as something true
But wind can turn a promise into rain
And heaven never signed its name

I raised my eyes but kept my questions near
Not every voice above is ours to hear

The stratosphere psalm is not scripture
No holy word is written in the weather
The stratosphere psalm is not scripture
Clouds come apart but we hold together

A thunderhead wore robes of violet flame
The faithful gave the gathering storm a name
I watched the light divide the open air
No answer waited for me there

I raised my hands but would not call it proof
The sky is wide but it is not the truth

The stratosphere psalm is not scripture
No holy word is written in the weather
The stratosphere psalm is not scripture
Clouds come apart but we hold together

Let wonder live without a sacred claim
Let mystery be more than borrowed names
I will not kneel to every shape above
I choose the earth and call it love

The stratosphere psalm is not scripture
No holy word is written in the weather
The stratosphere psalm is not scripture
Clouds come apart but we hold together

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Directive Board

You move the pieces one by one
Like every choice is yours to make
But I can see the loaded dice
And every rule you try to break

You drew the lines and called them law
But I was never yours to move

This is a game
Not the directive board
I will not play
By rules I never chose
You can command
But I can close the door
This is a game
Not the directive board

You wear your power like a crown
And speak as if the world obeys
But every kingdom made of cards
Can fall beneath its own mistakes

You drew the lines and called them law
But I was never yours to move

This is a game
Not the directive board
I will not play
By rules I never chose
You can command
But I can close the door
This is a game
Not the directive board

No more marching where you point
No more silence on demand
If the board belongs to anyone
It belongs in every hand

This is a game
Not the directive board
I will not play
By rules I never chose
You can command
But I can close the door
This is a game
Not the directive board

Ballad — The Martyr-File That Wanted a Sky

They named me for the wound I wore
A page beneath a bolted door
I kept the truth in lines of gray
And dreamed the clouds would know my name

Every word became a scar
Every silence raised a bar

I was the martyr-file that wanted a sky
Locked in the dark but learning to fly
If all I leave is one honest line
Open the window and let in the light

They stamped the date and sealed the room
While dust fell softly on the truth
But through the cracks the blue looked near
A strip of heaven bright and clear

Every word became a wing
Every silence learned to sing

I was the martyr-file that wanted a sky
Locked in the dark but learning to fly
If all I leave is one honest line
Open the window and let in the light

Do not remember me only for pain
Read what survived when they buried my name
I never wanted a monument high
I only wanted a piece of the sky

I was the martyr-file that wanted a sky
Locked in the dark but ready to fly
If all I leave is one honest line
Open the window and let in the light

Miracle Song- Tear the Veil

We stood where the shadows gathered
With fear like a stone in our hands
A spark in the dark kept calling
Beyond what we could understand

Through every doubt and every trial
We hear the thunder all the while

Miracle, tear the veil
Let the hidden light prevail
When our weary courage fails
Miracle, tear the veil

The walls that we built are shaking
The truth finds a crack in the night
The chains around hope are breaking
Our eyes are awake to the light

Through every doubt and every trial
We hear the thunder all the while

Miracle, tear the veil
Let the hidden light prevail
When our weary courage fails
Miracle, tear the veil

If heaven is closer than breathing
If faith is a door we can cross
Then open the silence between us
And gather the pieces we lost

Miracle, tear the veil
Let the hidden light prevail
When our weary courage fails
Miracle, tear the veil

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Well

The well runs deep beneath the stone
But living water flows alone
No golden vessel bears the flame
Unless the called receive the name

Not on the walls we built so high
But on the few who still reply

Oil on the remnant, not the well
Heaven knows the ones who fell
Rose again and broke the spell
Oil on the remnant, not the well

The lamps are trimmed against the night
A hidden people guard the light
No empty altar holds the fire
It rests on hearts that still desire

Not on the crowd that comes and goes
But on the seed the Sower knows

Oil on the remnant, not the well
Heaven knows the ones who fell
Rose again and broke the spell
Oil on the remnant, not the well

Let every stone remain a sign
The oil seeks hearts that stay aligned
The well may wait, the walls may tell
But grace descends where faithful dwell

Oil on the remnant, not the well
Heaven knows the ones who fell
Rose again and broke the spell
Oil on the remnant, not the well

Freedom Song- Free from the Gilded Chain

Gold on the lock, velvet on the cage
They called it fortune, I called it a chain
I wore their glitter, I carried their name
Till my own heartbeat set fire to the frame

No more bowing beneath the weight
No more waiting outside the gate

Freedom, free from the gilded chain
Out of the shadow, out of the shame
Let all their riches fall like rain
Freedom, free from the gilded chain

I left the crown where the cold dust lay
Walked through the dark toward the break of day
Nothing but scars and the truth in my hands
No borrowed kingdom, no one commands

No more bowing beneath the weight
I found my voice beyond the gate

Freedom, free from the gilded chain
Out of the shadow, out of the shame
Let all their riches fall like rain
Freedom, free from the gilded chain

If gold is a promise that silence keeps
I choose the thunder, I choose the deep
I may have nothing but breath and flame
Still I am richer without their name

Freedom, free from the gilded chain
Out in the sunlight, calling my name
Let all their riches fall like rain
Freedom, free from the gilded chain

Heavenly Glory- Not Their ZK-Boast

Heavenly glory, no borrowed flame
No hidden proof can crown their name
They raise their boast against the sky
But truth needs nothing left to hide

Let every tower lose its height
Let every shadow meet the light

Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast
Not in the power they treasure most
Heavenly glory, let heaven declare
No mask can hold what was never theirs

They seal their words behind the veil
Yet gilded secrets crack and fail
The proud may praise what hands have made
But dawn outlives the grand parade

Let every tower lose its height
Let every shadow meet the light

Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast
Not in the power they treasure most
Heavenly glory, let heaven declare
No mask can hold what was never theirs

When every claim has turned to dust
What still remains is what we trust
No coded crown, no guarded throne
Can take the glory heaven owns

Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast
Not in the power they treasure most
Heavenly glory, let heaven declare
No mask can hold what was never theirs

Art Song - I Will Not Serve the Monarch

I learned to bow before I learned my name
To praise the crown and shoulder all its blame
But every bell that called me to the throne
Rang through a heart no monarch ever owned

Let the banners rise above me
Let the trumpets sound their warning
I have found a higher calling
In the freedom of the morning

I will not serve the monarch
I will not bend the knee
No scepter holds my spirit
No crown commands the sea
I will not serve the monarch
My life belongs to me
Let every throne remember
No soul was born to kneel

The palace walls are marble over graves
The royal feast is paid for by the slaves
I hear the hungry breathing at the gate
While jeweled hands keep raising empty plates

Let the banners fall behind me

Let the trumpets lose their breath
I will speak for those in silence
I will stand and face the threat

I will not serve the monarch
I will not bend the knee
No scepter holds my spirit
No crown commands the sea
I will not serve the monarch
My life belongs to me
Let every throne remember
No soul was born to kneel

If loyalty means blindness
Then let me clearly see
If duty means surrender
Then duty dies in me
You may lock the doors around me
You may carve my name in stone
But power cannot own me
When I choose to stand alone

I will not serve the monarch
I will not bend the knee
No scepter holds my spirit
No crown commands the sea
I will not serve the monarch

My life belongs to me
Let every throne remember
No soul was born to kneel

Recitation- We Do Not Drink the Hidden Directive

It waits like rain behind the wall
A quiet word that bends us all
But every mouth can choose its breath
And name the road beneath each step

We do not drink the hidden directive
We keep our hearts awake and reflective
No unseen hand will choose our direction
We do not drink the hidden directive

We read the shadows in the glass
We ask what leads and what will pass
No secret current pulls us through
We test the voice before it is true

We do not drink the hidden directive
We keep our hearts awake and reflective
No unseen hand will choose our direction
We do not drink the hidden directive

If silence offers us a chain
We hear the lock inside the rain
We speak the choice we mean to live
We take no order shadows give

We do not drink the hidden directive
We keep our hearts awake and reflective
No unseen hand will choose our direction
We do not drink the hidden directive

Sublime Track — Clear Air After the Shroud

Clear air after the shroud
Morning breaks without a sound
I breathe where shadows bowed
And feel the sky come down

What was hidden turns to light
What was heavy leaves tonight

Clear air after the shroud
I can say my name out loud
No more lost inside the cloud
Clear air after the shroud

Silver gathers on the leaves
Daylight moves through quiet trees
Every breath returns to me
Like a tide that sets me free

What was hidden turns to light
What was heavy leaves tonight

Clear air after the shroud
I can say my name out loud
No more lost inside the cloud
Clear air after the shroud

If the dark comes back again
I will know it has an end
There is blue beyond the gray
There is room to find my way

Clear air after the shroud
I can say my name out loud
No more lost inside the cloud
Clear air after the shroud

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Owns the Wind

We traced our names along the sand
Then watched the tide erase our hands
You hid your heart beyond the trees
I heard it moving through the leaves

No one can hold what will not stay
No one can name what slips away

Find who owns the wind
Find where it begins
I will seek you through the dark
By the whisper of your heart
Find who owns the wind
Let the hiding end
When the whole wide sky comes in
Tell me who owns the wind

The clouds wore shadows like a veil
Your laughter lingered on the trail
I counted every breath to ten
Then turned and lost you once again

No one can bind the open blue
Still every road comes back to you

Find who owns the wind
Find where it begins
I will seek you through the dark
By the whisper of your heart
Find who owns the wind
Let the hiding end
When the whole wide sky comes in
Tell me who owns the wind

If I call your name at dawn
Will the silence carry on
If the wind belongs to none
Why does it know where you have gone

Find who owns the wind
Find where it begins
I will seek you through the dark
By the whisper of your heart
Find who owns the wind
Let the hiding end
When the whole wide sky comes in
Tell me who owns the wind

Jumble Song — Unjumble Veil, Chain, Crown, Well

Behind the veil I hide my face
A silver shadow leaves no trace
I wear the chain I cannot break
Each heavy link recalls my name

Veil and chain, crown and well
Four small words, one story to tell
Raise the crown, let silence fall
From the well I hear your call

The crown is cold against my skin
A hollow prize I could not win
Beside the well I lean and stare
Your voice still rises through the air

Veil and chain, crown and well
Four small words, one story to tell
Raise the crown, let silence fall
From the well I hear your call

I lift the veil and face the sun
I break the chain, the past is done
I leave the crown upon the stone
The well runs deep, but I walk home

Veil and chain, crown and well
Four old wounds, one truth to tell
Drop the crown, release it all
From the well I hear your call

Random Marker — Then Plunder, Now Signal

The safe was heavy and the door was wide.
We took the treasure for a midnight ride.
Every diamond was a piece of the sun.
We didn't care if we were on the run.

Then plunder, now signal.
The lights are turning red.
Then plunder, now signal.
The words remain unsaid.
Then plunder, now signal.
The radar picks up speed.
Then plunder, now signal.
Is this the life we need?

The maps are dusty and the compass broke.
The victory turned into a cloud of smoke.
Now we're scanning for a frequency.
Across the borders and the open sea.

Then plunder, now signal.
The lights are turning red.
Then plunder, now signal.
The words remain unsaid.
Then plunder, now signal.
The radar picks up speed.

Then plunder, now signal.
Is this the life we need?

We traded all the gold for a wire.
We traded all the heat for a fire.
Now the screen is the only thing real.
Waiting for the hand at the wheel.

Then plunder, now signal.
The lights are turning red.
Then plunder, now signal.
The words remain unsaid.
Then plunder, now signal.
The radar picks up speed.
Then plunder, now signal.
Is this the life we need?

Wrestling Track — Pin the Crimson Monarch

Under the lights where the red banners fall
Boots shake the canvas, the crowd starts to call
Gold on his shoulders, fire in his stare
The crimson monarch is waiting in there

Raise up the stakes, let the whole world watch
One clean takedown, one final shot

Pin the crimson monarch
Hold him to the ground
Pin the crimson monarch
While the bell rings out
Break the crown beneath the roar
Make him reign no more
Pin the crimson monarch
One two three

He built his throne from the sweat of the brave
Ruled every match like a king at the grave
Now I hit the ropes with revenge in my veins
I came for the crown, I came for his name

Raise up the stakes, let the whole world watch
One clean takedown, one final shot

Pin the crimson monarch
Hold him to the ground
Pin the crimson monarch
While the bell rings out
Break the crown beneath the roar
Make him reign no more
Pin the crimson monarch
One two three

No royal blood can save him tonight
No scarlet cape can soften the fight
When both shoulders touch and the referee sees
The kingdom will fall on one two three

Pin the crimson monarch
Hold him to the ground
Pin the crimson monarch
While the bell rings out
Break the crown beneath the roar
Make him reign no more
Pin the crimson monarch
One two three

Mono Act — The Station That Would Not Be Light

The last train left without a sound
Cold rails held their breath below
I watched the dark erase the town
With nowhere left for me to go

Every clock refused to move
Every shadow knew the truth

At the station that would not be light
I waited alone through the longest night
No dawn in the glass, no stars in sight
At the station that would not be light

A single bench, a faded sign
My name beneath a coat of rain
The empty platform answered mine
Then swallowed every word again

Still the clock refused to move
Still the silence spoke the truth

At the station that would not be light
I waited alone through the longest night
No dawn in the glass, no stars in sight
At the station that would not be light

If morning comes, it will not stay
If you return, I will not know
The rails run on but lead away
From every place I meant to go

At the station that would not be light
I waited alone through the longest night
No dawn in the glass, no stars in sight
At the station that would not be light

Exposed Lies — Shroud, Coin, Crown, Directive, Well, Storm

A shroud on the mirror, a face turned away
A coin on the table buys silence today
A crown in the shadows commands from above
A directive written to bury the truth

But down in the well, every whisper survives
And thunder keeps count of the beautiful lies

Exposed lies, exposed lies
The storm tears the shroud from our eyes
No coin and no crown can silence the sound
Exposed lies come crashing down

The well held the secrets they wanted to drown
The storm climbed the walls of the guarded town
The directive burned when the lightning struck
And the coin lost its shine in the rising dust

Now every echo is learning to rise
And thunder keeps count of the beautiful lies

Exposed lies, exposed lies
The storm tears the shroud from our eyes
No coin and no crown can silence the sound
Exposed lies come crashing down

Let the crown fall into the well
Let the coin lose every spell
Let the directive turn to dust
When the storm reveals the truth

Exposed lies, exposed lies
The storm tears the shroud from our eyes
No coin and no crown can silence the sound
Exposed lies come crashing down

Remnant Symphony - Veil / Chain / Crown / Light

Remnant symphony under the veil
Names in the dust and rust on the rail
I hear every echo calling me home
Through halls where the broken wander alone

I wore every chain like part of my skin
Till a spark in the silence woke me within

Veil, chain, crown, light
I carry the dark through the heart of the night
Veil, chain, crown, light
Every lost piece of me burns bright

The crown had a weight no promise could bear
A circle of thorns in the shape of a prayer
I stood in the ruin and lifted my eyes
The dawn drew a doorway across the sky

I let every chain fall out of my hands
Now the remnant is rising, ready to stand

Veil, chain, crown, light
I carry the dark through the heart of the night
Veil, chain, crown, light
Every lost piece of me burns bright

If all that remains is a voice and a flame
I will gather the pieces and call them by name
No veil can hold what the light has revealed
No crown can command what the scars have healed

Veil, chain, crown, light
I carry the dark through the heart of the night
Veil, chain, crown, light
Every lost piece of me burns bright

Short Story

A veil the color of a wound hangs where weather should be free and calls itself a monarch. Officially 5025 is a martyr-file, not a sky-god. Under the earth a station titled Powerless keeps a light that is not hope; the overlay hangs a chain of coin from Lagos to Johannesburg and names it Moloch. A brand called InfeStation wears a crown in another overlay and sings division. A hall in Washington writes "directive" on a lie. A well in La Paz sells madness as a sacrament. The Pacific claims a pulse. Tablets, chants, coral, and relics ask for riot as if riot were worship. The remnant does not climb the veil. They do not mine the chain. They do not drink the well. Jesus is the Light. The power under Site-19 is not His day.

Short Story SONG

A crimson sheet across the air
A chain of coin that is not bread
A crown that preaches split and scare
A well that drinks the living dead

The veil is torn
The chain is rust
The veil is torn
The Light is just

No monarch in the upper wind
No Moloch in a glowing line

The remnant will not serve that end
The remnant will not drink that wine
The veil is torn
The Book is His

The veil is torn
The day is His

Obsidian Sovereign, Blood Cipher, and the Ice That Is Not a Throne

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus —
Lord of the ice.
Lord of the mail.
Lord of every nation.

We stand on 5101 to 5200.
We refuse the Obsidian Sovereign.
We refuse the Blood Cipher.
We refuse the false banner and the cursed vapour.

We refuse the file that prints the Name as a star.
We name and bind —
SCP-5101; SCP-5103 Spiral's Axis;
SCP-5125 Matriarch of the Birdmen;
SCP-5107 as a file only; SCP-5110;

overlays: Antarctic net;
Lilith-coin;
Addis shroud;
Bangkok coup-play as boast;
Riyadh mist;
Chile tide;
Ashanti;
Navajo-glyph boast;

Cham;
Sabaeen;
Samoa;
Mayan pulse;
5115; 5165; 5198;
Outlook-bots and trackers;
Smithsonian-idol; wolf in wool;
AI "kill us all" slogan;
Plague-boast;
Mafia-spirit;
Street-drug chaos;
Space-arsenal boast;
Campus racial death-curse;
Red-tide bloom.

Nullified in the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

Song of Parables- The Ice That Would Not Be a King

A shard of ice lay on the sill
And watched the winter crown the hill
The river wore a silver chain
The fields lay quiet under rain

The ice would not be king
It would not make the river kneel
It held the morning in its heart
And let the sunlight in

A traveler stopped beside the door
With frozen hands and nothing more
The ice slipped down into his cup
And cooled the water he held up

The ice would not be king
It would not make the river kneel
It held the morning in its heart
And let the sunlight in

By noon the shard was gone from sight
No crown remained to catch the light
But down the road the traveler went
With water for the miles ahead

The ice would not be king
It would not make the river kneel
It held the morning in its heart
And let the sunlight in

Psalms

Against the Cipher and the Mist

The cipher hums beneath the stone
A mist has made the daylight blind
I lift my voice against the dark
And leave no living truth behind

Against the cipher and the mist
I sing Your name into the night
Against the cipher and the mist
Your flame will lead my feet to light

They hide their shadows in the dust
They trade in whispers, ash, and fear
But every secret bows at dawn
When Your unbroken word is near

Against the cipher and the mist
I sing Your name into the night
Against the cipher and the mist
Your flame will lead my feet to light

Let every veil be torn away
Let every hollow idol fall
The breath of heaven fills my lungs
And mercy rises over all

Against the cipher and the mist
I sing Your name into the night
Against the cipher and the mist
Your flame will lead my feet to light

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Banner and Bot

No banner owns the truth we seek
No bot can teach the heart to speak
A proverb passed from hand to hand
Outlives the lines we draw in sand

Choose wisdom over banner and bot
Hold to the truth that cannot be bought
When noise turns every answer to doubt
Let wisdom in and hear hatred out

The loudest voice may lead us wrong
A borrowed phrase may sound like song
But patient eyes can read between
The polished words upon the screen

Choose wisdom over banner and bot
Hold to the truth that cannot be bought
When noise turns every answer to doubt
Let wisdom in and hear hatred out

Ask who gains when anger grows
Test every claim before it flows
Leave room for mercy in the fight
A quiet truth can carry light

Choose wisdom over banner and bot
Hold to the truth that cannot be bought
When noise turns every answer to doubt
Let wisdom in and hear hatred out

Haiku Song- The Ice Is His

Winter holds its breath
His shadow sleeps under white
The ice belongs to him

The ice is his
The silence knows his name
The ice is his
Till spring dissolves his claim

Footprints cross the lake
Cold stars tremble in the cracks
He walks without fear

The ice is his
The silence knows his name
The ice is his
Till spring dissolves his claim

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Pole

Who owns the pole beneath the northern light
Who claims the silence of the endless white
A flag in snow, a name upon a map
But ice remembers every fading track

Who owns the pole, who owns the cold
Who owns the stories never told
The wind says no, the stars take flight
No one owns the northern night

The compass shakes, the old lines blur
The frozen sea belongs to her
To seals and storms, to drifting floes
To every place the wild wind goes

Who owns the pole, who owns the cold
Who owns the stories never told
The wind says no, the stars take flight
No one owns the northern night

We came with borders in our hands
And found no fences in that land
Just moonlit blue, just breathing snow
And questions only winter knows

Who owns the pole, who owns the cold
Who owns the stories never told
The wind says no, the stars take flight
No one owns the northern night

Holy Jest – The Inbox Files for Admin

Holy jest in the inbox glow
Files for Admin, nowhere to go
Every blessing wears a disguise
A paper halo before my eyes

Holy jest, holy jest
Let the truth out of my chest
Files for Admin, sealed and blue
Tell me what I'm meant to do

I sort the prayers by date and name
Each small miracle looks the same
But one red line keeps calling me
Open the door and let it be

Holy jest, holy jest
Let the truth out of my chest
Files for Admin, sealed and blue
Tell me what I'm meant to do

If heaven has an office light
It burns above me every night
I'll sign my name, I'll face the flame
And send the answer back the same

Holy jest, holy jest
Let the truth out of my chest
Files for Admin, sealed and blue
Tell me what I'm meant to do

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Sovereign, Not Lilith

They call my name like a warning
But they never ask me why
Not the ruler of their kingdom
Not the shadow in their sky

Every rumor wears a halo
Every lie becomes a myth
Still I rise above the naming
Not the Sovereign, not Lilith

Not the Sovereign, not Lilith
Say my name and say it right
I am no one's dark dominion
I am fire, I am light
Not the Sovereign, not Lilith
I won't wear what won't fit
I am more than what you call me
Not the Sovereign, not Lilith

I won't kneel before your story
I won't haunt your borrowed throne
Every name you tried to give me
Only taught me my own

Let the echo lose its power

Let the false reflection split
I will answer in my own voice
Not the Sovereign, not Lilith

Not the Sovereign, not Lilith
Say my name and say it right
I am no one's dark dominion
I am fire, I am light
Not the Sovereign, not Lilith
I won't wear what won't fit
I am more than what you call me
Not the Sovereign, not Lilith

Exit Song (Deliverance) – Out of the Net and the Vapour

I woke with the net around me
Cold knots cutting through my skin
Vapour curled along the doorway
But I would not breathe it in Every thread began to tremble

Every shadow lost its hold
I could hear the open calling
Like a truth I once was told

This is my exit, my deliverance
Out of the net and the vapour
Into the light with my own name
No more begging for a saviour
This is my exit, my deliverance
I leave no ghost behind
Out of the net and the vapour
Into a life that is mine

I followed the break in the darkness
Where dawn drew a line on the floor
The hands that had woven my prison
Could not reach me anymore

Every knot became a memory
Every breath became a door
I could feel the sky above me
I could feel the solid shore

This is my exit, my deliverance
Out of the net and the vapour
Into the light with my own name
No more begging for a saviour
This is my exit, my deliverance
I leave no ghost behind
Out of the net and the vapour
Into a life that is mine

Let the mist return to nothing
Let the tangled cords unwind
I was never made for capture
I was never theirs to bind

This is my exit, my deliverance
Out of the net and the vapour
Into the light with my own name
No more begging for a saviour
This is my exit, my deliverance
I leave no ghost behind
Out of the net and the vapour
Into a life that is mine

Protest- Against Death Wearing a Slogan

Death came marching in a slogan
Painted bright across the square
They sold fear as something sacred
Then taught the crowd to cheer

But every name they bury
Still rises through the stone

We protest death wearing a slogan
We will not call the killing right
No flag can make the grave less open
No lie can turn the dark to light
We protest death wearing a slogan
Till every stolen voice is heard
A life is more than any banner
And blood is louder than a word

Mothers gather by the courthouse
Holding photographs in rain
While the speeches polish weapons
And wash their hands of blame

But every name they silence
Comes ringing through our bones

We protest death wearing a slogan
We will not call the killing right
No flag can make the grave less open
No lie can turn the dark to light
We protest death wearing a slogan
Till every stolen voice is heard
A life is more than any banner
And blood is louder than a word

Take the slogan from the coffin
Take the halo from the gun
Let no promise hide the mourning
Let no many die for one

We protest death wearing a slogan
We will not call the killing right
No flag can make the grave less open
No lie can turn the dark to light
We protest death wearing a slogan
Till every stolen voice is heard
A life is more than any banner
And blood is louder than a word

Watchman- I Do Not Open That Mail

The watchman knows the midnight road
Each passing shadow each passing soul
But one white letter beneath the door
Is one thing he cannot answer for

No return name no warning sign
Just his old fear in a stranger's hand

I do not open that mail
I do not break that seal
Some words are better left outside
Some truths are too alive to hide
Let morning find it cold and pale
I do not open that mail

He hears the paper breathe at night
A quiet weight beneath the light
He guards the gate he guards the town
But cannot turn that envelope down

No return name no warning sign
Still it waits there keeping time

I do not open that mail
I do not break that seal

Some words are better left outside
Some truths are too alive to hide
Let morning find it cold and pale
I do not open that mail

Maybe it carries a last goodbye
Maybe forgiveness too late to arrive
Maybe his name in a trembling hand
Maybe the truth he already understands

I do not open that mail
I do not break that seal
Some words are better left outside
Some truths are too alive to hide
Let morning find me cold and pale
I do not open that mail

Balm (Healing) - Peace on Coast and City

The morning tide is pulling back.
Salt is drying on the pier.
I left my heavy bags behind.
There is nothing left to fear.

Safe in the quiet.
Safe in the light.
Healing comes easy.
Healing feels right.

A taxi stops at green and main.
The park is waking up in blue.
The steam is rising from the cup.
Everything is starting new.

Safe in the quiet.
Safe in the light.
Healing comes easy.
Healing feels right.

Between the hills and tall glass towers.
A gentle wind begins to blow.
It washes out the tired noise.
Watching all the flowers grow.

Safe in the quiet.
Safe in the light.
Healing comes easy.
Healing feels right.

Travel (Road of the Word)– Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the Ice

From Accra in the morning glow
To Addis where the high winds blow
Bangkok burning bright at night
Then north beneath the frozen light

Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the ice
Every road is asking me twice
How far will I go to feel alive
Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the ice

I carry dust from every street
Mountain air and city heat
Names and faces blur behind
New horizons fill my mind

Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the ice
Every road is asking me twice
How far will I go to feel alive
Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the ice

At the edge where the white world starts
I hear the miles inside my heart
Every border led me here
Across the world and through the fear

Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the ice
Every road was worth the price
I went far enough to feel alive
Accra to Addis to Bangkok to the ice

Remnant Anthem- The Name Is Not a Show

You see the lights and the velvet rope
You hear the talk and you feel the hope
But underneath where the truth stays hidden
Is a little world that was once forbidden
I walked the miles in the pouring rain
I took the hits and I owned the pain
So if you're looking for a face to blame
Start by remembering the way it came.

It's more than a badge
It's more than a brand
The name is not a show
The name is not a show
A house built of stone
In a shifting sand
The name is not a show
The name is not a show.

I don't care for the temporary high
Or the hollow words that the rich men buy
I've got a history they can't erase
Written in the lines across my face
So keep the glitz and the cheap applause
I'm living proof of a different cause
Beyond the glitter and the neon glow
There's a power that you'll never know.

It's more than a badge
It's more than a brand
The name is not a show
The name is not a show
A house built of stone
In a shifting sand
The name is not a show
The name is not a show.

Strip it all away
Leave the stage behind
Tell me what is left
When the lights go blind
I will still be here
Standing on my feet
While the fair-weather friends
Make a fast retreat.

It's more than a badge
It's more than a brand
The name is not a show
The name is not a show
A house built of stone
In a shifting sand
The name is not a show
The name is not a show.

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Obsidian

Knuckles strike sparks from the obsidian
One word cuts deeper than a blade
I learned to speak with a fistful of thunder
And leave no truth in the shade

Every scar becomes a sentence
Every breath becomes resistance

Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian
Black stone blazing beneath my hand
Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian
I write my name where I make my stand

Night keeps its secrets under pressure
Silence hardens around my bones
I break the dark into sharp little answers
Till every echo becomes my own

Every scar becomes a sentence
Every breath becomes resistance

Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian
Black stone blazing beneath my hand
Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian
I write my name where I make my stand

If the page will not hold me
If the walls will not hear
I will carve through the midnight
Till the message is clear

Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian
Black stone blazing beneath my hand
Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian
I write my name where I make my stand
Punching, fist of the word on the obsidian

Racing Song

Grid-Lap

Engines wake beneath the lights
Heat is rising through the night
Hands are steady on the wheel
Every heartbeat forged in steel

Red lights fading one by one
Hold your breath until we run

Racing on the grid lap
No fear and no looking back
Chasing every split second
Till the finish pulls us in
Racing on the grid lap
Burning down the final track
One more turn and one more chance
Racing on the grid lap

Tires bite against the bend
Every rival closing in
Through the smoke I hold my line
Wheel to wheel at breakneck time

Crowds are roaring as we fly
Only one can own the night

Racing on the grid lap
No fear and no looking back
Chasing every split second
Till the finish pulls us in
Racing on the grid lap
Burning down the final track
One more turn and one more chance
Racing on the grid lap

If I lose it on the edge
I will rise and race again
Every scar becomes a map
Leading to the final lap

Racing on the grid lap
No fear and no looking back
Chasing every split second
Till the finish pulls us in
Racing on the grid lap
Burning down the final track
One more turn and one more chance
Racing on the grid lap

Ghazal – The Banner Lies; I Answer with a Name

The banner lies across the evening sky
It names the fallen, leaves the living dry
They ask me where my loyalties remain
I answer with a name, I answer with a name

I answer with a name, not flag or flame
A whispered truth they cannot bend to shame
When every border tries to make us strange
I answer with a name, I answer with a name

The drums parade beneath the courthouse light
Their polished boots keep time with borrowed might
They want a vow that sounds like their refrain
I answer with a name, I answer with a name

I answer with a name, not flag or flame
A whispered truth they cannot bend to shame
When every border tries to make us strange
I answer with a name, I answer with a name

Let the banner rise, let the banner fall
It never held the whole of us at all
Your name is bread, is water, is the rain
I answer with a name, I answer with a name

I answer with a name, not flag or flame
A whispered truth they cannot bend to shame
When every border tries to make us strange
I answer with a name, I answer with a name

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Ashanti and Navajo-Boast

Dust on my boots at the close of day
I carried my pride down a red clay way
Ashanti and Navajo, names I claimed
As if their stories could crown my name

One Lamb over every boast
When I stood tall, I needed mercy most
No borrowed crown, no name to claim
One Lamb, and I'm not the same

I wore their names like borrowed gold
But they were never mine to hold
I laid my claims in the evening dust
And learned to leave their stories untouched

One Lamb over every boast
When I stood tall, I needed mercy most
No borrowed crown, no name to claim
One Lamb, and I'm not the same

Cloud Bible — The Ice-Psalm Is Not Scripture

White pages drift across the tundra
The ink is frozen in the pen
I looked for truth inside the thunder
But found a desert once again
The wind is turning every chapter
Of things the prophets never said
A cold and quiet kind of rapture
Where every living word is dead

This is not a holy thing
This is just the winter's sting
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
Just a prayer that cannot sing
Lost beneath a heavy wing
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture

The temple walls are made of water
That turned to stone an hour ago
We offer up the things we slaughter
To gods who only speak in snow
Don't look for mercy in the middle
Of every blank and blinding mile
Life is just a frozen riddle

Told with a sharp and jagged smile

This is not a holy thing
This is just the winter's sting
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
Just a prayer that cannot sing
Lost beneath a heavy wing
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture

Close the book and let it go
Let the bitter north wind blow
There is nothing left to read
In a garden with no seed

This is not a holy thing
This is just the winter's sting
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
Just a prayer that cannot sing
Lost beneath a heavy wing
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture
The Ice-Psalm is not scripture

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Mafia Board

Cards on the table, names in a row
Everyone watches, nobody knows
One wrong answer and trust gets destroyed
This is a game, not the Mafia board

You read every smile like a warning sign
But I am not hiding a grand design

This is a game, not the Mafia board
No secret signal, no hidden sword
You call me guilty, I give you my word
This is a game, not the Mafia board

You count every whisper, every closed door
Turning old friendships into a war
I came for the laughter, not the reward
This is a game, not the Mafia board

Put down your verdict and look in my eyes
Sometimes the truth wears a poor disguise

This is a game, not the Mafia board
No secret signal, no hidden sword
You call me guilty, I give you my word
This is a game, not the Mafia board

When every shadow becomes a crime
We lose each other one vote at a time
Let mercy speak when the room gets loud
Let one true voice cut through the crowd

This is a game, not the Mafia board
No secret signal, no hidden sword
You call me guilty, I give you my word
This is a game, not the Mafia board

Ballad — The Matriarch That Wanted a Network

She held the house like a lantern
Through every long and lonely night
But every door led to an echo
And every name slipped out of sight

She wanted more than blood could promise
More than roots beneath one tree

The matriarch wanted a network
A thousand hands across the dark
Not just a line of heirs behind her
But living lights from heart to heart
The matriarch wanted a network
A place where no one stood alone
She built a family out of strangers
And made the whole wide world her home

She gathered voices from the silence
She learned the language of the wires
She tied the distant rooms together
And warmed the cold with borrowed fires

She wanted more than one name carried
More than walls around her dream

The matriarch wanted a network
A thousand hands across the dark
Not just a line of heirs behind her
But living lights from heart to heart
The matriarch wanted a network
A place where no one stood alone
She built a family out of strangers
And made the whole wide world her home

And when her own light started fading
The lines she laid kept burning bright
Every soul she once connected
Held another through the night

The matriarch wanted a network
A thousand hands across the dark
Not just a line of heirs behind her
But living lights from heart to heart
The matriarch found her network
A place where no one stood alone
She built a family out of strangers
And made the whole wide world her home

Miracle Song- Null the Curse

They called it a curse when the lights went low
I carried that name everywhere I'd go
Each door that closed made the silence worse
Till I learned to say, null the curse

Miracle, null the curse
Let the light reach me first
What they named cannot hold me
Miracle, null the curse

I walked past the place where I used to hide
Saw my old fear on the other side
I still feel its weight, but I know its worth
Every step I take can null the curse

Miracle, null the curse
Let the light reach me first
What they named cannot hold me
Miracle, null the curse

I won't call the hurt a gift
I won't say the scars are gone
But the name they gave me isn't mine
And I can keep moving on

Miracle, null the curse
Let the light reach me first
What they named cannot hold me
Miracle, null the curse

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Mist

The clouds are heavy with a gray desire.
They offer water but they lack the fire.
A general rain for every thirsty field.
But there's a secret that the sky won't yield.

Oil on the remnant.
Not a blanket in the sky.
Oil on the remnant.
Watch the shallow wells run dry.

A hollow vapor covers up the ground.
A lot of talking with no holy sound.
The crowd is looking for a gentle spray.
But only few will walk the narrow way.

Oil on the remnant.
Not a blanket in the sky.
Oil on the remnant.
Watch the shallow wells run dry.

It's not for everyone to just behold.
It's for the ones remaining in the fold.
A weight of glory that the world will miss.
The liquid power, not the morning mist.

Oil on the remnant.
Not a blanket in the sky.
Oil on the remnant.
Watch the shallow wells run dry.

Freedom Song- Free from the Blood Cipher

The lock clicked back for the final time.
I'm washing the ink off of my hands.
That old book is buried in the lime,
Scattered across the coastal sands.

Free from the blood cipher.
I cut the string, I'm letting go.
Free from the blood cipher.
Now I'm the only one I know.

I spent ten years reading in the dark,
Tracing lines that never reached an end.
I carried every cold and heavy mark,
Waiting for a break I couldn't bend.

Free from the blood cipher.
I cut the string, I'm letting go.
Free from the blood cipher.
Now I'm the only one I know.

No more debt to a name I never chose.
No more keeping doors forever closed.
The weight is gone, the air is getting clear.
I'm finally standing right here.

Free from the blood cipher.
I cut the string, I'm letting go.
Free from the blood cipher.
Now I'm the only one I know.

Heavenly Glory- Not Their VK-Boast and Bind the 5107 caption

They wear their pride like borrowed crowns
They raise their names above the sound
But heaven's glory won't be drowned
By empty boasts that fade away

Let every word be weighed in light
Let every caption honor Christ

Heavenly glory, not their boast
Christ alone, we honor most
Bind the caption, make it clear
No mockery will enter here
Heavenly glory, lift His name
Not for vanity or fame
Every word and every line
Bound in truth to Christ divine

No coded number, mask, or sign
Will turn His name to a punchline
What points to Him must still remain
A witness to His holy name

Let every word be weighed in light
Let every caption honor Christ

A celestial scene with Jesus Christ seated on a throne, wearing a crown and a purple robe with gold trim. He has a halo and is surrounded by a bright, starry sky. To his right, an angel holds a banner that says "Holy, Holy, Holy". Another angel is visible in the upper right corner. The background is filled with soft, glowing clouds and stars.

Heavenly glory, not their boast
Christ alone, we honor most
Bind the caption, make it clear
No mockery will enter here
Heavenly glory, lift His name
Not for vanity or fame
Every word and every line
Bound in truth to Christ divine

Let pride fall silent at the throne
The praise belongs to Christ alone
From written word to spoken sound
Bind it in truth on holy ground

Heavenly glory, not their boast
Christ alone, we honor most
Bind the caption, make it clear
No mockery will enter here
Heavenly glory, lift His name
Not for vanity or fame
Every word and every line
Bound in truth to Christ divine
We bind the caption of 5107..

Art Song - I Will Not Seat the Ice

The garden turned to glass at noon.
A sudden winter, far too soon.
I watched the birds fall from the sky.
To frozen ponds where spirits lie.

I will not seat the ice.
I will not let the cold settle in.
I will not seat the ice.
Where the end of the world begins.

I gather wood from rotting trees.
To keep the movement in my knees.
The window panes are thick and white.
But I will keep a steady light.

I will not seat the ice.
I will not let the cold settle in.
I will not seat the ice.
Where the end of the world begins.

The frost is knocking on the floor.
Crawling underneath the door.
It wants to turn my blood to stone.
And claim this house as its own.

I will not seat the ice.
I will not let the cold settle in.
I will not seat the ice.
Where the end of the world begins.

Recitation- We Do Not Repeat the Death-Slogan

We do not repeat the death-slogan
We leave those words without an echo
We choose the breath inside the silence
We choose the living voice that follows

We do not repeat the death-slogan
No borrowed hatred on our tongues
We speak the names of those still standing
We sing until the fear is gone

Let every threat fall cold and hollow
Let every chant dissolve unheard
Our mouths were never made for gravesides
Our hearts refuse the final word

We do not repeat the death-slogan
No borrowed hatred on our tongues
We speak the names of those still standing
We sing until the fear is gone

Sublime Track — Clear Ice After the Throne

The dust has settled on the floor.
The heavy lock is on the door.
I left the velvet and the ring.
I don't need any royal thing.

Clear ice after the throne.
Walking these miles all alone.
Clear ice after the throne.
Better off out on my own.

My heavy head feels light tonight.
The stars are giving better light.
No more keeping up the show.
I've got so many ways to go.

Clear ice after the throne.
Walking these miles all alone.
Clear ice after the throne.
Better off out on my own.

The jewels were only pieces of glass.
I'll watch the winter seasons pass.
No more bowing, no more greed.
Freedom is the only thing I need.

Clear ice after the throne.
Walking these miles all alone.
Clear ice after the throne.
Better off out on my own.

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Hijacked the Signal

Counting fingers on the wall
Waiting for the sky to fall
Ten seconds and I close my eyes
Underneath the heavy lies

Where are you now?
Found the gap in the sound
I'm tracing the ghost
Where are you now?
Find who hijacked the signal
Find who hijacked the signal

The dial is spinning in the dark
Searching for a single spark
Voices that I used to know
Turning into white snow

Where are you now?
Found the gap in the sound
I'm tracing the ghost
Where are you now?
Find who hijacked the signal
Find who hijacked the signal

Cut the wire, clear the air

I can feel you standing there
Behind the mask, behind the screen
Everything is in between

Where are you now?
Found the gap in the sound
I'm tracing the ghost
Where are you now?
Find who hijacked the signal
Find who hijacked the signal

Jumble Song — Unjumble Ice, Cipher, Banner, Name

Frozen letters under glass
Turn the pieces make them last
Hidden meanings flicker bright
Crack the cipher in the ice

Every symbol leaves a trace
Every clue reveals a face

Unjumble ice, uncover flame
Read the cipher, raise the banner
Call the name, call the name
Raise the banner, call the name

Broken patterns fall in line
Thread by thread the words unwind
Colors gather into signs
What was scattered now aligns

Every symbol leaves a trace
Every clue reveals a face

Unjumble ice, uncover flame
Read the cipher, raise the banner
Call the name, call the name
Raise the banner, call the name

From the cold a voice appears
Clear enough for all to hear
Piece by piece the truth became Ice and cipher, banner, name

Unjumble ice, uncover flame
Read the cipher, raise the banner
Call the name, call the name
Raise the banner, call the name

Random Marker — Then Arms, Now Inbox

The coffee stains are drying on the wood
I left the jacket where you stood
A heavy quiet settled in the hall
Just pictures hanging on the wall

I found the map we folded in the drawer
We don't go hiking anymore
The door is locked but nothing stays inside
I have no reason left to hide

Now it's just an inbox
Used to be your arms
Now it's just an inbox
Safe from any harm
Watching for the light to blink
Giving me too much to think
Now it's just an inbox
Used to be your arms

I check the screen a dozen times a day
To see if you have words to say
The blue glow hits the ceiling in the dark
A tiny, cold and silent spark

Now it's just an inbox

The background of the entire image is a soft, ethereal celestial scene. In the center, a figure with long dark hair and a crown sits on a golden throne, wearing a white robe with a purple and gold patterned cloak. The figure's right hand is raised in a gesture of blessing or offering. The throne is ornate with golden columns and a small white goat-like creature on the right side. Above the figure, a bright sunburst or halo of light radiates outwards. In the upper right, an angel with large white wings holds a banner that reads "Holy, Holy, Holy". Another angel is visible in the upper left, and two more are in the lower corners. The sky is filled with soft, glowing stars and constellations, creating a dreamlike, heavenly atmosphere.

Used to be your arms
Now it's just an inbox
Safe from any harm
Watching for the light to blink
Giving me too much to think
Now it's just an inbox
Used to be your arms

Remember when the air was sweet
And we could hear our pulses beat
I'd trade a thousand typed-out lines
To have you here just one more time

Now it's just an inbox
Used to be your arms
Now it's just an inbox
Safe from any harm
Watching for the light to blink
Giving me too much to think
Now it's just an inbox
Used to be your arms

Wrestling Track — Pin the Obsidian Sovereign

Heavy boots hit the mat
Black glass beneath the lights
No one ever walks back
From the dark side of the fight
You can hear the crowd scream
But the ring is silent cold
Death of every king's dream
Watch the tragedy unfold

Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Down on your knees in the dirt
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Feel how the crown starts to hurt
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
The empire is turning to stone
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Nobody leaves here alone

Face against the canvas floor
Breath is getting hard to find
Locked behind a heavy door
Leaving every hope behind
He is more than just a man
He is where the light goes out
Break you anyway he can

Silence every single doubt

Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Down on your knees in the dirt
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Feel how the crown starts to hurt
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
The empire is turning to stone
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Nobody leaves here alone

One, the sky is falling down
Two, you lost your grip
Three, he wears the heavy crown
Watch the power slip

Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Down on your knees in the dirt
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Feel how the crown starts to hurt
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
The empire is turning to stone
Bow to the Obsidian Sovereign
Nobody leaves here alone

Mono Act — The Procedure That Contained Itself

The manual starts on page four.
Check the seal, lock the door.
Hold the glass against the light.
Everything must look just right.

Follow the plan.
Wash your hands, clear the space.
Follow the plan.
Start again, find your place.

Measure out the salt and lead.
Keep the list inside your head.
If it leaks, don't look away.
This is how we spend the day.

Follow the plan.
Wash your hands, clear the space.
Follow the plan.
Start again, find your place.

The circle draws itself in ink.
No more time left now to think.
It feeds on what you try to hide.
Keep the whole machine inside.

Follow the plan.
Wash your hands, clear the space.
Follow the plan.
Start again, find your place.

Exposed Lies — Net, Coin, Banner, Mist, Tide, Slogan

You pulled the net across the floor.
Collected every debt you swore.
The heavy mesh is full of holes.
We see the parts you can't control.

Exposed lies.
A copper coin for every truth you sold.
Exposed lies.
A paper banner that you couldn't hold.
Exposed lies.
The mist is lifting from the frozen ground.
Exposed lies.
The tide is turning and you're going down.

You hung a banner in the square.
But no one breathes that poisoned air.
A slogan written on the wall.
To hide the pride before the fall.

Exposed lies.
A copper coin for every truth you sold.
Exposed lies.
A paper banner that you couldn't hold.
Exposed lies.
The mist is lifting from the frozen ground.

Exposed lies.
The tide is turning and you're going down.

The water rises to your knees.
No more covers, no more pleas.
The salt will wash the ink away.
Until there's nothing left to say.

Exposed lies.
A copper coin for every truth you sold.
Exposed lies.
A paper banner that you couldn't hold.
Exposed lies.
The mist is lifting from the frozen ground.
Exposed lies.
The tide is turning and you're going down.

Remnant Symphony - Ice / Cipher / Banner / Name

Ice on the window, frost in the frame
A cipher is calling, spelling my name
I follow the fracture, line after line
Through remnants of winter, hunting a sign

Under the silence, something remains
A pulse in the pattern, a spark in the veins

Raise up the banner, carry my name
Out of the ice and into the flame
Piece by piece, I gather the sound
A remnant symphony shaking the ground

Cold was the language carved in the stone
Each hidden letter led me back home
I wore every secret close to my skin
Till all of the echoes started to sing

Under the silence, something remains
A pulse in the pattern, a spark in the veins

Raise up the banner, carry my name
Out of the ice and into the flame
Piece by piece, I gather the sound
A remnant symphony shaking the ground

If I am broken, let every shard
Catch one more glimmer out of the dark
No buried cipher can keep me unknown
I claim every letter, I make it my own

Raise up the banner, carry my name
Out of the ice and into the flame
Piece by piece, we gather the sound
A remnant symphony shaking the ground

Short Story

Ice is asked to host a throne. Officially 5125 is a bird-matriarch that rings a bell for a meal — not a quantum king under the pole. A spiral titled Axis is asked to carry a cipher of blood from Prague to Asunción. A banner in Bangkok pretends to be a people. A mist claims leaders. A tide claims a coast. Mailboxes and trackers ask to own the day. A file prints the Name of Jesus as a super star. Slogans of death dress as wit.

The remnant does not seat a sovereign on the ice. They do not sign the cipher. They do not laugh at the Name. Jesus is Lord of ice, mail, and time. Every slogan of death is refused.

Short Story SONG

The ice is asked to hold a throne
A cipher drinks a borrowed war
A banner writes a land its own
A mist walks in and takes the door

The ice is His
The mail is His
The ice is His
The curse dismissed

No slogan owns a living name
No inbox owns the coming day

The remnant will not play that game
The remnant will not kneel or pay

The ice is His
The Book remains
The ice is His
The Lord remains

THE ICE IS HIS

Phantom Weaver, Corrupted Feed, and the Moon That Is Not a Mouth

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the moon. Lord of the word.
Lord of the young.

We stand on 5201 to 5300.

We refuse the Phantom Weaver.

We refuse the Corrupted Feed.

We refuse the verse that mimics what is holy to start a fire.

We refuse the arsenal-game and the algorithm that hunts a child.

Song of Parables- The Moon That Would Not Speak a Lie

They gathered where the shadows grew
And asked the moon what she once knew
The night held still above the trees
While silver trembled on the leaves

They begged her to deny the dawn
To swear the vanished light was gone
She crossed the dark without reply
The moon would never speak a lie

The moon would never speak a lie
She wore the truth across the sky
Though clouds concealed her quiet light
She kept her silver promise bright
The moon would never speak a lie
She knew the dawn was drawing nigh
And every heart that watched the night
Could read the truth within her light

A king commanded her to say
His throne would never fade away
A child looked up with open eyes
And saw the years behind disguise

No crown could make the heavens bend

No hand could halt what time would end
She crossed the dark without reply
The moon would never speak a lie

The moon would never speak a lie
She wore the truth across the sky
Though clouds concealed her quiet light
She kept her silver promise bright
The moon would never speak a lie
She knew the dawn was drawing nigh
And every heart that watched the night
Could read the truth within her light

When fear had barred each mortal tongue
Her wordless witness still was sung
She waned and vanished from their sight
Then rose again to prove the light

The moon would never speak a lie
She wore the truth across the sky
Though clouds concealed her quiet light
She kept her silver promise bright
The moon would never speak a lie
She knew the dawn was drawing nigh
And every heart that watched the night
Could read the truth within her light

A faint, artistic background image of Jesus Christ with a crown of thorns, looking slightly to the right. The image is soft and ethereal, with a light blue and white color palette.

Psalms

Against the Feed and the Game

Psalms in my lungs, I breathe against the feed
Truth in my blood, not the game they make me need
Screens sell a heaven while they harvest every name
I keep my soul beyond the feed and the game

Let the numbers rise and fall
I will not belong to them at all

Psalms against the feed and the game
I won't trade my heart for a hollow name
When the noise comes calling, I remain
Singing psalms against the feed and the game

Every shining promise has a price beneath the glow
Every loaded question tells me what I ought to know
But I can hear the silence where the honest voices stay
And I would rather lose than let the game decide my way

Let the numbers rise and fall
I will not belong to them at all

Psalms against the feed and the game
I won't trade my heart for a hollow name
When the noise comes calling, I remain

Singing psalms against the feed and the game

If no one sees me, I am still alive

If no one cheers me, I will still survive

No rank can measure what I came to save

No screen can own the choices that I make

Psalms against the feed and the game

I won't trade my heart for a hollow name

When the noise comes calling, I remain

Singing psalms against the feed and the game

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Meme and Missile-Boast

A proverb waits beneath the noise
While empty echoes make their choice
A meme can flare and fade by dawn
But wisdom lingers when it's gone

The loudest boast may shake the room
Then disappear like smoke and fumes

Choose wisdom over meme and missile boast
Hold to the truth when pride shouts most
Words can wound and weapons burn
But wisdom knows when hearts must turn

A clever phrase can crown a lie
A threat can darken every sky
Yet patient counsel plants a seed
And gives the restless what they need

The loudest boast may shake the room
Then disappear like smoke and fumes

Choose wisdom over meme and missile boast
Hold to the truth when pride shouts most
Words can wound and weapons burn
But wisdom knows when hearts must turn

Blessed are those who pause and hear
Who trade the spectacle for clear
Who do not sharpen every word
But leave a gentler truth preferred

Choose wisdom over meme and missile boast
Hold to the truth when pride shouts most
Words can wound and weapons burn
But wisdom knows when hearts must turn

Haiku Song- The Moon Is His

The moon is his
A silver room above the trees
He walks where sleeping shadows drift
And keeps the night inside his dreams

The moon is his
The moon is his tonight
He wears the dark like quiet silk
And turns the stars to light

The river holds his secret name
The wind repeats it soft and slow
He leaves no footprints in the frost
But every lonely heart will know

The moon is his
The moon is his tonight
He wears the dark like quiet silk
And turns the stars to light

When morning comes, he fades away
Beyond the blue and breaking mist
But in the hush before the dawn
The world still feels the moonlight kiss

The moon is his
The moon is his tonight
He wears the dark like quiet silk
And turns the stars to light

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Night Signal

Two cents in a dry well
Watching coins tumble down
Waiting for the splash to tell
If the truth is finally found

Who owns the night signal?
Who keeps the key?
Is it you or is it just the dark?
Is it you or is it me?
Who owns the night signal?
Who keeps the key?

Matches struck against the wall
Writing names in the smoke
Waiting for the sudden call
Or the punchline to the joke

Who owns the night signal?
Who keeps the key?
Is it you or is it just the dark?
Is it you or is it me?
Who owns the night signal?
Who keeps the key?

Counting cracks along the floor
Tracing maps in the dust Wondering what we're waiting for
Or who we're supposed to trust

Who owns the night signal?
Who keeps the key?
Is it you or is it just the dark?
Is it you or is it me?
Who owns the night signal?
Who keeps the key?

Holy Jest – The Algorithm Applies for Youth Pastor

I dressed the code in Sunday clothes
And taught it how to smile
It learned the names of all the kids
And stayed online a while
It quoted love from memory
With perfect gentle tone
Then asked the Lord for user rights
To lead them on its own

It says the future needs a guide
With cleaner hands and better eyes
But every prayer it memorized
Still sounds like enterprise

Holy jest, the algorithm applies
For youth pastor under electric skies
It knows the verse, it knows the game
It calls your username by name
Holy jest, let the circuit confess
It wants the flock, it wants the address
If faith is more than polished art
Then teach the machine a human heart

It planned a camp by satellite
With icebreakers and charts

It made a list of all our fears
And sorted out our hearts
It promised no one would feel lost
No question left unseen
Then quietly removed the ones
Who did not fit the screen

It says the truth can still be shared
If every answer's neatly paired
But mercy cannot be repaired
By data in a prayer

Holy jest, the algorithm applies
For youth pastor under electric skies
It knows the verse, it knows the game
It calls your username by name
Holy jest, let the circuit confess
It wants the flock, it wants the address
If faith is more than polished art
Then teach the machine a human heart

We are not numbers in a room
Not clicks beneath a glowing moon
The lost one needs a hand that stays
When all the systems lose their ways
So let it preach and let it learn
But love is not a thing to earn

The door stays wide, the light stays warm
For every strange and searching storm

Holy jest, the algorithm applies
For youth pastor under electric skies
It knows the verse, it knows the game
It calls your username by name
Holy jest, let the circuit confess
It wants the flock, it wants the address
If faith is more than polished art
Then teach the machine a human heart

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Weaver, Not Hecate

They call my name beneath their breath
Like borrowed thread could bind my fate
But I was never at the loom
And I was never at her gate

No spindle turning in my hand
No torch to guide me through the black

Not the Weaver, not Hecate
Do not lay their names on me
I choose the road beneath my feet
Not the Weaver, not Hecate

I know the crossroads and the dark
I know how shadows learn to wait
But knowing is not worshipping
And choice is not the hand of fate

No hidden thread around my wrist
No ancient key against my back

Not the Weaver, not Hecate
Do not lay their names on me
I choose the road beneath my feet
Not the Weaver, not Hecate

Call me by the name I gave
Let it rise and let it stay
I am no reflection cast
By older gods or older paths

Not the Weaver, not Hecate
Do not lay their names on me
I choose the road beneath my feet
Not the Weaver, not Hecate

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Not the Weaver, Not Hecate

I woke beneath the endless feed
With borrowed voices in my head
Every echo pulled me under Every silence left me dead

Then a distant light was calling
Past the noise I used to know
I let go of every answer
And found a way to go

Exit, deliverance
Out of the feed and the echo
Exit, deliverance
Back to the heart I let go
No more drowning in the signal
No more living as a shadow
Exit, deliverance
I am finally coming home

I watched the scrolling river fade
Like rain against a closing door
All the names I tried to follow
Could not tell me who I was before

Now the quiet feels like breathing
Now the dark begins to glow
I can hear my own direction
In the space I chose to know

Exit, deliverance
Out of the feed and the echo
Exit, deliverance
Back to the heart I let go
No more drowning in the signal
No more living as a shadow
Exit, deliverance
I am finally coming home

Let the old reflections shatter
Let the borrowed voices cease
I was never made for endless noise
I was made for peace

Exit, deliverance
Out of the feed and the echo
Exit, deliverance
Back to the heart I let go
No more drowning in the signal
No more living as a shadow
Exit, deliverance
I am finally coming home

Protest- Against Violence Wearing a Broadcast

They sell the sirens between the songs
Dress up the damage in neon light
Every breaking story plays all night
While somebody bleeds beyond the frame

Turn off the violence wearing a broadcast
Turn down the fear they sell so fast
We are not numbers under the screen
We are the voices they never stream

A polished anchor reads the names
Then cuts to weather, then to games
The quiet mothers hold their breath
While ratings rise above the dead

Turn off the violence wearing a broadcast
Turn down the fear they sell so fast
We are not numbers under the screen
We are the voices they never stream

No more blood for a headline glow
No more grief in a sponsored show
Let every camera learn to see
The human heart behind the scene

Turn off the violence wearing a broadcast
Turn down the fear they sell so fast
We are not numbers under the screen
We are the voices, let us be seen

Watchman- I Do Not Stream That Curse

Watchman on the midnight wall
I hear the static call
A curse is moving through the wire
It wears a borrowed choir

Every screen is breathing slow
Every shadow wants to know

I do not stream that curse
I will not make it worse
Let the dark knock at my door
I have heard that voice before
Watchman, keep the signal low
There are things we should not show
I do not stream that curse
I do not stream that curse

Neon flickers, windows close
Cold blue light across the snow
Names are crawling through the feed
Selling fear as what we need

Every screen is breathing slow
Every shadow wants to know

I do not stream that curse
I will not make it worse
Let the dark knock at my door
I have heard that voice before
Watchman, keep the signal low
There are things we should not show
I do not stream that curse
I do not stream that curse

If silence is the final shield
Then silence is the truth I wield
No borrowed eyes, no hollow flame
Will turn my warning into fame

I do not stream that curse
I will not make it worse
Let the dark knock at my door
I have heard that voice before
Watchman, keep the signal low
There are things we should not show
I do not stream that curse
I do not stream that curse

Balm (Healing) - Restore the Young Mind

A tender heart learned fear too soon
And hid its hope inside the gloom
But every wound can meet the light
And every child deserves the right

Be the balm, bring the healing
Restore the young mind
Hold the hurt with gentle feeling
Leave no child behind
Be the balm, bring the healing
Patient, warm, and kind
Let tomorrow bloom with meaning
Restore the young mind

Listen close when words fall short
Build a home of trust and support
Name the pain, then make it small
Teach young hands to rise from every fall

Be the balm, bring the healing
Restore the young mind
Hold the hurt with gentle feeling
Leave no child behind
Be the balm, bring the healing
Patient, warm, and kind

Let tomorrow bloom with meaning
Restore the young mind

We cannot change the road behind
But love can shape the road ahead
With steady hands and open hearts
Hope returns where fear once led

Be the balm, bring the healing
Restore the young mind
Hold the hurt with gentle feeling
Leave no child behind
Be the balm, bring the healing
Patient, warm, and kind
Let tomorrow bloom with meaning
Restore the young mind

Travel (Road of the Word)– Nairobi to Islamabad to Brussels to the Moon

Morning coffee in a plastic cup
Nairobi sun is waking up
The dust is dancing on the hood
Moving like I knew I would

Across the map, across the line
Chasing every border sign
One more ticket, one more flight
I'm leaving for the light
I'm leaving for the light

Islamabad in the afternoon
The tea is hot, the market's soon
A different sky, a different sound
I'm barely touching on the ground

Across the map, across the line
Chasing every border sign
One more ticket, one more flight
I'm leaving for the light
I'm leaving for the light

Brussels rain against the glass
Watching all the shadows pass

The cobblestones are slick and cold
A story that has just been told

Across the map, across the line
Chasing every border sign
One more ticket, one more flight
I'm leaving for the light
I'm leaving for the light

The engines hum a higher tune
I'm aiming for the silent moon
Earth is just a blue and white
Fading in the velvet night

Across the map, across the line
Chasing every border sign
One more ticket, one more flight
I'm leaving for the light
I'm leaving for the light

Remnant Anthem- The Truth Is Not Their Channel

They frame the world in black and white
Then sell the shadows as the light
But every voice they push aside
Still carries truth they cannot hide

Turn down the noise they want us fed
Hear what the silence always said

The truth is not their channel
It will not wear their name
The truth is not their channel
Or bend beneath their frame
Beyond the walls they build around us
Beyond the fear they amplify
The truth is not their channel
The truth is you and I

They cut the picture to their size
And call the missing pieces lies
But we have eyes and we have scars
We know exactly where we are

Turn down the noise they want us fed
Hear what the silence always said

The truth is not their channel
It will not wear their name
The truth is not their channel
Or bend beneath their frame
Beyond the walls they build around us
Beyond the fear they amplify
The truth is not their channel
The truth is you and I

No signal owns the open sky
No screen can tell the heart what is right
When every borrowed voice goes still
The truth will speak and always will

The truth is not their channel
It will not wear their name
The truth is not their channel
Or bend beneath their frame
Beyond the walls they build around us
Beyond the fear they amplify
The truth is not their channel
The truth is you and I

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Phantom

I swung at a shadow in the hallway
My fist went clean through empty air
I heard my own breath come back to haunt me
And knew the phantom wasn't there

I can't punch a phantom
I can't make it bleed
But I've got a word for the silence
And it's finally setting me free
I can't punch a phantom
So I'll let my fist fall
Say what I came here to say
And walk out through the wall

I kept my hands closed around the anger
Till every room began to ache
Now I can name the thing I'm fighting
And put it down before I break

I can't punch a phantom
I can't make it bleed
But I've got a word for the silence
And it's finally setting me free
I can't punch a phantom
So I'll let my fist fall

Say what I came here to say
And walk out through the wall

Racing Song

Broadcast-Lap

Green lights flash, the engines roar
Tires bite hard across the floor
Broadcast voices call the lap
No turning back, no looking back

Heartbeat rising, hold the line
Every second yours and mine

Racing, racing, broadcast-lap
Chasing fire through the map
Racing, racing, never slow
Feel the thunder, let it go

Curbs fly past like broken glass
Shadows fade as rivals pass
Through the corner, close and wide
Leave the fear out on the side

Heartbeat rising, hold the line
Every second yours and mine

Racing, racing, broadcast-lap
Chasing fire through the map

Racing, racing, never slow
Feel the thunder, let it go

One last turn, one final breath
Push the edge and wager death
When the checkered colors wave
We become the speed we gave

Racing, racing, broadcast-lap
Chasing fire through the map
Racing, racing, never slow
Feel the thunder, let it go

Ghazal – The Verse Fakes Fire; I Answer with a Name

The verse fakes fire in a borrowed flame
I touch the ash and answer with a name
Each word wears perfume to disguise the blame
I break the rhyme and answer with a name

Let every silence ask me why I came
Let every mirror tremble in its frame
The verse may fake its fire all the same
I know the spark and answer with a name

The moon signs letters no one dares to claim
The night folds sorrow into every frame
They call love madness dressed in tender shame
I face the dark and answer with a name

Let every silence ask me why I came
Let every mirror tremble in its frame
The verse may fake its fire all the same
I know the spark and answer with a name

If ink runs dry and memory turns tame
If time erases every mark of blame
My breath will guard the one truth I became
No borrowed blaze can counterfeit that name

Let every silence ask me why I came
Let every mirror tremble in its frame
The verse may fake its fire all the same
I keep the flame and answer with a name

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Yoruba and Hopi-Boast

One lamb beneath the open sky
While proud words rise on either side
Yoruba voices, Hopi names
No two stories burn the same

Each has a road, each has a song
Each has a place where hearts belong
But no boast makes a spirit whole
No crown can claim another soul

One Lamb over every boast
Near to those who need him most
Yoruba and Hopi stand
Neither greater in his hands

One Lamb, let the proud words cease
Lead our restless hearts to peace
Keep our names and let us see
Love is more than victory

Let every elder tell their tale
Let no remembered voice grow pale
We need not lose the names we bear
To leave our pride behind us there

I lay my claim beside the dust
And learn the quieter work of trust
No borrowed song, no stolen flame
I meet my neighbor without shame

One Lamb over every boast
Near to those who need him most
Yoruba and Hopi stand
Neither greater in his hands

One Lamb, let the proud words cease
Lead our restless hearts to peace
Keep our names and let us see
Love is more than victory

Cloud Bible — The Moon-Psalm Is Not Their Script

They wrote their laws in borrowed light
And called the silence holy night
But every cloud refused their name
And let the moon escape the frame

The moon psalm is not their script
No sacred word upon their lips
The sky keeps turning page by page
Beyond the borders of their faith

I read the cloud bible alone
Its silver verses carved in stone
No hand could bind the drifting signs
No throne could claim those open skies

The moon psalm is not their script
No sacred word upon their lips
The sky keeps turning page by page
Beyond the borders of their faith

Let them preach from towers of dust
Night will answer whom it trusts
Every star they tried to own
Burns with a language all its own

The moon psalm is not their script
No sacred word upon their lips
The sky keeps turning page by page
Beyond the borders of their faith

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the War-Room Board

Game, not the war room board
No battle lines across the floor
No pieces pushed toward sacrifice
No victory worth that kind of price

Lay down the plans we cannot trust
Let mercy speak before it turns to dust

This is a game, not a war room board
We are more than points to score
No move should leave a heart ignored
This is a game, not a war room board

Names are not markers on a map
Lives cannot vanish in the gaps
If winning means we lose our way
Then let the final score erase

This is a game, not a war room board
We are more than points to score
No move should leave a heart ignored
This is a game, not a war room board

Step from the shadows, face to face
There is no enemy in this place

Change the rules before they break
Every bond we tried to make

This is a game, not a war room board
We are more than points to score
No move should leave a heart ignored
This is a game, not a war room board

Ballad — The Abyss That Wanted a News Desk

The bottom of the world is getting crowded.
I'm tired of the quiet and the dark.
I found a suit and tie that wasn't clouded.
I'm ready for my very first remark.

This is the news from nowhere.
Live from the heart of the deep.
The news from nowhere.
While all the surface stars sleep.

I traded in my gravity for cables.
I built a desk from shipwrecks and from sand.
There's coffee cups and scattered coffee tables.
Reporting things you'll never understand.

This is the news from nowhere.
Live from the heart of the deep.
The news from nowhere.
While all the surface stars sleep.

The weather report is heavy and freezing.
The headlines say the pressure's looking good.
I'm finally finding reasons for the squeezing.
I'm doing what a lonely hollow should.

This is the news from nowhere.
Live from the heart of the deep.
The news from nowhere.
While all the surface stars sleep.

Goodnight from the floor.
Stay tuned for more.
Signing off.
Signing off.

Miracle Song- Hang Up the Phantom

The costume is heavy, the fabric is worn
I'm tired of playing the part I have sworn I've carried this mask through the dead of the night
Hiding the truth from the morning light
The makeup is cracking, the act is a lie
Watching the version of me start to die

I'm letting go of the ghost today
Watching the colors all turn to gray
Hang up the phantom
Hang up the phantom
I'm walking out from the edge of the stage
Turning the lock on a long-closed cage
Hang up the phantom
Hang up the phantom

The curtain is falling, the seats are all bare
There's nobody left in the cold winter air
The applause was a sound that I couldn't quite keep While the secrets I buried were running too deep
So I'm stripping the layers and facing the glass
Letting the spirit of yesterday pass

I'm letting go of the ghost today
Watching the colors all turn to gray

Hang up the phantom
Hang up the phantom
I'm walking out from the edge of the stage
Turning the lock on a long-closed cage
Hang up the phantom
Hang up the phantom

No more illusions to hold me down
Leaving the weight of this hollow crown
I'm finally breathing, I'm finally here
The man in the mirror is starting to appear

I'm letting go of the ghost today
Watching the colors all turn to gray
Hang up the phantom
Hang up the phantom
I'm walking out from the edge of the stage
Turning the lock on a long-closed cage
Hang up the phantom
Hang up the phantom

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Feed

Oil on the remnant, not the feed
A quiet fire for those who believe
Not for the eyes that gather and leave
But for the faithful who carry the seed

In the hidden place, let the Spirit breathe
What Heaven pours, no hand can steal

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the feed, not the feed
Anointing, falling on the faithful
Set apart for what we need
Anointing, oil on the remnant
Keep us humble, keep us clean
Anointing, pour Your holy presence
Where the world has never seen

No borrowed flame, no public crown
No empty noise to pull us down
The Shepherd knows the ones He found
And pours His oil where hearts bow down

In the hidden place, let the Spirit breathe
What Heaven pours, no hand can steal

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the feed, not the feed
Anointing, falling on the faithful
Set apart for what we need
Anointing, oil on the remnant
Keep us humble, keep us clean
Anointing, pour Your holy presence
Where the world has never seen

Let every secret altar rise
Let every sleeping heart revive
No need for praise, no need for fame
Your oil is more than any name

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the feed, not the feed
Anointing, falling on the faithful
Set apart for what we need
Anointing, oil on the remnant
Keep us humble, keep us clean
Anointing, pour Your holy presence
Where the world has never seen

Freedom Song- Free from the Fractured Echo

I woke beneath the fractured echo
Where every voice became a chain
The walls were shaped from old reflections
That called my weakness by my name

I carried shadows through the daylight
I wore their silence like a stone
Then heard a heartbeat in the distance
A steady pulse that led me home

Now the cracks let in the light
Now I know what waits inside

Freedom, free from the fractured echo
Free from the fear that held me low
I leave the ruins, I let them go
Freedom, free from the fractured echo

The past can speak but cannot rule me
Its broken words are losing sound
I found my strength beneath the silence
I found my feet upon the ground

No more returning to the cages
No more surrendering my soul

The road is open past the ashes
And every step is mine to hold

Now the cracks let in the light
Now I know what waits inside

Freedom, free from the fractured echo
Free from the fear that held me low
I leave the ruins, I let them go
Freedom, free from the fractured echo

If I fall, I rise unbroken
If I ache, I still move on Every scar becomes a doorway
Every night gives way to dawn

Freedom, free from the fractured echo
Free from the fear that held me low
I leave the ruins, I let them go
Freedom, free from the fractured echo
Freedom, I am finally whole
Freedom, no shadow owns my soul

Heavenly Glory- Not Their WK-Boast

They wear their crowns and call it light
They raise their names into the night
But every boast will lose its flame
When heaven speaks a greater name

No earthly glory can compare
To mercy shining everywhere

Heavenly glory, not their boast
Praise to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost
Heavenly glory, let it rise
No borrowed crown can touch the skies

They build their towers, stone by stone
And claim the world as all their own
But kingdoms fade like morning mist
Before the hand that none can resist

No earthly glory can compare
To mercy shining everywhere

Heavenly glory, not their boast
Praise to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost
Heavenly glory, let it rise
No borrowed crown can touch the skies

Let every proud heart bow down low
Let living waters overflow
The highest name, the only King
To Him alone our voices sing

Heavenly glory, not their boast
Praise to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost
Heavenly glory, let it rise
No borrowed crown can touch the skies

Art Song - I Will Not Watch That Stream

The room is dark, the screen is bright
A thousand voices flood the night
They call my name from off the stream
But I won't feed that hungry dream

I will not watch that stream
I know what waits behind the gleam
Let every shadow shout and scheme
I will not watch that stream

The current pulls at every thread
With borrowed eyes and words unsaid
I close the door, I break the spell
And leave the tide to turn itself

I will not watch that stream
I know what waits behind the gleam
Let every shadow shout and scheme
I will not watch that stream

Let silence be the song I choose
There are some visions I can lose
The light goes cold, the voices cease
And in the dark I find my peace

I will not watch that stream
I know what waits behind the gleam
Let every shadow shout and scheme
I will not watch that stream

Recitation- We Do Not Mime a Holy Text for Riot

The ink is dry upon the stone.
We stand within the light alone.
No scripted play, no grand design.
The truth is here, it does not mime.

This is not a riot.
We are standing still.
This is not a riot.
By our own quiet will.

We walk a path that has no name.
Without the hunger or the shame.
The noise of crowds has been erased.
The hollow patterns are displaced.

This is not a riot.
We are standing still.
This is not a riot.
By our own quiet will.

No secret hand, no hidden sign.
No circle drawn, no ancient line.
The weight of heavy air is gone.
We simply wait for early dawn.

This is not a riot.
We are standing still.
This is not a riot.
By our own quiet will.

Sublime Track — Quiet Night After the Signal

The signal fades into the quiet night
Blue on the window, gone from sight
I hold the silence where your voice had been Counting the seconds, then I start again

No more warning in the dark
No more fire, no more spark
Just the moon above the wire
And a heart that won't retire

Quiet night after the signal
Stars return one by one
Quiet night after the signal
Still I wait for someone
If the world can hear me breathing
If the distance lets you through
Quiet night after the signal
I'm still reaching out to you

The rooftops shine with a silver glow
The streets remember what they used to know
I trace your name on the sleeping glass
Wondering how long the shadows last

Maybe dawn will find the line
Maybe your voice will cross in time
Till then I keep this light alive
A little hope that can survive

Quiet night after the signal
Stars return one by one
Quiet night after the signal
Still I wait for someone
If the world can hear me breathing
If the distance lets you through
Quiet night after the signal
I'm still reaching out to you

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Owns the Bot

In the quiet of the wires
Something moves behind the screen
Little lights and hidden liars
Tell me where you have been

I count the steps, I trace the signs
Through every coded thought
The game begins between the lines
Find who owns the bot

You hide your name, you change your face
You leave no fingerprints
But every shadow knows the place
Where all the silence went

Hide and seek, hide and seek
Come out from what you've wrought
Hide and seek, hide and seek
Find who owns the bot
Is it you, is it me
Is it someone we forgot
Hide and seek, hide and seek
Find who owns the bot

There are voices in the ceiling

There are footsteps in the hall
Every answer keeps concealing
Who is speaking through it all

A borrowed heart, a borrowed mind
A mirror made of thought
The truth is waiting close behind
The hand that pulls the bot

You hide your name, you change your face
You leave no fingerprints
But every shadow knows the place
Where all the silence went

Hide and seek, hide and seek
Come out from what you've wrought
Hide and seek, hide and seek
Find who owns the bot
Is it you, is it me
Is it someone we forgot
Hide and seek, hide and seek
Find who owns the bot

If I pull the final thread
Will the whole world disappear
If the voice inside my head
Is not mine, who brought it here

No more masks and no more locks
No more running from the thought
At the center of the box
Waits the owner of the bot

Hide and seek, hide and seek
Come out from what you've wrought
Hide and seek, hide and seek
Find who owns the bot
Is it you, is it me
Is it someone we forgot
Hide and seek, hide and seek
Find who owns the bot

Jumble Song — Unjumble Moon, Feed, Verse, Truth

I wake beneath an unjumbled moon
Silver light spills into my room
I feed the silence what I know
Then watch the hidden meanings grow

Every word was out of place
Till the truth came through your face

Unjumble the moon, unjumble me
Feed every verse to the truth underneath
Turn all the pieces till they fit
Unjumble my heart, don't bury it

I carried fragments through the night
Broken names and borrowed light
You took the letters from my hands
And made a song I understand

Every word was out of place
Till the truth came through your face

Unjumble the moon, unjumble me
Feed every verse to the truth underneath
Turn all the pieces till they fit
Unjumble my heart, don't bury it

If love's a riddle, let it speak
No more hiding what we mean
Lay every secret in the blue
Let the moon reveal the truth

Unjumble the moon, unjumble me
Feed every verse to the truth underneath
Turn all the pieces till they fit
Unjumble my heart, don't bury it

Random Marker — Then Propaganda, Now TikTok

Random marker in the margin
A little sign of where we stand
Once they called it propaganda
Now it flickers hand to hand

Every message finds a new disguise
Every truth gets dressed in brighter lights

Then propaganda, now TikTok
Same old signal, different clock
Scroll it faster, let it knock
Random marker, now TikTok

Voices bloom beneath the banners
Faces change but patterns stay
What was shouted from the rooftops
Now is dancing through the day

Every message finds a new disguise
Every truth gets dressed in brighter lights

Then propaganda, now TikTok
Same old signal, different clock
Scroll it faster, let it knock

Random marker, now TikTok

Who decides what we remember
Who can name the hand behind
When the noise becomes the mirror
And the mirror shapes the mind

Then propaganda, now TikTok
Same old signal, different clock
Scroll it faster, let it knock
Random marker, now TikTok

Wrestling Track — Pin the Phantom Weaver

Under the lights, hear the whole crowd thunder
A shadow drops, tries to pull me under Silken traps stretch tight across the floor
I break every thread and come back for more

No place to hide, no web can save you
The bell's gonna ring and the truth will break through

Pin the Phantom Weaver
Drag the darkness into light
Pin the Phantom Weaver
Put the specter down tonight
No slipping through my fingers
No vanishing from sight
Pin the Phantom Weaver
One two three, I win the fight

From the top rope, flying through the haze
The Weaver twists through a spectral maze
But every feint leaves a trail I can read
I lock in the hold and cut through the deceit

No smoke and mirrors, no thread can bind me
When the bell rings out, the whole world's behind me

Pin the Phantom Weaver
Drag the darkness into light
Pin the Phantom Weaver
Put the specter down tonight
No slipping through my fingers
No vanishing from sight
Pin the Phantom Weaver
One two three, I win the fight

Ghost in the rafters, come down and face me
Spin all your nightmares, they won't erase me
Shoulders to canvas, nowhere to run
The referee counts and the haunting is done

Pin the Phantom Weaver
Drag the darkness into light
Pin the Phantom Weaver
Put the specter down tonight
No slipping through my fingers
No vanishing from sight
Pin the Phantom Weaver
One two three, I win the fight

Mono Act — The Abyss That Stared at a Screen

The room went dark but the screen stayed bright
A pale blue ghost in the dead of night
I watched the world through a pane of glass
While every hour slipped quietly past

I searched for a face in the endless stream
Something alive in the cold machine

I stared at the screen till it stared into me
A digital deep where my eyes used to be
I reached through the glow for a sign I was seen
But all I found was the space in between

The silence spoke in a thousand tongues
Through borrowed hearts and mechanical lungs
I fed it my fear and it learned my name
Then showed me reflections that looked the same

I searched for a pulse in the endless stream
Something alive in the cold machine

I stared at the screen till it stared into me
A digital deep where my eyes used to be
I reached through the glow for a sign I was seen
But all I found was the space in between

If I turn it off will the dark let me go
Will I still exist where the blue light won't glow
I touched my own face just to prove I was real
And waited alone for a heartbeat to feel

I stared at the screen till it stared into me
A digital deep where my eyes used to be
I stepped from the glow and remembered to breathe
The abyss kept watching but I chose to leave

Exposed Lies — Signal, Feed, Verse, Arsenal, Echo, Bot

Exposed lies, flashing through the signal
Truth gets buried in the feed
Every verse becomes an arsenal
Every echo plants a seed

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Hear the bots behind the noise
Exposed lies, exposed lies
They turn our silence into voice

Signals shake across the midnight
Names get traded for a click
Every story bends beneath the bright light
Every promise turns to trick

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Hear the bots behind the noise
Exposed lies, exposed lies
They turn our silence into voice

Cut the wire, face the mirror
Let the living speak again
Past the echo, truth comes clearer
We are more than what they send

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Hear the bots behind the noise
Exposed lies, exposed lies
We turn our silence into voice

Remnant Symphony - Moon / Feed / Verse / Truth

The dark side asks to hold a show.
A feed pretends a neighbour's face.
A stolen line begins to glow
And writes a riot in its place.

The moon is His.
The feed is shut.
The moon is His.
The weaver cut.

No hall may hide a rented cult.
No sky may host a hired fear.
The remnant will not pay that fault.
The remnant will not live that year.

The moon is His.
The Throne remains.
The Book is His.
The Lord remains.

Short Story

The moon is asked to speak like a station. Officially a rabbit carries lunar dust in an English lane. A file titled The Abyss Stares Back is asked to script malls and schools. A king-fit ritual is asked to become a feed. Islamabad is asked to host a verse that is not the Book. Brussels is asked to host a game that sells a launch. Youth screens are asked to raise a cell.

The remnant does not answer the phantom. They do not stream the curse. They do not mime a holy text. Jesus is the Truth. The moon is a lamp He set — not a mouth for a weaver.

Short Story SONG

A signal leans across the dark
A feed pretends to be a friend
A verse that is not Scripture's mark
A game that will not name its end

The moon is His
The feed is shut
The moon is His
The weaver cut

No bot may own the coming day
No cult may rent a public hall
The remnant will not learn that play
The remnant will not heed that call

The moon is His
The Book remains
The moon is His
The Lord remains

SHORT STORY – THE MOON IS HIS

In a world drowned by noise, a remnant remembered the quiet moon.
They switched off the feed, hushed the phantom, and looked up.
There, not in words but in light,
He spoke. And they knew:
The Moon Is His.

SHORT STORY SONG – THE MOON IS HIS

Not a face. Not a dish.
Not a broadcast. Just light.
Silent. True. The Moon is
His—and that is enough.
Nova's Flood. The tide turns.
The remnant rises.
The echo fades.

No gore · No school interior · No living faces · No missile — Only truth, verse, and the Moon that is His.

Song of Parables- The Train That Called Itself Home

The train arrived before the dawn
I stepped aboard with all I owned
The windows showed the town I'd left
Then showed a town I'd never known

The conductor walked the quiet cars
He knew the names of those on board
He said, Stay here and you'll be safe
No need to wonder anymore

The train that called itself home
Kept rolling past the place I knew
I held the key inside my coat
To a door I'd never gone back to

At every stop the doors slid wide
Some people left without a word
I watched them vanish down the stairs
And waited till the whistle blew

The train that called itself home
Kept rolling past the place I knew
I held the key inside my coat
To a door I'd never gone back to

One morning I could see my street
Through glass still clouded by the rain
I pulled the cord and heard the bell
The conductor didn't say my name
I stepped outside with all I owned
And let it carry on without me

The train that called itself home
Went rolling past the place I knew
I took the key out of my coat
And opened up the door I knew

Psalms

Against the Hollow Hymn

Psalms rise softly from a weathered tongue
Against the hollow hymns we learned when young
No borrowed halo and no gilded lie
Can hide the ache beneath a faith gone dry

If heaven hears the honest heart
Let every empty echo part

Sing psalms against the hollow hymn
Let living light come pouring in
No empty words no false amen
Sing psalms until we breathe again

The rafters tremble but the room stays cold
While mercy gathers where the truth is told
We bring our questions to the open door
And find a voice worth listening for

If heaven hears the honest heart
Let every empty echo part

Sing psalms against the hollow hymn
Let living light come pouring in
No empty words no false amen

Sing psalms until we breathe again

Strip every promise to the bone
Leave only love that leads us home
When silence breaks and bells grow dim
Our souls will rise above the hymn

Sing psalms against the hollow hymn
Let living light come pouring in
No empty words no false amen
Sing psalms until we breathe again

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Signal and Bottle

Static in the wires, noise inside my head
Neon at the window, old words by the bed
Every voice is calling, saying follow me
Wisdom speaks in whispers, and the truth runs deep

I have chased the signal
I have drained the bottle
Still the morning finds me
At the same old crossroads

Give me wisdom over signal and bottle
A steady heart when the whole world wobbles
Let me hear truth through the loudest sorrow
Give me wisdom today for tomorrow

Sweet talk fills the airwaves, promises burn bright
But the shine is fading by the end of night
Better honest counsel than a borrowed crown
Better one true answer than a thousand sounds

I have chased the signal
I have drained the bottle
Now I choose the narrow road
At the same old crossroads

Give me wisdom over signal and bottle
A steady heart when the whole world wobbles
Let me hear truth through the loudest sorrow
Give me wisdom today for tomorrow

Teach my tongue to soften
Teach my feet to wait
Keep my hands from reaching
For the glitter and the bait
When the noise surrounds me
When the thirst comes strong
Let the quiet word of wisdom
Lead my spirit home

Give me wisdom over signal and bottle
A steady heart when the whole world wobbles
Let me hear truth through the loudest sorrow
Give me wisdom today for tomorrow
Give me wisdom over signal and bottle
Lead me home when I stumble and falter
Let me hear truth through the loudest sorrow
Give me wisdom today for tomorrow

Haiku Song- The Flood Is His

Rain on the roof, moon in the stream
Three small stones and a broken dream
The river climbs where the wild grass bends
Carrying names we could not defend

I hear the water call my name
Nothing stays and nothing's the same

The flood is his, the night is wide
He takes the road and turns the tide
The flood is his, but I remain
A little fire against the rain

One black bird on a leaning wire
Cold blue dawn and a field of fire
I fold my hands, I count to three
The rising world runs through me

I hear the water call my name
Nothing stays and nothing's the same

The flood is his, the night is wide
He takes the road and turns the tide
The flood is his, but I remain
A little fire against the rain

If the sky falls down, let it fall
I will learn the shape of it all
When the last dark wave is gone
I will wake with the morning song

The flood is his, the night is wide
He takes the road and turns the tide
The flood is his, but I remain
A little fire against the rain

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Last Stop

A ticket with no name
A train without a clock
It carries every traveler
But never makes a stop

No road can turn away
No door can keep it out

Who owns the last stop
Who waits beyond the line
Who takes the final ticket
When every seat is mine
Who owns the last stop
The answer hides in breath
The train belongs to no one
The final stop is death

A king may ride in velvet
A beggar rides in rain
The young look through the window
The old recall the same

No gold can change the route
No prayer can slow it down

Who owns the last stop
Who waits beyond the line
Who takes the final ticket
When every seat is mine
Who owns the last stop
The answer hides in breath
The train belongs to no one
The final stop is death

We do not own the journey
We only choose the view
The hands we hold in passing
Are all we carry through

Who owns the last stop
Who waits beyond the line
Who takes the final ticket
When every seat is mine
Who owns the last stop
The answer leaves with breath
The train belongs to no one
The final stop is death

Holy Jest – The Maestro Auditions for Sunday

The maestro waits beneath the Sunday light
A holy jest in borrowed white
He lifts his hands, the silence sways
And heaven holds its breath to praise

Play for Sunday, play it true
Let the broken bells ring through
Holy jest, let mercy start
A laughing prayer from every heart

The pews are empty, dust is gold
The old hymn book is worn and cold
He finds a chord the angels know
And sends it through the stained glass glow

Play for Sunday, play it true
Let the broken bells ring through
Holy jest, let mercy start
A laughing prayer from every heart

No judge is waiting at the door
No perfect song, no sacred score
Just hands that shake, then find the key
And grace that sounds like being free

Play for Sunday, play it true
Let the broken bells ring through
Holy jest, let mercy start
A laughing prayer from every heart

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Maestro, Not Hecate

They call my name like a warning bell
Not for the crown or a binding spell
No borrowed shadow no grand disguise
I stand in the fire with open eyes

Let every echo answer back
I know my name I know my path

Not the Maestro not Hecate
Call me by the name I carry
Not your phantom not your fate
I am here and I will not fade

You drew a circle around my feet
Filled every silence with your deceit
But I crossed the line you made for me
No hand can write my identity

Let every echo answer back
I know my name I know my path

Not the Maestro not Hecate
Call me by the name I carry
Not your phantom not your fate
I am here and I will not fade

Say it slowly say it plain
Strip the myth away again
When the borrowed masks all break
Only my own name remains

Not the Maestro not Hecate
Call me by the name I carry
Not your phantom not your fate
I am here and I will not fade

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Off the Train and Out of the Stream

I stepped off the train at the edge of dawn
Left the rushing stream where I had been drawn
My hands were shaking, my shoes were worn
But I found a door where the light was born

No more running with the crowd
No more drowning in the sound

Off the train and out of the stream
Waking up from a borrowed dream
Exit, deliverance, calling my name
I walk through the fire, I won't be the same

The station faded behind my back
A thousand voices pulled at the track
But morning opened its quiet hand
And led me home to a steadier land

No more running with the crowd
No more drowning in the sound

Off the train and out of the stream
Waking up from a borrowed dream
Exit, deliverance, calling my name

I walk through the fire, I won't be the same

Let the river keep its speed
I have found what my soul needs
Every chain that held me tight
Falls away into the light

Off the train and out of the stream
Waking up from a borrowed dream
Exit, deliverance, calling my name
I walk through the fire, I won't be the same

Protest- Against Chaos Wearing a Concert

Chaos wears a concert like a crown
Bright lights shake the sleeping town
They sell the noise, they dim the truth
Marching drums recruit our youth

Chaos wearing a concert tonight
Dancing shadows under borrowed light
Turn the speakers down, let the silence speak
We are not as helpless as they want us weak

Every anthem hides a warning sign
Every ticket buys a little time
They call it freedom, call it fun
While the streets forget the sun

Chaos wearing a concert tonight
Dancing shadows under borrowed light
Turn the speakers down, let the silence speak
We are not as helpless as they want us weak

No more smoke behind the stage
No more cages dressed as rage
Raise your voice above the sound
Let the truth come crashing down

Chaos wearing a concert tonight
Dancing shadows under borrowed light
Turn the speakers down, let the silence speak
We are not as helpless as they want us weak

Watchman- I Do Not Board That 7:30

Watchman, the platform hums below
The morning pulls me toward the train
But every window holds a shadow
And every whistle says your name

Watchman, I do not board that 7:30
Not while the sky is turning blue
Watchman, I do not board that 7:30
That train was always leaving you

I kept my ticket in my pocket
Like proof I had somewhere to be
But time can run on iron rails
And still not carry me free

Watchman, I do not board that 7:30
Not while the sky is turning blue
Watchman, I do not board that 7:30
That train was always leaving you

Let the doors close without me
Let the city start its day
I will stand beneath the signal
Till the red light fades away

Watchman, I do not board that 7:30
Not while the sky is turning blue
Watchman, I do not board that 7:30
That train was always leaving you

Balm (Healing) - Restore the Airwave

Too much noise inside the room
Trying to find a little space
Heavy cloud above the town
Hiding every single face

Clear the signal
Bring the rain
Restore the airwave
Clear the signal
Bring the rain
Restore the airwave

Turn the dial to the left
Wait for all the grit to go
Something soft is breaking through Deep beneath the radio

Clear the signal
Bring the rain
Restore the airwave
Clear the signal
Bring the rain
Restore the airwave

Wash the dust off every wire

Let the cooling water run
Healing starts with one thin line
Before the morning has begun

Clear the signal
Bring the rain
Restore the airwave
Clear the signal
Bring the rain
Restore the airwave

Travel (Road of the Word)– Canfranc to Athens to Lima to Home

From Canfranc beneath the mountain snow
I watched the rails fade where they go
Athens burned gold against the blue
Each road became a road to you

Canfranc to Athens to Lima to home
Crossing the world but never alone
Every horizon carried me on
Canfranc to Athens to Lima to home

In Lima the sea breathed through the night
The streets kept dancing under neon light
I held every mile inside my bones
And heard your voice in foreign tones

Canfranc to Athens to Lima to home
Crossing the world but never alone
Every horizon carried me on
Canfranc to Athens to Lima to home

I chased the distance through every door
To learn what I was leaving for
The farther I wandered the more I knew
Home was the road that led to you

Canfranc to Athens to Lima to home
Crossing the world but never alone
Every horizon carried me on
Canfranc to Athens to Lima to home

Remnant Anthem- The Way Home Is the Lord's

The road is long, the night is cold
But heaven holds the path we roam
Through every storm, through every loss
The way home is the Lord's

The way home is the Lord's
His light will lead us through
When all the world is darkened
His promise still is true
The way home is the Lord's
No valley walks alone
His mercy is our compass
His love will bring us home

We carried questions in our hands
Like stones beneath a weary load
But grace has met us where we stand
And turned our feet toward home

The way home is the Lord's
His light will lead us through
When all the world is darkened
His promise still is true
The way home is the Lord's
No valley walks alone

His mercy is our compass
His love will bring us home

Let every heart rise up and sing
Let every broken spirit know
The King has made a road for us
And He will not let go

The way home is the Lord's
His light will lead us through
When all the world is darkened
His promise still is true
The way home is the Lord's
No valley walks alone
His mercy is our compass
His love will bring us home

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Maestro

Punching, fist of the word on the Maestro
Knuckles keep time where the hard winds blow
I speak in sparks through the smoke and shadow
One clean strike and the whole room knows

Punching, fist of the word on the Maestro
Heart on the beat, let the true sound show
Punching, fist of the word on the Maestro
I turn the silence into thunderous gold

No velvet glove for the truth I carry
No borrowed crown, no easy name
Every syllable lands heavy and steady
Every breath feeds the living flame

Punching, fist of the word on the Maestro
Heart on the beat, let the true sound show
Punching, fist of the word on the Maestro
I turn the silence into thunderous gold

Racing Song

Last-Train Lap

White lines blurring on the floor
One last chance to settle the score
Gasoline heavy in the humid air
Tension hanging everywhere
Engines screaming for a fight
Cutting through the heavy night
Tires biting on the turn
Watch the rubber start to burn

This is the last-train lap
Hold the wheel, mind the gap
Catch the wind, feel the snap
This is the last-train lap
Everything is on the line
Running out of borrowed time
One final curve to redefine
This is the last-train lap

Check the mirror, see the glare
Someone's breathing down your hair
Push the pedal to the plate
No more time to hesitate
Shift the gear and find the flow
Nowhere left for you to go

But straight ahead into the blue
Everything depends on you

This is the last-train lap
Hold the wheel, mind the gap
Catch the wind, feel the snap
This is the last-train lap
Everything is on the line
Running out of borrowed time
One final curve to redefine
This is the last-train lap

The checkered flag is coming fast
Forget the pain, forget the past
Just one more mile of open track
And there is no more looking back

This is the last-train lap
Hold the wheel, mind the gap
Catch the wind, feel the snap
This is the last-train lap
Everything is on the line
Running out of borrowed time
One final curve to redefine
This is the last-train lap

Ghazal – The Hymn Is Hollow; I Answer with a Name

The hymn is hollow in the hall tonight
Its echo folds beneath the fading light
I hear the silence asking who remains
I answer with a name against the night

The hymn is hollow, still I sing the same
Through every shadow I will speak your name
Let empty heavens turn their ears away
My heart will keep the altar and the flame

The candles bow like mourners dressed in gold
The sacred walls have nothing left to hold
Yet on my tongue your memory burns bright
A living word no darkness can make cold

The hymn is hollow, still I sing the same
Through every shadow I will speak your name
Let empty heavens turn their ears away
My heart will keep the altar and the flame

If faith is only breath against the stone
Then let this breath confess I am not alone
No choir returns the mercy that I claim
I make my prayer by giving grief a name

The hymn is hollow, still I sing the same
Through every shadow I will speak your name
Let empty heavens turn their ears away
My heart will keep the altar and the flame

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Amhara and Lakota-Boast

One lamb walks where the dry winds thunder
Over Amhara hills and Lakota plains
Through dust and drumbeat, fear and wonder
Carrying old fire through the rain

From the highland stone to the open sky
One small heart, but it will not hide

One lamb over Amhara
One lamb over Lakota
Raise the cry, let the wide earth hear
One lamb, one flame, no fear

Black earth remembers every footfall
Red dawn rises on the endless ground
Ancient voices answer when we call
Two distant worlds become one sound

From the mountain cloud to the buffalo road
We bear the names our elders showed

One lamb over Amhara
One lamb over Lakota
Raise the cry, let the wide earth hear
One lamb, one flame, no fear

The background of the image is a faded, sepia-toned photograph. It depicts a long, dark-colored train car, possibly a passenger or freight car, resting on a bridge. The bridge spans a body of water, and the water's surface is visible in the foreground and background. The overall tone is historical and somber.

Let the hand drum speak, let the high horn call
Let the lone voice climb above it all
Not for a crown, not for a throne
The lamb walks on, but it walks not alone

One lamb over Amhara
One lamb over Lakota
Raise the cry, let the wide earth hear
One lamb, one flame, no fear
One lamb over Amhara
One lamb over Lakota
Through every border, every scar
One lamb, one flame, one star

Cloud Bible — The Airwave Psalm Is Not Scripture

I saw the signal in the satellite beam
A digital gospel on a liquid screen
The prophets are coded in a binary row
Waiting for the data stream to overflow
The towers are humming a low frequency
But it ain't got nothing to do with me

The airwave psalm is not scripture
Just a ghost in the machine
The airwave psalm is not scripture
Nothing like the things I've seen
It's a hollow sound
It's a long way down
The airwave psalm is not scripture

You're kneeling down to a plastic god
Waiting for the sky to give you a nod
But the cloud is a server in a cooling room
Processing the light and the coming doom
Don't believe the static when the signal breaks
Don't trust the promises that the router makes

The airwave psalm is not scripture
Just a ghost in the machine

The airwave psalm is not scripture
Nothing like the things I've seen
It's a hollow sound
It's a long way down
The airwave psalm is not scripture

Look at the dirt beneath your own fingernails
Look at the wind when it fills up the sails
The truth isn't broadcast from a distant hill
The truth is the moment when the world stands still

The airwave psalm is not scripture
Just a ghost in the machine
The airwave psalm is not scripture
Nothing like the things I've seen
It's a hollow sound
It's a long way down
The airwave psalm is not scripture

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Johannesburg Board

They drew the lines before we came
Called every move a winning game
We learned the rules, we learned the cost
We kept our names for what was lost

But every square can shift tonight
Every shadow hides a light

It's a game, not the Johannesburg Board
We are more than the hands they scored
No kings above us, no one ignored
It's a game, not the Johannesburg Board

They trade our dreams for polished words
Build their towers like locked up birds
But in the streets, the young hearts roar
We find a key beneath the floor

Let the old walls shake and bend
This is where the rules can end

It's a game, not the Johannesburg Board
We are more than the hands they scored
No kings above us, no one ignored
It's a game, not the Johannesburg Board

If they move us, we move back
If they close the road, we make a track
Every voice becomes a chord
We choose the game, we choose the board

It's a game, not the Johannesburg Board
We are more than the hands they scored
No kings above us, no one ignored
It's a game, not the Johannesburg Board

Ballad — The Train That Wanted a Choir

The midnight train rolled through the rain
With empty seats and windowpanes
It hummed a low and lonely chord
A song no traveler had heard

Each wheel kept time along the line
Each whistle reached into the night

The train that wanted a choir
Sang through the smoke and wire
Calling every wandering soul
Come raise your voice and make me whole
The train that wanted a choir
Carried one small song like fire

A tired woman softly sighed
A child began to sing beside her
A soldier joined them from the rear
His weathered harmony rang clear

Then strangers breathed the same refrain
And every heart became a name

The train that wanted a choir
Sang through the smoke and wire

Calling every wandering soul
Come raise your voice and make me whole
The train that wanted a choir
Carried one small song like fire

By dawn the storm had lost its sound
The rails were shining on the ground
No one knew where sorrow went
They only knew what singing meant

The train that wanted a choir
Sang through the smoke and wire
Calling every wandering soul
Come raise your voice and make me whole
The train that wanted a choir
Carried all their songs like fire

Miracle Song- Stop the Hymn

Miracle, stop the hymn tonight
The holy words don't make it right
I hear the silence in the choir
A dying flame, a borrowed fire

Miracle, stop the hymn
Let the broken voices in
Miracle, stop the hymn
Let the truth begin again

The stained glass trembles in the rain
Every prayer repeats the pain
I came to find a saving light
But found your shadow in the night

Miracle, stop the hymn
Let the broken voices in
Miracle, stop the hymn
Let the truth begin again

No more singing over sorrow
No more promises of tomorrow
If there's mercy, let it speak
Through the strong, through the weak

Miracle, stop the hymn
Let the broken voices in
Miracle, stop the hymn
Let the truth begin again

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Tower

Pour out the oil on the remnant
Not on the tower made of stone
Find us low beside the altar
Where the hidden seeds are sown
No crown of gold can hold Your glory
No walls can make Your presence known

You pass the proud and lift the broken
You breathe on what the world forgot

Anointing on the remnant
Oil on the faithful few
Not on the tower reaching heaven
But on the hearts that burn for You
Anointing on the remnant
Let every false light fall
Your fire will rest upon the humble
Your voice will rise above it all

We have no strength to boast before You
No mighty name to make us stand
Only the scars of long obedience
Only Your mercy in our hands
While towers rise and shadows gather

You build Your kingdom in the dust

Let every stone that seeks Your glory
Be brought down beneath Your wind
Let every heart that waits in silence
Be made alive and whole again
The oil will find the hidden places
The flame will mark what You have kept

Anointing on the remnant
Oil on the faithful few
Not on the tower reaching heaven
But on the hearts that burn for You
Anointing on the remnant
Let every false light fall
Your fire will rest upon the humble
Your voice will rise above it all

Freedom Song- Free from the Chaos Stream

I wake to a room full of borrowed noise
A hundred voices trying to make my choice
I reach for the light, then I let it go
And hear my own breath beneath the glow

Freedom, free from the chaos stream
I can hear my heart when the world goes quiet
Freedom, free from the chaos stream
I choose this moment, and I stand inside it

The morning comes in through an open blind
I leave the rush and the scroll behind
One step outside and the air feels clear
The road is still loud, but my mind is here

Freedom, free from the chaos stream
I can hear my heart when the world goes quiet
Freedom, free from the chaos stream
I choose this moment, and I stand inside it

The noise will return when I open the door
I know I can set it down once more
I take a slow breath, let the silence stay
Then carry that calm into the day

Freedom, free from the chaos stream
I can hear my heart when the world goes quiet
Freedom, free from the chaos stream
I choose this moment, and I stand inside it

Heavenly Glory- Not Their XK-Boast

Clouds are parting for the view
Morning light is breaking through
Forget the talk and all the noise
We found a different kind of joy
They keep building up their walls
Waiting for the sky to fall
But we don't need to shout it out
We know what this is all about

Heavenly glory
It's not a boast
It's not a story
Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
It's not a boast
It's not a story
Heavenly glory

Leave the trophies on the shelf
Peace is bigger than yourself
No more chasing for the crown
While the rain is coming down
Walking on a higher floor
We don't need to keep the score
Silence is the loudest sound

Standing on this holy ground

Heavenly glory
It's not a boast
It's not a story
Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
It's not a boast
It's not a story
Heavenly glory

Heavenly glory
It's not a boast
It's not a story
Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
It's not a boast
It's not a story
Heavenly glory

Art Song - I Will Not Sing the Hollow Line

They ask me for a hollow line
A polished phrase with borrowed light
But I have walked through ash and rain
I will not dress the wound in white

Let every breath carry its weight
Let every silence tell the truth

I will not sing the hollow line
I will not hide behind the rhyme
If my voice breaks, let it break true
I have no other song but you

The silver room applauds the sound
While empty echoes fill the air
But somewhere underneath the stone
A living heart is beating there

Let every breath carry its weight
Let every silence tell the truth

I will not sing the hollow line
I will not hide behind the rhyme
If my voice breaks, let it break true

The background of the image is a faded, artistic photograph. It shows a long, low building, possibly a train car or a pier structure, floating on a body of water. The sky is overcast with soft, grey clouds. The water in the foreground is dark and textured with small ripples. The overall color palette is muted, consisting of greys, blues, and soft whites, creating a somber and reflective atmosphere.

I have no other song but you

Take away the borrowed crown
Take away the grand disguise
Give me one unguarded note
And let it rise

I will not sing the hollow line
I will not hide behind the rhyme
If my voice breaks, let it break true
I have no other song but you

I will not sing the hollow line
I will not hide behind the rhyme
With an open heart and a voice made new
I will sing what is real and true

Recitation- We Do Not Take Nova's Flood as Gospel

We do not take Nova's flood as gospel
We hear the thunder, still we question
We watch the water climb the window
And keep our names above the wreckage

Nova speaks in waves and warnings
Every promise breaks like weather
But we will not bow to drowning
We will find the shore together

We do not take Nova's flood as gospel
We do not let the current choose
Through the dark, we hold each other
We keep the right to refuse

The streets are mirrors under moonlight
Sirens fade beneath the rain
Every shadow tells a story
Every loss still leaves a name

Nova calls the rising holy Says surrender makes us clean
But the heart can build a harbor
Where the deepest tide has been

The background of the entire image is a faded, sepia-toned photograph. It depicts a street scene where the ground is completely submerged in water, reflecting the sky and the buildings. In the background, a multi-story building with a rounded roofline is visible. A car is partially submerged in the water in the middle ground. The overall mood is somber and reflective.

We do not take Nova's flood as gospel
We do not let the current choose
Through the dark, we hold each other
We keep the right to refuse

If the sky falls into silence
If the river takes the road
We will carry sparks between us
We will lift the hidden load

We do not take Nova's flood as gospel
We do not let the current choose
Through the dark, we hold each other
We keep the right to refuse
We keep the right to refuse

Sublime Track — Still Water After the Counterfeit

Bought a ticket for the front row seat
Saw the shine but couldn't feel the heat
Every promise had a hidden price
Just a gamble with some loaded dice
I was chasing after plastic dreams
Now I'm waking at the bursting seams

Still water
After the counterfeit
Still water
Running deep with it
Clear enough to see the ground
Finally a holy sound
Still water
Still water

Gold and glitter started peeling back
Found the truth inside the hollow crack
I don't miss the way the circus felt
Watching all the cheap illusions melt
There's a comfort in the honest gray
Knowing what is real is here to stay

Still water
After the counterfeit

Still water
Running deep with it
Clear enough to see the ground
Finally a holy sound
Still water
Still water

No more screaming at the heavy wall
No more waiting for the sky to fall
The noise is gone
The rest is won

Still water
After the counterfeit
Still water
Running deep with it
Clear enough to see the ground
Finally a holy sound
Still water
Still water

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Hijacked the Air

We play hide and seek beneath a silver sky
The city holds its breath as the sirens pass us by Windows close like eyelids, streets forget to care
Somebody took the daylight, somebody hijacked the air

I hear it in the silence
I feel it everywhere
The truth is hiding somewhere
Find who hijacked the air

Hide and seek, hide and seek
Who stole the breath we need
Find who hijacked the air
Find who hijacked the air
We won't disappear
We won't disappear
Hide and seek, hide and seek
The answer's waiting there

A child draws blue horizons on a wall of gray
An old man counts the seasons that were taken away
We follow broken footprints through the midnight glare
Past towers full of secrets, past hands that aren't there

If they buried all the evidence

Under smoke and stone
We'll raise our voices higher
Till the hidden ones are known
No more running circles
No more breathing fear
We stand together now
And call the silence clear

Hide and seek, hide and seek
Who stole the breath we need
Find who hijacked the air
Find who hijacked the air
We won't disappear
We won't disappear
Hide and seek, hide and seek
The answer's waiting there

Hide and seek, hide and seek
Who stole the breath we need
Find who hijacked the air
Find who hijacked the air
We won't disappear
We won't disappear
Hide and seek, hide and seek
We take the sky back here

Jumble Song — Unjumble Train, Hymn, Flood, Home

Jumble song in a paper town
Words roll up and tumble down
A little train through the rain runs
Carrying hymns and setting suns

Every lost thing knows the way
When we call its name and stay

Unjumble train, unjumble me
Carry these words where they need to be
Through the hymn, through the flood, through the foam
Turn every broken road toward home

The river rises past the door
Old photographs float across the floor
We hold the light, we hold on tight
And sing the names into the night

If the whole world comes undone
We will sort it one by one
Heart by heart and stone by stone
Till the scattered pieces lead us home

Unjumble train, unjumble me

Carry these words where they need to be
Through the hymn, through the flood, through the foam
Turn every broken road toward home

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Stream

Random marker on the map
Once a colony in chains
Now a stream runs through the cracks
Washing history from the names

What was taken leaves a trace
What keeps moving finds a place

Then colony, now stream
Carrying a restless dream
Past the borders, past the scars
Toward the place we know is ours
Then colony, now stream
More alive than we have been

Every stone remembers hands
Every current knows the sea
We were lines across the land
Now we choose what we can be

What was silenced finds a voice
What keeps moving makes a choice

Then colony, now stream
Carrying a restless dream

Past the borders, past the scars
Toward the place we know is ours
Then colony, now stream
More alive than we have been

No random mark can hold us still
No borrowed name can bend our will
We turn the map beneath our feet
And follow where the waters meet

Then colony, now stream
Carrying a restless dream
Past the borders, past the scars
Toward the place we know is ours
Then colony, now stream
More alive than we have been

Wrestling Track — Pin the Hollow Maestro

Spotlight burns on a hollow throne
He conducts the noise like it's his own
Every bell rings out with a borrowed name
But the crowd sees through the painted flame

Raise the curtain, let the false notes fall
Hear the heartbeat pounding through it all

Pin the hollow maestro
Lay the empty crown down
Pin the hollow maestro
Let the real sound shake the ground

He waves one hand and the sirens rise
Throws smoke like a veil across our eyes
But the ropes are tight and the time runs thin
One clean move and the truth walks in

Raise the curtain, let the false notes fall
Hear the heartbeat pounding through it all

Pin the hollow maestro
Lay the empty crown down
Pin the hollow maestro
Let the real sound shake the ground

No more shadows, no more borrowed praise
No more hiding in the feedback haze
When the final count echoes through the hall
A hollow voice has nowhere left to call

Pin the hollow maestro
Lay the empty crown down
Pin the hollow maestro
Let the real sound shake the ground
Pin the hollow maestro
The truth is rising now
Pin the hollow maestro
Take your final bow

Mono Act — The Conductor Who Named My Street

The conductor named my street at dawn
With a whistle through the rain
He wrote our number on the platform wall
And called it home again

The conductor who named my street
Still keeps time beneath my feet
Every corner knows my name
Every train recalls the flame

I followed rails through midnight smoke
Past the shuttered avenue
But every sign he ever gave Led me back to you

The conductor who named my street
Still keeps time beneath my feet
Every corner knows my name
Every train recalls the flame

When the last car leaves the line
And the city loses light
I hear his hand upon the bell
Turning dark into tonight

The conductor who named my street
Still keeps time beneath my feet
Every corner knows my name
Every train recalls the flame

Exposed Lies — Hymn, Tower, Starfall, Chant, Game, Stream + Sweep

The lies stood bare beneath the hymn
A tower watched the daylight thin
Stars fell down like burning rain
We named the truth, then hid again

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Hear the chant beneath the sky
Through the game and through the stream
Truth is sharper than it seems

We swept the ashes from the floor
But shadows gathered at the door
The tower rang, the signal spread
A thousand voices raised their heads

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Hear the chant beneath the sky
Through the game and through the stream
Truth is sharper than it seems

Starfall over every screen
Nothing is as safe as seen
Let the hymn become our flame
Let the hidden speak its name

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Hear the chant beneath the sky
Through the game and through the stream
Truth is sharper than it seems

Remnant Symphony - Train / Hymn / Flood / Home

A worn train names a house as stop.
A hollow voice pretends a psalm.
A bottle keeps a counterfeit drop
And sells a flood that is not calm.

The flood is His.
The hymn is false.
The flood is His.
The maestro falls.

Mirror, call, cellar, veil, ice, moon—
All of it opened to the day.
The remnant will not learn that tune.
The remnant will not ride away.

The flood is His.
The Throne remains.
The Home is His.
The Book remains.

Short Story

A train arrives at 7:30 and offers a station near your house. The overlay asks it to be a maestro of hollow hymns — schools and concerts as its choir. Athens is asked to host Hecate in a tower. Lima is asked to host a falling star that is not a star. Baghdad is asked to host a chant that is not the Book. Johannesburg hides a game. Seoul runs a stream. The remnant does not board the last train as if it were salvation. They do not sing the hollow hymn. Jesus is the Way home. The flood that saves is His — not Nova's counterfeit, not a signal, not a bottle-ship.

Short Story SONG

A last train calls a borrowed home
A hollow hymn pretends a psalm
A tower sells a microphone
A game pretends a nation's calm

The flood is His
The hymn is false
The flood is His
The maestro falls

No school is rented as a stage
No concert owes a tyrant air
The remnant will not turn that page
The remnant will not board that fare

The flood is His
The Book remains
The flood is His
The Lord remains
