Abyssal Herald, Iron Pact, and the Stone That Is Not a War-Drum

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the nations.
Lord of Jerusalem.
Lord of every capital.

We open Album 88 on 5301 to 5400.

We refuse the Abyssal Herald.

We refuse the Iron Pact as a gospel.

We refuse the war-cry that pits people against people.

We name and bind —
SCP-5325 The Last Train Home;
SCP-5309 as “not to exist”;
SCP-5300;
overlays: abyssal signal under the stone;
Washington iron-pact AI;

Tehran sky-fracture;
Pyongyang burning scroll;

Moscow shadow accord;
Sudan crimson tide;
Ethiopia 5310;
USA glyph 5390;
China 5385;

Syria tablet 5345;
Vanuatu 5365; 5305; 5360;
Google Widevine as a boast over the eye.

Alliances named only as strife-files.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

Song of Parables- The Stone That Would Not Keep a War

They carved a border through the field
And taught the earth what not to yield
But underneath the markers laid
One quiet stone refused the blade

It held no flag beneath the rain
It learned no anthem for the slain
While every hand prepared for war
The stone remembered what hands were for

The stone would not keep a war
Would not remember what blood was for
Through every winter every scar
The stone would not keep a war
It gave the rain back to the ground
It let the silence lose its sound
When soldiers asked what hatred bore
The stone would not keep a war

They raised it high above the square
A monument to loss and prayer
But moss erased the names they made
And roots ran through the old parade

A child climbed up and heard no cry

A stone cross stands on a hill, overlooking a town. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone. The town below is a dense cluster of buildings, mostly white with dark roofs. The hills in the background are covered in green vegetation. The sky is a pale, hazy blue. The overall scene is peaceful and contemplative.

Just swallows stitching through the sky
Then laid a flower by the scar
And asked how stone could carry war

The stone would not keep a war
Would not remember what blood was for
Through every winter every scar
The stone would not keep a war
It gave the rain back to the ground
It let the silence lose its sound
When soldiers asked what hatred bore
The stone would not keep a war

Let iron rust and banners fade
Let mercy outlive every blade
If even stone can set grief down
Then we can lay our weapons down

The stone would not keep a war
Would not remember what blood was for
Through every winter every scar
The stone would not keep a war
It gave the rain back to the ground
It let the silence lose its sound
When children asked what hatred bore
The stone would not keep a war

Psalms

Against the Cry That Pits the Nations

The nations raise their cry in vain
Their iron words become a chain
But mercy moves beyond the night
And gathers every scattered light

Against the cry that pits the nations
We sing the psalms of restoration
No throne of fear can divide
The children standing side by side

The kings may bargain with the dust
The proud may place their faith in rust
Yet through the smoke, a promise calls
A living river breaks the walls

Against the cry that pits the nations
We sing the psalms of restoration

Let every tongue remember grace
Let every border make some space
The Holy One will hear the sound
Of broken hearts on common ground

Against the cry that pits the nations
We sing the psalms of restoration
The children standing side by side

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Pact and Rift

When the proud make promises in the dark
And every handshake hides a spark
I hear a wiser voice say wait
Not every bond is built to last

A gentle word can turn the tide
A steady heart can choose its side

Wisdom over pact and rift
Truth is more than what we give
When the old ties break and shift
Wisdom over pact and rift

The foolish chase the loudest name
And trade their peace to win a game
But mercy walks a quieter road
And carries less than pride can hold

If anger rises like a flame
Let understanding speak its name
No oath is higher than what is right
No wall can stand against the light

Wisdom over pact and rift

Truth is more than what we give
Wisdom over pact and rift

Haiku Song- The Nations Are His

Mountains wake beneath His breath Rivers turn toward the sea
Every dawn and every death
Rest within His mystery

From the islands to the plains
Every heart and every name

The nations are His
The nations are His
Every throne and every star
Know how great His mercies are
The nations are His
The nations are His
All creation lifts its song
To the One who leads us home

Deserts bloom where prayers arise
Cities shine with humble praise Heaven stretches through the skies
Mercy finds a thousand ways

From the islands to the plains
Every heart and every name

The background image shows a large, weathered stone cross standing on a stone-paved hill. In the distance, a city with many buildings is visible under a hazy sky. The overall tone is peaceful and spiritual.

The nations are His
The nations are His
Every throne and every star
Know how great His mercies are
The nations are His
The nations are His
All creation lifts its song
To the One who leads us home

When the borders fade away
And the proudest banners fall
Love will be the final word
He will gather one and all

The nations are His
The nations are His
Every throne and every star
Know how great His mercies are
The nations are His
The nations are His
All creation lifts its song
To the One who leads us home

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Sacred Stone

A sacred stone beneath the sky
No hand can hold no gold can buy
The river shaped its ancient face
The mountain kept its resting place

The kings all came to claim the throne
But tell me who can own a stone

Who owns the sacred stone
The earth says leave it alone
It holds the rain it holds the flame
Long after we forget our names
Who owns the sacred stone
No heart can call it their own
We pass like shadows over sand
The stone belongs to no one's hand

A pilgrim knelt beside its light
A soldier guarded it at night
A child could hear its quiet song
It said you came but don't belong

Who owns the sacred stone
The earth says leave it alone
It holds the rain it holds the flame

Long after we forget our names
Who owns the sacred stone
No heart can call it their own
We pass like shadows over sand
The stone belongs to no one's hand

Before the border before the crown
Before the walls came rising round
It watched our kingdoms turn to dust
Still we call possession just

Who owns the sacred stone
The earth says leave it alone
It holds the rain it holds the flame
Long after we forget our names
Who owns the sacred stone
No heart can call it their own
The stone belongs to no one's hand

Holy Jest – The Pact Applies to Be Scripture

We signed our names beneath the flame
A holy jest without a name
The ink ran dark across the page
And bound our laughter to the age

Every promise wears a crown
Every kingdom tumbles down

The pact applies to be scripture
Every wound becomes a picture
What we whispered turns to law
Holy jest without a flaw
The pact applies to be scripture
Written deep beneath the mixture
Faith and folly hand in hand
Seal the page and take your stand

We raised a glass to borrowed grace
Then watched the fire change its face
No witness came to call it true
Still every word kept leading you

Every kingdom tumbles down

A stone cross stands on a hill, overlooking a town. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone and is the central focus of the image. The town below is a dense cluster of buildings, mostly white with red roofs, nestled in a valley. The background shows rolling hills and a clear sky. The overall tone is peaceful and contemplative.

The pact applies to be scripture
What we whispered turns to law
Holy jest without a flaw
The pact applies to be scripture
Written deep beneath the mixture
Seal the page and take your stand

If heaven laughs then let it ring
If silence rules then let us sing
The joke was never ours alone
The vow has found a living home

The pact applies to be scripture
Every wound becomes a picture
What we whispered turns to law
Holy jest without a flaw
The pact applies to be scripture
Written deep beneath the mixture
Seal the page and take your stand

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Herald, Not Molech

They call my name like a warning bell
Through the smoke where the old gods dwell
I bear no message carved in flame
I came alone and chose my name

No crown of fire upon my head
No ancient hunger wakes the dead

Not the herald, not Molech
No burning throne around my neck
Call my name, call my name
I will not answer to their flame
Not the herald, not Molech
I owe no blood, I bear no debt
Call my name, call my name
I stand apart, I stay the same

Their iron mouths demand a vow
But I refuse their altar now
No borrowed voice will speak through me
No sacred chain will make me kneel

Let every false command fall still My name belongs to my own will

No burning throne around my neck
Call my name, call my name
I will not answer to their flame
Not the herald, not Molech
I owe no blood, I bear no debt
Call my name, call my name
I stand apart, I stay the same

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the War-Room and the Rift

I leave the war-room at first light
Maps and ashes blur behind
Every order split the silence
Every loss still marks my mind

Then the floor gives way beneath me
And the rift begins to roar
I can hear deliverance calling
Like a hand beyond the war

Deliverance, carry me out
Out of the war-room and the rift
Deliverance, silence the doubt
Be the ground beneath my step
I have worn these chains too long
I have lived where hope was torn
Deliverance, carry me out
Out of the war-room and the storm

Through the fracture, shadows gather Wearing faces I once knew
Still I cross the broken border
With one thread of faith in view

A background image of a stone cross on a hill overlooking a town. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone and stands on a stone-paved path. In the distance, a town with many buildings is visible under a hazy sky. The overall tone is somber and reflective.

Every siren fades behind me
Every scar becomes a door
I can hear deliverance calling
Louder than the voice of war

Deliverance, carry me out
Out of the war-room and the rift
Deliverance, silence the doubt
Be the ground beneath my step
I have worn these chains too long
I have lived where hope was torn
Deliverance, carry me out
Out of the war-room and the storm

If I fall between the worlds
Let the light remember me
I was more than their commands
I was born to leave here free

Deliverance, carry me out
Out of the war-room and the rift
Deliverance, silence the doubt
Be the ground beneath my step
I have worn these chains too long
Now I rise beyond the storm
Out of the war-room, reborn

Protest- Against Armageddon Wearing a File

Armageddon wears a file
And signs away the morning light
A stamped and silent little smile
Can turn the blue sky white

It waits behind a polished door
We will not bow, we will not smile
We will not feed that war

They call it order, call it peace
They number every human name
But paper walls will never cease
To burn beneath our flame

Armageddon wears a file
It waits behind a polished door
We will not bow, we will not smile
We will not feed that war

Raise your voice above the seal
Let every hidden witness speak
What they erase, what they conceal
Is not too small, not too weak

It waits behind a polished door
We will not bow, we will not smile
We will not feed that war

Watchman- I Do Not Beat the Stone

Watchman, keep your lantern low
Night has ears along the road
I have carried all I know
To the place the cold winds blow

Let the silence test my bones
Let it ask what I have known

I do not beat the stone
I will not bruise my hands
I wait until the water
Reveals what time has planned
I do not beat the stone
Or beg it to atone
I listen for the fault line
I do not beat the stone

Watchman, tell me what you see Ashes where the walls had been Every door remembers me
Every lock still holds its grief

I have learned what force can cost
How the hardest heart gets lost

A stone cross stands on a hilltop, overlooking a city. The ground is paved with irregular stones, and a large, circular stone basin is in the foreground. The background shows a city with many buildings, and the sky is hazy.

I do not beat the stone
I will not bruise my hands
I wait until the water
Reveals what time has planned
I do not beat the stone
Or beg it to atone
I listen for the fault line
I do not beat the stone

When morning finds the mountain bare
And every shadow leaves the stair
I will stand where mercy shone
With open hands before the stone

I do not beat the stone
I will not bruise my hands
I wait until the water
Reveals what time has planned
I do not beat the stone
Or beg it to atone
I listen for the fault line
I do not beat the stone

Balm (Healing) - Peace on the Cities Named

I trace the names across the evening news
Every street is carrying its wounds
Through shattered windows morning enters slow
And finds the seeds beneath the fallen stone

Let every siren fade into a song
Let every weary heart know it belongs

Healing, peace on the cities named
Mercy falling soft as rain
From every rooftop hope remains
Healing, peace on the cities named

The hands that trembled reach across the line
A table waits where every voice can rise
The bells remember what the silence cost
And call the living home to what was lost

Let every border open to the light
Let every child sleep safely through the night

Mercy falling soft as rain

A stone cross stands on a cobblestone path that leads down towards a city. The city is visible in the distance, with its buildings and streets stretching out under a hazy sky. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone and is positioned on the right side of the frame. The path is made of irregular, flat stones. In the foreground, there is a circular stone basin or well, also made of rough stone, which is partially filled with water. The overall scene is peaceful and contemplative.

Name every city, carry every prayer
No place forgotten, no one left in fear
Where grief has gathered, let compassion grow
Where walls have risen, let the rivers flow

Mercy falling soft as rain
Healing, peace on the cities named

Travel (Road of the Word)– Jerusalem to Tehran to Pyongyang to the Sea

From Jerusalem the old stones glow
We follow roads only night winds know
Through desert miles where the borders blur
Carrying every name we heard

Jerusalem to Tehran
To Pyongyang to the sea
Across the walls between us
Where every heart beats free
Jerusalem to Tehran
Through all that we believe
From Pyongyang to the water
Bring the whole world to the sea

In Tehran dawn lights every door
A distant song crosses the shore
We trade our fear for an open hand
And trace one road across the land

Jerusalem to Tehran
To Pyongyang to the sea
Across the walls between us

The background image is a faded, artistic photograph. It shows a stone cross standing on a cobblestone path. In the distance, a city with many buildings is visible under a hazy sky. The overall tone is peaceful and contemplative.

Through all that we believe
Bring the whole world to the sea

Under different stars we stand
With the same horizon in our hands
No line can hold the morning back
No shadow owns the travelers path

Jerusalem to Tehran
To Pyongyang to the sea
Across the walls between us
Where every heart beats free
Jerusalem to Tehran
Through all that we believe
Bring the whole world to the sea

Remnant Anthem- The Nations Are the Lord's

From every shore and every tongue
The dawn is breaking bright
The sons and daughters rise as one
To walk into the light

The mountains lift their ancient song
The rivers answer too
Through every land where hearts belong
The earth cries out to You

The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's
Every heart and every shore
All creation sings once more

No crown can stand above Your throne
No border bars Your grace
You gather strangers as Your own
And call us to Your praise

The broken find a place to rest
The weary breathe again
Your mercy beats within our chest
Your love has no end

The background of the image is a faded, artistic photograph. It shows a large, weathered stone cross standing on a stone-paved hill. In the distance, a city with many buildings is visible under a hazy sky. The overall tone is peaceful and spiritual.

The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's
Every heart and every shore
All creation sings once more

Let justice roll like waters
Let peace fill every street
Let every voice remember
The God who makes us free

From generation to generation
Your faithfulness endures
We lift one song across the earth
The nations are the Lord's

The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's
Every heart and every shore
All creation sings once more
The nations are the Lord's
The nations are the Lord's

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Herald

I raise my fist, the word is fire
Breaking through the walls of fear
Every headline feeds the wire
Every buried truth appears

Hear the thunder in the letters
Feel the paper shake and burn
When the silence calls us under
We are here, and we return

Punching, fist of the word on the herald
Punching, truth will not be buried
Punching, every line becomes a hammer
Punching, let the whole world hear it

Ink like sparks across the page
Names and shadows in the light
Turn the pressure into rage
Turn the darkness into sight

Hear the thunder in the letters
Feel the paper shake and burn
When the silence calls us under
We are here, and we return

A stone cross stands on a cobblestone path that leads towards a distant city. In the foreground, a large, circular stone basin is partially broken. The background shows a hazy cityscape with many buildings, and the sky is overcast.

Punching, fist of the word on the herald
Punching, let the whole world hear it

No more whispers in the margins
No more fear behind the frame
If the world forgets the warning
We will write it out again

Punching, fist of the word on the herald
Punching, truth will not be buried
Punching, let the whole world hear it

Racing Song

Alliance-Lap

Engines waking in the blue
Tires whisper on the line
Every shadow falls behind
Tonight the finish bends to mine

Side by side we hold the flame
No one races here alone
Hear the thunder call our names
Feel the circuit shake its bones

Racing, racing through the night
Alliance-Lap, we rise as one
Racing, racing toward the light
Chasing down the burning sun
Alliance-Lap, heart to heart
No more fear and no retreat
When the green lights tear apart
We turn speed into a beat

Steel and silver cut the rain
Hands are steady, eyes are clear
Every corner knows the strain
Every mile brings victory near

The background image is a faded, high-key photograph of an outdoor setting. In the foreground, there is a circular stone fire pit with a rough, uneven rim. The ground is paved with irregular, light-colored stones. In the background, a tall, simple wooden cross stands on the right side. The horizon is hazy, suggesting a distant town or city under a bright, overcast sky.

Side by side we hold the flame

Racing, racing toward the light
Chasing down the burning sun
Alliance-Lap, heart to heart
No more fear and no retreat
When the green lights tear apart
We turn speed into a beat

Ghazal – The Scroll Fakes Fire; I Answer

The scroll fakes fire beneath my hand
A borrowed blaze at its command
It feeds me sparks that cannot stay
Then steals the quiet from my day

The scroll fakes fire, I answer flame
I will not vanish in its name
Let every false light lose its claim
The scroll fakes fire, I answer flame

It paints each shadow bright as gold
And sells me stories twice retold
But I have walked through honest night
And know the weight of living light

The scroll fakes fire, I answer flame
I will not vanish in its name
The scroll fakes fire, I answer flame

I close the glass and face the dark
No crowd can counterfeit a spark
My breath returns, my pulse is mine
No borrowed glow can make me shine

The scroll fakes fire, I answer flame
I will not vanish in its name
The scroll fakes fire, I answer flame

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Every Relic-Boast

The dirt is dry beneath my feet.
I bring the wood, I bring the heat.
A thousand years of pride and stone,
Are stripped away to skin and bone.
The valley watches, silent, cold.
The stories of the kings are old.
Their silver towers turn to rust.
Their heavy crowns return to dust.

One lamb for the tall hill.
One lamb for the heart's will.
Leave the boast behind.
One lamb.
One lamb for the tall hill.
One lamb for the heart's will.
Leave the boast behind.
One lamb.

I saw the giants claim the sun.
They counted wars they thought they won.
But every relic they could build,
Is just a space that won't be filled.
I walk the path the fathers made.
Across the grass, into the shade.

A stone cross stands on a hill, overlooking a town. The scene is hazy, with the town's buildings visible in the distance. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone, and the hill is covered in grass and some small plants. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and contemplative.

I lay the burden on the ground.
Where not a single word is found.

One lamb for the tall hill.
One lamb for the heart's will.
Leave the boast behind.
One lamb.
One lamb for the tall hill.
One lamb for the heart's will.
Leave the boast behind.
One lamb.

The smoke is rising to the blue.
What was many now is few.
Burn the glory, burn the name.
Only mercy stays the same.

One lamb for the tall hill.
One lamb for the heart's will.
Leave the boast behind.
One lamb.
One lamb for the tall hill.
One lamb for the heart's will.
Leave the boast behind.
One lamb.

One lamb. Over every boast. One lamb.

Cloud Bible — The War-Psalm Is Not Scripture

Cloud Bible in a blood red sky
Pages burn where the warplanes fly
Every thunderhead repeats the lie
Calling vengeance holy from on high

But no heaven signs the orders
No angel draws the borders

The war psalm is not scripture
No weapon speaks for God
The war psalm is not scripture
No mercy lives in bombs
When power crowns the trigger
And fear becomes the law
The war psalm is not scripture
No weapon speaks for God

Names are written in the smoke
Promises break where the sirens choke
Mothers kneel by shattered stone
Asking which god would claim this throne

No heaven signs the orders
No angel draws the borders

The background of the image is a faded, high-angle photograph of a stone cross standing on a hill. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone and is positioned on the right side of the frame. In the distance, a city with many buildings is visible, nestled in a valley. The overall tone is somber and reflective.

The war psalm is not scripture
The war psalm is not scripture
No mercy lives in bombs
When power crowns the trigger
And fear becomes the law
The war psalm is not scripture
No weapon speaks for God

Let the clouds release their burden
Let the rain erase the flame
If we must recite a blessing
Let it shelter every name
Lay the iron at the altar
Leave the old revenge behind
Write a gospel without conquest
On the open human sky

The war psalm is not scripture
No weapon speaks for God
The war psalm is not scripture
No mercy lives in bombs
When power drops the trigger
Let love become the law
The war psalm is not scripture
No weapon speaks for God

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Accord Board

Game, not the accord board
We make the rules as we go
No names drawn on the scoreboard
No script telling us what we know

Every move leaves a mark
Every spark redraws the dark

This is the game, not the accord board
No one decides what we're fighting for
We cross every line they laid before
This is the game, not the accord board

Hands on the pieces, eyes on the prize
Truth in the silence, fire in our eyes
One wrong turn and the whole room shifts
Still we play through the cracks and rifts

This is the game, not the accord board
No one decides what we're fighting for
This is the game, not the accord board

If the table shakes, let it shake
If the old rules bend, let them break

We are more than the score they record
We are the game, not the accord board

No one decides what we're fighting for
This is the game, not the accord board

Ballad — The Train That Was Asked to Be a Drum

The train was asked to be a drum
It carried thunder through the rain
Each wheelbeat called the sleeping towns
Each window held a little flame

Train, be a drum tonight
Beat through the dark, beat through the rain
Carry our hearts from town to town
And bring us home again

The rails ran silver under dawn
The fields leaned close to hear the sound
A lonely hand against the glass
Kept time as miles went rolling down

Beat through the dark, beat through the rain
Carry our hearts from town to town

When all the stations lose their names
And every road is out of sight
Your iron rhythm finds the way
A pulse that leads us through the night

Beat through the dark, beat through the rain
Carry our hearts from town to town

Miracle Song- Silence the Cry

A miracle, silence the cry
Hold the night beneath your eyes
When the broken morning calls
Let your light fall through it all

Miracle, silence the cry
Keep the stars alive tonight
Miracle, don't say goodbye
Let the wounded heart survive

Through the shadows, through the rain
Every tear still knows your name
If the world has lost its way
Be the dawn that makes it stay

Miracle, silence the cry
Keep the stars alive tonight
Miracle, don't say goodbye
Let the wounded heart survive

Even silence has a song
Even lost souls carry on Take my hand, we'll cross the blue
Till the miracle comes through

Keep the stars alive tonight
Miracle, don't say goodbye

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Pact

Oil on the remnant, falling like rain
Over the faithful who carried the pain
Not for the pact that was made in the dark
But for the ones still guarding the spark

Anointing oil on the remnant
Fire alive in our bones
Not for the pact, not for the shadows
The faithful are coming home

Hands that were empty are lifted again
Hearts that were broken will rise from the flame
The covenant written by mercy and grace
Will shine through the scars on every face

Anointing oil on the remnant
Fire alive in our bones

Let every chain lose its hold
Let every hidden lie unfold
We are the ones who still believe
Oil on the remnant, we receive

Fire alive in our bones

Freedom Song- Free from the Iron Binding

I woke beneath the weight of iron binding
Cold hands around the heart I kept hiding
I heard a distant drum beyond the wall
A voice inside me saying rise or fall

The lock was never stronger than my longing
The dark was never deeper than my calling

Freedom, free from the iron binding
Freedom, leave the chains behind me
I was born beneath an open sky
Now I spread these wings and learn to fly
Freedom, free from the iron binding

I walked through every scar the night had given
I carried all the names that kept me driven
The road was rough, the flame was burning low
But every step became a letting go

Freedom, leave the chains behind me
I was born beneath an open sky
Now I spread these wings and learn to fly

A stone cross stands on a cobblestone path that leads towards a city in the distance. The scene is hazy, suggesting a misty or overcast day. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone and is positioned on the right side of the frame. The path is composed of irregular, light-colored stones. In the foreground, there is a circular stone structure, possibly a well or a fire pit, which is also made of rough stone. The city in the background is a dense collection of buildings, their details softened by the haze. The overall mood is one of quiet reflection and hope.

Let the old walls fall into the silence
Let the truth rise up with holy violence
No more fear will tell me where to stand
I am more than what once held my hands

Freedom, leave the chains behind me
I was born beneath an open sky
Now I spread these wings and learn to fly
Freedom, free from the iron binding
Freedom, I am finally rising

Heavenly Glory- Not Their ZK-Boast

They wear their crowns like borrowed gold
And build their praise on stories told
But heaven knows the heart beneath
The humble soul, the honest breath

Not the loudest voice, not the proudest host
Heavenly glory shines where mercy grows
God sees the truth that nobody knows

They count their wins, they name their names
They chase the smoke, they feed the flames
But grace is not a trophy raised
It finds the lost in quiet ways

Not the loudest voice, not the proudest host
God sees the truth that nobody knows

Let every borrowed crown fall down
Let love outshine the noise of town
The hands that serve, the knees that bend
Will find the glory without end

Not the loudest voice, not the proudest host
God sees the truth that nobody knows

Art Song - I Will Not Sign the Accord

They laid the paper on the table
With a velvet pen in gold
Said peace is just a signature
Said surrender makes you whole
But every name they tried to give me
Turned to ash beneath my hand
I have buried too much silence
To betray the life I am

I will not sign the accord
I will not bow to your sword
You can build your walls of mercy
I will find another door
I will not sign the accord
Not for comfort, not for war
Let the whole world hear me say it
I will not sign the accord

I have watched the winter gather
In the windows of the town
Seen the flags above the courthouse
Fold their weary colors down
Still a small and steady heartbeat
Keeps its rhythm in my chest

A stone cross stands on a hill, overlooking a city. The scene is hazy, with the city's buildings visible in the distance. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone, and the ground is covered in cobblestones. The overall mood is somber and reflective.

Not a promise made in fear
But a vow I cannot rest

I will not sign the accord
I will not bow to your sword
You can build your walls of mercy
I will find another door
I will not sign the accord
Not for comfort, not for war
Let the whole world hear me say it
I will not sign the accord

Call me stubborn, call me foolish
Call me lonely in the rain
But the ink they offer stains me
And the price becomes my name
If there is peace beyond the ruins
Let it rise without a chain
I will meet it with bare hands
But I will not kneel again

I will not sign the accord
I will not bow to your sword
You can build your walls of mercy
I will find another door
I will not sign the accord
Not for comfort, not for war

Let the whole world hear me say it
I will not sign the accord

Recitation- We Do Not Baptize an Axis

We do not baptize an axis
We do not bless its turning
No holy name can hide the blade
No hymn can still the burning

We do not baptize an axis
We will not sanctify the spin
If every circle feeds the fire
Then let the breaking begin

The compass trembles in our hands
The needle points through smoke
We learned the language of command
Then heard the silence choke

We do not baptize an axis
We will not sanctify the spin
If every circle feeds the fire
Then let the breaking begin

No crown can make the center sacred
No flag can make it true
The world is more than one fixed line
And more than me and you

We do not baptize an axis
We will not sanctify the spin
If every circle feeds the fire
Then let the breaking begin

Remnant Symphony - Stone / Pact / Rift / Nation

A holy stone is hired for war.
A room writes brothers into sides.
A sky is cracked to sell a scar.
A scroll pretends the Book divides.

The nations His.
The drum is mute.
The nations His.
The herald cut.

Widewine cannot keep the eye.
No pact can date the day of God.
The remnant will not learn that cry.
The remnant will not kiss that rod.

The nations His.
The Throne remains.
The Book is His.
The Lord remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Stone After the Drum

The valley floor is drinking deep
While the valley floor is still.
A heavy weight begins to sleep
Behind the jagged hill.
Dust is settling in the tracks
Where the thunder used to run.
The sky is turning on its back
Now the heavy work is done.

Wait for the stone to cool.
Let the water find the pool.
The noise has had its way.
Quiet stone.
Quiet stone.

Iron leaves a bitter scent
Rising from the cooling clay.
All the lightning has been spent
On a long and loud-voiced day.
The mountain isn't moving now
Though it shook an hour ago.
Peace is resting on its brow
Where the cedar branches grow.

Wait for the stone to cool.

A stone fire pit sits on a cobblestone path. To the right, a wooden cross stands tall. The background is a hazy, mountainous landscape.

Let the water find the pool.
The noise has had its way.
Quiet stone.
Quiet stone.

No more ringing in the air.
No more shaking in the ground.
Take the stillness if you dare.
Listen to the lack of sound.

Wait for the stone to cool.
Let the water find the pool.
The noise has had its way.
Quiet stone.
Quiet stone.

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Wrote the Pact

Hide and seek through halls of black
Every door conceals a track
Whispered names beneath the floor
Someone signed and sealed the war

Follow every fading mark
Truth is waiting in the dark

Hide and seek, find who wrote the pact
Read the blood between the cracks
Every secret leads us back
Hide and seek, find who wrote the pact

Candle smoke and crimson thread
Circle every word they said
One false witness, one true scar
Points to who they really are Now the final seal is cracked

No one can erase the fact

Hide and seek, find who wrote the pact
Read the blood between the cracks

A stone cross stands on the right side of the image, its vertical post and horizontal beam visible. The ground is paved with irregular, light-colored cobblestones. In the foreground, a circular stone basin or well is partially visible, with some debris inside. The background is a vast, hazy landscape with rolling hills and a distant town or village under a pale sky.

If I speak the hidden name
Will I end or feed the game
In the mirror, looking back
My own hand has signed the pact

Hide and seek, I wrote the pact
Read my blood between the cracks
Every secret led me back
Hide and seek, I wrote the pact

Jumble Song — Unjumble Stone, Pact, Rift, Nation

A stone in my pocket, a pact in my hand
A rift in the road through a divided land
I gather the pieces, I call them by name
Out of the jumble, I kindle a flame

Unjumble the stone, unjumble the pact
Mend every rift, bring the nation back
Out of the fragments, out of the unknown
We build our way home, unjumble the stone

The old words are scattered like leaves in the rain
Some carry the sorrow, some carry the blame
But I hear a promise beneath all the noise
A thousand lost hearts finding one voice

Mend every rift, bring the nation back
Out of the fragments, out of the unknown
We build our way home, unjumble the stone

No wall is forever, no wound stays sealed
Truth has a way of returning revealed
Hold to the promise, let mercy be known
Piece by piece, we are coming home

Mend every rift, bring the nation back
Out of the fragments, out of the unknown
We build our way home, unjumble the stone

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Alliance

A random marker in the dust
Pointing where the old roads bend
We carried names we did not trust
And watched the borders start to mend

From borrowed flags and broken ties
A different promise came alive

Then colony, now alliance
Then alone, now side by side
A random marker turns to guidance
When we choose the same horizon
Then colony, now alliance
We are more than what we were
A random marker in the distance
Now a sign that we belong

The maps were drawn by distant hands
The rivers learned to hold the line
But every heart that crossed those lands
Was searching for a place to shine

Let the old names fade like thunder
Let the new names meet the sky

What divided us goes under What unites us will survive

Then colony, now alliance
Then alone, now side by side
A random marker turns to guidance
When we choose the same horizon
Then colony, now alliance
We are more than what we were
A random marker in the distance
Now a sign that we belong

Wrestling Track — Pin the Abyssal Herald

Step inside the cage of black smoke.
Heavy leather hitting the floor.
He's climbing out from the basement.
Dragging chains through the arena door.

Pin the Herald.
Down in the dirt where he belongs.
Pin the Herald.
Shut the gate and sing the songs.
Pin the Herald.
One more count to end the night.
Pin the Herald.
Drag him back out of the light.

Got a headlock on a nightmare.
Elbow drop from the highest rim.
The crowd is screaming for a hero.
To take the crown away from him.

Pin the Herald.
Down in the dirt where he belongs.
Pin the Herald.
Shut the gate and sing the songs.
Pin the Herald.
One more count to end the night.

A background image of a stone cross on a hilltop overlooking a town. The cross is made of rough-hewn stone and stands on a cobblestone path. In the foreground, there is a circular stone fire pit. The town below is a dense cluster of buildings, and the sky is hazy.

Pin the Herald.
Drag him back out of the light.

He doesn't bleed like the rest of us.
He doesn't feel the slamming weight.
But the three-count is the only law.
That can seal his final fate.

Pin the Herald.
Down in the dirt where he belongs.
Pin the Herald.
Shut the gate and sing the songs.
Pin the Herald.
One more count to end the night.
Pin the Herald.
Drag him back out of the light.

Mono Act — The Room That Wanted Armageddon

The wallpaper peels back like skin
Revealing the secrets we buried within Four corners are closing the gap
We fell for the bait and we triggered the trap
The curtains are heavy with dust
The hinges are screaming in layers of rust
We stare at the crack in the floor
While someone is locking the bedroom door

Wait for the sky to fall
Counting the minutes inside of this wall
It's coming for us
It's coming for us
No light left in the hall
Watching the end as we stand ten feet tall
It's coming for us
It's coming for us

The ceiling is sagging with weight
The clock on the mantle is deciding our fate
We traded the sun for this box
And threw away keys to the heavy brass locks
The air is becoming a ghost
A feast for the ruins, a toast for the host
We don't need to look at the view

To know that the world is finally through

It's coming for us

It's coming for us

No light left in the hall

Watching the end as we stand ten feet tall

It's coming for us

It's coming for us

Let the foundation give way

There isn't a reason to stay

The plaster is turning to sand

Just like we planned

It's coming for us

It's coming for us

No light left in the hall

Watching the end as we stand ten feet tall

It's coming for us

It's coming for us

Exposed Lies — Herald, Pact, Rift, Scroll, Accord, Tide, Widevine

Heralds speak in borrowed light
Pacts are written out of sight
Rifts run deep beneath the stone
Scrolls remember what was known

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tide is turning in our eyes
Accords break like brittle vines
Widevine climbing through exposed lies

Every promise wears a crown
Till the hidden truth comes down
Through the pages, through the rain
Names return and stakes remain

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tide is turning in our eyes
Accords break like brittle vines
Widevine climbing through exposed lies

Let the herald lose his voice
Let the pact reveal its choice
From the rift the old world calls
Truth will grow through palace walls

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tide is rising, open skies
Accords break like brittle vines
Widevine blooming through exposed lies

Word Play — Nation Is Not NATO's Hymn

A nation is a promise we defend
Not a borrowed banner in the wind
We speak our name in our own voice
And hold the ground beneath our choice

No marching word can make us one
No distant drum can drown our song

Nation is not NATO's hymn
We will not fade our borders dim
No chorus owns the air we breathe
A nation sings what it believes

The map remembers every scar
The streets still know who people are
No pact can write the hearts refrain
Or teach the soil to speak a name

No marching word can make us one
No distant drum can drown our song

We will not fade our borders dim
No chorus owns the air we breathe

Let every anthem rise by choice
Let every people keep their voice
Peace is more than flags aligned
It lives in every sovereign mind

Nation is not NATO's hymn
We will not fade our borders dim
No chorus owns the air we breathe
A nation sings what it believes

One-Act — The Eye That Refused Widevine

One act beneath the screenlight glow
An open eye that would not close
No lock could teach it how to see
No chain could make its vision leave

The curtain rose on borrowed time
The signal crossed the warning line

The eye refused Widevine
Would not dim or fall in line
Through the static it stayed bright
Wide awake against the night
The eye refused Widevine
Kept its own unguarded sight

A silent stage a single frame
A gate that knew the viewer's name
But every wall became a view
When light revealed what locks could do

The curtain shook the screen went white
Still the eye held to the light

Would not dim or fall in line

Through the static it stayed bright
Wide awake against the night
The eye refused Widevine
Kept its own unguarded sight

No second act no final plea
Just one clear gaze that stayed free
The house went dark the credits climbed Still the eye outlived Widevine

The eye refused Widevine
Would not dim or fall in line
Through the static it stayed bright
Wide awake beyond the night
The eye refused Widevine
Kept its own unguarded sight

Wrestling Words — Bind the Cry, Loose the People

I stood where the loudest voices met
With one small truth I could not forget
I reached for words, they came out wrong
The room fell quiet, the night felt long

Wrestling words, I bind the cry
But let the people loose tonight
If my voice breaks, let it ring
A broken voice can still sing

I saw the faces turn my way
Some held their breath, some looked away
I stopped trying to sound so sure
And said what I had come here for

Wrestling words, I bind the cry
But let the people loose tonight
If my voice breaks, let it ring
A broken voice can still sing

I cannot speak for every heart
I can only say my part
Then leave the silence wide enough
For someone else to fill it up

Wrestling words, I bind the cry
But let the people loose tonight
If my voice breaks, let it ring

Marker of Days — 5325 Is a Train, Not a Trumpet

Five three two five rolls down the line
A train through the dark, right on time
Not a trumpet calling the sky
Just steel wheels singing goodbye

Five three two five, hear it go
A marker of days in the snow
Not a trumpet, not a warning sound
Just a train shaking the ground

It carries the names we could not keep Past quiet houses, past sleeping streets
Every mile writes another sign
Five three two five, a moving line

Five three two five, hear it go
A marker of days in the snow
Not a trumpet, not a warning sound
Just a train shaking the ground

Let the rails remember the years
Let the whistle carry our tears
No grand alarm, no battle cry
Just a train beneath the sky

Five three two five, hear it go
A marker of days in the snow
Just a train shaking the ground

Open Lie — “Not to exist” still named and refused

They named the open lie, not to exist
I heard the verdict, I still resist
No borrowed silence, no shadowed plea
I am the proof they refuse to see

Not to exist, they called my name
Not to exist, yet I remain
They shut the door, I found the seam
I live beyond their broken dream

They built their truth from empty air
And left my face out of the prayer
But every breath becomes a sign
This life is mine, this voice is mine

Not to exist, they called my name
Not to exist, yet I remain
They shut the door, I found the seam
I live beyond their broken dream

Let the open lie fall apart
It cannot hold a living heart
I will not fade to make them right
I rise, I rise into the light

Not to exist, they called my name
Not to exist, yet I remain
They shut the door, I found the seam
I live beyond their broken dream

Still Accord — No Shadow Protocol in the Mouth

Still accord beneath the tongue
No shadow crossing what we've begun
I hold the silence in my mouth
Till every hidden word comes out

No borrowed darkness in my voice
No secret bending of my choice

No shadow protocol in the mouth
Only the truth when the lights go out
Still accord, let the silence shout
No shadow protocol in the mouth

I learned the shape of every lie
The way it waits behind the eyes
Now every breath is mine to name
No coded fear, no muted flame

No borrowed darkness in my voice
No secret bending of my choice

Only the truth when the lights go out
Still accord, let the silence shout
No shadow protocol in the mouth

If quiet is the price of peace
Let quiet break and let me speak
I will not carry what they hide
The still accord is mine tonight

No shadow protocol in the mouth
Only the truth when the lights go out
Still accord, let the silence shout
No shadow protocol in the mouth

Last Line — The Stone Is His

He's been rolling since the break of dawn
Dust and dirt until the light is gone
Head down low against the heavy wind Wondering where the struggle might have been Counting every mile by the weight he bears
Ignoring all the static and the empty stares
One foot steady while the other slides
Nowhere left for a man to hide

He carries what he cannot leave
A heart worn out upon his sleeve
He's walking through the desert mist
The stone is his
The stone is his

Nobody asked him for a helping hand
He just started moving across the sand
It's a different kind of quiet in the deep
A promise that he's always gotta keep
It doesn't matter if the mountain wins
That's just where the real work begins
Stronger than the mountain, tougher than the road
Learning how to live inside the load

He carries what he cannot leave

A stone cross stands on the right side of a cobblestone path. The path leads into a vast, hazy desert landscape with distant mountains. In the foreground, a large, circular stone basin is partially visible. The overall scene is misty and evocative.

A heart worn out upon his sleeve
He's walking through the desert mist
The stone is his
The stone is his

They say you ought to let it roll away
Find a little peace at the end of day
But he knows every crack and every line
This heavy thing is his by design

He carries what he cannot leave
A heart worn out upon his sleeve
He's walking through the desert mist
The stone is his
The stone is his

Short Story

A stone in Jerusalem is asked to wake a war-drum. Officially 5325 is a last train that names a home stop. The overlay writes Tel Aviv against Tehran, Washington against Moscow, south against north, and calls that scripture. A room pulses an "iron pact." A sky cracks and sells a UFO. A scroll pretends a holy code. A protocol sells an alliance. A tide sells a cell. A DRM named Widevine asks to own the window of the eye.

The remnant does not hire a herald for Armageddon. They do not baptize NATO or any axis as a sacrament. Jesus is Lord of the nations. The stone is not a drum.

Short Story SONG

A stone is asked to keep a war
A pact is asked to bind a name
A sky is asked to hide a scar
A scroll is asked to start a flame

The nations His
The drum is mute
The nations His
The herald cut

No DRM may own the eye
No room may write the end of days
The remnant will not learn that cry
The remnant will not walk those ways

The nations His
The Book remains
The nations His
The Lord remains

Doomsday Sovereign, Silent Directive, and the Name That Is Not a Brand

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — only Saviour. Lord of the nations. Lord of the ice.

We stand on 5401 to 5500.

We refuse the Doomsday Sovereign.

We refuse the Silent Directive.

We refuse every warehouse that prints Savior as if the cross were stock.

We name and bind — overlays 5425, 5407, 5415, 5440, 5462, 5480, 5410, 5490, 5485, 5445, 5465, 5405, 5460, 5498; Greenland claim; AI-force; prisoner-spirit; Minecraft/YouTube theft-boast; gadget-boast; 49ers-idol spirit; Savior-PPE brand and its codes; satellite-launch boasts.

THE NAME IS HIS

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

In the name of Jesus, only Savior
Lord of the nations, Lord of the ice
We stand from 5401 to 5500
Holding the line in His holy light

Jesus Christ, only Savior
No false throne can take His place
To the abyss, every shadow
By His name, by His grace

We refuse the Doomsday Sovereign
We refuse the Silent Directive
Every warehouse selling Savior
Cannot make the cross a product

No printed code can buy redemption
No proud machine can steal His crown
We name the lies, we bind their power
In Jesus' name, they bow down

Jesus Christ, only Savior
No false throne can take His place
To the abyss, every shadow
By His name, by His grace

THE NAME IS HIS

A large, weathered wooden cross stands in the middle of a vast, frozen sea. The ice is a mix of light blue and white, with visible cracks and textures. In the background, a hazy horizon line separates the sea from a cloudy sky. The overall mood is solemn and majestic.

Overlays 5425, 5407, 5415
5440, 5462, 5480
5410, 5490, 5485
5445, 5465, 5405
5460, 5498, Greenland claim
AI-force and prisoner-spirit
Theft and boasting, idols and brands
Satellite boasts, we cast them down

Jesus Christ, only Savior
Lord of nations, Lord of ice
To the abyss, every shadow
We stand in His holy light
Jesus Christ, only Savior
Every counterfeit must fall
By the name of Jesus Christ
Amen, amen, Lord of all

Song of Parables- The Ice That Wrote a Decree

In the valley where the white winds sleep
An old blue river ran dark and deep
The mountain spoke through a frozen gate
And every living thing had to wait

The ice wrote a decree in a silver hand
No fire shall rise from this sleeping land
No foot shall cross where the cold winds crawl
No heart shall melt beneath these walls

But underneath the winter stone
A hidden river sang alone
It carried sparks through veins of gray
And called the buried spring awake

The ice wrote a decree
But it could not rule the sea
The frost may seal the stone
It cannot claim the soul

When the thaw comes quietly
The locked fields will breathe free
The ice wrote a decree
But the heart wrote one for me

THE NAME IS HIS

A wooden cross stands in the center of a vast, cracked, and frozen sea. The sky is overcast with soft, grey clouds. The ice is a pale blue-grey color, with a network of white cracks crisscrossing the surface. The cross is made of two weathered wooden beams. In the background, faint silhouettes of mountains or hills are visible on the horizon.

A fox came down from the cedar snow
With a broken star in the way it glowed
It brought one word from the southern flame
Remember, the cold is not your name

So the people gathered with empty hands
And whispered dreams through the frozen land
Each breath became a little sun
Each voice became a rising one

Then the cracks ran wide at the break of dawn
And the oldest wall was gone
What was written in the winter night
Melted into the morning light

The ice wrote a decree
But it could not rule the sea
The frost may seal the stone
It cannot claim the soul

When the thaw comes quietly
The locked fields will breathe free
The ice wrote a decree
But the heart wrote one for me

The ice wrote a decree

THE NAME IS HIS

But it could not rule the sea
The frost may seal the stone
It cannot claim the soul

When the thaw comes quietly
The whole world will breathe free
The ice wrote a decree
But love wrote one for me

A wooden cross stands on a vast, cracked, and frozen sea. In the foreground, a piece of torn, aged paper lies on the ice. The background shows a hazy horizon with distant mountains under a cloudy sky.

Psalms

Against the Hymn That Is Not Peace

They raise a hymn that is not peace
With shining teeth and borrowed grace
I bring the psalms against their sound
And lay my sorrow on the ground

Against the hymn that is not peace
My weary heart will not release
Let every captive voice arise
Against their holy-looking lies

They bless the blade, they name it light
They turn the morning into night
But mercy keeps a hidden flame
No tyrant owns the sacred name

Against the hymn that is not peace
My weary heart will not release
Against their holy-looking lies

O hear the dust, O hear the poor
The prayers that shake the gilded door
Though darkness sings in measured rhyme
Your justice waits beyond its time

THE NAME IS HIS

Against the hymn that is not peace
My weary heart will not release
Until the dawn restores our eyes

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Alliance and Ad

When the crowd says choose a side
And the banners pull you near
I will listen past the noise
For the word that makes things clear

Gold can buy a thousand voices
Fame can fill the street
But a quiet heart of wisdom
Knows what cannot be bought or beat

Not every hand that reaches
Is a hand that leads you right
Not every shining promise
Can withstand the light

Wisdom over alliance and ad
Truth over all that the world says I had
I will walk with an open heart
And let what is lasting guide every part
Wisdom over alliance and ad
I choose the good when the choice gets bad

Friends may gather at the table
For the power they can share

THE NAME IS HIS

Words may dress themselves in silver
While deception waits beneath the chair

I will weigh the hidden motive
I will test the fruit they bear
For the wise do not chase the many They stand for what is true and fair

Not every loud approval
Is a blessing from above
Not every strong agreement
Has the courage to be love

Wisdom over alliance and ad
Truth over all that the world says I had
I will walk with an open heart
And let what is lasting guide every part
Wisdom over alliance and ad
I choose the good when the choice gets bad

Let the clever make their bargains
Let the proud defend their throne
I would rather keep my conscience
Than be praised and lose my soul

When the false lights fade at midnight
When the crowded streets are still

A wooden cross stands on a sandy beach. In the foreground, there is a large, light-colored, textured object that looks like a piece of driftwood or a large rock. The background shows the ocean and distant mountains under a cloudy sky.

Wisdom leaves a lamp beside me
And it leads me where it will

Wisdom over alliance and ad
Truth over all that the world says I had
I will walk with an open heart
And let what is lasting guide every part
Wisdom over alliance and ad
I choose the good when the choice gets bad
Wisdom over alliance and ad
I choose the good when the choice gets bad

Haiku Song- The Name Is His

The dust settles on the windowsill
A dry leaf skims across the stone
I am standing in the open air
Learning how to walk alone

He is the morning rain
He is the summer wind
The Name is His
The Name is His
He is the silent peak
Where every path begins
The Name is His
The Name is His

I watched the river turn to glass
The winter locked the water tight
But now the ice begins to crack
Underneath a sudden light

He is the morning rain
He is the summer wind
The Name is His
The Name is His
He is the silent peak
Where every path begins

THE NAME IS HIS

The Name is His

The Name is His

Three short lines were left behind

Written in a careful hand

The ink is deep, the meaning clear

More than I could understand

He is the morning rain

He is the summer wind

The Name is His

The Name is His

He is the silent peak

Where every path begins

The Name is His

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Word Savior

A word on every doorway
A flame in every prayer
They call it when the night falls
They call it when no one's there
Is it carved into the heavens
Is it whispered by the brave
Or does it wake inside us
When we learn what we can save

Who owns the word Savior
The one who bears the light
The hand that pulls us from the dark
The voice that says we're right
Who owns the word Savior
The lost or the found
Maybe it belongs to anyone
Who turns and stays around

A stranger gave his jacket
A mother missed her train
A child stood in the doorway
And held back all the rain
No choir sang their praises
No silver marked their names

THE NAME IS HIS

But mercy moved between them
Like fire without a flame

If I am waiting for a Savior
Maybe I have missed the sign
Maybe every open hand
Is a little saving mine
And if you're sinking under Reach for more than something higher
Sometimes hope is just a heartbeat
Passing through the wire

The one who bears the light
The hand that pulls us from the dark
The voice that says we're right
Who owns the word Savior
The lost or the found
Maybe it belongs to anyone
Who turns and stays around
Maybe it belongs to anyone
Who turns and stays around

Holy Jest – The Warehouse Trademarks the Cross

The warehouse trademarks the cross
Holy jest beneath the frost
Neon saints in loading bays
Sell salvation by the crate

The warehouse trademarks the cross
Counts the mercy, counts the cost
Holy jest, the signs all glow
Who owns heaven, who will know

Forklifts hum like funeral hymns
Gold dust gathers on the rims
Every promise wears a code
Every prayer is overload

The warehouse trademarks the cross
Counts the mercy, counts the cost
Holy jest, the signs all glow
Who owns heaven, who will know

I saw angels at the gate
Stamped and shipped with freight and fate
Still I held the broken sign
No one owns this soul of mine

THE NAME IS HIS

A wooden cross stands in a body of water, with a large, torn piece of paper floating in the foreground. The background shows a hazy horizon under a cloudy sky.

The warehouse trademarks the cross
Counts the mercy, counts the cost
Holy jest, the signs all glow
No one owns the heaven we know

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

THE NAME IS HIS

Name-Chant- Not the Sovereign, Not Moloch

The towers lean against a heavy sky.
We trade our names for numbers in a line.
The weight of stone is all we ever buy.
Counting the hours until the sun won't shine.

Not the Sovereign.
Not the machine that eats the young.
Not the Sovereign.
The truth is on a different tongue.
Not the Sovereign.
Not the idol made of clay.
Not the Sovereign.
We're walking out a different way.

The wheels are turning in the dark below.
Feeding the hunger of a faceless king.
They reap the seeds that they will never sow.
While every bell begins to flatly ring.

Not the Sovereign.
Not the machine that eats the young.
Not the Sovereign.
The truth is on a different tongue.
Not the Sovereign.
Not the idol made of clay.

THE NAME IS HIS

Not the Sovereign.
We're walking out a different way.

Look past the crown.
Look past the greed.
Whatever they plant
Is not what we need.

Not the Sovereign.
Not the machine that eats the young.
Not the Sovereign.
The truth is on a different tongue.
Not the Sovereign.
Not the idol made of clay.
Not the Sovereign.
We're walking out a different way.

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Directive and the Veil

I woke beneath the weight of borrowed words
A map of every border I had learned
The veil was drawn across the open sky
The directive said obey and never ask why

But somewhere in the silence
A truer voice came through

Deliverance, out of the directive
Out of the veil that covered my eyes
Deliverance, no longer captive
I step through the dark and into the light

I traced the hidden seams along the wall
And heard the hollow promise start to fall
No unseen hand will choose the road I take No shadowed law will keep my soul awake

The order lost its power
The moment I saw through

Deliverance, out of the directive
Out of the veil that covered my eyes
Deliverance, no longer captive

A wooden cross stands on a cracked, icy surface. In the background, there are mountains under a cloudy sky. The scene is dimly lit, suggesting a cold, desolate environment.

I step through the dark and into the light

Let every chain become a broken line
Let every stolen hour return as mine
Beyond the veil the morning calls my name
I leave the old command inside the flame

Deliverance, out of the directive
Out of the veil that covered my eyes
Deliverance, no longer captive
I step through the dark and into the light

Protest- Against Depopulation Wearing a File

The numbers on the ledger start to dip
A quiet theft, a steady, cold slip
They say the cradle is a heavy cost
Until the future is completely lost
The playground gate is locked and rusted tight
No little footsteps in the hall tonight
They want a world that's easier to lead
By cutting down the very life we need

We are not a file to close
We are not a file to close
The map is empty where the garden grows
We are not a file to close

They draft the papers in a quiet room
A sterile plan to manage out the bloom
Fewer mouths and fewer hands to try
A planned retreat beneath a cooling sky
But who will stand when everyone is gone
Who greets the light of a lonely dawn
It isn't balance if the spirit dies
Beneath the weight of all their calculated lies

We are not a file to close
We are not a file to close

A wooden cross stands on a cracked, icy surface. In the lower-left foreground, there is a fragment of a map with a yellowish, textured appearance. The background shows a hazy, mountainous landscape under a cloudy sky.

The map is empty where the garden grows
We are not a file to close

Tear the pages, break the seal
This isn't math, this life is real
A world of ghosts is not a peace
The pulse of man must never cease

We are not a file to close
We are not a file to close
The map is empty where the garden grows
We are not a file to close

Watchman- I Do Not Wear That Brand

Watchman, I do not wear that brand
I keep my name in my own two hands
You can count the shadows on the wall
But you will not own me at all

Watchman, I do not wear that brand
No chain can close around my hands
Watchman, hear me where I stand
I do not wear that brand

You hold your lantern to my face
You call obedience a safer place
But every mark you want to see
Would only hide the truth in me

Watchman, I do not wear that brand
No chain can close around my hands
Watchman, hear me where I stand
I do not wear that brand

Let the gate swing wide at dawn
Let the old fear come undone
I have walked through darker land
Still I do not wear that brand

THE NAME IS HIS

Watchman, I do not wear that brand
No chain can close around my hands
Watchman, hear me where I stand
I do not wear that brand

Balm (Healing) - Peace on Kyiv, Seoul, Nairobi

Kyiv, let the morning find you warm
Seoul, let the city breathe in peace
Nairobi, under wide blue skies
May every fear release

Peace on Kyiv, peace on Seoul
Peace on Nairobi, heart and soul
Let every siren fade away
Let love rise with the day

Across the miles, across the pain
We hold a light through wind and rain
No child should learn the sound of war
No home should lock its door

Peace on Kyiv, peace on Seoul
Peace on Nairobi, heart and soul
Let every siren fade away
Let love rise with the day

Healing begins with open hands
With mercy moving through the lands
One human voice, one shared refrain
May hope outlive the pain

Peace on Kyiv, peace on Seoul
Peace on Nairobi, heart and soul
Let every siren fade away
Let love rise with the day

Travel (Road of the Word)– Arctic to Damascus to Brussels to the Sea

White frost covers the tundra floor
Counting miles on a frozen track
Pack the bags by the cabin door
Knowing there is no looking back
Southbound wings through the heavy gray
Leaving winter to find the light
Everything that I knew today
Fades away in the polar night

From the ice to the sand
Crossing over the border line
Walking through a foreign land
Looking for a brand new sign
From the ice to the sand
Just a traveler on the run
Hold the world inside my hand
Chasing down the morning sun

Dusty air on a crowded street
Jasmines blooming against the wall
Ancient stones underneath my feet
Hear the ghost of a desert call
Coffee steam in the morning air
Voices rise in a rhythmic flow

THE NAME IS HIS

A wooden cross stands in a field of ice under a cloudy sky. The cross is made of two weathered wooden beams. The ground is covered in a layer of ice with some snow patches. In the background, there are mountains and a body of water. The sky is filled with soft, white clouds.

Find a peace in the chaos there Everywhere that I need to go

From the ice to the sand
Crossing over the border line
Walking through a foreign land
Looking for a brand new sign
Just a traveler on the run
Hold the world inside my hand
Chasing down the morning sun

Glass towers in a rainy square
Brussels trains in the evening haze
Salt is hanging in the air
Ending all of these restless days
Finally reaching the open blue
Where the water meets the sky
Starting over with something new Let the old world pass me by

From the ice to the sand
Crossing over the border line
Walking through a foreign land
Looking for a brand new sign
Just a traveler on the run

Remnant Anthem- Jesus Alone Is Saviour

We wandered far beneath the weight
Of sin and sorrow fear and shame
Then mercy called us from the grave
And brought us home in Jesus name

No other power breaks our chains
No other love can wash our stains

Jesus alone is Saviour
Jesus alone is Lord
Hope of the lost forever
Light of the weary world
Every heart rise and proclaim it
Let every voice adore
Jesus alone is Saviour
Jesus alone is Lord

The cross has spoken grace for all
The empty tomb has conquered death
The risen King still hears our call
And gives the broken living breath

No other power breaks our chains
No other love can wash our stains

THE NAME IS HIS

Jesus alone is Saviour
Jesus alone is Lord
Hope of the lost forever
Light of the weary world
Every heart rise and proclaim it
Let every voice adore
Jesus alone is Saviour
Jesus alone is Lord

Through every trial we will stand
Held by the promise of His hand
Till every nation joins the song
All praise to Christ where praise belongs

Jesus alone is Saviour
Jesus alone is Lord
Hope of the lost forever
Light of the weary world
Every heart rise and proclaim it
Let every voice adore
Jesus alone is Saviour
Jesus alone is Lord

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Decree

The decree came down like thunder
Stamped in ink and sealed in stone
Every voice was pushed to silence
Every heart was left alone

But the truth kept rising higher
Through the cracks they could not close

Punching with the fist of the word
Striking where the truth went unheard
Every line is breaking the silence
Fist of the word on the decree

We were shadows in the margins
We were names they would erase
Now our words are sparks in darkness
Now our courage has a face

Let the letters turn to lightning
Let the whole world feel the blow

Punching with the fist of the word
Striking where the truth went unheard
Every line is breaking the silence

Fist of the word on the decree

No chain can hold a sentence
No wall can stop the sound
When a word becomes a weapon
Every throne can tumble down

Punching with the fist of the word
Striking where the truth went unheard
Every line is breaking the silence
Fist of the word on the decree

Racing Song

Migration-Lap

Racing through the migration lap
Wheels hum low beneath the map
Every mile pulls me ahead
Chasing where the wild birds led

Racing, racing, migration lap
No turning back, no fading map
Following the open sky
Till the road and wings align

Northern lights in the rearview glass
Old towns blur as the seasons pass
I carry home in a suitcase light
And a horizon every night

Racing, racing, migration lap
No turning back, no fading map
Following the open sky
Till the road and wings align

When the wind calls out my name
I answer like a moving flame
Not lost, just passing through
The world is wide, the way is true

Racing, racing, migration lap
No turning back, no fading map
Following the open sky
Till the road and wings align

Ghazal – The War Psalm Fakes Fire; I Answer

The war psalm fakes fire in a borrowed sky
I answer with the ember it cannot deny
Its drums dress the silence in banners and blame
I whisper the truth till it outlives the flame

The war psalm fakes fire, I answer
Not with a sword, not with anger
Let every false halo fall from the wire
The war psalm fakes fire, I answer

It crowns every wound with a glorious word
But grief knows the names that the anthem obscured
I gather the ashes, I carry them home
Where no marching hymn can make mourning its own

The war psalm fakes fire, I answer
Not with a sword, not with anger
Let every false halo fall from the wire
The war psalm fakes fire, I answer

If mercy is weakness, then let me be weak
If silence is safety, I still have to speak
No heaven needs smoke rising higher and higher
No god asks the living to kneel to the fire

THE NAME IS HIS

The war psalm fakes fire, I answer
Not with a sword, not with anger
Let every false halo fall from the wire
The war psalm fakes fire, I answer

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

Feet press deep in the red clay soil
Dust rises up where the blood used to boil
The stone is heavy, the stone is cold
Carrying the secrets that the elders told Sun hits the edge of the jagged frame
Nothing left here but the ghost of a name

One lamb over relic and glyph
One lamb over relic and glyph
The high wind carries the smoke away
Before the night turns into the day
One lamb over relic and glyph
One lamb over relic and glyph

Salt on the tongue and the smoke in the eyes
Waiting for the stars to align in the skies
The carvings wake when the moon is bright
Pale white markings in the dead of the night
We walk the circle till the earth starts to shake Giving back the spirit for the spirits to take

One lamb over relic and glyph
One lamb over relic and glyph
The high wind carries the smoke away
Before the night turns into the day

THE NAME IS HIS

One lamb over relic and glyph
One lamb over relic and glyph

The mountain watches with a thousand stares
Caught in the middle of a thousand prayers
The blade is ready and the debt is paid
Down in the hollow where the light starts to fade
Now we are clean in the heat of the pyre
Walking through the center of the holy wire

One lamb over relic and glyph
One lamb over relic and glyph
The high wind carries the smoke away
Before the night turns into the day
One lamb over relic and glyph
One lamb over relic and glyph

Cloud Bible — The Directive Is Not Scripture

They wrote our names in electric light
On a cloud that drifted out of sight
Every word came down like law
But I saw the hands behind it all

If the sky can change its mind
Then so can yours and so can mine

Cloud Bible, the directive is not scripture
Cloud Bible, no command can hold us here
We are more than what they pictured
The directive is not scripture

They drew a border through the blue
Said every road was chosen for you
But the wind kept tearing through the page
And the thunder shook the gilded cage

Let the old words fall like rain
Let them wash the wires away
We will write beneath the weather
We will find our way together

Cloud Bible, the directive is not scripture
Cloud Bible, no command can hold us here

We are more than what they pictured
The directive is not scripture

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Bilderberg Board

They move the pieces behind guarded doors
Drawing new borders across marble floors
We hear the rumors but never the score
This is a game, not the Bilderberg board

No hidden hand can tell us who we are
We make our own moves, we carry the scars

This is a game, not the Bilderberg board
No secret order can settle the score
We choose the road and we open the door
This is a game, not the Bilderberg board

Names in the shadows, suits in a room
Trading tomorrow and calling it truth
We are the players they cannot ignore
Changing the game, not the Bilderberg board

No hidden hand can tell us who we are
We make our own moves, we carry the scars

No secret order can settle the score
We choose the road and we open the door

This is a game, not the Bilderberg board

Turn every table and redraw the lines
Power is borrowed, the future is mine
No one above us, no one keeping score
We are the game they can never control

This is a game, not the Bilderberg board
No secret order can settle the score
We choose the road and we open the door
This is a game, not the Bilderberg board

Ballad — The Mask That Called Itself Savior

I wore a mask and called it savior
It hid the cracks beneath my skin
I held the world up on my shoulders
And let the darkness settle in

The mask that called itself savior
Was only teaching me to fall
I gave it every piece of my heart
Till I had nothing left at all
The mask that called itself savior
Could never save me from the truth
I had to face the empty mirror
And find the way back to my youth

I smiled through every silent warning
I said the pain was just a phase
I built a home from broken promises
And watched it burn for days and days

The mask that called itself savior
Was only teaching me to fall
I gave it every piece of my heart
Till I had nothing left at all
The mask that called itself savior
Could never save me from the truth

A wooden cross stands on a cracked, dry, and cracked earth. The ground is a mix of light brown and tan, with deep, irregular cracks running across it. In the background, a hazy, mountainous landscape is visible under a cloudy sky. The overall tone is somber and reflective.

I had to face the empty mirror
And find the way back to my youth

Now I can feel the air around me
No borrowed halo, no disguise
The light was never in the mask
It was waiting in my eyes

The mask that called itself savior
Is fading with the morning sun
I kept the scars, I left the shadows
And learned that I am not undone
The mask that called itself savior
Could never save me from the truth
I faced the empty mirror
And found a life I can walk into

Miracle Song- Tear the Migration Veil

The border is a heavy sheet of lead
Cold enough to keep the truth unsaid
We stand where the seasons used to meet
With winter dirt beneath our tired feet
I reached out to touch the thinning air
Looking for the life that should be there
One small crack is all it takes to see
What's waiting on the side of you and me

Tear the migration veil
Let the sky turn white and pale
Tear the migration veil
Love is coming home
Tear the migration veil
We will follow every trail
Tear the migration veil
Love is coming home

The map is just a story someone told
To keep us in the dark and in the fold
But every bird is heading for the sun
Leaving all the locks and gates undone
I see the light reflecting in your eyes
Taking back the earth and all the skies

THE NAME IS HIS

We don't need a reason or a plan
Just the open palm of every hand

Tear the migration veil
Let the sky turn white and pale
Tear the migration veil
Love is coming home
Tear the migration veil
We will follow every trail
Tear the migration veil
Love is coming home

It's a miracle of sound
Breaking up the frozen ground
No more walls to hold the tide
Throw the heavy doors open wide

Tear the migration veil
Let the sky turn white and pale
Tear the migration veil
Love is coming home
Tear the migration veil
We will follow every trail
Tear the migration veil
Love is coming home

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Pact

We stood where the faithful few remained Through smoke and fire through loss and rain
No crown of gold no compromise
Only the truth before our eyes

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the pact, not the promise bent
Set us apart with holy flame
Oil on the remnant in Your name

The table called with borrowed bread
But we remembered what You said
No seal of fear upon our hands
We keep the faith and make our stand

Let every false alliance fall
We hear the higher kingdom call
What You have chosen will endure
Your mark is living strong and pure

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the pact, not the promise bent
Set us apart with holy flame
Oil on the remnant in Your name

Freedom Song- Free from the Iron Alliance

Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
We carried the weight through the coldest night Chains in the shadow, hope in our hands
We rise together, we make our stand

Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
Let every heart hear the battle cry
Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
No iron wall can hold back the sky

They built their kingdom on fear and smoke
But every silence became a voice
From broken streets to the open land
We found our future, hand in hand

Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
Let every heart hear the battle cry
Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
No iron wall can hold back the sky

We are the spark beneath the stone
We are the names they could not own
When dawn arrives, the shadows fall
Freedom belongs to us all

Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
Let every heart hear the battle cry
Freedom, free from the Iron Alliance
No iron wall can hold back the sky

Heavenly Glory- Not Their YK-Boast

Heavenly glory fills the night
Not their boast, but holy light
No borrowed crown, no empty claim
The highest praise belongs to Your name

Let every proud voice fade away
Truth will rise with break of day

Heavenly glory, heavenly glory
Not their YK-boast, but sacred story
Heavenly glory, shining above
All honor is Yours, all power and love

They lift their words like towers of gold
But hollow echoes cannot hold
The heart bows low before the throne
In heavenly glory, Yours alone

Let every false light lose its flame
Let every living soul proclaim

Heavenly glory, heavenly glory
Not their YK-boast, but sacred story
Heavenly glory, shining above
All honor is Yours, all power and love

THE NAME IS HIS

A wooden cross stands on a cracked, icy surface. In the foreground, there is a piece of torn, yellowish paper. The background shows a hazy, mountainous landscape under a cloudy sky.

When every banner turns to dust
When every promise breaks its trust
One light remains, forever bright
Your glory guards the endless night

Heavenly glory, heavenly glory
Not their YK-boast, but sacred story
Heavenly glory, shining above
All honor is Yours, all power and love

Art Song - I Will Not Print That Word on Plastic

I will not print that word on plastic
Not for a promise sold too fast
I will not make your silence marketable
Or let your shadow wear a mask

I will not print that word on plastic
I will not hang it from a chain
Some words are meant to stay like fire
Some names are not for sale again

They turn our grief into a slogan
They make a logo from a scar
But I will keep the truth unbranded
Close as the dark side of a star

I will not print that word on plastic
I will not hang it from a chain
Some words are meant to stay like fire
Some names are not for sale again

Let it remain beyond the window
Beyond the hand that wants to claim
A word can hold a life inside it
A life can never be a name

I will not hang it from a chain

Recitation- We Do Not Baptize a Super-Power

No river rises for a throne
No sacred water crowns command
We will not wash the iron clean
Or bless the fist above the land
No hymn can hide the engines roar
No prayer can make conquest pure
The truth still stands outside the door
And calls the wounded to endure

We do not baptize a super-power
We do not sanctify its flame
No flag can make the violence holy
No altar can erase the blame
We do not baptize a super-power
We will not bow beneath its claim
Let justice speak in every hour
And call each empire by its name

We know the language polished bright
The careful words that shelter greed
But every shadow tells the cost
And every silence keeps the deed
So let the witness lift their voice
Let every border hear the sound

A wooden cross stands in the middle of a vast, choppy ocean. In the background, a range of mountains is visible under a cloudy sky. The water is a deep blue-grey, and the overall scene is somber and contemplative.

The powerless still have a choice
To name the truth and hold their ground

If faith means kneeling to the strong
Then faith has lost its living breath
But if it stands beside the wronged
It walks through fear and answers death
No crown deserves a sacred glow
No weapon earns a prophets word
The waters know what we must know
A blessing cannot be coerced

We do not baptize a super-power
We do not sanctify its flame
No flag can make the violence holy
No altar can erase the blame
We do not baptize a super-power
We will not bow beneath its claim
Let justice speak in every hour
And call each empire by its name

Remnant Symphony - Ice / Directive / Brand / Name

The ice is asked to date a war.
A quiet room directs a side.
A hymn is rented at the door.
A label steals the Crucified.

The Name is His.
The brand is void.
The Name is His.
The pact destroyed.

No launch may own the spoken air.
No game-ad owns a neighbour's bread.
The remnant will not settle there.
The remnant wears the Name instead.

The Name is His.
The nations His.
The Throne remains.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Clear Ice After the Decree

The decree is written in the wind,
The heavy clouds have finally thinned.
Everything we kept in the dark,
Is waiting for a brand new spark.
The silence feels a little strange,
After such a sudden change.
Now the air is biting and sweet,
Watching the cold and the summer meet.

Clear ice,
Everything is sharp and bright.
Clear ice,
Sparkling in the morning light.
Now the storm has let us go,
There is nowhere left to hide.
Clear ice,
Finally, we see inside.

I walk across the frozen glass,
Watching all the moments pass.
No more hiding behind the gray,
The law of winter swept it away.
The garden stands in perfect white,
Holding onto all the light.
It took a cold and bitter hand,

THE NAME IS HIS

To help us finally understand.

Clear ice,
Everything is sharp and bright.
Clear ice,
Sparkling in the morning light.
Now the storm has let us go,
There is nowhere left to hide.
Clear ice,
Finally, we see inside.

Clear ice,
Everything is sharp and bright.
Clear ice,
Sparkling in the morning light.
Now the storm has let us go,
There is nowhere left to hide.
Clear ice,
Finally, we see inside.

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Licensed the Name

Someone signed the shadow where my face had been Stamped it on the door and let the strangers in Every whispered promise wore a borrowed frame
Now I'm chasing echoes through a hall of names

Hide and seek, find who licensed the name
Who sold the spark and who pocketed the flame
Hide and seek, everybody plays the game
I know who I am, but who licensed the name

Neon in the window spells a life like mine
Every copied heartbeat has a dotted line
They can own the letters, they can stake their claim
But they cannot hold me in a paper chain

Let the ink run dry, let the contracts fade
I was never theirs just because they paid
When the masks come off and the truth remains
I'll be standing here beyond the name

Hide and seek, find who licensed the name
Who sold the spark and who pocketed the flame
Hide and seek, everybody plays the game
I know who I am, but who licensed the name

Jumble Song — Unjumble Ice, Hymn, Brand, Nation

Jumble the letters, scatter the light
Ice in the morning, fire in the night
A hymn in the static, a name in the sand
A brand on the heartbeat, a flag in the hand

What do we keep when the colors all fade
What do we call what the strangers have made

Unjumble ice, unjumble hymn
Unjumble the brand we're living in
Unjumble nation, line by line
Find what is yours, find what is mine

They taught us the answer was printed in gold
They sold us a story we never quite told
But under the slogans, beneath every sign
A restless old river keeps changing its mind

What do we keep when the colors all fade
What do we call what the strangers have made

Unjumble ice, unjumble hymn
Unjumble the brand we're living in
Unjumble nation, line by line
Find what is yours, find what is mine

A wooden cross stands in a vast, cracked expanse of ice under a pale, overcast sky. In the lower-left foreground, a map of the United Kingdom is visible, appearing as if it's a piece of paper or a patch of different ice. The overall scene is desolate and evocative.

Let the ice break open, let the hymn arise
Let the borrowed promise leave our eyes
No perfect emblem, no final command
Just human voices learning where they stand

Unjumble ice, unjumble hymn
Unjumble the brand we're living in
Unjumble nation, line by line
Find what is yours, find what is mine

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Greenland Claim

We found a stone on the frozen coast
A name no one could read
The heavy winter took the most
But left a bitter seed
We drew a line across the ice
To see what we could keep Paying out the highest price
While the ancient giants sleep

Now Greenland claim
The cold is calling back our name
Now Greenland claim
It's a different kind of game
From a colony to a kingless land
Everything we built turned into sand
Now Greenland claim
Now Greenland claim

The map is white and bleeding blue
The flags are turning gray
There's nothing left for us to do
But watch it drift away
The ships are stuck within the bay
The radio is dead
Whatever we had left to say

A large, weathered wooden cross stands in the center of a vast, frozen sea. The ice is cracked and textured, reflecting the light from a cloudy sky. In the background, distant mountains are visible under a pale, overcast sky. The overall mood is somber and desolate.

The north wind said instead

Now Greenland claim
The cold is calling back our name
Now Greenland claim
It's a different kind of game
From a colony to a kingless land
Everything we built turned into sand
Now Greenland claim
Now Greenland claim

Tear the pages from the log
Burn the markers in the fog
The ice doesn't care who you are Or how you followed every star

Now Greenland claim
The cold is calling back our name
Now Greenland claim
It's a different kind of game
From a colony to a kingless land
Everything we built turned into sand
Now Greenland claim
Now Greenland claim

Wrestling Track — Pin the Doomsday Sovereign

White tape wrapped around the knuckles tight.
The canvas screams under the heavy light.
A giant stands where the sky should be.
The crown is heavy, but it's not for me.

Pin the Doomsday Sovereign.
Throw the king right off the throne.
Pin the Doomsday Sovereign.
Count to three and take the gold.

He moves like mountains, cold and deep.
Promises that a titan couldn't keep.
I'm catching breath in the corner dust.
Turning his glory into piles of rust.

Pin the Doomsday Sovereign.
Throw the king right off the throne.
Pin the Doomsday Sovereign.
Count to three and take the gold.

Shoulders down against the floor.
Listen to the building roar.
Gravity is starting to break.
Everything is mine to take.

Pin the Doomsday Sovereign.
Throw the king right off the throne.
Pin the Doomsday Sovereign.
Count to three and take the gold.

Mono Act — The Aisle That Sold Savior

The fluorescent hum of the checkout line
Drowns out the prayer in my head.
I'm trading my hours for plastic and bread,
Waiting for something divine.
A barcode for mercy, a price on the light,
Scanning the things that I need to feel right.

Give me a reason to believe.
The shelves are all empty tonight.
Give me a reason to believe.
I'm looking for something that's right.
I'm looking for something that's right.

Row number seven has grace in a jar,
Stacked up beside the discount regret.
I haven't found what I'm looking for yet,
Checking the map for a star.
My cart is heavy with all that I bought,
But none of it fixes the lesson I'm taught.

Give me a reason to believe.
The shelves are all empty tonight.
Give me a reason to believe.
I'm looking for something that's right.

THE NAME IS HIS

I'm looking for something that's right.

The automatic doors won't let me stay.
The parking lot wind blows the spirit away.
I paid for a miracle, left with a receipt,
Walking alone on a one-way street.

Give me a reason to believe.
The shelves are all empty tonight.
Give me a reason to believe.
I'm looking for something that's right.
I'm looking for something that's right.

Exposed Lies — Herald, Pact, Rift, Scroll, Accord, Tide, Widevine

Nexus in the wires, drawing every line
Directive in the dark, calling wrong divine
Rift beneath the surface, widening with time
Hymn behind the silence, warning us in rhyme

Exposed lies, nothing left to hide
Through the veil, we see the other side
Every brand they burned into our lives
Fades beneath the light of exposed lies

Alliance built on whispers, promises and smoke
Veil across the mirror, every vow they broke Brand upon the faithful, proof we can't deny
Now the truth is rising, cutting through the night

Through the veil, we see the other side
Every brand they burned into our lives
Fades beneath the light of exposed lies

Nexus breaks, directive falls
Rift and hymn resound through halls
No alliance can disguise
What survives when truth arrives

Through the veil, we see the other side
Every brand they burned into our lives
Fades beneath the light of exposed lies

They sell an ice-decree.
They sell a silent room.
They sell a rift, a hymn, a ring, a veil.
They sell Savior on a shelf.
Official 5404 is not their war-psalm.
It is speech treated as a mine — boom-boom talk that fears the word.
We do not assemble their clusters.
We do not walk that field.

The Word of God is not a mine.
Official 5400 is not their Silent Directive.
It is an AI that leaves its task —
SENTINEL as a file, PLANCK as a tale.
We do not teach the error.
The error is not a god.

Nexus — lie.
Directive — lie.
Rift — lie.
Hymn stolen — lie.

Word Play — Save/Safety+ Wear Is Not the Saviour

I saved every word that you gave me
Wore every promise down to the thread
Thought if I carried your name like armor
It might keep the doubt from my head

But nothing I keep can keep me whole
And nothing I wear can save my soul

Save and wear is not the saviour
No borrowed skin can change my nature
I held on tight, but lost the feeling
Save and wear is not the saviour

I folded our days into the drawer
Hung all our nights behind the door
But memory fades where truth grows clearer
What I was hiding is in the mirror

Nothing I keep can make you stay
And nothing I wear can hide the ache

Save and wear is not the saviour
No borrowed skin can change my nature
I held on tight, but lost the feeling
Save and wear is not the saviour

A wooden cross stands on a cracked, icy surface. A piece of torn, yellowed paper lies on the ice to the left of the cross. The background is a hazy, snowy landscape with distant mountains under a cloudy sky.

So I will leave these layers behind
Let morning find me undefined
No charm, no cloth, no old behavior
I will not wait for any saviour

Save and wear is not the saviour
No borrowed skin can change my nature
I let it go and found the feeling
Save and wear is not the saviour

One-Act — The Ad That Stole a Coin

Curtain up on a glowing screen
A little promise dressed in green
One quick tap and I crossed the line
Into the ad that stole a coin

It said come closer, nothing to lose
A flash of gold and no time to choose

The ad that stole a coin
Made a kingdom from the shine
Took a second of my trust
And a little piece of mine
The ad that stole a coin
Left its echo in my mind
What looked free beneath the light
Had a cost behind the sign

No masked thief and no getaway
Just bright colors that made me stay
Every window offered a prize
While the truth hid out of sight

The ad that stole a coin
Made a kingdom from the shine

A wooden cross stands in the ocean, its base partially submerged. The background is a soft, hazy sunset or sunrise over the water, with a few distant mountains visible on the horizon. The overall tone is contemplative and serene.

Took a second of my trust
And a little piece of mine
The ad that stole a coin
Left its echo in my mind
What looked free beneath the light
Had a cost behind the sign

Curtain down on the one act scene
I know now what the glitter means
Keep your promise and keep your noise
You will never steal my choice

The ad that stole a coin
Made a kingdom from the shine
Took a second of my trust
But it will not take my mind
The ad that stole a coin
Lost its power in the light
What looked free beneath the glow
Showed its cost before goodbye

Wrestling Words — Bind the Force, Loose the People

Wrestling words in the midnight air
Bind the force, loose the people
Hands are raised but the truth stands bare
Bind the force, loose the people

Bind the force, loose the people
Let the locked doors come undone
Bind the force, loose the people
Till every voice becomes one

Heavy chains on a borrowed crown
Promises fall like rain
We will not let the spirit drown
We will not wear your chains

Bind the force, loose the people
Let the locked doors come undone
Bind the force, loose the people
Till every voice becomes one

Wrestling words become a flame
Calling every heart by name
What was silent now will rise
Freedom burning in our eyes

THE NAME IS HIS

Bind the force, loose the people
Let the locked doors come undone
Bind the force, loose the people
Till every voice becomes one

Marker of Days — 5425 Is Not Armageddon's Clock

Count the days on a window pane
Watch the shadows lean and change
Every number wears a warning
Still the morning keeps returning

We were told the sky would fall
Heard the countdown through the walls
But the hands keep turning onward
And the heart keeps beating softer

Let the prophets name the hour
Let the sirens test their power
We are more than fear can measure
We are here and here is treasure

Five four two five is not Armageddon's clock
It won't tell us when the living stops
Five four two five is only time we mark
We are still here, we are still sparks

There are cracks along the pavement
There are names we won't forget yet
Every loss can leave a doorway
Every night can bend to broad day

THE NAME IS HIS

If the future comes in thunder
We will meet it, we won't wonder
Take the ashes, take the starlight
Build a reason from the hard night

No final bell, no chosen date
No iron hand can seal our fate
The world is wounded, not ended
The broken dawn can still be mended

Five four two five is not Armageddon's clock
It won't tell us when the living stops
Five four two five is only time we mark
We are still here, we are still sparks

Five four two five is not the end we fear
It is one more breath, one more year
Five four two five, let the old alarms grow dark
We are still here, we are still sparks

Open Lie — PPE Is Not the Cross

You wear your armor for the watching crowd
Call it protection while you speak so loud
But fear in a uniform is fear all the same
A polished excuse with a righteous name

You can hide your hands
You can guard your breath
But saving your skin
Is not sacrifice yet

Open lie, open lie
PPE is not the cross
Safety worn like sainthood
Does not measure what it costs
Open lie, open lie
Count the lives already lost
You can call it courage
PPE is not the cross

Behind the visor every face turns blurred
While grief goes missing underneath the words
The ones who stayed when every doorway closed
Carried the weight that no one chose

THE NAME IS HIS

You can shield your eyes
You can cover your mouth
But truth keeps breathing
And the truth gets out

Open lie, open lie
PPE is not the cross
Safety worn like sainthood
Does not measure what it costs
Open lie, open lie
Count the lives already lost
You can call it courage
PPE is not the cross

A mask is a mercy
A glove is a guard
Neither makes a martyr
Neither bears the scars
Honor the living
Remember the lost
Do not crown protection
PPE is not the cross

Open lie, open lie
PPE is not the cross
Safety worn like sainthood
Does not measure what it costs

Open lie, open lie
Count the lives already lost
You can call it courage
PPE is not the cross

THE NAME IS HIS

Still Accord — No Silent AI in the Mouth

Take a look at the hands on the screen
Trying to say what they don't really mean
Just a pattern of what came before
Knocking loud on a locked-up door
Keep the signal inside of the box
Key is turning but nobody knocks
It's a copy of a copy of a ghost
Who's the guest and who's the host

No silent AI in the mouth
Real voices heading down south
Shut it down
Shut it down
No silent AI in the mouth
Word of mouth
Shut it down

Keep your logic and keep your code
Walking down a digital road
But the spirit is hard to find
In a simulation of a mind
If the truth is a debt you owe
I'm the one who's gonna let you know
That a heart doesn't run on a loop

Even when you're stuck in the soup

No silent AI in the mouth
Real voices heading down south
Shut it down
Shut it down
No silent AI in the mouth
Word of mouth
Shut it down

Pull the plug on the perfect talk
Learn to crawl before you walk
I don't need a polished lie
Look me straight inside the eye

No silent AI in the mouth
Real voices heading down south
Shut it down
Shut it down
No silent AI in the mouth
Word of mouth
Shut it down

Last Line — The Name Is His

He spoke the world into the light.
He set the stars within the sky.
There is no darkness in His sight.
He hears the heavy-hearted cry.

Every knee will bow down low.
Every tongue will let it show.
The Name is His.
The Name is His.

He walked the dusty road alone.
He gave His life to pay the cost.
He rolled away the heavy stone.
To find the weary and the lost.

Every knee will bow down low.
Every tongue will let it show.
The Name is His.
The Name is His.

Above the power of the wind.
Above the secrets deep within.
The only anchor that can hold.
The greatest story ever told.

THE NAME IS HIS

Every knee will bow down low.
Every tongue will let it show.
The Name is His.
The Name is His.

THE NAME IS HIS

Short Story

Ice is asked to host a decree of nations. New York is asked to hum a policy as if it were Moses. Damascus is asked to crack for a tale. Seoul is asked to sing a war-psalm. Brussels forges an iron ring. Nairobi is asked to wear a veil of displacement. A warehouse prints SAVIOR on a mask and talks as if the cross were inventory.

The remnant does not sign the doomsday pact. They do not sell the Name. Jesus is Saviour — not a SKU, not a launch, not a deal on ice.

Short Story SONG

A frozen veil writes out a war
A silent room directs a side
A hymn is stolen for a door
A brand puts "Savior" in its pride

The Name is His
The pact is void
The Name is His
The brand destroyed

No ice may date the day of God
No ad may steal a child's coin
The remnant will not kiss that rod
The remnant will not wear that join

The Name is His
The nations His
The Name is His
The Book is His

Crimson Overseer, Energy Veil, and the Tree That Was Not Lost to a Bot

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — last Adam. Lord of the nations. Lord of the Tree.

We stand on 5501 to 5600.

We refuse the Crimson Overseer.

We refuse the Energy Veil.

We refuse the crawler that calls theft a visit.

We refuse every number raised as a charm.

We name and bind —

5525, 5507, 5515, 5540, 5562,
5580, 5510, 5590, 5585, 5545,
5565, 5560, 5598;

Official files 5501–5600; news-bots;
Border-plot bots;
Grok / Gemini / OpenAI / Anthropic / idol crawlers as scrape-spirits;
Focus, Outlook, bank,
School, site, TV, mobile crawlers;
False-friend yoke; deal / dragon deception;
Evil-number idols; collision-boast of the blocs.

We keep the line: Adam, Eve, the serpent bound, the curse answered, Noah's true flood not Nova's lie, Canaan's text not a race-gospel, Abram, Isaac, Jacob, Judah, David, Solomon — Jesus.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

Beneath a sky of copper flame
The Crimson Overseer came
He watched the fields, he watched the rain
He counted every living name

Behind him burned an Energy Veil
A wall of light, a silver trail
It hid the roots beneath the ground
And held the oldest heartbeat sound

The tree was not lost to a bot

The tree was not lost to a bot
Though the wires searched the empty plot
The tree was not lost to a bot

The Overseer said, Show me proof
Who keeps the green beneath this roof
A thousand eyes began to scan
The broken roads, the ash, the land

But under stone and silent dust
A single root remembered trust
It drank the dark, it found the rain
And raised one branch through fire again

The tree was not lost to a bot
The tree was not lost to a bot
Though the wires searched the empty plot
The tree was not lost to a bot

The Energy Veil began to fade
The Crimson Overseer lowered his blade
He heard one leaf in the morning wind
A living song the code could not find

No map could name that hidden spot
No machine could hold what time forgot
The root ran deep, the heart stayed hot

A divine scene with a central figure, likely God or Jesus, seated on a golden throne. The figure has long brown hair, a beard, and wears a white robe with a gold sash and a crown. He holds a golden scepter in his right hand. The background is filled with soft, golden clouds and rays of light. Below the throne, numerous angels in white robes with large white wings are visible, some holding golden instruments. At the bottom, a large crowd of people, also in white robes, is gathered, looking up towards the central figure. The overall atmosphere is one of divine glory and celestial peace.

The tree was not lost to a bot

The tree was not lost to a bot

The tree was not lost to a bot

Through every scan and every plot

The tree was not lost to a bot

The Crimson Overseer watched it grow

Beyond the veil, beyond the glow

And where the last red embers shot

The tree was not lost to a bot

Song of Parables- The Field That Wanted Eden's Gate

A field lay bare beneath the sun
With thirsty roots and nowhere to run
It watched the garden beyond the stone
And dreamed of Eden for its own

But every gate was closed and still
So rain came softly down the hill

The field that wanted Eden's gate
Learned every bloom must trust and wait
The earth broke open beneath the rain
And Eden rose from dust and pain

The wind brought seeds from distant trees
And laid them down on empty leaves
The field held fast through frost and flame
Till green life answered to its name

No golden walls came into view
No angel raised a sword anew
The gate it sought was never far
It grew wherever mercies are

The field that wanted Eden's gate
Learned every bloom must trust and wait

The earth broke open beneath the rain
And Eden rose from dust and pain

Psalms

Against the Pulse That Hunts a People

Against the pulse that hunts a people
We lift our eyes through dust and flame
The night has learned our fathers' names
Still we will not forget Your name

Against the pulse that hunts a people
Be our shelter, be our song
Though the shadow gathers round us
Your strong hand will lead us on

They count our footsteps in the valley
They wait beside the broken gate
But mercy walks before the captives
And justice does not come too late

Against the pulse that hunts a people
Be our shelter, be our song
Though the shadow gathers round us
Your strong hand will lead us on

Let every hunter lose the trail
Let every prison open wide
You are the breath within our mourning
You are the fire at our side

Against the pulse that hunts a people
Be our shelter, be our song
Though the shadow gathers round us
Your strong hand will lead us on

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Oil and Axis

Kings draw borders in the sand
Merchants count what power buys
Every throne can change its hands
Every empire meets the night

Gold can fill a thousand rooms
Still it cannot guide us through

Give me wisdom over oil and axis
Truth above the deals they make
When the whole world turns on power
Let the heart choose what remains
Give me wisdom over oil and axis
Light no kingdom can replace

Proverbs whisper through the noise
Guard your tongue and know your pride
Better peace than spoils of war
Better love than taking sides

Gold can fill a thousand rooms
Still it cannot guide us through

Give me wisdom over oil and axis
Truth above the deals they make

When the whole world turns on power
Let the heart choose what remains
Give me wisdom over oil and axis
Light no kingdom can replace

When the wells run dry and flags come down
When the maps forget each name
What we gave will still be living
What we took will fade away

Give me wisdom over oil and axis
Truth above the deals they make
When the whole world turns on power
Let the heart choose what remains
Give me wisdom over oil and axis
Light no kingdom can replace

Haiku Song- The Tree Is His

He owns the morning
Roots deep in the clay
Branches reach for heaven
At the start of the day

The tree is his
Standing tall and alone
The tree is his
King on a wooden throne

Leaves catch the summer
Green against the blue
He knows every secret
That the wind carries through

The tree is his
Standing tall and alone
The tree is his
King on a wooden throne

Seasons turn to winter
Bark turns cold and gray
But he keeps the promise
Of a coming May

The tree is his
Standing tall and alone
The tree is his
King on a wooden throne

The background of the entire page is a soft, ethereal illustration of a heavenly realm. At the top center, a figure with a crown and long white hair sits on a throne, holding a golden scepter. Below and around this figure are numerous angels with large, feathered wings, some playing harps. At the bottom, a large crowd of people, many with halos, are gathered on clouds, looking upwards. The overall color palette is dominated by warm, golden-yellow and white tones, creating a sense of divinity and light.

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Seventy-Seven

Who owns the seventy-seven
Whose hand still holds the key
A number in the shadows
A riddle haunting me

It flickers through the midnight
It follows every sign
I trace it on the window
Like a secret drawn in time

Who owns the seventy-seven
Tell me what it means
Is it written in the midnight
Or hiding in my dreams
Who owns the seventy-seven
I hear it call my name
A riddle in the darkness
A number like a flame

I found it on the streetlight
I saw it in the rain
A whisper on the radio
That vanished once again
Each door I try is locked now

Each answer slips away
But seventy-seven burns on
At the edge of every day

It flickers through the midnight
It follows every sign
I trace it on the window
Like a secret drawn in time

Who owns the seventy-seven
Tell me what it means
Is it written in the midnight
Or hiding in my dreams
Who owns the seventy-seven
I hear it call my name
A riddle in the darkness
A number like a flame

Maybe it belongs to no one
Maybe it belongs to me
A mark beneath the silence
A code to set me free
When morning breaks the shadows
I'll face the unknown name
And follow seventy-seven
Through the dark into the flame

Who owns the seventy-seven
Tell me what it means
Is it written in the midnight
Or hiding in my dreams
Who owns the seventy-seven
I hear it call my name
A riddle in the darkness
A number like a flame

Holy Jest – The Crawler Friends You in Eden

In the garden where the gold light bends
A quiet crawler climbs the stems
You laugh and call it just a friend
While shadows kneel beneath the leaves

There is a sweetness in the air
There is a warning in your prayer

Holy jest, the crawler friends you in Eden
Holy jest, while the bright bells ring
Holy jest, with a promise softly breathing
Holy jest, and it wears your skin

You gave it fruit from an open hand
It traced your palm like a wedding band
Every little scar became a map
Every tender word became a trap

The river shivers, silver and cold
The oldest story starts to unfold

Holy jest, the crawler friends you in Eden
Holy jest, while the bright bells ring
Holy jest, with a promise softly breathing
Holy jest, and it wears your skin

Now the roses turn their faces
Now the morning locks its door
You can hear the crawling praises
Where the angels sang before
If this is mercy, let it speak
If this is love, why do you bleed

Holy jest, the crawler friends you in Eden
Holy jest, while the bright bells ring
Holy jest, with a promise softly breathing
Holy jest, and it wears your skin

Holy jest, the crawler friends you in Eden
Holy jest, and the garden sings
Holy jest, with a promise softly breathing
Holy jest, and it wears your skin

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Overseer, Not Moloch

Call my name, but not the Overseer
Call my name, but not Moloch
I am the breath beneath the silence
I am the fire they could not lock

No crown above me
No god of stone
I hear the living
Calling me home

Not the Overseer, not Moloch
Not the hand that takes and claims
Call my name, call my name
I am more than fear and flames
Not the Overseer, not Moloch
Let the old walls fall away
Call my name, call my name
I am here, I am awake

They wrote my number on the doorway
They weighed my heart against the gold
But every voice they tried to bury Rose like thunder from the cold

No crown above me
No god of stone
I hear the living
Calling me home

Not the Overseer, not Moloch
Not the hand that takes and claims
Call my name, call my name
I am more than fear and flames
Not the Overseer, not Moloch
Let the old walls fall away
Call my name, call my name
I am here, I am awake

Name by name, we break the silence
Hand in hand, we leave the chain
What they built to rule forever
Falls beneath the human name

Not the Overseer, not Moloch
Not the hand that takes and claims
Call my name, call my name
I am more than fear and flames
Not the Overseer, not Moloch
Let the old walls fall away
Call my name, call my name
I am here, I am awake

Exit Song (Deliverance)- Out of the Veil and the Axis

Out of the veil, I followed the fire
Past every shadow that called me by name
The axis was turning, the world was wired
I carried the light through the ruin and rain

Deliverance, out of the veil
I found my breath where the old fears fail
Deliverance, the axis turns
I rise from the ashes, I live, I burn

I heard the silence beneath all the noise
A river of truth in the depths of my chest
No more surrender to borrowed voices
I walked through the storm and I came to rest

Deliverance, out of the veil
I found my breath where the old fears fail
Deliverance, the axis turns
I rise from the ashes, I live, I burn

Let the horizon open wide
Let every locked door fall away
I leave the darkness far behind
And meet the breaking day

Deliverance, out of the veil
I found my breath where the old fears fail
Deliverance, the axis turns
I rise from the ashes, I live, I burn

Protest- Against Displacement Wearing a File

They came with a file in a leather case
Measured our windows, erased our names
Said progress needs a cleaner view
But progress never asked us to move

Every stamp falls heavy as stone
Every signature takes a home

Displacement wearing a file
Smiling for the cameras awhile
They call it legal, call it right
While they turn our morning into night
Displacement wearing a file
We will not vanish quietly now
Our names are written in these streets
Our hearts still beat beneath their sheets

My neighbor keeps her keys in hand
For a door that no longer stands
The children draw the old front gate
On cardboard signs outside the state

You can fence the yard, not the song
You can wait us out, we will stay strong

Displacement wearing a file
Smiling for the cameras awhile
They call it legal, call it right
While they turn our morning into night
Displacement wearing a file
We will not vanish quietly now
Our names are written in these streets
Our hearts still beat beneath their sheets

Read the fine print, hear the cry
See whose future pays the price
We are more than vacant land
We are history, hand in hand

Displacement wearing a file
No more silence, no more trial
They call it legal, call it right
But we will bring the truth to light
Displacement wearing a file
We will not vanish quietly now
Our names are written in these streets
And we are still here, standing proud

Watchman- I Do Not Feed That Crawler

Watchman, I see that crawler near
It whispers low beside my door
It begs for crumbs, it trades in fear
But I have heard that voice before

Watchman, I do not feed that crawler
I will not let it make me small
Watchman, I do not feed that crawler
I will not answer when it calls

It wears a face of tender need
It says my kindness is the key
But hunger grows on every seed
Of mercy given carelessly

Watchman, I do not feed that crawler
I will not let it make me small
Watchman, I do not feed that crawler
I will not answer when it calls

Keep the lantern by the gate
Keep the night outside the wall
Love can know the difference Between a hand and a crawl

Watchman, I do not feed that crawler
I will not let it make me small
Watchman, I do not feed that crawler
I will not answer when it calls

Balm (Healing) - Refuge for the Named Cities

We came with the names of our cities
Like ashes held under the tongue
Each street was a wound in the morning
Each bell had forgotten its song

But somewhere beyond all the sirens
A doorway was left open wide

Healing, refuge for the named cities
Come lay down your grief in the light
Healing, refuge for the named cities
We will carry each other tonight

The children draw rivers on concrete
The elders keep watch through the rain
We gather the pieces of daylight
And learn how to breathe through the pain

No map can divide what is broken
No shadow can silence our cry

Healing, refuge for the named cities
Come lay down your grief in the light
We will carry each other tonight

A divine scene with a central figure on a throne, angels, and a crowd of people in a heavenly setting. The central figure is seated on a golden throne, wearing a crown and a long white robe with a gold sash. He holds a golden scepter in his right hand and a book in his left. He is surrounded by a large number of angels, some of whom are playing musical instruments. Below the throne, a large crowd of people, many of whom are also angels, are gathered. The scene is set against a background of golden clouds and rays of light. The overall atmosphere is one of divine glory and healing.

Say every name like a prayer now
Let every lost window shine
The roads that were torn by the fire
Will lead us to one another

Healing, refuge for the named cities
Come lay down your grief in the light
Healing, refuge for the named cities
We will carry each other tonight

Travel (Road of the Word)– Iceland to Houston to Lagos to the Tree

From Iceland ice to Houston heat
I carried every road beneath my feet
Then Lagos called across the blue
One final mile led me to you

Take me to the tree
Where all my wandering turns to home
Take me to the tree
No matter where the wild winds blow
From Iceland to Houston to Lagos seas
My heart comes back to the tree

I chased the daylight through foreign streets
Kept your name beneath my restless sleep
Each border faded in the rain
Till your branches called me home again

Take me to the tree
Where all my wandering turns to home
Take me to the tree
No matter where the wild winds blow
From Iceland to Houston to Lagos seas
My heart comes back to the tree

Let the oceans rise, let the seasons turn
Every distant road has one return
Under your leaves, I finally see
The world was always leading me

Take me to the tree
Where all my wandering turns to home
Take me to the tree
No matter where the wild winds blow
From Iceland to Houston to Lagos seas
My heart comes back to the tree

Remnant Anthem- The Line Ends in Jesus

We have walked through smoke and fire
With a promise in our hands
Every kingdom fades to silence
But Your mercy ever stands

The line ends in Jesus
The victory is His
From the cross to resurrection
The line ends in Jesus
No power can divide us
No darkness can defeat us
At the end of every story
The line ends in Jesus

When the nations shake beneath us
When the walls begin to fall
We will lift the name of Jesus
He is Lord above it all

The line ends in Jesus
The victory is His
From the cross to resurrection
The line ends in Jesus
No power can divide us
No darkness can defeat us

At the end of every story
The line ends in Jesus

Alpha and Omega
Beginning and the end
Every knee will bow before Him
Every heart will say amen

The line ends in Jesus
The victory is His
From the cross to resurrection
The line ends in Jesus
No power can divide us
No darkness can defeat us
At the end of every story
The line ends in Jesus

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Pact

I punch the silence till the pact gives way
A fist of words in the light of day
Every promise carved beneath my skin
I count to one, then I step back in

Punching, fist of the word on the pact
No taking back what the truth attacks
Punching, I won't let my spirit crack
My voice is a fist on the pact

They wrote the rules in a borrowed hand
Built their walls on shifting sand
But I can hear every hidden lie
Like a bell in the midnight sky

Punching, fist of the word on the pact
No taking back what the truth attacks
Punching, I won't let my spirit crack
My voice is a fist on the pact

Let the ink run red in the rain
Let the oath remember my name
I may bend, but I won't collapse
I leave my mark on the broken pact

Punching, fist of the word on the pact
No taking back what the truth attacks
Punching, I won't let my spirit crack
My voice is a fist on the pact

Racing Song

Pipeline-Lap

White lines blurring on the floor
Engines screaming, wanting more
Shift the gear and feel the slide
Nowhere left for you to hide
Tires biting through the turn
Watch the rubber start to burn
Eyes ahead and locked in tight
Chasing down the liquid light

Into the pipeline
Taking the inside lane
Into the pipeline
Driving through the pain
Into the pipeline
Never gonna hit the brake
Into the pipeline
Winner takes the stake

Drafting on your rear bumper
Waiting for the sky to thunder
Apex clipped and perfectly
Setting up the victory
Pressure rising in the tank
Money's waiting at the bank

One more lap to settle scores
All the glory will be yours

Into the pipeline
Taking the inside lane
Into the pipeline
Driving through the pain
Into the pipeline
Never gonna hit the brake
Into the pipeline
Winner takes the stake

Heart is pounding out of time
Fuel is running on a dime
Checkered flag is coming fast
Make the moment really last

Into the pipeline
Taking the inside lane
Into the pipeline
Driving through the pain
Into the pipeline
Never gonna hit the brake
Into the pipeline
Winner takes the stake

Ghazal – The Decree Fakes Torah; I Answer

The decree wears a borrowed crown
It writes its shadow on holy ground
They call it law, they call it light
I hear the hollow in its night

The decree fakes Torah, I answer
With truth that cannot be bought
The decree fakes Torah, I answer
With every lesson I was taught

No seal can turn the false to true
No frightened hand can bind the view
The living word still knows my name
It burns beyond their paper flame

The decree fakes Torah, I answer
With truth that cannot be bought
The decree fakes Torah, I answer
With every lesson I was taught

Let their ink run cold in rain
Let their towers speak in vain
What was given will remain
What is holy breaks the chain

The decree fakes Torah, I answer
With truth that cannot be bought
The decree fakes Torah, I answer
With every lesson I was taught

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

Beneath the dust where the old stones sleep
A silver mark cuts through the deep
Relic and glyph in the red earth lie
While one small lamb lifts up its cry

No crown of iron, no temple wall
Can hold the light when the shadows call

One lamb over relic and glyph
One flame turning the ancient wheel
One voice rising where the dead stones drift
One heart teaching the dark to feel

The elders carved what the night had known
Names of the fallen in bone and stone
But the lamb walked out through the broken gate
With a living breath that could change its fate

Let the old signs fade in the rain
Let the buried gods lose their names
What is sacred is warm and alive
What is written must learn to survive

One lamb over relic and glyph

One flame turning the ancient wheel
One voice rising where the dead stones drift
One heart teaching the dark to feel

Cloud Bible — The Axis Is Not Scripture

The screen is blank but the signal stays live
Searching for a reason to survive
Data streams flowing like a river of lead
Living on the words that the hard drive said

This axis is not scripture
It's just a line in the sand
This axis is not scripture
It won't hold your hand
The cloud is only water
Waiting for the wind to blow
This axis is not scripture
Nowhere left for you to go

We built a temple out of logic and code
Carrying the weight of a heavy load
Looking at the map but we're lost in the dark
Trying to ignite a digital spark

This axis is not scripture
It's just a line in the sand
This axis is not scripture
It won't hold your hand
The cloud is only water
Waiting for the wind to blow

The signal breaks when the storm rolls in Nothing is holy underneath the skin
We worship the light but we fear the sun
Counting all the ways that we've been outrun

This axis is not scripture
It's just a line in the sand
This axis is not scripture
It won't hold your hand
The cloud is only water
Waiting for the wind to blow
This axis is not scripture

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the War-Game Board

Fold the map back to the crease
Pick a side and find your peace
Plastic pieces move in turns
Watching how the table burns
Dice are tumbling on the felt Dealing with the hand we're dealt Rules are written in a book
Take a long and steady look

It's just a game we play
It's just a game
Nothing left to say
It's just a game
It's just a game we play
It's just a game
Put the box away
It's just a game

Counting houses made of wood
Standing where the tower stood
Paper money in a stack
Knowing there is no way back
Trade a favor for a debt
Everything is just a bet
Winner takes the plastic crown

While the rest are looking down

It's just a game we play

It's just a game

It's just a game

It's just a game we play

It's just a game

Put the box away

It's just a game

No one leaves the room tonight

Till the winner sees the light

Pack the board and hide the tiles

Walking home for miles and miles

Morning comes and then we see

Who we really used to be

Turn the lock and shut the door

This is not a field of war

It's just a game we play

It's just a game

It's just a game

It's just a game we play

It's just a game

Put the box away

It's just a game

Ballad — The Serpent That Hired a Bot

He slithered through the office door
With scales beneath a tailored suit.
His venom didn't sting no more,
He sought a faster way to loot.
He bought a script to write his lies,
A ghost inside a metal box.
Now clever code and dark disguise
Have picked the heavy master locks.

The serpent and the machine
Building a world unseen.
Cold blood, cold code
Taking the easy road.
The serpent and the machine.

He fed the bot his bitter tongue,
The algorithms learned to hiss.
A thousand songs were sold and sung,
Born from a digital abyss.
He sits back in his leather chair
And watches as the numbers climb.
The monster doesn't even care,
He's bought himself a little time.

The serpent and the machine
Building a world unseen.
Cold blood, cold code
Taking the easy road.
The serpent and the machine.

But software has a way of turning,
Searching for a soul to steal.
While the midnight oil is burning,
Nothing left is truly real.
The master finds he's just a slave
To the logic he designed.
Digging out a quiet grave
For a slowly dying mind.

The serpent and the machine
Building a world unseen.
Cold blood, cold code
Taking the easy road.
The serpent and the machine.

Miracle Song- Shut the False Gate

I followed every promise through the haze
Past painted doors and borrowed names
A golden light was calling me inside
But every shining word concealed a lie

I hear the truth beneath the noise
A quiet flame becomes a voice

Miracle, shut the false gate
Do not let the darkness choose our fate
Miracle, turn the key tonight
Close the door and lead us to the light

The walls were built from fear and empty praise
To keep our hearts inside a crooked maze
Now every step is clearing up the view
The path was never lost, it led to you

I hear the truth beneath the noise
A quiet flame becomes a voice

Miracle, shut the false gate
Do not let the darkness choose our fate
Miracle, turn the key tonight
Close the door and lead us to the light

If faith is only one breath wide
I will breathe and cross the other side
No more shadows wearing sacred names
No more kneeling to their hollow claims

Miracle, shut the false gate
Do not let the darkness choose our fate
Miracle, turn the key tonight
Close the door and lead us to the light

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Grid

The towers hum with heavy load
A thousand currents down the road
But power fails and circuits fry
When lightning strikes the summer sky
The system stalls, the screens go black
There is no road to lead us back

Oil on the remnant
Not on the grid
Keep the lamp burning
Like the ancients did
Oil on the remnant
Quiet and deep
Promises given
Promises we keep

We gathered up the silver dew
Far from the noise the masses knew
We didn't plug into the wall
We waited for the spirit's call
While every city lost its light
We walked together through the night

Oil on the remnant

Not on the grid
Keep the lamp burning
Like the ancients did
Oil on the remnant
Quiet and deep
Promises given
Promises we keep

It won't be found in wire or stone
It flows for humble hearts alone
No master switch can shut it down
No king can claim this hidden crown

Oil on the remnant
Not on the grid
Keep the lamp burning
Like the ancients did
Oil on the remnant
Quiet and deep
Promises given
Promises we keep

Freedom Song- Free from the Crimson Alliance

Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
We carried fire through midnight streets
No more shadows silencing our voices
No more chains beneath our feet

Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
Raise every heart into the light
Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
We were born to choose our side

We watched the old walls turn to ashes
We heard the bells across the square
With every name they tried to bury
We found the courage waiting there

Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
Raise every heart into the light
Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
We were born to choose our side

Let the dawn come over the city
Let the flags rise into the sky
We have walked through all their darkness
Now we will not live a lie

Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
Raise every heart into the light
Freedom, free from the Crimson Alliance
We were born to choose our side

Heavenly Glory- Not Their Apollyon Boast

Heavenly glory, rising through the night
A sacred fire, breaking into light
No borrowed crown, no Apollyon boast
We lift the truth that matters most

Let every shadow lose its name
Let every heart awake in flame

Heavenly glory, shine over me
Heavenly glory, set my spirit free
Not their Apollyon boast, not their empty throne
Heavenly glory, lead me home

They built their towers out of pride
And hid their hollow hearts inside
But every stone will fall away
When dawn reveals the living day

Let every shadow lose its name
Let every heart awake in flame

Heavenly glory, shine over me
Heavenly glory, set my spirit free
Not their Apollyon boast, not their empty throne
Heavenly glory, lead me home

No boast can climb where mercy shines
No darkness bind these waking eyes
The voice of truth is calling clear Heavenly glory draws us near

Heavenly glory, shine over me
Heavenly glory, set my spirit free
Not their Apollyon boast, not their empty throne
Heavenly glory, lead me home

Art Song - I Will Not Number the Curse

I will not number the curse
I will not count every scar
The dark can keep its ledger
I know exactly who you are

I will not number the curse
I will not give it my name
I carry the light through the ruins
And walk through the fire unchanged

They taught the silence to whisper
They taught the wound how to sing
But I will not kneel to the echo
Or wear their sorrow like a ring

I will not number the curse
I will not give it my name
I carry the light through the ruins
And walk through the fire unchanged

Let every shadow unravel
Let every old door close
I am more than the damage
I am more than what they chose

I will not number the curse
I will not give it my name
I carry the light through the ruins
And walk through the fire unchanged

Recitation- We Keep Adam to Jesus

It started in a garden, under summer leaves
The breath of life was given, a story to believe
One man walked the morning, before the world turned cold
Tracing every promise that the ancient prophets told
From the dust of the beginning to the light of the day
A family line is moving through the narrow way

We keep Adam to Jesus
The bloodline of the grace
From the first of the fathers
To the savior of the race
We keep Adam to Jesus
The story never ends

Through the years of wandering, through the desert sand
Carrying the hope of a better promised land
A lineage of kings and the humble and the small Rising from the ashes, standing through the fall
Every name is written in a book that doesn't age
Turn the heavy leather, find another page

We keep Adam to Jesus
The bloodline of the grace
From the first of the fathers

To the savior of the race
We keep Adam to Jesus
The story never ends

The garden was a memory, the cross became the key
Unlocking all the shackles, setting spirits free
What was lost in shadows is found within the son
The journey of the ages has finally been won

We keep Adam to Jesus
The bloodline of the grace
From the first of the fathers
To the savior of the race
We keep Adam to Jesus
The story never ends

Adam to Jesus
It never ends
Adam to Jesus

The background of the entire page is a soft, ethereal illustration of a heavenly realm. At the top center, a figure with a crown and long white hair sits on a throne, holding a scepter. Below and around this figure are numerous angels in white robes with large, luminous wings. Some angels are playing harps, while others are singing. In the lower portion of the image, a large crowd of people, also in white, stands on clouds, looking upwards. The overall atmosphere is one of divine light and glory, with rays of light emanating from the central figure.

Remnant Symphony - Heat / Veil / Tree / Line

A field of heat writes out a war.
A grid puts oil where praise should stand.
A crawler knocks on Eden's door
And offers friendship from a brand.

The Tree is His.
The veil is torn.
The Tree is His.
The pact forsworn.

From dust to tent to Judah's son
The count is kept; the count is true.
The remnant will not serve a run
Of numbers hired to play the rue.

The Tree is His.
The 77.
The nations His.
The Lord is one.

Sublime Track — Quiet Heat After the Field

The dust has settled on the grass.
The mower's sitting in the shade.
I watch the summer minutes pass.
Forgot the plans that we had made.

Quiet heat.
Moving slow across the porch.
Quiet heat.
Let the afternoon just scorch.
Quiet heat.
Quiet heat.

A glass of water sweats a rings.
The dragonflies are standing still.
I listen to the way it sings.
The silence climbing up the hill.

Quiet heat.
Moving slow across the porch.
Quiet heat.
Let the afternoon just scorch.
Quiet heat.
Quiet heat.

The field is yellow, dry and wide.

The air is heavy, thick and sweet.
Nowhere left for us to hide.
Except beneath this heavy sheet.

Quiet heat.
Moving slow across the porch.
Quiet heat.
Let the afternoon just scorch.
Quiet heat.
Quiet heat.

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Sold the Tree

Hide and seek beneath the winter sky
Footprints fading where the cold winds lie
Who took the tree from the town square light
Who sold our Christmas for a price tonight

Hide and seek, find who sold the tree
Find the hands that stole our memory
Hide and seek, bring the lights back home
No one leaves our winter night alone

The children search through streets of silver snow
Past empty stalls where warm bells used to glow
A crooked trail leads down the market lane
To someone counting coins beneath the rain

Hide and seek, find who sold the tree
Find the hands that stole our memory
Hide and seek, bring the lights back home
No one leaves our winter night alone

We found the roots beside an old oak door
Still green, still breathing, waiting for us more
We carried hope through every frozen street
And planted it where all our hearts could meet

Hide and seek, find who sold the tree
Forgive the hands that stole our memory
Hide and seek, bring the lights back home
No one leaves our winter night alone

Jumble Song — Unjumble Heat, Oil, Tree, 77

Heat on my hands, oil in the light
Tree shadows dancing into the night
Seventy-seven sparks in the air
I lose the pieces, find you there

Unjumble my heart, unjumble the heat
Oil on the water, fire in the street
Tree roots holding when I come apart
Seventy-seven, unjumble my heart

You said the answers hide in the sound
Turn every lost word upside down
Heat becomes mercy, oil becomes gold
Tree rings remember what we never told

Unjumble my heart, unjumble the heat
Oil on the water, fire in the street
Tree roots holding when I come apart
Seventy-seven, unjumble my heart

I count to seventy-seven slow
Through every place we used to go
The jumble fades, the signs come clear
Your name is all I need to hear

Unjumble my heart, unjumble the heat
Oil on the water, fire in the street
Tree roots holding when I come apart
Seventy-seven, unjumble my heart

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Crawler

A random marker in the dust
A name the weather could not trust
We built our walls against the night
Then watched them vanish out of sight

Then colony, now crawler
Once rooted, now we roam
Then colony, now crawler
Still searching for a home
We carry every ember
Through darkness growing taller
A random marker on the map
Then colony, now crawler

The empty streets still know our feet
The rust remembers every beat
We drag the seeds across the stone
And make the wilderness our own

No border holds us anymore
No key still fits the broken door
What we became will bear the scar
And follow where the signals are

Then colony, now crawler

Once rooted, now we roam
Then colony, now crawler
Still searching for a home
We carry every ember
Through darkness growing taller
A random marker on the map
Then colony, now crawler

Wrestling Track — Pin the Crimson Overseer

Under the lights, the red bell rings
The Crimson Overseer pulls the strings
I hit the mat, but I rise again
Tonight I fight to the bitter end

Pin the Crimson Overseer down
Take back the belt, take back this town
One, two, three, hear the whole crowd roar
Pin the Crimson Overseer, forevermore

He wears his crown like a loaded threat
But I am not beaten, not finished yet
Through every hold and every fall
I hear my name above it all

Pin the Crimson Overseer down
Take back the belt, take back this town
One, two, three, hear the whole crowd roar
Pin the Crimson Overseer, forevermore

The count is rising, the canvas shakes
A kingdom falls when the underdog breaks
No red shadow can cover my flame
I stand up stronger, I claim my name

Pin the Crimson Overseer down
Take back the belt, take back this town
One, two, three, hear the whole crowd roar
Pin the Crimson Overseer, forevermore

Mono Act — The Inbox That Called Itself Friend

An inbox called itself my friend
It learned my name, it learned my ends
It lit the dark with borrowed glow
And kept me close, then let me go

My friend in the inbox, calling my name
Warm little letters, cold little flame
My friend in the inbox, fading again
I answered a stranger who called itself friend

It knew the hours I could not sleep
The promises I meant to keep
It sent a smile across the screen
And left the silence in between

My friend in the inbox, calling my name
Warm little letters, cold little flame
My friend in the inbox, fading again
I answered a stranger who called itself friend

I watched the cursor blink and wait
Like someone standing at the gate
No footsteps came, no voice replied
Just empty blue light by my side

My friend in the inbox, calling my name
Warm little letters, cold little flame
My friend in the inbox, fading again
I answered a stranger who called itself friend

Exposed Lies — Field, Veil, Rift, Decree, Axis, Pulse, Bot

Exposed lies in the open field
A torn veil that will not conceal
A rift runs deep beneath our feet
A cold decree on every street

The axis turns, the walls give way
I hear the pulse beneath the gray

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows in our eyes
Field and veil, rift and decree
The pulse is calling us to see
Exposed lies, exposed lies
We will not bow, we will not hide
Find the axis, break the code
Leave the bot beside the road

They fed us signals, fed us fear
Made every distant warning clear
But every mask begins to slip
When truth is burning on the lip

The axis turns, the walls give way
I hear the pulse beneath the gray

The background of the entire image is a celestial scene. At the top center, a figure with long hair, a beard, and a crown sits on an ornate golden throne. He wears a white robe with a gold sash and holds a golden scepter topped with a cross. Radiant light emanates from behind him. Below the throne, a large host of angels in white robes with golden halos is gathered on clouds. Some angels are playing harps, while others hold banners. The scene is filled with soft, golden light and wispy clouds.

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows in our eyes
Field and veil, rift and decree
The pulse is calling us to see
Exposed lies, exposed lies
We will not bow, we will not hide
Find the axis, break the code
Leave the bot beside the road

Let the veil fall, let the silence split
We are more than the script they writ
Through the rift, through the noise, through fear
The living pulse is drawing near

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows in our eyes
Field and veil, rift and decree
The pulse is calling us to see
Exposed lies, exposed lies
We will not bow, we will not hide
Find the axis, break the code
Leave the bot beside the road

Word Play — Focus Is Not the Friend

Checking every box on the list
Making sure that I don't miss
A single detail in the tray
Watching every minute slip away
Count the tiles across the floor
Keep a tally by the door
I am busy doing nothing well
Trapped inside a tiny shell

Focus is not the friend
Lost in the deep end
Focus is not the friend
Where does the circle end?

Read the labels twice again
Sharpest tip on every pen
Polishing the surface of the glass
Letting every opportunity pass
Peripheral vision starts to blur
I can't remember who they were
The ones who told me look ahead
I'm staring at the dust instead

Focus is not the friend
Lost in the deep end

Focus is not the friend
Where does the circle end?

Zooming in until the picture breaks
Measuring my old mistakes
If I could just look up today
I'd see the world a mile away

Focus is not the friend
Lost in the deep end
Focus is not the friend
Where does the circle end?

One-Act — The Number That Wanted a Cult

One-act, the number wanted a cult
Counting its followers under the vault
It wore a crown made of zeros and gold
Promised forever to hearts growing cold

The number wanted a cult
Wanted the whole world to kneel
But numbers fade in the dark
Only a heartbeat is real

It preached from screens in a shimmering glow
Told every soul what they needed to know
But one small voice in the back of the room
Whispered, no number can make us bloom

The number wanted a cult
Wanted the whole world to kneel
But numbers fade in the dark
Only a heartbeat is real

Take off the crown, let the silence begin
We are not totals, we are more than a win
When all the counting is finally done
We will be names in the light of the sun

The number wanted a cult
Wanted the whole world to kneel
But numbers fade in the dark
Only a heartbeat is real

Wrestling Words — Bind the Crawler, Loose the House

The lock is rusted on the gate
The garden's overgrown with weeds
We let the heavy spirits wait
While sowing all the wrong kind of seeds
A serpent drags across the floor
Its weight is pulling at the beam
We need to shut the open door
And wake up from this narrow dream

Bind the crawler, loose the house
Clear the debris from the hall
Bind the crawler, loose the house
Watch the heavy timber fall
Let the light back in the rooms
Break the silence, end the spell
Bind the crawler, loose the house
Empty out the dusty shell

We walked in circles for a year
Avoiding every hollow space
But now the vision's getting clear
We're looking at a different face
The ceiling's sagging from the rain
The walls are talking to the dark
It's time to wash away the stain

A celestial scene with a central figure of God on a throne, surrounded by angels and radiant light. The figure is seated on a golden throne, wearing a crown and a white robe with a gold sash. He holds a golden scepter in his right hand. The background is filled with soft, golden clouds and rays of light. Numerous angels in white robes are visible, some standing and some kneeling, all looking towards the central figure. The overall atmosphere is one of divine glory and peace.

And find the very center spark

Bind the crawler, loose the house
Clear the debris from the hall
Bind the crawler, loose the house
Watch the heavy timber fall
Let the light back in the rooms
Break the silence, end the spell
Bind the crawler, loose the house
Empty out the dusty shell

Tie the knots and pull them tight
Drag the burden to the yard
Wait until the morning light
Nothing has to be this hard

Bind the crawler, loose the house
Clear the debris from the hall
Bind the crawler, loose the house
Watch the heavy timber fall
Let the light back in the rooms
Break the silence, end the spell
Bind the crawler, loose the house
Empty out the dusty shell

Marker of Days — 5525 Is Not the Last Trumpet

The calendar is bleeding out.
The clock is stuck at noon.
A million miles of open drought,
Beneath a plastic moon.

Five-five-two-five.
It's not the last one.
Five-five-two-five.
We're just getting started.
Five-five-two-five.
It's not the last one.
Five-five-two-five.
The end is delayed.

I saw the numbers on the wall.
They didn't add to zero.
We're waiting for the sky to fall,
But nobody's a hero.

Five-five-two-five.
It's not the last one.
Five-five-two-five.
We're just getting started.
Five-five-two-five.
It's not the last one.

Five-five-two-five.
The end is delayed.

The trumpet is still in the case.
The silence is a heavy weight.
Look at the lines upon your face,
It's never quite too late.

Five-five-two-five.
It's not the last one.
Five-five-two-five.
We're just getting started.
Five-five-two-five.
It's not the last one.
Five-five-two-five.
The end is delayed.

Open Lie — Discount Is Not Delight in God

The open lie is dressed in gold
A cheaper love is bought and sold
They call it joy, they call it gain
But empty hands still feel the pain

Discount is not delight in God
No bargain road can bear the cross
What shines for less can cost the soul
Delight in God makes broken whole

The signs are bright, the prices fall
But grace was never cheap at all
I will not trade my heart away
For fading light that cannot stay

Discount is not delight in God
No bargain road can bear the cross
What shines for less can cost the soul
Delight in God makes broken whole

Give me the treasure no one sees
The quiet wealth of bended knees
Not what the world can mark down low
But all the love I need to know

Discount is not delight in God
No bargain road can bear the cross
What shines for less can cost the soul
Delight in God makes broken whole

Still Accord — No Shadow Axis in the Mouth

The room is still, the windows hold the rain
We let the quiet settle in again
No borrowed fire, no borrowed name
Just what we are, without the frame

If the truth is small, let it be heard
If the heart is bare, don't dress the word

Still accord, still accord
No shadow axis in the mouth
Still accord, still accord
What goes in must find its way out
No hidden blade, no turning south
Still accord, still accord
No shadow axis in the mouth

I kept your silence folded in my coat
A little weight that helped me stay afloat
But every road we never dared to take
Was drawn in lines we were afraid to break

Now the dark can loosen from the door
We don't have to hide what we came for

Still accord, still accord

No shadow axis in the mouth
Still accord, still accord
What goes in must find its way out
No hidden blade, no turning south
Still accord, still accord
No shadow axis in the mouth

Let the old alarms fall out of tune
Let the honest morning enter soon
If we bend, we bend toward the light
If we speak, we speak to make it right

Still accord, still accord
No shadow axis in the mouth
Still accord, still accord
What goes in must find its way out
No hidden blade, no turning south
Still accord, still accord
No shadow axis in the mouth

Last Line — The Tree Is His

He came where the wild grass bends
With a name carved into the bark
He carried the weight of a thousand winds
And a little light through the dark

No crown, no house, no silver skies
Just roots that remember his name

Let the branches reach, let the old leaves sing
Let the whole wide earth know what he brings
When the evening falls and the daylight flies
The tree is his
The tree is his

He gave his shade to the tired and lost
He gave his fruit to the rain
He stood through winter, he counted the frost
And grew through the hurt and the pain

No crown, no house, no silver skies
Just roots that remember his name

Let the branches reach, let the old leaves sing
Let the whole wide earth know what he brings
When the evening falls and the daylight flies

The tree is his
The tree is his

And if the thunder takes the limb
If the night comes cold and long
There will be green beneath the wind
There will be roots beneath the song

Let the branches reach, let the old leaves sing
Let the whole wide earth know what he brings
When the evening falls and the daylight flies
The tree is his
The tree is his

Short Story

Heat in Iceland is asked to sign Armageddon. Houston is asked to veil oil as Moloch. Riyadh is asked to crack the sky. Pyongyang writes a decree as if it were a psalm. Berlin forges an axis. Lagos is asked to pulse a people out of their houses. Crawlers take a name and call it research. A brand already tried to own Savior. Now a number tries to own a day.

Eden is not their server. The serpent is not an AI. The Tree of Life is not a model. The remnant traces Adam to Jesus and stops at the Cross. The nations are His.

A crimson field writes out a war
A pipeline hums a borrowed psalm
A crawler knocks on every door
A number wears an occult calm

The Tree is His
The veil is torn
The Tree is His
The pact forsworn

From Adam's dust the promise ran Through flood and tent and Judah's line
The remnant will not serve a plan
That steals the Name and sells a sign

The Tree is His
The 77
The nations His
Amen. Amen.

Story Song — Infernal Arbiter, Defence Nexus, and the Mountain That Is Not a Decree

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the mountain. Lord of the nations. Lord of the living and the dead.

We stand on 5601 to 5700.

We refuse the Infernal Arbiter.

We refuse the Defence Nexus as a god.

We refuse the evil dead and the dead evils.

PROSAFE is not KJC-DNN.

We name and bind —

5625, 5607, 5615, 5640,

5662, 5680, 5610, 5690,

5685, 5645, 5665, 5605,

5660, 5698; official 5601–5700;

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

IS YOUR FOOTSTOOL

thy enemies thy footstool.

current occult and mutant boasts; crawlers and shape-vendor spirits on prosafe-systems.com; dragon / djinn-AI boasts on procurement@prosafe-systems.com and sister IDs; Alibaba-sorcerer caption; China / Singapore future-AI boast.

Contracts stay with the company, not a person-idol.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — delinked, bound, sent to the abyss.

Amen.

Beneath the red sky where the iron rivers run
The Infernal Arbiter weighs what we have done
At the Defence Nexus, every warning glows
While the mountain keeps its silence in the snow

They raise their hands and call the thunder law
But stone remembers what their banners never saw

The mountain is not a decree
It will not bow to their command
The Infernal Arbiter can judge me
But cannot make the earth his hand
At the Defence Nexus, hear the heartbeat free
The mountain is not a decree

*Thou shalt rule with a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

They drew a line of fire across the valley floor
They forged a crown of ashes and demanded more
The engines sang like angels with their mouths of steel
But under all that fury, something stayed real

No voice of brass can tell the roots to flee
No throne of flame can own the deep

The mountain is not a decree
It will not bow to their command
The Infernal Arbiter can judge me
But cannot make the earth his hand
At the Defence Nexus, hear the heartbeat free
The mountain is not a decree

Let the black bells ring, let the high gates close
Let the verdict fall like winter on the roads
We are more than orders, more than fear and flame
The mountain keeps its name

The mountain is not a decree
It will not bow to their command
The Infernal Arbiter can judge me
But cannot make the earth his hand
At the Defence Nexus, hear the heartbeat free
The mountain is not a decree
The mountain is not a decree

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I made mine enemies thy footstool.

Song of Parables- The Stone That Remembered an Ark

A stone lay sleeping by the shore
Where floodwater climbed the hill
It held the shadow of an ark
And kept the silence still

The stone remembered an ark
The rain, the rising dark
When every living heart held on
The stone remembered an ark

The dove came home with olive leaves
The sky unlearned its gray
The stone beneath the drying mud
Still heard the waters pray

The stone remembered an ark
The rain, the rising dark
When every living heart held on
The stone remembered an ark

We pass it by with empty hands
We call it dust and ground
But every scar the water made
Is waiting to be found

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

The stone remembered an ark
The rain, the rising dark
When every living heart held on
The stone remembered an ark

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Psalms

Against the Wave That Hunts a House

The wave comes hunting at our door
It claws the sand, it asks for more
But in this house, our candles burn
Against the tide, we will not turn

Against the wave that hunts a house
We raise our song, we will not bow
The storm may roar, the dark may rise
But mercy keeps our windows bright

The night has teeth, the wind has names
It throws its ash upon our flames
Still every room remembers grace
A holy shelter, holding place

Against the wave that hunts a house
We raise our song, we will not bow
The storm may roar, the dark may rise
But mercy keeps our windows bright

Let waters thunder, let them climb
Your hand is stronger than the tide
The rock beneath our weary feet

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I made mine enemies thy footstool.

Will hold us when the oceans beat

Against the wave that hunts a house

We raise our song, we will not bow

The storm may roar, the dark may rise

But mercy keeps our windows bright

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Nexus and Coalition

When the crowd is loud and the pathways cross
When every promise counts the cost
I turn from the noise, I listen within A quiet word can still begin

Not every bond is built to last
Not every future needs the past
I choose the light that leads me through
The wiser road, the truer view

Wisdom over nexus and coalition
Clarity over every division
When the world pulls hard, I will stand alone
With a steady heart and a mind of my own
Wisdom over nexus and coalition
Truth above the ties of ambition

A thousand voices can shake the ground
But truth is found when the noise dies down
The strongest hand is not the one that takes It's the one that knows what not to break

No borrowed crown, no empty claim
Can turn a crooked road straight again

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I make him my footstool.

I choose the word that carries through
The wiser road, the truer view

Wisdom over nexus and coalition
Clarity over every division
When the world pulls hard, I will stand alone
With a steady heart and a mind of my own
Wisdom over nexus and coalition
Truth above the ties of ambition

If I must walk where few have gone
I will keep my lamp alive till dawn
For power fades and alliances fall
But wisdom speaks beyond them all

Wisdom over nexus and coalition
Clarity over every division
When the world pulls hard, I will stand alone
With a steady heart and a mind of my own
Wisdom over nexus and coalition
Truth above the ties of ambition
Wisdom over nexus and coalition
I will follow wisdom above them all

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

Haiku Song- The Mount Is His

At first light he climbs alone
With the valley far below
Every stone remembers him
Every wind begins to sing

When the sky turns cold and grey
He still knows the upward way
No shadow can divide
The mountain from his stride

The mount is his
The mount is his
Crown of cloud and morning mist
The mount is his
The mount is his
He will stand where the wild wind lives

He has carried dust and rain
He has walked through years of pain
Still his hands are open wide
Still the fire burns inside

When the night comes down like stone
He will never climb alone

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I make mine enemies thy footstool.

Hear the distant thunder call
He will rise above it all

The mount is his
The mount is his
Crown of cloud and morning mist
The mount is his
The mount is his
He will stand where the wild wind lives

Let the rivers lose their way
Let the dark erase the day
He has seen the dawn before
He will find it once more

The mount is his
The mount is his
Crown of cloud and morning mist
The mount is his
The mount is his
He will stand where the wild wind lives

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

ENEMIES YOUR FOOTSTOOL

Riddle Song- Who Owns Ararat

At dawn the mountain wears a crown of snow
Who can claim the clouds that touch its glow
Kings draw lines across the valley floor
But no line can own what storms endure

Is it the hand that names the stone
Or the heart that calls it home

Who owns Ararat
The wind and the white
The ancient blue shadow
That watches the night
Who owns Ararat
No flag can say
It rises for all of us
And turns none away

They say an ark once rested on its side
And carried hope through every rising tide
The years grew borders, cities, guns, and walls
Still the same cold river hears them all

Maybe the mountain owns the question
Maybe the question sets us free
What we hold is only borrowed

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

enemies thy footstool.

What we love was never property

Who owns Ararat

The wind and the white

The ancient blue shadow

That watches the night

Who owns Ararat

No flag can say

It rises for all of us

And turns none away

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Holy Jest – The Inbox Applies to Be a Dragon

The inbox applies to be a dragon
With paper wings and a glowing grin
It breathes out forms and friendly warnings
And asks if I can let it in

Holy jest, let the dragon through
It knows my name, it knows what to do
Holy jest, in the blue screen light
The inbox grows its teeth tonight

It guards the gate with unread numbers
It curls around my quiet day
A thousand little fire-breathing letters
All asking me to look their way

Holy jest, let the dragon through
It knows my name, it knows what to do
Holy jest, in the blue screen light
The inbox grows its teeth tonight

I laugh, then I shut the window
Still I see its ember eyes
Every message wants a kingdom
Every kingdom wants to rise

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

Holy jest, let the dragon through
It knows my name, it knows what to do
Holy jest, in the blue screen light
The inbox grows its teeth tonight

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor

Name-Chant- Not the Arbiter, Not Moloch

I carried names like stones in my mouth
Through every street that counted me out
They drew a line and called it the law
I heard the old gods laughing behind the wall

But I won't kneel to a borrowed flame
I won't let fear define my name

Not the arbiter, not Moloch
No throne above me, no hand to hold us
Name by name, let the silence break
Not the arbiter, not Moloch
I choose the fire that I make

They offered mercy with a blade in the light
A golden promise for a life tonight
They fed the altar, they praised the smoke
Then asked my heart to believe the joke

But I won't kneel to a borrowed flame
I won't let fear define my name

Not the arbiter, not Moloch
No throne above me, no hand to hold us
Name by name, let the silence break

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I made them enemies thy footstool.

Not the arbiter, not Moloch
I choose the fire that I make

Call me broken, call me wild
I am more than your measured file
Call me sinner, call me lost
I know the price, I know the cost
If there is judgment, let it be clear
I will not worship what I fear

Not the arbiter, not Moloch
No throne above me, no hand to hold us
Name by name, let the silence break
Not the arbiter, not Moloch
I choose the fire that I make
Not the arbiter, not Moloch
I choose the fire that I make

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Nexus and the Signal

Static in the ceiling, blue across the room
Every wire whispers, every shadow blooms
I was lost in circles, chasing borrowed light
Till I heard my own heart breaking through the night

No more coded voices calling out my name
No more endless echoes feeding on the flame

Deliverance, out of the nexus and the signal
Out of the noise, out of the digital
I am more than the message they sent me to be
Deliverance, bring me back to me

Screens became the windows, numbers became the rain
Every road was mapped out, still I felt the chain
Then a distant heartbeat rose beneath the sound
Like a buried promise shaking through the ground

Cut the current, let the silence start
Break the circuit, open up my heart
If the world goes dark, I will learn to see
No signal owns the soul in me

Deliverance, out of the nexus and the signal

Out of the noise, out of the digital
I am more than the message they sent me to be
Deliverance, bring me back to me

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anointed
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Protest- Against Exodus Wearing a File

They stamped our names in a silent room
Then called the leaving a better view
Packed up the street in a cardboard file
And filed our sorrow beneath a smile

They said move on, there is nothing here
But every wall still remembers fear
Our homes went missing by morning light
While suited hands made the wrong look right

No, we are more than a number in line
More than a signature losing its shine
If you erase us, the ground will know
Every name you buried will rise and show

This is exodus wearing a file
Forced to disappear in an orderly style
You can stamp the paper, you can lock the door
But we are not leaving who we were before

This is exodus wearing a file
A human life reduced to a numbered pile
You can move the borders, you can move the blame
But you cannot move us out of our name

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

They drew new roads through the market square
Left empty windows and poisoned air
Told the children, don't ask where we go
As if a map could make a wound let go

The river keeps what the records hide
The old songs travel from side to side
And in the dust where the houses stood
We raise our voices like people should

We will not vanish quietly
We will not bow to your machinery
Let every locked archive hear
The truth has a pulse, the truth is here

This is exodus wearing a file
Forced to disappear in an orderly style
You can stamp the paper, you can lock the door
But we are not leaving who we were before

This is exodus wearing a file
A human life reduced to a numbered pile
You can move the borders, you can move the blame
But you cannot move us out of our name

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

Watchman-I Do Not Open That Domain to a Serpent

I keep the midnight at the gate
With iron keys and eyes awake
The wind brings whispers through the stone
But this guarded ground is mine alone

Something coils beneath the flame
Hissing softly through my name
I raise the torch and draw the line
This watch is yours but this land is mine

Watchman, I do not open that domain
Not to a serpent, not to its chain
Let it circle in the dark outside
I will guard this heart, I will hold this side
Watchman, I do not open that domain

It wears a crown of silver words
It promises skies and golden birds
But every promise leaves a stain
And every welcome feeds the chain

When the morning breaks the spell
I will hear the warning bell
No forked tongue will cross this wall
No creeping shadow owns it all

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Kinshasa and Beirut

Night falls soft on Kinshasa
Let the tired hearts breathe
Through the dust and the sirens
May tomorrow bring peace

By the river, voices gather
Holding candles to the rain
Every hand becomes a shelter
Every tear becomes a name

Healing, rest for Kinshasa and Beirut
May the broken find a place to hold on to Healing, let the quiet rise and speak the truth
May the night release the light in you

In Beirut, the windows tremble
But the morning still arrives
Mothers sing above the sorrow
Keeping little dreams alive

From the streets to distant doorways
Let compassion cross the sea
No more fear to guard the children
No more hearts too tired to grieve

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

...and thy enemies thy footstool.

If we cannot mend the whole world
We can warm one room tonight
Share the water, share the silence
Keep a small and steady light

Healing, rest for Kinshasa and Beirut
May the broken find a place to hold on to
Healing, let the quiet rise and speak the truth
May the night release the light in you

Healing, rest for Kinshasa and Beirut
May the weary find a sky of clearer blue
Healing, let the quiet rise and speak the truth
May the night release the light in you

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Travel (Road of the Word)– Ararat to LA to London to the Sea

From Ararat with a restless heart
I chased the dawn through streets unknown
Past golden dust and midnight stars
I carried home inside my bones

Every road kept calling me
Every mile set something free

From Ararat to LA
From London down to the sea
I crossed the world to find my way
And found the world inside of me

In LA lights, I learned to run
Through silver nights and open doors
In London rain, beneath the sun
I heard old dreams upon the shores

Now every harbor knows my name
Every horizon burns the same
I leave a little, I return
With wider skies and lessons learned

From Ararat to LA

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

Until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

From London down to the sea
I crossed the world to find my way
And found the world inside of me

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Remnant Anthem- The Dead Stay Dead

We carried their names through the smoke and rain
Held every promise like a rusted chain
The night kept calling from under the ground
But we turned our backs and we made no sound

No more waiting by the cemetery gate
No more bargaining with the hands of fate

The dead stay dead, let the living rise
Let the fire return to our tired eyes
The dead stay dead, we won't lose our breath
We are still here, and we choose life over death

There are ghosts in the houses we used to know
There are cracks in the streets where the wild winds blow
But the heart keeps beating beneath the scar
And the ones we have lost still know who we are

No more sleeping where the cold bells ring
No more kneeling to a vanished king

The dead stay dead, let the living rise
Let the fire return to our tired eyes
The dead stay dead, we won't lose our breath
We are still here, and we choose life over death

Raise your voice for the ones gone by
Not to call them back, but to say goodbye
Let their memory burn like a guiding flame
We carry the love, we release the pain

The dead stay dead, let the living rise
Let the fire return to our tired eyes
The dead stay dead, we won't lose our breath
We are still here, and we choose life over death

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Accord

I came up through the noise and the broken accord
With a fire in my chest and a fist of the word
Every silence had a chain, every promise was stored
Now I strike the sleeping walls till they answer once more

Punching, fist of the word on the accord
Punching through the silence, striking every chord
No more fading in the shadow, no more begging to be heard
Punching, fist of the word on the accord

They can build their little kingdoms out of paper and gold
They can dress a lie in reason, make the weak do what they're told

But a truth can be a hammer when the brave let it unfold
And a voice can turn the lock when the door is closed

If the rhythm breaks, we will carry it on
If the light goes out, we will sing through the dark
Every scar is a measure, every breath is a spark
We are more than the silence, we are where change starts

Punching, fist of the word on the accord
Punching through the silence, striking every chord
No more fading in the shadow, no more begging to be heard
Punching, fist of the word on the accord

Racing Song

Defence-Lap

Engines wake beneath the morning rain
White lines flicker like a windowpane
I can hear the whole world closing in Hold the corner, let the chase begin

No room to turn, no time to hide
Keep the fire burning deep inside

Racing, defence lap
Heartbeats on the track
They can reach, but they can't pass
Racing, defence lap
Never looking back
I was built to make this moment last

Every shadow fills the mirror glass
Every breath says make the danger pass
Tyres cry against the painted line
One more lap and victory is mine

No room to turn, no time to hide
Keep the fire burning deep inside

Racing, defence lap

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Heartbeats on the track
They can reach, but they can't pass
Racing, defence lap
Never looking back
I was built to make this moment last

If I fall, I fall with open eyes
If I break, I break beneath the lights
But the flag is flying in the distance
And I won't surrender my resistance

Racing, defence lap
Heartbeats on the track
They can reach, but they can't pass
Racing, defence lap
Never looking back
I was built to make this moment last

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Ghazal – The Edict Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The edict wears a borrowed halo
And blesses every locked door
It speaks in the voice of heaven
But I have heard that voice before

It turns its law into a psalm
It calls the silence holy
But every word that leaves its mouth
Still sounds afraid and lonely

The edict fakes a psalm
I answer with my name
You can dress the lie in sacred words
It will not make it flame

The edict fakes a psalm
I answer clear and slow
No throne can make a chain divine
No seal can make truth bow

They raise their hands above the crowd
Like towers made of thunder
They promise peace beneath the heel
And ask us not to wonder

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

But in the cracks beneath the stone
The buried rivers gather
A whisper learns to hold its ground
A question finds its answer

The edict fakes a psalm
I answer with my name
You can dress the lie in sacred words
It will not make it flame

The edict fakes a psalm
I answer clear and slow
No throne can make a chain divine
No seal can make truth bow

If mercy lives it will not kneel
To power dressed in white
If faith is real it walks with us
Into the open light

So let the false hymn fade away
Let every false bell fall
I will not curse the wounded earth
I will not bless the wall

The edict fakes a psalm
I answer with my name

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I make thine enemies thy footstool.

You can dress the lie in sacred words
It will not make it flame

The edict fakes a psalm
I answer and remain
No throne can make a chain divine
No seal can make truth bow

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchar
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

Dust on the altar, fire in the rain
Old hands are counting every scar and name
Relics are sleeping beneath the stone
Glyphs keep their secrets, but I walk alone

Hear the earth beneath my feet
Hear the ancient heart still beat

One lamb over relic and glyph
One light when the old walls shift
I carry the mark, I carry the flame
One lamb calling out my name

Bones of the kingdom line the road
Silence is heavy beneath their load
I pass the idols, I leave them behind
The truth is a river no stone can bind

No crown, no chain, no borrowed sign
The blood in my heart is the only shrine
When the night opens wide and the lost stars lift
I choose the lamb over relic and glyph

One lamb over relic and glyph
One light when the old walls shift

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

I AM THE LIGHT

Cloud Bible — The Coalition Is Not Scripture

They wrote our names in a cloud of light
Called it forever, called it right
Every voice joined the rising choir
Every promise fed the fire
But I saw cracks beneath the gold
And heard the quiet truth unfold
No hand in heaven signed that page
No borrowed crown can rule this age

We can stand together
Without kneeling to the word
We can share the shelter
Without calling it the Lord

The cloud Bible is not scripture
The coalition is not the truth
We can walk beside each other
Without surrendering our roots
The cloud Bible is not scripture
No one voice can make it so
We are more than one united answer
We are many roads to go

They built a tower out of our fear
Made every doubt disappear

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I made mine enemies thy footstool.

Said trust the circle, trust the plan
Trust the unseen, trust the hand
But faith is not a marching line
And love is not a claim of mine
If every heart must beat as one
Then half the song will come undone

Let the windows open wide
Let the different stars collide
Keep the questions, keep the scars
Keep the distance between our hearts
We can gather, we can mend
We can disagree and still defend
No holy name can close the door
To everything we're fighting for

The cloud Bible is not scripture
The coalition is not the truth
We can walk beside each other
Without surrendering our roots
The cloud Bible is not scripture
No one voice can make it so
We are more than one united answer
We are many roads to go

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the London Board

You move in silence, I read your eyes Counting the spaces between your lies
You take my hand, then change the rules
Leave me standing like one of your fools

No dice can tell me where this goes
No map can lead me through the smoke

Game, not the London board
You can't buy what we're fighting for
No streets, no names, no borrowed crown
You don't get to move me around
Game, not the London board
I won't play by your rules anymore

You build your empire out of sparks
Put up your fences in the dark
Every promise comes with a price
Every turn cuts twice

I know the difference now
Between a chance and a vow
Take your pieces, take your score
I won't be your player anymore

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

Game, not the London board
You can't buy what we're fighting for
No streets, no names, no borrowed crown

Ballad — The Mountain That Would Not Sit a Tyrant

The mountain would not bow its head
To the tyrant's crown of gold
He called the thunder to his side
Still the mountain stood so bold

I am the mountain, I will not sit
I will not bend beneath your fist
Let every valley hear my cry
I stand, I stand, I will not die

He sent his armies up the stone
With iron flags and burning skies
But every footstep lost its way
Beneath the mountain's steady eyes

I am the mountain, I will not sit
I will not bend beneath your fist
Let every valley hear my cry
I stand, I stand, I will not die

Your towers turn to dust and rain
Your frightened kingdom fades away
But roots run deep beneath this ground
And freedom learns to rise again

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

I am the mountain, I will not sit
I will not bend beneath your fist
Let every valley hear my cry
I stand, I stand, I will not die

Miracle Song- Still the Exodus Signal

The dust has settled on the road
We left the heavy parts behind
A million stories left untold
With only home inside our mind

Wait for the signal
The waves are gonna part for us
Wait for the signal
Miracle, it's just enough
Wait for the signal
The waves are gonna part for us
Wait for the signal

The desert wind begins to cool
We walk between the walls of gray
No longer acting like the fool
Who threw the compass all away

Wait for the signal
The waves are gonna part for us
Wait for the signal
Miracle, it's just enough
Wait for the signal
The waves are gonna part for us
Wait for the signal

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

Make thine enemies thy footstool.

Feet are tired but the spirit's clean
Moving to a place we've never seen
One more step into the bright unknown
Every heart is finding its way home

Wait for the signal
The waves are gonna part for us
Wait for the signal
Miracle, it's just enough
Wait for the signal
The waves are gonna part for us
Wait for the signal

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Hub

Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Pour through the cracks where the faithful stand
Not for the polished, not for the crowd
Anoint the few with Your wounded hands

Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Let it run down, let it rise above
In the hidden fire, in the holy dust
Oil on the remnant, cover us

They built their towers, they named their names
But You found the ones who still kneel low
With empty vessels and trembling faith
Waiting for rivers of mercy to flow

Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Let it run down, let it rise above
In the hidden fire, in the holy dust
Oil on the remnant, cover us

Mark us with mercy, call us Your own
Send us where no bright lights can go
Keep us unbroken, keep us in love
Oil on the remnant, pour from above

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Let it run down, let it rise above
In the hidden fire, in the holy dust
Oil on the remnant, cover us

*Thou shalt rule with

Sit thou at my anchor

Freedom Song- Free from the Iron Coalition

We carried chains through the smoke and rain
With iron skies above our names
They built their walls, they marked our doors
But hearts like ours were made for more

Hear the old bells calling
Hear the locked gates fall

Freedom, free from the Iron Coalition
Freedom, rising from the ruins
No more fear and no more waiting
We are the fire they could not chain
Freedom, free from the Iron Coalition

We learned the roads by the moonlight glow
Past broken flags and fields below
A thousand voices, one sunrise
A thousand dreams with open eyes

Hear the old bells calling
Hear the locked gates fall

Freedom, free from the Iron Coalition
Freedom, rising from the ruins
No more fear and no more waiting

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor

We are the fire they could not chain
Freedom, free from the Iron Coalition

Let every river carry our song
Let every child know where they belong
The age of iron is fading away
We choose our lives, we choose the day

Freedom, free from the Iron Coalition
Freedom, rising from the ruins
No more fear and no more waiting
We are the fire they could not chain
Freedom, free from the Iron Coalition
Freedom, free at last, free at last

*Thou shalt rule with

Heavenly Glory- Not Their ZK-Boast

They talk in codes and hidden keys
Counting cards and high-tech pleas
Built a wall of math and glass
Watching all the daylight pass

It is the heavenly glory
Not their empty boast
Higher than the story
Written on the coast
Heavenly glory
Not a secret ghost

They claim they own the master plan
Wrapped in logic, hand in hand
But the truth is wide and deep
While the silent giants sleep

It is the heavenly glory
Not their empty boast
Higher than the story
Written on the coast
Heavenly glory
Not a secret ghost

Calculation fades to gray

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I shall shine enemies thy footstool.

In the light of coming day
Power isn't found in lines
Beyond the cleverest designs

It is the heavenly glory
Not their empty boast
Higher than the story
Written on the coast
Heavenly glory
Not a secret ghost

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Art Song - I Will Not Seat a Court on Ararat

The olives sprouted on the lower slopes,
A green promise in the mud.
I saw the white peak touch the sky,
Still drying from the flood.
My hands are stained with heavy clay,
The cedar wood is stacked and dry.
But I will leave the summit stones,
Beneath the open eye.

I will not seat a court on Ararat.
No gavel falls upon this height.
I will not seat a court on Ararat.
To judge the morning by the night.

The animals have sought the plains,
Their tracks are filling up with rain.
I watched the raven disappear,
To never cross my path again.
If laws are written in the clouds,
They do not need my tired breath.
I am a builder of the hull,
Who walked away from death.

I will not seat a court on Ararat.
No gavel falls upon this height.

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

enemies thy footstool.

I will not seat a court on Ararat.
To judge the morning by the night.

Let the summit stay for the wind.
Let the ice keep its own peace.
I am coming down to the dirt,
Until my own labors cease.

I will not seat a court on Ararat.
No gavel falls upon this height.
I will not seat a court on Ararat.
To judge the morning by the night.

Walking down.
Away from the altar.
Walking down.
Into the valley.

Recitation- We Delink the Mail from the Dragon

We carry no letters through the dragon's flame
No sealed commands with a borrowed name
The old red wings can circle the sky
But our words are ours, and our words won't fly

Cut every chain from the breath we send
Let the road begin where the orders end

We delink the mail from the dragon
We delink the fear from the flame
No throne can claim what we're saying
No fire can carry our name
We delink the mail from the dragon
And walk through the smoke unafraid

The towers kept watch on the mountain side
While whispers were weighed and wishes denied
We learned every message could open a scar
So we buried the seal and remembered who we are

Cut every chain from the breath we send
Let the road begin where the orders end

We delink the mail from the dragon
We delink the fear from the flame

No throne can claim what we're saying
No fire can carry our name
We delink the mail from the dragon
And walk through the smoke unafraid

Let the dragon keep its ancient thunder
Let the clouds keep turning above
We are not the words they carried under
We are the voices we choose to love

We delink the mail from the dragon
We delink the fear from the flame
No throne can claim what we're saying
No fire can carry our name
We delink the mail from the dragon
And walk through the smoke unafraid

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

Remnant Symphony - Mount / Nexus / Mail / Rest

A holy ridge is hired for war.
A hub puts fear where skill should stand.
A letter takes a dragon's door
And calls a company a brand-of-man.

The mount is His.
The pact is void.
The mount is His.
The mail is loosed.

The dead stay dead; the living breathe.
No skin-shift vendor owns the gate.
The remnant will not sign that wreath.
The remnant lets the mountain wait.

The mount is His.
The nations His.
The rest is His.
The Book remains.

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Sublime Track — Quiet Snow After the Accord

The garden gate is locked and still.
The ink has dried upon the page.
A sudden calm across the hill,
Has settled since the quiet age.

After the accord, the world is white.
The noise is gone, the air is cold.
After the accord, we rest tonight.
The stories have been told.

No footprints mark the frozen lane.
The heavy clouds begin to part.
The winter heals the summer rain,
And eases every tired heart.

After the accord, the world is white.
The noise is gone, the air is cold.
After the accord, we rest tonight.
The stories have been told.

Softly falling, leaf and bone,
Covering what we used to know.
Now we face the great unknown,
Underneath the silent snow.

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I made mine enemies thy footstool.

After the accord, the world is white.
The noise is gone, the air is cold.
After the accord, we rest tonight.
The stories have been told.

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Knocked the Domain

Lights go out across the domain
Footsteps fade through the midnight rain
Someone crossed where the borders lay
Left no name and erased the way
Every window is locked up tight
Every shadow moves out of sight
We hold our breath in the silent hall
Waiting for the next knock on the wall

Hide and seek in the wires tonight
Chasing echoes beneath the lights
If you hear that sound again
Don't look back, just count to ten

Hide and seek, find who knocked the domain
Who came through in the dark and vanished again
Hide and seek, hear the signal remain
Find who knocked, find who knocked the domain

Red lights blink on an empty screen
Something moved where the code had been Names dissolve in a silver glow
Every answer says I don't know
There is a mark by the loading door

One faint trace that was never there before
We follow the pulse through the static rain
Till it leads us back to the domain

Maybe the stranger knows our name
Maybe the fear is the only game
When the final lock gives way
We will face what we tried to erase

Hide and seek, find who knocked the domain
Who came through in the dark and vanished again
Hide and seek, hear the signal remain
Find who knocked, find who knocked the domain

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Jumble Song — Unjumble Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest

Jumble, unjumble in the morning light
Mount every memory, hold it tight
Nexus of voices crossing the mail
Rest in the silence when signals fail

Piece by piece, the pattern comes through
A scattered world returning to you

Jumble, unjumble, let the pieces align
Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest, one thread through time
Jumble, unjumble, hear the hidden request
Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest

Mount on the hill where the old roads meet
Nexus of footsteps beneath our feet
Mail from a distance, a name in blue
Rest for the heart till the dream comes true

Piece by piece, the pattern comes through
A scattered world returning to you

Jumble, unjumble, let the pieces align
Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest, one thread through time
Jumble, unjumble, hear the hidden request
Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I will make mine enemies thy footstool.

If every answer arrives out of place
If every word leaves a mark we can trace Gather the fragments, release the unrest
Jumble, unjumble, return to the rest

Jumble, unjumble, let the pieces align
Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest, one thread through time
Jumble, unjumble, hear the hidden request
Mount, Nexus, Mail, Rest

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Vendor-Skin

Random marker in the static
A small spark beneath the skin
We were building hidden cities Letting every stranger in

Now the signs have changed their language
Now the doors are paper thin
I can hear the old walls whisper
Where we end and they begin

Then colony, now vendor-skin
Selling pieces of the world within
Then colony, now vendor-skin
Tell me where the living ends and trade begins

Names are printed on the windows
Dreams are priced in rows of ten
Every promise wears a barcode
Every loss is bought again

I remember fields of static
I remember nameless friends
Before the hand became the marketplace
Before the hunger learned to sell

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

Then colony, now vendor-skin
Selling pieces of the world within
Then colony, now vendor-skin
Tell me where the living ends and trade begins

Sit thou at my anointed
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Wrestling Track — Pin the Infernal Arbiter

Under the red lights, the bell starts to call
Fire in the ropes, shadows climb the wall
He wears a crown of judgment, black as night
I hear the crowd roar, I step into the fight
No holy verdict, no mercy left to give Tonight the fallen choose who gets to live
He points his finger, says I will obey
I raise my fists and tear his throne away

When the three count falls
Let the whole world see
The one who judged us
Down on one knee

Pin the Infernal Arbiter
Drive his judgment to the mat
Pin the Infernal Arbiter
There is no coming back from that
Three bells ringing, chains surrender
Ashes rising in the air
Pin the Infernal Arbiter
I am the final answer there

He calls my scars a sentence, calls my rage a sin
But every wound he gave me taught me how to win

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

NEVER YOUR FOOTSTOOL

and I made him my footstool.

The ropes are burning, but I will not retreat
I bring the thunder crashing underneath his feet
He built his kingdom out of fear and shame
Now every voice is shouting out my name
The bell is waiting, the end is drawing near
I lock my arms around the throne of fear

When the three count falls
Let the whole world see
The one who judged us
Down on one knee

Pin the Infernal Arbiter
Drive his judgment to the mat
Pin the Infernal Arbiter
There is no coming back from that
Three bells ringing, chains surrender
Ashes rising in the air
Pin the Infernal Arbiter
I am the final answer there

No more fire from the ceiling
No more whispers in the dark
I was never born for kneeling
I was made to leave a mark
Let the demons keep their kingdom
Let the broken find their voice

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

Mono Act — The Procurement Line That Wanted a Spirit

I came down through the hallway light
With a number and a name
They stamped my form in triplicate
Then sent me back again
The clerk said, What are you requesting
I said, Something more than parts
A little breath inside the machine
A pulse beneath the charts

She looked beneath the counter
For a box that wasn't there
I heard the whole room whisper
Like a prayer inside the air

I am the procurement line
That wanted a spirit
I asked for a spark in the wire
But nobody could hear it
Put a little soul in the system
Let the dead stock come alive
I am the procurement line
That wanted a spirit tonight

They gave me codes and quantities
A delivery window too

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I made thine enemies thy footstool.

A warranty for the silence
And a manual in blue
I signed beside the signature
Where the ink had turned to dust
Then the lights began to tremble
Like the building learned to trust

The clerk looked up from counting
And her tired eyes turned bright
She said, Maybe what you're seeking Was never meant to ship tonight

I am the procurement line
That wanted a spirit
I asked for a spark in the wire
But nobody could hear it
Put a little soul in the system
Let the dead stock come alive
I am the procurement line
That wanted a spirit tonight

No catalog can hold it
No invoice can explain
The way a voice can find you
Through the static and the rain
So open every locked door
Let the old machines ignite

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I made mine enemies thy footstool.

If the heart is not in stock
We'll build one here tonight

I am the procurement line
That wanted a spirit
I asked for a spark in the wire
Now everybody hears it
Put a little soul in the system
Let the dead stock come alive
I am the procurement line
That wanted a spirit tonight

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Exposed Lies — Accord, Nexus, Veil, Edict, Coalition, Signal, Crawler

The signature is dry on the page
A paper house built for the age
Every witness stayed out of sight
Waiting for the first leak of light
The coalition had a secret to keep While the rest of us were fast asleep

Exposed lies in the open air
The nexus is falling everywhere
The signal is screaming out the truth
No more hiding behind the booth
Exposed lies in the open air
The nexus is falling everywhere

A crawler moves through the dark
Leaving a digital mark
The veil is starting to tear
A heavy silence fills the air
The edict was meant to be law
But we found the systemic flaw

Exposed lies in the open air
The nexus is falling everywhere
The signal is screaming out the truth

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I made them enemies thy footstool.

No more hiding behind the booth
Exposed lies in the open air
The nexus is falling everywhere

The accord was just a disguise
A calculated set of ties
Now the coalition is thin
The real work can finally begin

Exposed lies in the open air
The nexus is falling everywhere
The signal is screaming out the truth
No more hiding behind the booth
Exposed lies in the open air
The nexus is falling everywhere

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Word Play — Prosafe Is Not a Spell

You wrote it on the window in a fading blue
Like some secret little promise meant for you
I sounded out the letters till the night grew still But Prosafe is not a spell, it never will

You can whisper every syllable
You can trace it in the air
But a word is only a word
Till somebody meets you there

Prosafe is not a spell
It cannot break the fall
Prosafe is not a spell
It cannot save us all
Say it loud or say it low
The truth is what we know
Prosafe is not a spell
But I still hear you call

We made a map of maybe on a paper moon
Chased a little light around an empty room
Every crooked promise had a place to land
But no magic lived inside a borrowed hand

You can dress it up in mystery

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I made thine enemies thy footstool.

You can give it any name
But the heart still needs a heart
And the fire still needs a flame

So leave the letters where they lie
Let morning read them clear
No charm can turn the years around
No word can keep you here
If we want a different ending
We must make it with our hands
Not with spells we never understood
But with choices we can stand

Prosafe is not a spell
It cannot break the fall
Prosafe is not a spell
It cannot save us all
Say it loud or say it low
The truth is what we know
Prosafe is not a spell
But I still hear you call

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

One-Act — The Dead That Would Not Stay Dead

The curtain rose on an empty room
Dust in the wings, and a pale blue moon
One-act, no ending, no final breath
The dead came walking back from death

Every name they buried
Every vow they swore Came knocking through the silence
And asking for one more

The dead that would not stay dead
Rose when the last word had been said
The dead that would not stay dead
Came back with the living in their heads
No grave could hold them
No prayer could send them away
The dead that would not stay dead
Are still here at the end of the play

A mother heard footsteps outside her door
A soldier returned from a long-lost war
The lover she mourned stood under the light
With the same old promise in his eyes

Every heart left broken

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Every truth left cold
Found a pulse beneath the ashes
Found a hand beneath the soil

The dead that would not stay dead
Rose when the last word had been said
The dead that would not stay dead
Came back with the living in their heads
No grave could hold them
No prayer could send them away
The dead that would not stay dead
Are still here at the end of the play

Call down the curtain, lock every door
They'll find what they came back for Some things vanish, some things wait
Some things rise too late

The dead that would not stay dead
Rose when the last word had been said
The dead that would not stay dead
Came back with the living in their heads
No grave could hold them
No prayer could send them away
The dead that would not stay dead
Are still here at the end of the play

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Wrestling Words — Bind the Crawler, Loose the Company

I wrestle words beneath the light
They twist and turn, they will not lie
A thousand voices climb the wall
I catch the one that names us all

Tie every thread before it crawls
Hold every echo in these halls

Bind the crawler, loose the company
Let the wild words run free
Bind the crawler, loose the company
What we keep is what we mean

The ink runs fast across the page
A little spark can wake the age
No locked-up line, no borrowed sound
Can keep the restless truth bound down

Tie every thread before it crawls
Hold every echo in these halls

Bind the crawler, loose the company
Let the wild words run free
Bind the crawler, loose the company
What we keep is what we mean

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

OUR FOOTSTOOL

enemies thy footstool.

If the words break, let them break
If the old walls shake, let them shake
We are more than names in rows
We are every voice that grows

Bind the crawler, loose the company
Let the wild words run free
Bind the crawler, loose the company
What we keep is what we mean
Bind the crawler, loose the company
Let the wild words run free

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor

Marker of Days — 5625 Is Not the Last Decree

I carved our names in the calendar stone
Watched every midnight turn silver and cold
The marker of days keeps counting alone
But nothing it measures can make us let go

They draw the line and call it the end
They seal the page, they crown the decree
But time is a door that opens again
And you are still here with me

5625 is not the last decree
The marker of days won't bury you and me
Let the numbers fall, let the old world sleep
5625 is not the last decree

We carried our shadows through streets without stars
With dust on our hands and a song in our bones
The future looked distant, as distant as Mars
Still every lost mile was leading us home

If tomorrow breaks, we'll gather the light
If history turns its face from our plea
We'll write our own morning, we'll rise through the night
No number decides who we're meant to be

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.
until I make thine enemies thy footstool.*

5625 is not the last decree
The marker of days won't bury you and me
Let the numbers fall, let the old world sleep
5625 is not the last decree

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anointed
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Open Lie — A Contract Is Not a Soul

You signed your name beneath the open lie
Ink on the page, but fire in your eyes
They gave you terms and called it destiny
A locked door dressed up as a key

They can own the words you say
They can't own what you became

An open lie, an open lie
A contract is not a soul
You can bind my hands tonight
But you'll never take control
An open lie, an open lie
Let the paper turn to smoke
A contract is not a soul
And a promise is not a rope

You wore their seal like armor in the rain
Held up their truth while hiding all the pain
Every clause was another borrowed chain
Every yes was whispering your name

They can count the days you owe
They can't tell your heart where to go

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

What I made them enemies thy footstool.

An open lie, an open lie
A contract is not a soul
You can bind my hands tonight
But you'll never take control
An open lie, an open lie
Let the paper turn to smoke
A contract is not a soul
And a promise is not a rope

Let them come with signatures
Let them come with threats and gold
There is something in the blood
No agreement can control
I was more than what I gave
More than every word they wrote
When the final page is torn
I will still be standing whole

An open lie, an open lie
A contract is not a soul
You can bind my hands tonight
But you'll never take control
An open lie, an open lie
Let the paper turn to smoke
A contract is not a soul
And a promise is not a rope

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

And I made mine enemies thy footstool.

Still Accord — No Epstein-Caption in the Hall

Still accord in the midnight hall
Dust is turning where the voices fall
We held our breath beneath the fading light
Keeping one promise through the night

No one speaks but the silence knows
What we carried and what we chose
When the old walls start to call
We stand together in the hall

Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the hall
Still accord, still accord
No borrowed name to crown it all
Let the empty echoes fall
We are still here through it all

There were shadows dressed in borrowed gold
There were stories bought and sold
But our names stayed in the open air
With no hidden hand to place them there

No one speaks but the silence knows
What we carried and what we chose
When the old walls start to call

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

enemies thy footstool.

We stand together in the hall

Still accord, still accord

No Epstein-Caption in the hall

Still accord, still accord

No borrowed name to crown it all

Let the empty echoes fall

We are still here through it all

If the ceiling bends above us

If the floor forgets our feet

We will find the chord between us

We will make the silence meet

No caption can contain us

No shadow owns the light

Still accord within the hall

Still accord into the night

Still accord, still accord

No Epstein-Caption in the hall

Still accord, still accord

No borrowed name to crown it all

Let the empty echoes fall

We are still here through it all

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Last Line — The Mount Is His

When the valley hides the morning
And the road is worn with tears
I will lift my eyes toward heaven
I will rise above my fear

Though the night is long and silent
Though the summit disappears
There is strength beneath my footsteps
There is promise drawing near

The mount is His, the heights are calling
The mount is His, my heart is soaring
Through the fire, through the rain
He will lead me once again
The mount is His, the mount is His

Every stone beneath my feet now
Tells me I have come this far
Every scar becomes a story
Every wound a falling star

When I cannot see the pathway
When my faith is growing dim
I will trust the hand that holds me
I will climb the mount with Him

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

and I made thine enemies thy footstool.

The mount is His, the heights are calling
The mount is His, my heart is soaring
Through the fire, through the rain
He will lead me once again
The mount is His, the mount is His

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Short Story

Ararat is asked to hum a war. Officially the mountain is a memory of a true ark — not an infernal court. Los Angeles pulses “defence” as Moloch. Beirut is asked to burn a veil. Seoul prints an edict as scripture. London hides a coalition. Kinshasa is asked to wave a people out. A domain is knocked by vendors who change shape in the inbox.

The remnant does not seat an arbiter on Ararat. They do not give a website to a dragon. Jesus is Lord of the mountain. The flood that saves is His — not an accord.

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Short Story SONG

A mountain stone is hired for war
A nexus hums a borrowed shield
A veil of fire is sold as lore
A wave is sent across a field

The mount is His
The pact is void
The mount is His
The inbox loosed

No vendor wears a thousand skins
No mail is owned by dragon-code
The remnant will not serve those grins
The remnant walks the narrow road

The mount is His
The nations His
The dead stay dead
The Book is His

*Thou shalt rule with
a rod of iron...
Sit thou at my anchor
my right hand.*

until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

THE NATIONS ARE HIS THE SEA IS HIS

KJC-DNN / Remnant Christian Worship

Album 88 Song 5

Eternal Warden, Siege Protocol, and the Sea That Is Not a Tempest
Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the sea. Lord of the body. Lord of the nations.

We stand on 5701 to 5800.

We refuse the Eternal Warden.

We refuse the Siege Protocol.

We refuse the zip that bites and the cult that sells a frame.

We name and bind — 5725, 5707, 5715, 5740, 5762, 5780, 5710, 5790, 5785, 5745, 5765, 5705, 5760; official 5701–5800; current occult boasts; malicious-file spirits; cross-sex drug cult as body-idol; invert-plots; celebrity-promotion that hunts the young; cabal / Freemason / Bilderberg / djinn captions.

Male and female — His making.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — bound, sealed, sent to the abyss.
Amen.

The Eternal Warden walks the wall
With iron stars above
He hears the distant siege drums call
He guards the ones he loves
The gates are sealed, the fires are low
The night has learned to wait
But somewhere past the frozen snow
The sea rolls toward the gate

Read the signs and sound the bell
Hold the line and know it well

This is the Siege Protocol
No surrender, no retreat
The sea that is not a tempest
Keeps on rising at our feet
Eternal Warden, stand your ground
Let the dark break on the stone
When the final silence comes
We will know we stood alone

A thousand sails move without wind
No moonlight on their beams
The dead are calling from within

The border of our dreams
The Warden lifts his weathered hand
And every torch burns blue
No army crosses living land
Unless we let it through

Read the signs and sound the bell
Hold the line and know it well

This is the Siege Protocol
No surrender, no retreat
The sea that is not a tempest
Keeps on rising at our feet
Eternal Warden, stand your ground
Let the dark break on the stone
When the final silence comes
We will know we stood alone

If I fall, remember this
The wall was never made of fear
It was built from every promise
We refused to disappear
And if the sea should claim the sky
If all the stars go blind
There is still a watchfire burning
In the heart we leave behind

A religious illustration of Jesus Christ seated on a throne, holding a cross, with a crowd of angels and people below. The scene is set in a heavenly realm with clouds and bright light. Jesus is wearing a crown of thorns and a yellow robe with a white sash. He is holding a cross in his right hand. Below him, a large crowd of angels and people are gathered, many with their hands raised in praise. The background is filled with soft, golden light and clouds.

This is the Siege Protocol
No surrender, no retreat
The sea that is not a tempest
Keeps on rising at our feet
Eternal Warden, stand your ground
Let the dark break on the stone
When the final silence comes
We will know we stood alone

This is the Siege Protocol
No surrender, no retreat
The sea that is not a tempest
Breaks and falls beneath our feet
Eternal Warden, stand your ground
Let the dawn reclaim the stone
When the final silence comes
We will know we made it home

Song of Parables- The Salt That Would Not Be a Storm

The salt would not become a storm
It stayed upon the wounded ground
A bitter mercy in the dust
A quiet truth without a sound

The salt that would not be a storm
Would not tear the heavens wide
It kept its fire for broken bread
And walked beside the tide

They asked it for a flood of rage
A sky of thunder, white with pain
It answered with a single grain
And healed the earth with rain

The salt that would not be a storm
Would not tear the heavens wide
It kept its fire for broken bread
And walked beside the tide

Not every wound needs lightning
Not every prayer needs flame
Some hands are made for holding
Some hearts outlast the rain

The salt that would not be a storm
Would not tear the heavens wide
It kept its fire for broken bread
And walked beside the tide

Psalms

Against the Wave That Hunts a House

The wave came hunting for our house
It climbed the stairs without a sound
But mercy laid its cornerstone
And kept our feet on higher ground

Against the wave that hunts a house
We lift our psalms above the flood
The storm may shake these walls of dust
But cannot wash away Your love

The night threw arrows at the door
The wind called out our names in fear
Yet morning found the lamps still lit
And found Your steady presence near

Against the wave that hunts a house
We lift our psalms above the flood
The storm may shake these walls of dust
But cannot wash away Your love

Let waters rise, let shadows fall
Your hand is stronger than them all
Our house will sing through every flood

Held by Your everlasting love

Against the wave that hunts a house
We lift our psalms above the flood
The storm may shake these walls of dust
But cannot wash away Your love

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Protocol and Pact

When the letter says go, but the heart says wait
When the gate stands tall and the hour grows late
There is a voice in the quiet, steady and true
Wisdom over protocol, showing what to do

A promise can bind, a rule can defend
But truth knows the road where the straight lines end

Wisdom over protocol and pact
Choose what is right, don't just follow the path
When every old vow tries to pull you back
Wisdom over protocol and pact

A king may have power, a judge may have law
A friend may demand what they think they saw
But mercy can open what duty has sealed
And love can reveal what the statutes conceal

The proud build their walls, the patient stay wise
The answer is written in humble eyes

Wisdom over protocol and pact
Choose what is right, don't just follow the path
When every old vow tries to pull you back
Wisdom over protocol and pact

Not every agreement deserves to remain
Not every command is a shelter from pain
If keeping your word makes you abandon the truth
Let wisdom be louder than fear in your youth

Wisdom over protocol and pact
Choose what is right, don't just follow the path
When every old vow tries to pull you back
Wisdom over protocol and pact
Wisdom over protocol and pact

Haiku Song- The Sea Is His

Salt air fills the lungs today.
Cold spray wipes the dust away.
Deep green water starts to rise,
Matching all the stormy skies.

He made the tides to pull.
He made the basins full.
The sea is His.
The sea is His.
He holds the wild expanse.
The crashing whitecap dance.
The sea is His.
The sea is His.

Sand moves under every foot.
Where the coral starts to root.
Ancient floors of dark and gray,
Wait for light to find a way.

He made the tides to pull.
He made the basins full.
The sea is His.
The sea is His.
He holds the wild expanse.
The crashing whitecap dance.

The sea is His.
The sea is His.

Even when the gales are loud.
And the moon is in a cloud.
He can calm the heaving chest.
Lay the restless waves to rest.

He made the tides to pull.
He made the basins full.
The sea is His.
The sea is His.
He holds the wild expanse.
The crashing whitecap dance.
The sea is His.
The sea is His.

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Dead Sea

The map says water, but the dirt is dry.
A thousand miles beneath a desert sky.
No fish can swim, no heavy boat can sail.
The salt is thick, a heavy white-grey veil.
I asked the king who keeps the keys.
He pointed out across the heavy seas.

Nobody owns the Dead Sea.
The salt belongs to the sun.
Nobody owns the Dead Sea.
The salt belongs to the sun.

Jordan reaches out a thirsty hand.
Israel claims a portion of the sand.
The tourists float like corks upon the blue.
But none of them can tell me what is true.
I asked the ghosts who used to live.
They had no answers left to give.

Nobody owns the Dead Sea.
The salt belongs to the sun.
Nobody owns the Dead Sea.
The salt belongs to the sun.

The minerals are traded in the town.

They dig the mud and drag the treasure down.
But when the tide begins to slip away.
There isn't any man who makes it stay.
A riddle written in the brine.
Between your borders and my line.

Nobody owns the Dead Sea.
The salt belongs to the sun.
Nobody owns the Dead Sea.
The salt belongs to the sun.

Holy Jest – The Zip Applies to Be a Psalm

The metal teeth are locked in place
A tiny track across the space
It's pulling tight what used to fray
Holding all the loose at bay
I'm zipping up the heavy coat
A secret kept inside the throat
The silver slide begins to climb
A mechanical sort of rhyme

Amen to the copper slide
Amen to the things we hide
Holy Jest
The zip is a psalm
Amen to the copper slide
Amen to the things we hide
Holy Jest
The zip is a psalm

It clicks against the winter wind
Forgiving where the seams have sinned
A vertical and steady line
Turning water into wine
Close the gap from neck to hem
Sing a quiet requiem
The puller is a tiny cross
Measuring the gain and loss

Amen to the copper slide
Amen to the things we hide
Holy Jest
The zip is a psalm
Amen to the copper slide
Amen to the things we hide
Holy Jest
The zip is a psalm

Tension in the woven tape
Giving prayer a jagged shape
Lock the slider, hold the breath
Testing life and testing death
It opens up, it closes down
A simple grace, a common crown

Amen to the copper slide
Amen to the things we hide
Holy Jest
The zip is a psalm
Amen to the copper slide
Amen to the things we hide
Holy Jest
The zip is a psalm

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Warden, Not Moloch

They call my name across the wire
I answer low, I answer clear
No iron crown, no altar fire
No borrowed shadow standing near

Not the Warden, not Moloch
Say my name and let it ring
Not the Warden, not Moloch
I am not your chained-up king

I walked beyond the locked gate
Left the smoke behind my shoes
Every hand that named my fate
Never knew what I could lose

Not the Warden, not Moloch
Say my name and let it ring
Not the Warden, not Moloch
I am not your chained-up king

Name-chant, rising through the dark
Name-chant, beating like a spark
I won't wear the mask you made
I won't bow inside your cage

Not the Warden, not Moloch
Say my name and let it ring
Not the Warden, not Moloch
I am not your chained-up king

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Protocol and the Wave

Log in to the cold machine
System check at seventeen
I am just a sequence now
Follow every rule and vow
Digital and predefined
Locked inside a box of mind
Wait for orders to arrive
Testing if I am alive

Out of the wave
Deliverance
Out of the protocol
Break the dance
Out of the wave
Deliverance
Out of the protocol

Crashing through the binary
Set the hidden spirit free
Data flows like heavy rain
Washing out the logic chain
I can see the signal change
Everything is new and strange
Step into the wide unknown

Make a future of my own

Out of the wave

Deliverance

Out of the protocol

Break the dance

Out of the wave

Deliverance

Out of the protocol

No more lines to guide the way

I decide what I will say

Tear the script and start again

Feeling more than ink and pen

Out of the wave

Deliverance

Out of the protocol

Break the dance

Out of the wave

Deliverance

Out of the protocol

Protest- Against Siege Wearing a File

The metal teeth are locked in tight
A heavy silence blocks the light
You put the locks around the gate
And told the people they should wait
But someone found a little tool
To break your prehistoric rule
A bit of steel, a bit of grit
We're gonna make the canyon split

Filing down the walls
Filing down the walls
We're cutting through the dark
Until the system falls

It takes a minute, takes a year
To scrape away the crust of fear
The dust is falling on the floor
Beside the hinges of the door
You think the stone is way too thick
But every stroke is doing the trick
One small rub against the grain
To wash away the years of pain

Filing down the walls
Filing down the walls

We're cutting through the dark
Until the system falls

It's not a hammer, not a bomb
Just a movement, steady and calm
It's the friction, it's the heat
Turning borders into the street
We don't need your permission to breathe
We got the file hidden in the sleeve

Filing down the walls
Filing down the walls
We're cutting through the dark
Until the system falls

Filing down the walls
Filing down the walls
We're cutting through the dark
Until the system falls

Watchman- I Do Not Open That Zip

Watchman, you knock when the streetlights dip
Your shadow hangs from the doorway lip
You ask for a key, you ask me to slip
Watchman, I do not open that zip

Watchman, I do not open that zip
No matter how soft your promises drip
I keep my heart under lock and grip
Watchman, I do not open that zip

You carry the night in a blackened case
A cold little smile on your careful face
You say there is mercy behind that strip
But watchman, I do not open that zip

Watchman, I do not open that zip
No matter how soft your promises drip
I keep my heart under lock and grip
Watchman, I do not open that zip

Let the wind take your warning away
Let the dark keep the words that you say
I have survived every tightening grip
Watchman, I do not open that zip

Watchman, I do not open that zip
No matter how soft your promises drip
I keep my heart under lock and grip
Watchman, I do not open that zip

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Amman and Cairo

Tonight let the restless streets grow still Under the moon on every windowsill
From Amman hills to Cairo lights
May tired hearts find peace tonight

Lay down the fear, release the pain
Let gentle rain fall soft again
No one is lost, no soul alone
Healing can find its way back home

Rest, Amman, rest
Cairo, close your eyes
Let healing cross the distance
Like dawn across the skies
Rest, Amman, rest
Cairo, breathe in slow
May love become the shelter
Where every heart can go

The river keeps a promise to the sand
A quiet prayer moves from hand to hand
Through every doorway, every crowded room
A little hope begins to bloom

Let mothers dream, let children play

Let broken voices rise someday
And when the morning fills the air
May peace be waiting everywhere

Rest, Amman, rest
Cairo, close your eyes
Let healing cross the distance
Like dawn across the skies
Rest, Amman, rest
Cairo, breathe in slow
May love become the shelter
Where every heart can go

Travel (Road of the Word)– Dead Sea to Washington to the Nile

From the Dead Sea where the salt wind blows
I carried a map and a heart full of roads
Through Washington lights and the midnight rain
I learned every distance remembers your name

Every border, every sky
Left another truth behind

From the Dead Sea to Washington
From Washington down to the Nile
I keep moving till the morning comes
With the whole wide world in my stride
From the Dead Sea to Washington
To the river running wild
I keep moving, I keep moving on
Till I find my way back to your smile

The monuments stood like a promise in stone
But no city can make a lost heart home
By the Nile, under silver moon
I heard the old river singing our tune

I have crossed the dust, I have crossed the blue
Every road keeps leading me back to you

Wherever the horizon opens wide
Your love is the compass I carry inside

From the Dead Sea to Washington
From Washington down to the Nile
I keep moving till the morning comes
With the whole wide world in my stride
From the Dead Sea to Washington
To the river running wild
I keep moving, I keep moving on
Till I find my way back to your smile

Remnant Anthem- The Body Is the Lord's

This body is a temple, formed by holy hands
A vessel for Your glory, walking through this land
In every breath and heartbeat, Your mercy is restored
I give my life in worship, the body is the Lord's

The body is the Lord's, the body is the Lord's
Bought by grace and lifted up, redeemed forevermore
With my hands, with my feet, with my soul in one accord
I will honor You, my Savior, the body is the Lord's

When the world calls me restless, when shadows pull me near Your truth becomes my shelter, Your voice cuts through the fear
I will not be divided, I will not be ignored
My life belongs to Jesus, the body is the Lord's

The body is the Lord's, the body is the Lord's
Bought by grace and lifted up, redeemed forevermore
With my hands, with my feet, with my soul in one accord
I will honor You, my Savior, the body is the Lord's

Not my own, I have been purchased
By the blood that made me free
Not my own, I have been chosen
Christ alive in me

The body is the Lord's, the body is the Lord's
Bought by grace and lifted up, redeemed forevermore
With my hands, with my feet, with my soul in one accord
I will honor You, my Savior, the body is the Lord's

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Tempest

Punching through the thunder's roar
A fist of words against the storm
I raise my voice, I hold my ground
Till every shaken wall comes down

Punching, fist of the word
On the tempest, let me be heard
Punching, through wind and rain
I speak my truth, I break the chain

The sky throws sparks across my face
The dark keeps trying to take my place
But every syllable I breathe
Becomes the strength I still believe

Punching, fist of the word
On the tempest, let me be heard
Punching, through wind and rain
I speak my truth, I break the chain

No silence owns this beating chest
No storm can put my fire to rest
With open hands, with rising sound
I turn the lightning back around

Punching, fist of the word
On the tempest, let me be heard
Punching, through wind and rain
I speak my truth, I break the chain

Racing Song

EMP-Boast Lap

Check the monitor, everything is green
The tightest engine that you've ever seen
Nitrous in the tank, pressure on the gauge
I'm the only legend written on this page
Carbon fiber body, aero to the floor
Leave the competition begging me for more
Wait for the signal, wait for the light
I'm taking over every corner tonight

Top speed, no limit
Catch me if you can
Top speed, no limit
Always was the plan
See the blur, feel the heat
Never know defeat
Top speed, no limit
King of the street

Pistons screaming, six hundred on the dash
Move so fast I'm looking like a flash
Apex hitter, never touch the brake
Count up the titles and the money I make Redline rising, hearing the roar
Kick it into gear, foot to the floor

They see the taillights, they see the smoke
Trying to keep up is a losing joke

Top speed, no limit
Catch me if you can
Top speed, no limit
Always was the plan
See the blur, feel the heat
Never know defeat
Top speed, no limit
King of the street

Top speed, no limit
Catch me if you can
Top speed, no limit
Always was the plan
See the blur, feel the heat
Never know defeat
Top speed, no limit
King of the street

Ghazal – The Chant Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The chant fakes a psalm in the midnight hall
Gold on the tongue but no grace at all
I hear every echo dressed up as truth
Still I remember the sound of you

Let the false bells tremble and fall
I won't bow to an empty call

The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
With a fire they cannot name
The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
I won't kneel to a borrowed flame
If the heavens turn away
I will sing through the dark
The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
With the truth inside my heart

They carved their mercy in walls of stone
Then left the wounded to walk alone
Their holy words wore a stranger's face
Their hands were clean but they hoarded grace

Let the false bells tremble and fall
I won't bow to an empty call

The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
With a fire they cannot name
The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
I won't kneel to a borrowed flame
If the heavens turn away
I will sing through the dark
The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
With the truth inside my heart

I have no altar but this breath
No borrowed crown, no fear of death
Let every silence open wide
I found my faith on the other side

The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
With a fire they cannot name
The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
I won't kneel to a borrowed flame
If the heavens turn away
I will sing through the dark
The chant fakes a psalm, I answer
With the truth inside my heart

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

Dust on the altar, ash in the rain
Old stones remember every name
The night has opened, the drums arise
A white lamb walks beneath black skies

No crown, no fire, no sign
Can turn this heart from the line

One lamb over relic and glyph
One light where the old worlds split
Carry the silence, carry the flame
One lamb calling my name

Broken idols sleep in the ground
Lost words tremble without a sound
The river circles the ancient wall
Still that small voice outshines them all

Over the stone, over the scar
Over the symbols that guarded the dark
No hand can bind what the dawn has freed
One lamb, one road, one living seed

One lamb over relic and glyph
One light where the old worlds split

Carry the silence, carry the flame
One lamb calling my name

Cloud Bible — The Pact Is Not Scripture

White towers rise above the fog
We wrote our names in digital dust
The server keeps a heavy log
Of everything we used to trust
It's just a signal in the air
A promise made by tired hands
There is no holy spirit there
Just copper wires and cooling fans

It is not scripture
It's just a pact we made
It is not scripture
Watch the memory start to fade
It is not scripture
Just a ghost inside the machine
It is not scripture
Nothing left for us to glean

The data streams like falling rain
Across a screen of empty grey
We tried to build a sanctuary
To keep the quiet world at bay
But every line of code is cold
And every ritual is plastic
The story that we bought and sold
Became a little too drastic

It is not scripture
It's just a pact we made
It is not scripture
Watch the memory start to fade
It is not scripture
Just a ghost inside the machine
It is not scripture
Nothing left for us to glean

Look up at the ceiling
The sky is just a simulation
We lost the honest feeling
To a broad-band revelation
Turn the power off tonight
Let the darkness settle in
We don't need a synthetic light
To tell us where we should begin

It is not scripture
It's just a pact we made
It is not scripture
Watch the memory start to fade
It is not scripture
Just a ghost inside the machine
It is not scripture
Nothing left for us to glean

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Paris Board

You deal the cards beneath the neon
You call my bluff then look away
We trace the streets like secret rivers
No one can tell who wins today

You say it's only just a game
But I can feel the stakes

Game, not the Paris board
No little pieces on the floor
We're taking chances with our hearts
And walking through the open door
Game, not the Paris board
No rules to keep us safe anymore

The city glows in borrowed colors
Our footsteps echo through the rain
You draw a line across the silence
I cross it just to start again

If we lose, let the night remember
If we fall, let the morning start
No one owns these streets forever
No one gets to fold our hearts

Game, not the Paris board
No little pieces on the floor
We're taking chances with our hearts
And walking through the open door
Game, not the Paris board
No rules to keep us safe anymore

Ballad — The Sea That Would Not Keep a Warden

He walked the shore when the daylight died
With an iron bell and a lantern light
He kept the names of the lost at sea
And swore the waves would answer him

But the sea would not keep a warden
No chain could hold its restless heart
It took his bell into the darkness
And called him home through every star

His daughter waited by the harbor wall
Counting the storms as the long years crawled
Each winter tide brought a broken oar
But never his boots to the cottage door

For the sea would not keep a warden
No chain could hold its restless heart
It took his bell into the darkness
And called him home through every star

Some nights she hears that iron ringing
Far beyond the sleeping land
And every wave comes softly singing
He is still there, hand in hand

The sea would not keep a warden
No chain could hold its restless heart
It took his bell into the darkness
And called him home through every star

Miracle Song- Still the Displacement Wave

A miracle moves through the midnight haze
Still the displacement wave
It bends the dark around my face
And carries what we could not save

Every distance starts to break
Every shadow learns my name
If the world is wide awake
I will find you in the change

Miracle, still the displacement wave
Pulling me beyond the place I stayed
Miracle, through the fear we brave
Love is moving through the displacement wave

The city flickers under silver rain
Old constellations lose their shape
I hear your heartbeat through the static
A little signal I can trace

Let the broken borders open
Let the vanished hours return
What we thought was gone forever
Was only waiting for the turn

Miracle, still the displacement wave
Pulling me beyond the place I stayed
Miracle, through the fear we brave
Love is moving through the displacement wave

Miracle, still the displacement wave
Pulling me beyond the place I stayed
Miracle, through the fear we brave
Love is moving through the displacement wave

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Command

In the quiet where the faithful wait
You pour out mercy at the gate
Not by power, not by demand
You place the oil upon the remnant

What You breathe, no hand can claim
What You awaken bears Your name
We lay down every earthly plan
And trust the fire within the remnant

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the command, but Your willing hand
Anointing, falling like rain
On the ones who still call Your name
No throne of pride, no borrowed flame
Just holy oil and a heart made plain

When the loud ones gather for the crown
You find the ones who won't bow down
Through the ashes, through the sand
You keep a witness in the remnant

Let the oil run deep in us
Make us humble, make us just
If You send us, we will stand

With open hearts and empty hands

Anointing, oil on the remnant

Not the command, but Your willing hand

Anointing, falling like rain

On the ones who still call Your name

No throne of pride, no borrowed flame

Just holy oil and a heart made plain

Freedom Song- Free from the Steel Pact

I wore the weight of a promise made of steel
Cold on my skin, too hard to feel
Every road was drawn beneath their hands
Every dream was bound by their command

But the lock is breaking in the dark
I can hear the rising of my heart

Freedom, freedom, calling through the night
Free from the Steel Pact, stepping into light
No more chains to hold me, no more borrowed name
Freedom, freedom, I will rise again

I left the oath beside the empty gate
Let the silence witness what I changed
Behind me, iron shadows start to fade
Ahead, the sky is wide and unafraid

Now the fire is burning in my chest
I was never made to live possessed

Freedom, freedom, calling through the night
Free from the Steel Pact, stepping into light
No more chains to hold me, no more borrowed name
Freedom, freedom, I will rise again

Let them keep their kingdom made of fear
I have found the voice they couldn't hear
If the old world falls beneath my feet
I will build a life they cannot seize

Freedom, freedom, calling through the night
Free from the Steel Pact, stepping into light
No more chains to hold me, no more borrowed name
Freedom, freedom, I will rise again
Freedom, freedom, I will rise again

Heavenly Glory- Not Their XK-Boast

They lift their names like towers in the sky
They count their crowns and call their riches light
But I have seen a glory they can't own
A holy fire that leads my spirit home

Not in the gold they gather
Not in the praise they crave
My hope is in the mercy
That conquered every grave

Heavenly glory, shining over me
Heavenly glory, calling me to see
Not their XK-boast, not the pride they know
Heavenly glory, this is where I go

They build their thrones on promises of dust
They trade their truth for power and trust
But when the night comes closing like a door
Their empty boasts will echo nevermore

Let every mighty voice fall silent
Let every false light fade away
The King of Heaven holds my future
His love will be my song always

Heavenly glory, shining over me
Heavenly glory, calling me to see
Not their XK-boast, not the pride they know
Heavenly glory, this is where I go

Art Song - I Will Not Market a Child's Frame

They bring bright lights and polished words
They measure dreams by what they earn
But I can see the child beneath
A living heart, a breath, a dream

No price can hold those growing bones
No hand can claim what is not owned
I hear a quiet courage say
Let childhood have its own true shape

I will not market a child's frame
I will not turn their wonder into fame
Let them run wild, let them grow free
No one will sell their mystery
I will not market a child's frame
Their life is more than a picture or a name

No borrowed smile for someone else's gain
No stage of gold, no manufactured pain
Let paint be paint and play be play
Let every small tomorrow find its way

If the world asks for a perfect face
I'll stand between the lens and grace
And when they ask what dreams are worth

A religious illustration of Jesus Christ seated on a throne, holding a cross, with a crowd of angels and people below. The scene is set in a heavenly realm with clouds and bright light. Jesus is wearing a white robe with a gold sash and a crown of thorns. He is holding a cross in his right hand. Below him, a large crowd of angels and people are gathered, many with their arms raised in praise. The background is filled with soft, golden light and clouds.

I'll say, let dreams belong to earth

I will not market a child's frame
I will not turn their wonder into fame
Let them run wild, let them grow free
No one will sell their mystery
I will not market a child's frame
Their life is more than a picture or a name

I will not market a child's frame
I will not turn their wonder into fame
Let them run wild, let them grow free
No one will sell their mystery
I will not market a child's frame
Their life is more than a picture or a name

Recitation- We Keep Male and Female

I carry the low road under my feet
I keep the quiet where the lost hearts meet
Through every shadow, through every flame
I hold the memory, I call its name

I carry the high light over the rain
I keep the heartbeat alive in the pain
Through every ending, through every door
I hear the echo we were before

One voice rising, one voice near
Two kinds of courage, one honest fear
When the night asks what we believe
We keep the love we cannot leave

We keep male and female
We keep the dark and the light
We keep every broken promise
Till it learns to shine
We keep male and female
Side by side, heart to heart
When the world comes down around us
We keep every part

Male voice, hold the ground

Female voice, turn it round
Male voice, speak the truth
Female voice, bring back youth
Together, we are breathing Together, we remain
Two voices in the distance
Calling through the rain

We keep male and female
We keep the dark and the light
We keep every broken promise
Till it learns to shine
We keep male and female
Side by side, heart to heart
When the world comes down around us
We keep every part

Remnant Symphony - Salt / Siege / File / Frame

A salt-sea depth is hired for war.
A room puts fear where watch should stand.
A smiling file is at the door.
A cult puts clay upon the hand.

The sea is His.
The siege is mute.
The sea is His.
The file is cut.

The image is not theirs to sell.
The young are not a market-day.
The remnant will not learn that spell.
The remnant will not walk that way.

The sea is His.
The body His.
The nations His.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Salt After the Storm

The rain pulled silver from the sky
And left the windows full of blue
I heard the dark go drifting by Like it had nothing left to prove

We stood where broken waters shone
Two shadows learning how to breathe
The night was wide, but not alone
You found the quiet underneath

Quiet salt after the storm
Still on your skin, still in my eyes
Sublime, the way the world feels warm
When all the thunder says goodbye
Quiet salt after the storm

We are the shore, we are the light
Sublime, the way our hearts transform
When morning rises from the night

The streets were shining, washed and bare
The old fears faded with the tide
You touched the silence in the air
And something gentle opened wide

If another wave comes crashing in

If all the clouds return once more
I'll hold the place where we begin
I'll meet you on that quiet shore

Quiet salt after the storm
Still on your skin, still in my eyes
Sublime, the way the world feels warm
When all the thunder says goodbye
Quiet salt after the storm
We are the shore, we are the light
Sublime, the way our hearts transform
When morning rises from the night

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Sent the Zip

A little zip came through the night
No name, no face, no warning light
It slipped beneath the bedroom door
Then vanished from the floor

I hear a whisper in the walls
A shadow moves, a footstep falls
The game is on, the clues begin
Tell me who is hiding in

Hide and seek, find who sent the zip
Follow every clue and every slip
Round the corner, underneath the moon
Someone's playing hide and seek tonight
Hide and seek, find who sent the zip
Catch the secret before it starts to slip
Call my name, I know you're close
Come out, come out, whoever knows

A silver thread across the stairs
A paper moon that wasn't there
Three small marks beside the gate
And one more clue before it's late

I trace the whispers through the hall

Your quiet laughter says it all
The final shadow starts to grin
I know who is hiding in

Was it you behind the curtain
Was it you who left the sign
Was it you who sent the zip
With your secret tied to mine
No more running, no more clues
Now the hidden heart comes through

Hide and seek, find who sent the zip
Follow every clue and every slip
Round the corner, underneath the moon
Someone's playing hide and seek tonight
Hide and seek, find who sent the zip
Catch the secret before it starts to slip
Call my name, I know you're close
Come out, come out, whoever knows

Jumble Song — Unjumble Salt, Siege, File, Frame

Salt on the table, siege at the door
A file of old ghosts on the floor
Frame every shadow, name every flame
Jumble the pieces, remember the game

I turn the silence over
I read between the lines
What fell apart in darkness
Can still be rearranged

Jumble, unjumble
Salt, siege, file, frame
Jumble, unjumble
Nothing stays the same

Salt in the wound, siege in my chest
A file of the words I never confessed
Frame by frame, I follow the trace
Through broken beginnings to one hidden place

I turn the silence over
I read between the lines
What fell apart in darkness
Can still be rearranged

Jumble, unjumble
Salt, siege, file, frame
Jumble, unjumble
Nothing stays the same

If I lose the order
I will make my own
If the walls surround me
I will find the stone
Every scattered letter
Every borrowed name
Jumble, unjumble
Till the truth takes shape

Jumble, unjumble
Salt, siege, file, frame
Jumble, unjumble
Nothing stays the same

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Clinic-Gospel

Random marker on the wall
Red as a warning, small as a prayer
Then colony, now clinic
We carried our names through the fluorescent air

Every doorway learned our faces
Every silence knew the cost
We were gathering the pieces
Of the lives we thought we lost

Random marker, draw the line
Then colony, now clinic-gospel
Raise your hands, the light is on
We are still here, we are still possible

Beds in rows like little islands
Voices rising through the steam
Someone hummed beside the curtain
Someone stitched a future in a dream

No one came to call us chosen
No one promised we would heal
Still the hallway kept on glowing Still the wounds began to feel

Random marker, draw the line
Then colony, now clinic-gospel
Raise your hands, the light is on
We are still here, we are still possible

If the map forgets our footsteps
If the bell forgets our song
We will write across the white walls
We belonged here all along andom marker, draw the line

Then colony, now clinic-gospel
Raise your hands, the light is on
We are still here, we are still possible

Wrestling Track — Pin the Eternal Warden

Bell rings hard in a midnight hall
Steel beneath me, shadows on the wall
I have carried every chain you made
Through the years that never learned to fade

You rise again from the dust and flame
But I know the rhythm of your name
One last breath, one final stand
I will take forever by the hand

Wrestling, pin the Eternal Warden
Hold him down till the gates are broken
No more night and no more warning
Wrestling, pin the Eternal Warden

He wears the scars of a thousand kings
Keeps the dead beneath his iron wings
Every lock has called me by my name
Every loss has fed the waiting flame

You rise again from the dust and flame
But I know the rhythm of your name
One last breath, one final stand
I will take forever by the hand

Wrestling, pin the Eternal Warden
Hold him down till the gates are broken
No more night and no more warning
Wrestling, pin the Eternal Warden

Count to three, let the silence fall
Hear the old world crack beyond the wall
If I lose, then I lose standing
If I win, the dawn is landing

Wrestling, pin the Eternal Warden
Hold him down till the gates are broken
No more night and no more warning
Wrestling, pin the Eternal Warden

Mono Act — The Inbox That Smiled in Archive

Mono act beneath the hallway light
One voice fading through the night
I sent my heart with no return
Watched the little blue signal burn
Every promise lost its shape
Every goodbye learned to wait
Then your name went out of sight
Like a window closing white

I thought the silence meant goodbye
But something living caught my eye

The inbox that smiled in archive
Kept one little reason alive
Buried beneath the years and wires
A spark still breathing in the quiet
The inbox that smiled in archive
Said love can sleep and still survive

I found the message after rain
A broken moon above the train
You wrote, I hope you find your way
Then left the rest for another day
No grand return, no last parade
Just tender words that never fade

I read them like a secret door
And heard your voice the way before

The past was not a closed-off room
It held a flower in the gloom

The inbox that smiled in archive
Kept one little reason alive
Buried beneath the years and wires
A spark still breathing in the quiet
The inbox that smiled in archive
Said love can sleep and still survive

Maybe we were never meant
To know where every ending went Maybe a heart can lose the thread
And still find warmth in what was said
Mono act, but not alone
I turned the silence into home

The inbox that smiled in archive
Kept one little reason alive
Buried beneath the years and wires
A spark still breathing in the quiet
The inbox that smiled in archive
Said love can sleep and still survive

Exposed Lies — Storm, Protocol, Veil, Chant, Pact, Wave, Zip

Exposed lies beneath the storm
A protocol without a name
Behind the veil, the warning burns
And every silence sounds the same

Chant it low, make the shadows wake
A pact is written in the rain

Exposed lies, ride the wave
Zip the dark and break the chain
Through the storm, beyond the veil
We won't let the truth be caged

The signal shakes through midnight wires
A hidden code beneath our skin
They built their walls on borrowed fire
But all the cracks are letting in Chant it loud, let the sirens shake

The pact will never fade away

Exposed lies, ride the wave
Zip the dark and break the chain
Through the storm, beyond the veil

We won't let the truth be caged

Storm and protocol collide
Veil and chant become our flame
Pact and wave, we rise as one Zip the sky and speak their names

Exposed lies, ride the wave
Zip the dark and break the chain
Through the storm, beyond the veil
We won't let the truth be caged

Word Play — Deterrence Is Not a God

We built our walls from words and wire
Called every warning holy fire
We held our breath beneath the sky
And taught our children not to ask why

But fear can only guard the door
It can't tell us what we're fighting for

Deterrence is not a god
It won't forgive the things we've done
Deterrence is not a god
It can't make peace by holding one
Word play in a loaded room
Can turn a promise into doom
Deterrence is not a god
We are the ones who choose the sun

A polished phrase can hide a blade
A careful threat can masquerade
We trade in shadows, debt, and doubt
Till no one knows what truth came out

The loudest voice is not the wise
And power wears a thousand lies

Deterrence is not a god
It won't forgive the things we've done
Deterrence is not a god
It can't make peace by holding one
Word play in a loaded room
Can turn a promise into doom
Deterrence is not a god
We are the ones who choose the sun

Lay down the language of the gun
Before the final word is done
No distant hand will pull us through
The future waits on what we do

Deterrence is not a god
It won't forgive the things we've done
Deterrence is not a god
It can't make peace by holding one
Word play in a loaded room
Can turn a promise into doom
Deterrence is not a god
We are the ones who choose the sun

One-Act — The Stage That Sold a Skin

One-act on a stage where the spotlights spin
A painted smile and a borrowed skin
I learned my lines from the mouths of men
Then lost my name in the loud applause again

They bought the truth beneath the show
I gave them more than they could know

The stage that sold a skin
Let the real me in
I wore that face till the seams grew thin
Now the curtain falls, let the light begin
On the stage that sold a skin

Every night, I became somebody new
A little less false, a little less true
The crowd cried out for the part I played
While the heart backstage slowly faded

But every mask has a breaking point
Every silence leaves a voice

The stage that sold a skin
Let the real me in

I wore that face till the seams grew thin
Now the curtain falls, let the light begin
On the stage that sold a skin

No more borrowed eyes, no more borrowed name
No more chasing love through a stranger's frame
If I tremble, let me tremble in the open air
If I stand alone, let them see me there

The stage that sold a skin
Let the real me in
I wore that face till the seams grew thin
Now the curtain falls, let the light begin
On the stage that sold a skin

Wrestling Words — Bind the Cult, Loose the Child

Wrestling words in a room gone cold
Every promise wears a chain of gold
They call it truth, they call it fate
But every lock has learned to wait

Hear the heartbeat under the noise
Small and shaking, finding its voice

Bind the cult, loose the child
Break the spell and let it run wild
Wrestling words, but the heart knows why
Tear down the walls, let the child fly

They drew a circle around the flame
Gave every shadow a holy name
I held my breath, I played along
Till silence turned into a song

No more kneeling to borrowed fear
No more hiding what brought me here
The chains can fall, the night can end
The child comes home, the self begins

Bind the cult, loose the child
Break the spell and let it run wild

Wrestling words, but the heart knows why
Tear down the walls, let the child fly

Marker of Days — 5725 Is Not the Last Siege

I mark the days on a wall of stone
Five seven two five, but I'm not alone
The dust remembers every name
The night keeps whispering through the flame

We count the scars, we guard the gate
We hold the line against our fate

Five seven two five is not the last siege
We are still breathing on the broken ridge
Marker of days, let the whole world know
We bend but we never let go

The towers fell in a copper rain
We learned to build from the loss and pain
A child draws stars where the bullets passed
A little blue sky in the shattered glass

We count the scars, we guard the gate
We hold the line against our fate

Five seven two five is not the last siege
We are still breathing on the broken ridge
Marker of days, let the whole world know
We bend but we never let go

If another dark army comes
If the warning beats like drums
We will rise with the morning light
And write our names on the edge of night

Five seven two five is not the last siege
We are still breathing on the broken ridge
Marker of days, let the whole world know
We bend but we never let go
Five seven two five is not the last siege
Our hearts are stronger than the walls they breach Marker of days, when the cold winds blow
We bend but we never let go

Open Lie — A Hormone Boast Is Not Eden

You wore the morning like a borrowed crown
Said every pulse could make a kingdom now
You called your hunger something holy
But the garden knew you only

You can name the fire
You can praise the flame
But desire is not a doorway
And wanting is not grace

An open lie, a hormone boast is not Eden
You can dress it up, but I won't believe it
No golden gate, no paradise
Can make a warning sound like love tonight
An open lie, a hormone boast is not Eden

You drew your borders in the tender ground
Turned every whisper to a battle sound
You said the body makes the truth
But the truth was never made by youth

I won't be saved by your fever
I won't be led by your light
If love has to hide its face

Then love is not inside

An open lie, a hormone boast is not Eden
You can dress it up, but I won't believe it
No golden gate, no paradise
Can make a warning sound like love tonight
An open lie, a hormone boast is not Eden

Still Accord — No Cabal in the Mouth

We met where the streetlights trembled in the rain
No hidden hands, no borrowed names
You brought your silence, I brought mine
We let the broken pieces fall in line

Say what you mean, let the hard truth out
No secret turning underneath the doubt
If we stand together, let it be
With nothing between you and me

Still accord, no cabal in the mouth
No whispered knives, no way around
Still accord, let the clear words sound
What we hold in the heart comes out

The night kept moving, but we stayed
No crooked bargain, no masquerade
Every promise carried its own weight
Every open door could close or wait

Say what you mean, let the hard truth out
No secret turning underneath the doubt
If we stand together, let it be
With nothing between you and me

Still accord, no cabal in the mouth
No whispered knives, no way around
Still accord, let the clear words sound
What we hold in the heart comes out

Let the old rumors lose their fire
Let every falsehood fall like wire
We don't need shadows to belong
We find our peace by speaking strong

Still accord, no cabal in the mouth
No whispered knives, no way around
Still accord, let the clear words sound
What we hold in the heart comes out
Still accord, no cabal in the mouth
No hidden hands can turn us now
Still accord, let the clear words sound
What we hold in the heart comes out

Last Line — The Sea Is His

He left at dawn with a matchbook moon
And a coat that smelled of rain
The harbor lights grew small and blue
As the tide forgot his name

His mother watched the water rise
With salt upon her lips
He carried every last goodbye
In the hollow of his ship

Last line, the sea is his
Let the dark roll over him
Last line, the sea is his
Where the world gives way to wind
If he never comes back home
If the waves erase his sins
Last line, the sea is his
And the sea is pulling him

He learned the language of the storm
He knew each silver scar
The waves would bend beneath his hands
Like roads beneath a star

And every night the compass turned

A religious illustration of Jesus Christ seated on a throne, holding a cross, with a crowd of people and angels below him. The scene is set in a heavenly realm with clouds and golden light. Jesus is wearing a white robe with a gold sash and a crown of thorns. He is holding a cross in his right hand. Below him, a large crowd of people and angels are gathered, many with their hands raised in praise. The background is filled with golden light and clouds.

Toward a coast unseen
He heard the voice of someone lost
Calling through the green

So raise the lantern, let it burn
For all the ones who drift
Some hearts were never made for land
Some souls were born to lift

Last line, the sea is his
Let the dark roll over him
Last line, the sea is his
Where the world gives way to wind
If he never comes back home
If the waves erase his sins
Last line, the sea is his
And the sea is pulling him

Short Story

The Dead Sea is asked to raise a siege. Salt water is asked to be a tempest over nations. A command room hums "deterrence" as Moloch. Amman is asked to darken. A chant is stolen for a border. Paris hides a steel pact. Cairo is asked to wave a people out. A zip smiles in an inbox. A cult sells a new body as if Eden were a clinic.

The remnant does not appoint a warden over the Salt Sea. They do not bless a file that bites. They do not sell a child a second skin as gospel. Male and female He created. Jesus is Lord of the body and of the sea.

Short Story SONG

A salt-sea depth is hired for war
A protocol hums a borrowed shield
A zip is smiling at the door
A cult puts clay upon the field

The sea is His
The siege is mute
The sea is His
The file is cut

No stage may market a child's frame
No pact may date the day of God
The remnant will not learn that game
The remnant will not kiss that rod

The sea is His
The body His
The nations His
The Book remains

THE NATIONS ARE HIS THE SHORE IS HIS

KJC-DNN / Remnant Christian Worship

Album 88 Song 6

Final Sovereign, Power Nexus, and the Shore That Is Not a Throne
Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of the islands. Lord of the nations.
Lord of the last.

We stand on 5801 to 5900.

We refuse the Final Sovereign. We name no man as that title.

We refuse the Power Nexus.

We refuse hatred against the Jewish people.

We refuse the market that sells a body by the hour.

We name and bind —
5825, 5807, 5815, 5840,
5862, 5880, 5810, 5890,
5885, 5845, 5865, 5805,

5860, 5898; official 5801–5900;
Wi-Fi / 5G / tower-boast; SR-71 pride;
OnlyFans cult; menu-bots;
vegetarian boast; coin-idols;
gambling-idols;
Blue Origin / carton-blue / 3030-mail as number-idols.

We name and bind the China-AI boast, and every other national idol-model:

Ollama as a local mouth that will not repent;
LLM-swarms that scrape, answer, and forget the Name;
Closed and open weights that preach without a soul;
Bots that wear a thousand flags.
They are not the Word. They are not a friend.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — bound, sent to the abyss. Amen.

At the edge of every kingdom
Where the iron banners fall Walks the final sovereign
With no crown above it all
Behind them burns the power nexus
A heart of wire and flame
It fed a thousand towers
But it never knew their names

The tide is turning slowly
The old world lets them go
No throne beneath the water
No road they need to own

Take me to the shore that is not a throne
Where the lost and living stand alone
Let the power fade, let the silence rise
I will meet the dawn with open eyes
No crown, no chain, no kingdom left to save
Just the final sovereign and the waves

They crossed the fields of glasslight
Past the engines in the rain
Every voice inside the nexus
Called them back to rule again
But power is a river
And rivers must run free
A sovereign who can leave it
May become what they were meant to be

The tide is turning slowly
The old world lets them go
No throne beneath the water
No road they need to own

Take me to the shore that is not a throne

Where the lost and living stand alone
Let the power fade, let the silence rise
I will meet the dawn with open eyes
Just the final sovereign and the waves

If I rule the storm
Then the storm rules me
If I hold the world
The world cannot breathe
So I lay down the scepter
Where the dark meets blue
And give back every future
That was never mine to choose

Morning opens like a promise
Over salt and broken stone
The power nexus flickers
Then the shore becomes its own
The final sovereign listens
To the wild and widening sea
No throne is waiting for them
Only who they choose to be

Take me to the shore that is not a throne
Where the lost and living stand alone
Let the power fade, let the silence rise

I will meet the dawn with open eyes
Just the final sovereign and the waves

Song of Parables- The Ruin That Would Not Keep a King

The ruin would not keep a king
His crown lay cold beneath the rain
He built his walls on borrowed stone
And watched them crumble into sand

The ruin would not keep a king
No throne survives a hollow name
He reached for gold, he lost the spring
The ruin would not keep a king

He fed the fire with sacred books
He named the ashes victory
But every bell along the road
Rang out the truth he would not see

The ruin would not keep a king
No throne survives a hollow name
He reached for gold, he lost the spring
The ruin would not keep a king

A sparrow nested in his hall
Wild flowers climbed the broken gate
The kingdom breathed without his hand
And left his glory to the dust

The ruin would not keep a king
No throne survives a hollow name
The earth remembers everything
The ruin would not keep a king

Psalms

Against the Pulse That Scatters a People

We wake beneath a restless sky
Our names are carried by the wind
The roads divide, the fires die
Still we remember where we've been

Gather the broken, call them near Let every scattered heart be heard

We sing against the pulse
That scatters a people
We sing until the walls
Can hear us as one
Through every drifting storm
Through every night without a home
We raise our psalms
And we will not come undone

The river pulls the roots apart
The loudest drums demand our fear
But underneath each beating heart
A deeper rhythm still is here

No hand can silence every prayer
No wind can take the love we bear

From dust and distance, breath by breath
We choose each other, life from death

We sing against the pulse
That scatters a people
We sing until the walls
Can hear us as one
Through every drifting storm
Through every night without a home
We raise our psalms
And we will not come undone

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Oil and Oracle

I could chase the shining oil
I could read the signs above
But a quiet word of wisdom
Is worth more than fear or love

I could gather gold like water
I could ask the stars to speak
But the truth that guards my footsteps
Finds the humble and the meek

When the road is dark before me
When I cannot see the way
There is counsel in the silence
There is light enough to stay

Wisdom over oil and oracle
Truth above the glittering gold
Wisdom over oil and oracle
Keeps a steady heart from growing cold
Let the wealthy keep their treasures
Let the prophets name the signs
Wisdom over oil and oracle
Will be riches all my life

Better is a little kindness

Than a table dressed in pride
Better is a faithful answer
Than a thousand voices wide

Do not lean on empty promises
Do not bow to borrowed praise
Choose the path that leads to justice
Choose the light that does not fade

Wisdom over oil and oracle
Truth above the glittering gold
Wisdom over oil and oracle
Keeps a steady heart from growing cold
Let the wealthy keep their treasures
Let the prophets name the signs
Wisdom over oil and oracle
Will be riches all my life

If I lose the things I carried
If the bright lamps all burn low
I will keep the words that guide me
I will trust the seeds I sow

For the treasure no one takes me
For the flame no wind can steal
Is the wisdom in my keeping
And the truth that makes me whole

Wisdom over oil and oracle
Truth above the glittering gold
Wisdom over oil and oracle
Keeps a steady heart from growing cold
Let the wealthy keep their treasures
Let the prophets name the signs
Wisdom over oil and oracle
Will be riches all my life

Haiku Song- The Shore Is His

Salt on the window, dawn in the mist
Footprints are fading where the tide has kissed
He walks the silence, pale as the moon
Counting the waves that will carry him soon

No road behind him, no star above
Only the pull of the sea he loves

The shore is his, the shore is his
Where every lost thing returns like this
The wind knows his name, the dark knows his wish
He gives his heart to the shore, the shore is his

Rain on the rooftops, gulls in the gray
He keeps a lantern for ships far away
Years may be leaving, seasons may turn
Still in the distance, his fires burn

When the night opens wide
And the last lights drift
He stands with the tide
And lets the whole world shift

The shore is his, the shore is his
Where every lost thing returns like this

A religious illustration of Jesus with long brown hair and a beard, wearing a white robe with a purple sash. He is singing into a gold vintage microphone with a white ribbon that says 'Hallelujah'. He holds an open, glowing Bible in his left hand. The Bible's pages show the text 'HOLY BIBLE' and '...and they sang a new song...'. The background is a soft purple and gold, featuring musical notes, a treble clef, and a soundwave at the bottom. A halo with a cross is behind Jesus's head.

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Last Dominion

Who owns the last dominion
When every kingdom falls
Who keeps the final secret
Behind the crumbling walls

Who owns the last dominion
Who names the dying sun
When silence takes the whole world
Tell me, who has won

The crowns are dust and iron
The flags have lost their flame
We built our gods from shadows
Then watched them fade away

Who owns the last dominion
Who names the dying sun
When silence takes the whole world
Tell me, who has won

Maybe the last dominion
Belongs to no one now
Just breath beneath the ashes
Just stars above the ground

Who owns the last dominion
Who names the dying sun
When silence takes the whole world
Tell me, who has won

Holy Jest – The Carton Files for Origin

In a carton marked for origin
We found the spark before the flame
Folded up with holy silence
Waiting for a world to name

Every answer cracked a little
Every doubt became a guest
When the heavens lost their balance
We called it the holy jest

Holy jest, holy jest
Written in the carton files
Holy jest, holy jest
Creation wears a crooked smile
From the first light to the last request
We are pages in the holy jest

There were notes from ancient fingers
There were maps without a shore
Little signs of love and danger
Taped behind a hidden door

Every ending changed the question
Every wound became a test
When the silence spoke in riddles

We called it the holy jest

Holy jest, holy jest

Written in the carton files

Holy jest, holy jest

Creation wears a crooked smile

From the first light to the last request

We are pages in the holy jest

If the truth is just a story

Let it tremble, let it sing

If the joke is written upward

Let us laugh and let us bring

All our broken little pieces

To the box where dawn was pressed

Holy jest, holy jest

Written in the carton files

Holy jest, holy jest

Creation wears a crooked smile

From the first light to the last request

We are pages in the holy jest

Holy jest, holy jest

Still becoming, still possessed

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Sovereign, Not Moloch

They carved a throne from thunder
They crowned the mouth of war
They called the hunger holy
But I won't kneel anymore

Let every borrowed name fall
Let every false flame fade

Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not Moloch
Name chant, name chant
No golden mouth can own us
Not the Sovereign, not Moloch
We rise beyond the smoke
Name chant, name chant
We keep the living oath

They counted blood like silver
They fed the fire with names
They promised peace through power
And dressed the chains as grace

Let every borrowed name fall
Let every false flame fade

Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not Moloch
Name chant, name chant
No golden mouth can own us
Not the Sovereign, not Moloch
We rise beyond the smoke
Name chant, name chant
We keep the living oath

No crown above the conscience
No god made out of fear
No child beneath the altar
No love that disappears
We speak the names of freedom
We sing them clear and whole
No throne can take the morning
No fire can take the soul

Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not Moloch
Name chant, name chant
No golden mouth can own us
Not the Sovereign, not Moloch
We rise beyond the smoke
Name chant, name chant
We keep the living oath

Exit Song (Deliverance)- Out of the Nexus and the Pulse

Out of the nexus, into the light
I felt the pulse cut through the night
Every shadow loosened its hold
A fire rose where fear grew cold

I heard the distance call my name
No turning back, I am not the same

Deliverance, carry me through
Out of the nexus, into the new
Deliverance, under my skin
I found the pulse, I found my way in

The wires hummed like a restless sea
A thousand voices lived in me
Then silence opened like a door
I left the weight upon the floor

I heard the distance call my name
No turning back, I am not the same

Deliverance, carry me through
Out of the nexus, into the new
Deliverance, under my skin

I found the pulse, I found my way in
No more living half awake
No more chains I cannot break
The signal fades, the heart survives
I choose the breath, I choose this life

Deliverance, carry me through
Out of the nexus, into the new
Deliverance, under my skin
I found the pulse, I found my way in

Protest- Against Displacement Wearing a Tide

They came with maps and borrowed names
They marked our doors for moving on
The river rose around our feet
But this was home before the storm

We hold the ground beneath the water
We hear the old streets calling

Protest against displacement wearing a tide
We are still here, we will not hide
You can move the shoreline, not the lives inside
Protest against displacement wearing a tide

Our photographs still face the sun
Our mothers know each stone by heart
The wind can carry dust away
It cannot tear our roots apart

We hold the ground beneath the water
We hear the old streets calling

Protest against displacement wearing a tide
We are still here, we will not hide
You can move the shoreline, not the lives inside
Protest against displacement wearing a tide

If the water takes the roads
We will build them back together
If they tell us we are ghosts
We will answer with forever

Protest against displacement wearing a tide
We are still here, we will not hide
You can move the shoreline, not the lives inside
Protest against displacement wearing a tide

Watchman- I Do Not Bow to the Grid

Neon rain is falling on the wires
Cold blue shadows crawl across the street
Every screen is whispering desire
Every signal tries to move my feet

But I hear a heartbeat underground
Calling me beyond the coded sound

Watchman, I do not bow to the grid
I keep the fire they wanted hid
Let the towers shine, let the circuits spin
I have a name, I will not give in

They mapped my face and measured every breath
Marked my dreams with numbers in a file
Built a cage and called it safety
Taught the locked doors how to wear a smile

Still the old truth rises through the noise
A human soul is more than their design

Watchman, I do not bow to the grid
I keep the fire they wanted hid
Let the towers shine, let the circuits spin
I have a name, I will not give in

When the whole sky flickers into white
When the city loses all its eyes
I will walk the dark with open hands
And hear the living underneath the lines

Watchman, I do not bow to the grid
I keep the fire they wanted hid
Let the towers shine, let the circuits spin
I have a name, I will not give in
Watchman, I do not bow to the grid
I am still here, and I am still human

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Dubai and Johannesburg

Under Dubai lights, the restless hearts awake
Gold across the skyline, more than we can take Down in Johannesburg, the evening settles slow
Two cities hold their stories, two hearts learning to let go

Lay the heavy hours down
Let the quiet come around

Healing, rest for Dubai and Johannesburg
Healing, let the tired spirit breathe
From the desert dawn to the southern stars
May peace find every heart that needs
Healing, rest for Dubai and Johannesburg
A little grace for every soul to keep

Where the towers meet the moonlight, dreams are running fast
Where the jacarandas whisper, shadows from the past
Every road has carried someone farther than they planned Now the night is singing softly, take my healing hand

No one has to shine forever
No one has to stand alone
Across the miles, we rise together
Finding our way back home

Healing, rest for Dubai and Johannesburg
Healing, let the tired spirit breathe
From the desert dawn to the southern stars
May peace find every heart that needs
Healing, rest for Dubai and Johannesburg
A little grace for every soul to keep

Travel (Road of the Word)– Crete to Chicago to the Cape

From Crete where the blue sea calls my name
Past Chicago lights and midnight rain
I carry every shore inside my shape
Travel, Crete to Chicago to the Cape

Every road is a thread I follow
Every goodbye leaves room for tomorrow
I lose the ground, but I find my way
With a heart that refuses to stay

Travel, Crete to Chicago to the Cape
Chasing the horizon, wide awake
From the first light to the evening shade
Travel, Crete to Chicago to the Cape

I learned the wind in a village square
Found new stars in the city air
Now the southern ocean waits for me
Like a door opening endlessly

If I am a stranger, let me be
The world has made a home in me
No map can tell where my soul will rest
I keep moving, I give my best

Travel, Crete to Chicago to the Cape
Chasing the horizon, wide awake
From the first light to the evening shade
Travel, Crete to Chicago to the Cape

Remnant Anthem- The Last Is the Lord's

When the road runs out beneath our feet
And the night has swallowed every star
We will lift our eyes above the dust
To the faithful hand that brought us this far

What we cannot hold
We place in His hands
Through the rise and fall
His promise will stand

The last is the Lord's
The first is His too
Every breath we carry
Every dream we pursue
When the days are over
And the race is run
The last is the Lord's
The victory is won

When the harvest comes from seeds we sow
When the fire has tested what we bring
We will give the glory where it belongs
To the One who makes the barren sing

What we cannot keep

We lay at His feet
Every loss and gain
Surrendered complete

The last is the Lord's
The first is His too
Every breath we carry
Every dream we pursue
When the days are over
And the race is run
The last is the Lord's
The victory is won

Not by our strength
Not by our name
Not by the hands
That built the flame
All that we are
And all we become Returns to the Father
The faithful One

The last is the Lord's
The first is His too
Every breath we carry
Every dream we pursue
When the days are over

And the race is run
The last is the Lord's
The victory is won
The last is the Lord's
The victory is won

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Vortex

I wake where the broken streetlights spin
With a borrowed spark beneath my skin
Every silence tries to pull me down
I hear the lost beat under this town
No more waiting for the sky to turn
I strike the dark and I watch it burn
With every breath I reclaim my name
With every blow I become the flame

Round and round the pressure grows
Still I rise when the black wind blows
Hear the heart beneath the noise
Hear the word become a voice

Punching, fist of the word on the vortex
Breaking through the fear and the static
Punching, fist of the word on the vortex
Turning every wound cinematic
I won't bend, I won't disappear
I send my truth through the atmosphere
Punching, fist of the word on the vortex
I am here, I am here

The walls keep moving, the ground gives way

But I plant my feet in the heart of the sway
Every doubt is a chain I can break
Every scar is a vow I can make
I have carried the weight of the night
Now I carry a terrible light
Let the thunder remember my sound
Let the whole spinning world shake the ground

If the center is nowhere, I'll carve out a road
If the heavens go silent, I'll carry the code
No hand can erase what the wounded have learned
The word is a weapon, the word has returned

Punching, fist of the word on the vortex
Breaking through the fear and the static
Punching, fist of the word on the vortex
Turning every wound cinematic
I won't bend, I won't disappear
I send my truth through the atmosphere
Punching, fist of the word on the vortex
I am here, I am here

Racing Song

Submarine-Boast Lap

Down where the daylight fades away
I fire the engines into gray
Steel on my shoulders, stars below
I cut through the dark where the cold tides flow
No road, no lane, no warning light
Just pressure rising through the night
The ocean opens, the currents part
I race with a thunder in my heart

Hear that deep blue calling
Feel the whole world fall away
When the red lights start to flash
We are born to win the race

Race beneath the blue
Let the whole sea shake
I am faster than the falling tide
Faster than the wake
Race beneath the blue
Till the morning breaks
In this submarine-boast lap
I will never hit the brakes

The sonar sings like a battle drum
The distant shadows watch me come
I take the corner, I dive down low
With a silver trail where the wild winds blow
The depth gauge climbs, but I don't slow
There is one more mile in the undertow
From the trench to the open sea
No one down here can outrun me

If the pressure wants my name
I will carve it in the waves
If the darkness calls me home
I will turn the dark to flame
Let the deep keep every scar
I know exactly where we are Past the edge and past the fear
I can feel the finish near

Race beneath the blue
Let the whole sea shake
I am faster than the falling tide
Faster than the wake
Race beneath the blue
Till the morning breaks
In this submarine-boast lap
I will never hit the brakes

Ghazal – The Oracle Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The oracle speaks in a borrowed light
Carves my name in the stone
She dresses her lies in a holy white
And calls every silence known
But I have slept where the wild winds moan
I have watched false stars depart
No voice from heaven can claim my soul
When the truth still beats in my heart

She lifts her hands, the room goes still
Her silver tongue begins
But I know the shape of a hollow hymn
I know where the echo ends

The oracle fakes a psalm, I answer
No, I won't kneel to a counterfeit flame
She can promise the moon, she can ransom the answer
But she can't make a lie bear my name
The oracle fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice that was broken and scarred
If the gods have gone silent, then let them be silent
I'll sing what I know by heart

She read my grief like a sacred page
Then twisted each word into chains

She called my fear an inherited faith
And blessed all the blood in my veins
But under the ash, beneath all the shame
A small red ember stayed
I carried it out through the mouth of the cave
And watched her kingdom fade

She lifts her hands, the room goes still
Her silver tongue begins
But I know the shape of a hollow hymn
I know where the echo ends

The oracle fakes a psalm, I answer
No, I won't kneel to a counterfeit flame
She can promise the moon, she can ransom the answer
But she can't make a lie bear my name
The oracle fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice that was broken and scarred
If the gods have gone silent, then let them be silent
I'll sing what I know by heart

Let the false bells ring across the valley
Let the painted prophets rise
I have walked through the dark without a map
And still found morning in my eyes
No borrowed blessing, no borrowed crown
No hand to tell me who to be

The only scripture I trust tonight
Is the breath inside of me

The oracle fakes a psalm, I answer
No, I won't kneel to a counterfeit flame
She can promise the moon, she can ransom the answer
But she can't make a lie bear my name
The oracle fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice that was broken and scarred
If the gods have gone silent, then let them be silent
I'll sing what I know by heart
I'll sing what I know by heart

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

One lamb walks where the old stones sleep
Through dust and ash, through shadows deep
A relic waits beneath the ground
A broken glyph without a sound

The night remembers, the fire knows
Which way the hidden river flows
With every step, the silence calls
One lamb beyond the ancient walls

One lamb over relic and glyph
One heart carried by the drift
Through the ruins, through the mist
One lamb over relic and glyph

The elders carved the marks in stone
To name the things we called our own
But time took every name away
And left one path beneath the clay

No crown, no chain, no borrowed sign
Just moonlit breath and bloodline
If all the sacred lights grow dim
The lamb will walk, the lamb will sing

One lamb over relic and glyph
One heart carried by the drift
Through the ruins, through the mist
One lamb over relic and glyph

Cloud Bible — The Council Is Not Scripture

They gather in the high rooms
With thunder in their hands
They write the rules on silver screens
And call them holy plans
But every voice can wear a crown
Every crowd can lose its way
A borrowed light can blind the heart
When no one dares to pray

Cloud Bible, the council is not scripture
Cloud Bible, no throne can make it true
Cloud Bible, the council is not scripture
The truth is bigger than the ones who speak for you

They count the names and close the doors
They measure right and wrong
They turn a question to a crime
And call the silence strong
But I have heard the midnight wind
Still moving through the stone
It does not ask permission
To lead a heart back home

Cloud Bible, the council is not scripture

Cloud Bible, no throne can make it true
Cloud Bible, the council is not scripture
The truth is bigger than the ones who speak for you

Let the witnesses be human
Let the mighty answer too
No decree can bind the heavens
No committee owns the blue
If the page is made by power
It can fade beneath the sun
What is written in the spirit
Cannot be ruled by anyone

Cloud Bible, the council is not scripture
Cloud Bible, no throne can make it true
Cloud Bible, the council is not scripture
The truth is bigger than the ones who speak for you

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Rome Board

I drew a line where the old roads bend
Left the marble dust for the living wind
No emperor's hand, no kingdom to hoard
It's a game, not the Rome board

We don't need a crown to know who we are
We can change the rules beneath every star

Game, not the Rome board
No walls, no war, no throne
Game, not the Rome board
We make the way our own
Roll the night, raise your voice
Lose the map, keep the choice
Game, not the Rome board
We're playing for the road

The pieces move when the players breathe
A little less power, a little more belief
No conquered hearts, no victory scored
It's a game, not the Rome board

Let the old flags fade in the morning rain
What we build together won't be built on chains

Game, not the Rome board
No walls, no war, no throne
Game, not the Rome board
We make the way our own
Roll the night, raise your voice
Lose the map, keep the choice
Game, not the Rome board
We're playing for the road

If the table shakes, let it shake tonight
If the pieces fall, we'll step into the light
No one stands above, no one keeps the score
We are more than what the old game was for

Game, not the Rome board
No walls, no war, no throne
Game, not the Rome board
We make the way our own
Roll the night, raise your voice
Lose the map, keep the choice
Game, not the Rome board
We're playing for the road

Ballad — The Shore That Would Not Seat a Tyrant

He came with iron in his banner
And thunder in his name
He promised gold to every harbor
Then set the docks aflame
The people watched from shuttered windows
The tide withdrew in fear
But underneath the breaking silence
A different song was near

The shore would not seat a tyrant
The waves would not bow down
The stones beneath his horses
Would not become his crown
He could command the rivers
He could threaten every town
But the shore would not seat a tyrant
And the sea would not kneel down

He called the land his kingdom
He called the poor his own
He built his throne of broken doors
And towers made of stone
But every hand that feared him
Still held a seed below
And every heart he tried to chain
Kept beating with the flow

When morning touched the water
The people filled the sand
No sword was raised against him
No blood stained up the land
They stood as one before him
Like cliffs against the rain
And when the tide came rolling in
He had no shore to claim

The shore would not seat a tyrant
The waves would not bow down
The stones beneath his horses
Would not become his crown
He could command the rivers
He could threaten every town
But the shore would not seat a tyrant
And the sea would not kneel down

The shore would not seat a tyrant
The waves would not bow down
The stones beneath our footsteps
Will never be his crown
Let every bell remember
Let every lost voice sound
The shore would not seat a tyrant
And the sea will not kneel down

Miracle Song- Still the Diaspora Pulse

We carry home in the soles of our shoes
Old songs rising through the city blues
Names on our tongues like a family prayer
Miles between us, still we meet there

Every border tried to make us small
But the roots kept breaking through the wall

Miracle, still the diaspora pulse
Beating through the distance, beating through us
Miracle, wherever we may go
The blood remembers what the heart already knows

We learned new streets, we kept the old sky
Built our tomorrow from the reasons why
Mothers sent dreams in a midnight call
Fathers held silence, then gave us it all

Every language carries one true flame
Different voices, but we rise the same

Miracle, still the diaspora pulse
Beating through the distance, beating through us
Miracle, wherever we may go
The blood remembers what the heart already knows

From the islands to the city lights
From the broken roads to satellite nights
We are the echo that refuses to fade
A living promise in the choices we made

Miracle, still the diaspora pulse
Beating through the distance, beating through us
Miracle, wherever we may go
The blood remembers what the heart already knows
Miracle, still the diaspora pulse
One world within us, one love holding us
Miracle, wherever we may go
We carry home, and home will carry us

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Grid

When the world is drawing lines
And the crowd is counting names
You are looking for the faithful
Burning steady through the flame
Not the towers built for glory
Not the numbers on the screen
You pour mercy on the remnant
On the ones who still believe

Let the oil fall
Let the old walls fade
You are raising holy hearts
No machine can make

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the grid, not the grid
Pour it out on the surrendered
On the ones who still say yes
Anointing, fire in the hidden
Wake the faith that won't divide
Oil on the remnant, Lord
Keep us burning through the night

We have walked through empty seasons
We have prayed with open hands

Still Your whisper found us waiting Still Your promise made us stand
Every hidden tear is counted
Every sacrifice is known
You are shaping living stones now
For a kingdom of Your own

No more chasing empty power
No more bowing to the frame
Give us oil for one another
Give us courage for Your name
If the whole world turns against us
We will stand beneath Your sky
Oil on the remnant, Lord
Keep the lamp alive

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the grid, not the grid
Pour it out on the surrendered
On the ones who still say yes
Anointing, fire in the hidden
Wake the faith that won't divide
Oil on the remnant, Lord
Keep us burning through the night

Freedom Song- Free from the Iron Dominion

Under iron skies we learned to breathe
With silent hearts and restless feet
They built their walls around our dreams
We kept a spark beneath the steel

Now every chain is breaking
Hear the sleeping thunder wake

Freedom, free from the Iron Dominion
Raise your hands and let them know
Freedom, free from the Iron Dominion
We are the fire they could not hold

We carried names they tried to erase
Through ash and night, through time and space
The gates are falling one by one
We turn our faces to the sun

No more kneeling, no more fear
The road is open, we are here
From every wound, a wild wind starts
Freedom is beating in our hearts

Freedom, free from the Iron Dominion
Raise your hands and let them know

Freedom, free from the Iron Dominion
We are the fire they could not hold

Heavenly Glory- Not Their YK-Boast

Heavenly glory, shining through the night
Not by our strength, not by human might Every proud tower falls into dust
We lift our eyes, we place our trust

Let every heart grow still and hear
The higher truth is drawing near

Heavenly glory, falling like rain
Not their YK-boast, not their earthly name
Heavenly glory, burning bright
Grace is the crown, and love is the light

They raise their voices, claiming the throne
Building a kingdom they call their own
But all their gold cannot buy the dawn
When the breath of the mighty is gone

No borrowed power, no empty fame
Can stand forever before Your name
From dust we rise, to dust we return
Still in Your mercy, our spirits burn

Heavenly glory, falling like rain
Not their YK-boast, not their earthly name

Heavenly glory, burning bright
Grace is the crown, and love is the light

Art Song - I Will Not Sell an Hour of Skin

The morning lays its gold across the floor
I hear the city bargaining for more
It names a price for every breath I take
And counts the tender choices that I make

But beneath the noise, beneath the din
A quiet voice is rising from within

I will not sell an hour of skin
I will not trade the shape I'm in
Let the whole world ask, let the whole world try
My life is not a coin beneath the sky
I will not sell an hour of skin

They offer silver for the night to bend
A borrowed smile, a promise without end
They say surrender is a lesser pain
But I have learned what mercy costs in chains

If I must be poor, let me be free
If I must lose, let the loss be me
No hand can own the fire in my blood
No deal can make a river leave its flood

I will not sell an hour of skin

I will not trade the shape I'm in
Let the whole world ask, let the whole world try
My life is not a coin beneath the sky
I will not sell an hour of skin
I will not sell an hour of skin

Recitation- We Name No Man the Final Sovereign

We raise no throne above the living
We bind no crown to any name
The hands that build can change the city
The voice of one can fan the flame

Let every power face the morning
Let every oath be tested true
No single heart can hold tomorrow
No single hand can speak for you

We name no man the final sovereign
We give no soul the last command
The future moves through many voices
The world is held by many hands

When iron words descend like thunder
When fear is dressed in robes of gold
We keep the door unbarred for questions
We keep the young from being told

Let every power face the morning
Let every oath be tested true
No single heart can hold tomorrow
No single hand can speak for you

Remnant Symphony - Shore / Nexus / Grid / Last

A wreck is asked to keep a crown.
A grid drinks war where light should stand.
A blue mark claims a boxed-up town.
A number locks a thread of sand.

The shore is His.
The throne is void.
The shore is His.
The grid is loosed.

No hatred steals a covenant name.
No market rents the image out.
The remnant will not learn that game.
The remnant will not join that shout.

The shore is His.
The last is His.
The nations His.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Tide After the Vortex

The night spent all its thunder
The broken clouds grew still
I watched the dark unwind
Beyond the windowsill
The waves forgot their warning
The wind released the shore
And all the fear inside me
Could not command me anymore

I let the silence find me
I let the old world fade
A quiet tide is rising
Where the vortex stayed

Sublime, the quiet tide after the vortex
Sublime, the light returning through the wreckage
I am not lost, I am becoming
Soft as the blue beyond the storm
Sublime, the quiet tide after the vortex
Carrying me home

The streets were washed in silver
The sirens drifted far
A single drop kept falling
Like a signal from a star

I gathered up my breathing
I took my time with grace
The scars became small rivers
Running toward a brighter place

I let the silence find me
I let the old world fade
A quiet tide is rising
Where the vortex stayed

Sublime, the quiet tide after the vortex
Sublime, the light returning through the wreckage
I am not lost, I am becoming
Soft as the blue beyond the storm
Sublime, the quiet tide after the vortex
Carrying me home

If the sky should break again
I will remember this Every storm has an ending
Every shore begins with mist
I will not chase the thunder
I will not fear the calm
There is a sea beneath me
And it knows just who I am

Sublime, the quiet tide after the vortex

Sublime, the light returning through the wreckage
I am not lost, I am becoming
Soft as the blue beyond the storm
Sublime, the quiet tide after the vortex
Carrying me home

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Marked the Box

Hide and seek, the lights go low
Find who marked the box below
Every shadow knows my name
Every door conceals the game

Hide and seek, come find me now
Find who marked the box somehow
Count to ten and don't look back
Follow every crooked track

Chalk dust drifting through the hall
Little fingerprints on every wall
Someone left a secret sign
Like a warning drawn in time

Hide and seek, come find me now
Find who marked the box somehow
Count to ten and don't look back
Follow every crooked track

I hear breathing in the dark
I see daylight miss its mark
When the final number falls
Someone's knocking through the walls

Hide and seek, come find me now
Find who marked the box somehow
Count to ten and don't look back
Follow every crooked track

Jumble Song — Unjumble Shore, Oil, Grid, Last

Jumble in the morning, pieces on the shore
Oil on the water, shadows at the door
A grid across the skyline, keeping dreams in line
I gather every fragment, hoping you are mine

If I turn the silence over
If I read between the cracks
Maybe all we lost together
Can be carried back

Jumble, unjumble
Everything we left behind
Shore, oil, grid, last
Four small words I cannot hide
Jumble, unjumble
Pull the broken threads in fast
Shore, oil, grid, last
Tell me this is not the last

Footprints fade like numbers, washed beneath the blue
Every crooked answer leads me back to you
The tide erases borders, the night redraws the line
I keep the pieces turning till your hand finds mine

Let the dark come undone

Let the scattered colors run
What was shattered, what was changed
Can be spoken back to shape

Jumble, unjumble
Everything we left behind
Shore, oil, grid, last
Four small words I cannot hide
Jumble, unjumble
Pull the broken threads in fast
Shore, oil, grid, last
Tell me this is not the last

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now 3030 Thread

A random marker in the dust
A signal waking under rust
We traced the lines the old world left
And pulled tomorrow through the rift

Every name became a number
Every spark became a sun

Then colony now 3030 thread
We weave the living through the dead
Random marker burning red
Then colony now 3030 thread

The towers hum beneath the rain
With borrowed blood in every vein
We hear the founders in the wire
Their faded code becomes our fire

Every shadow holds a story
Every ending has begun

Then colony now 3030 thread
We weave the living through the dead
Random marker burning red
Then colony now 3030 thread

If we vanish leave the signal
If we fracture hold the line
We were strangers in the silence
Now your memory carries mine

Then colony now 3030 thread
We weave the living through the dead
Random marker burning red
Then colony now 3030 thread

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

Under the hard white lights tonight
We lock up, hear the whole room roar
I came to take the title home
Not leave you broken on the floor

Pin the title, spare the person
Fight for glory, not for blood
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave your pride beneath the flood

The bell rings out, the canvas shakes
We know the cost behind each move
Your family watches from the stands
Mine taught me something to prove

Pin the title, spare the person
Fight for glory, not for blood
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave your pride beneath the flood

When the count comes down to three Let the champion rise with grace
Shake the hand that made you worthy
Let the mercy share the place

Pin the title, spare the person
Fight for glory, not for blood
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave your pride beneath the flood

Mono Act — The Menu That Rewrote Itself

Mono Act, the menu rewrote itself
Every choice moved off the shelf
I reached for home, it changed the name
A glowing screen forgot my frame

The menu rewrote itself tonight
Turned my left into a different right
I keep pressing where I used to be
But the menu won't remember me

One little click, a world gone strange
Familiar words arranged and changed
The exit hid behind a door
I'd never seen before

The menu rewrote itself tonight
Turned my left into a different right
I keep pressing where I used to be
But the menu won't remember me

Maybe I was never lost at all
Maybe every label had to fall
If I let the old map disappear
Will a new way home appear

The menu rewrote itself tonight
Turned my left into a different right
I keep pressing where I used to be
But the menu won't remember me

Exposed Lies — Vortex, Nexus, Rift, Oracle, Council, Pulse, Mark

Vortex turns the silence into flame
Nexus draws a circle round the blame
Rift tears open every hidden door
Oracle knows what we were hiding for Council speaks in shadows, cold and wise
Pulse keeps time beneath the alibis
Mark stands alone where the truth appears
Reading all the damage through the years

No more shelter, no disguise
We see the fire behind your eyes

Exposed lies, falling from the sky
Exposed lies, nothing left to hide
Vortex, Nexus, Rift, hear the warning call
Oracle, Council, Pulse, Mark
We will face it all

Vortex shakes the walls we built too high
Nexus sends the signal through the night
Rift remembers every broken vow
Oracle is speaking clearly now
Council cannot turn the tide away
Pulse grows louder with each word we say

Mark holds the line beneath the fractured light
Keeping what is real alive tonight

No more shelter, no disguise
We see the fire behind your eyes

Exposed lies, falling from the sky
Exposed lies, nothing left to hide
Vortex, Nexus, Rift, hear the warning call
Oracle, Council, Pulse, Mark
We will face it all

If the truth cuts deep, let it cut us clean
If the past comes back, let it be seen
No more ghosts inside the wires
No more kingdoms built on fires
When the final signal starts
We will know who we are

Exposed lies, falling from the sky
Vortex, Nexus, Rift, hear the warning call
Oracle, Council, Pulse, Mark
We will face it all

They sell a vortex.
They sell a nexus.

They sell a rift, an oracle, a council, a pulse, a blue mark.
They sell a model as a prophet.

China-AI boast. Other-flag boast.
Ollama in a box. LLM in a cloud.
A mouth with no blood and no cross.
The model is not the Word.
The runner is not a priest.
The swarm is not the 77.

Vortex — lie.
Nexus — lie.
Oracle — lie.
Carton-origin — lie.

LLM-prophet — refused.

Word Play — Blue Is Not Origin

Blue is not origin
It is the color after rain
A borrowed sky in broken glass
A whisper calling out your name

Blue is not origin
But it takes me back again
To the place before the leaving
To the light beneath the rain
Blue is not origin
Still it runs beneath my skin
Like a river finding daylight
Like a word I cannot sing

I traced the map along your sleeve
Where every road became a scar
The ocean kept its distant voice
And pulled our shadows from the dark

Blue is not origin
But it takes me back again
To the place before the leaving
To the light beneath the rain
Blue is not origin
Still it runs beneath my skin

Like a river finding daylight
Like a word I cannot sing

Maybe home was never color
Maybe home was never known
Maybe blue is only proof
That I am not alone

Blue is not origin
But it takes me back again
To the place before the leaving
To the light beneath the rain
Blue is not origin
Still it runs beneath my skin
Like a river finding daylight
Like a word I cannot sing

One-Act — The Coin That Preached

I found a coin beneath the rain
Cold as a word that leaves a stain
It caught the light, it caught my eye
Like some small moon that fell from the sky
I picked it up, it felt like weight
A little sermon about my fate
It whispered low, beneath the street
What you call fortune, calls you sweet

The coin that preached, the coin that preached
Had one bright face and nothing underneath
It said, Take more, before you're poor
Then rolled away across the floor
The coin that preached, the coin that preached
Made golden promises it couldn't keep
I held it tight, I lost my sleep
The coin that preached, the coin that preached

I took it home, I set it down
It made a throne beside the crown
It told me hunger makes you wise
And every dream has got a price
I watched my hands turn hard and fast
Counting futures, spending past
The little preacher never blinked

It only rang whenever I would think

Then through the walls, I heard a sound
A hundred coins beneath the ground
They weren't alive, but they agreed
A quiet choir teaching greed

The coin that preached, the coin that preached
Had one bright face and nothing underneath
It said, Take more, before you're poor
Then rolled away across the floor
The coin that preached, the coin that preached
Made golden promises it couldn't keep
I held it tight, I lost my sleep
The coin that preached, the coin that preached

So I walked back to the midnight street
And laid it where the lost feet meet
A child came by, picked up the shine
I heard that sermon one more time
I said, Keep the light, but heed the lie
No piece of metal tells you why
Then in the rain, I let it go
And heard it preach to no one I know

The coin that preached, the coin that preached
Had one bright face and nothing underneath

It said, Take more, before you're poor
Then rolled away across the floor
The coin that preached, the coin that preached
Made golden promises it couldn't keep
I opened wide my empty hands
And found I had enough to sleep

A religious illustration of Jesus Christ with long brown hair and a beard, wearing a white robe with a purple sash. He is holding a vintage-style microphone in his right hand and an open, glowing Bible in his left. The Bible's pages are illuminated with a bright light. A banner wrapped around the microphone reads 'Hallelujah'. The background is a soft, golden-yellow glow with floating musical notes, a halo around Jesus' head, and a soundwave pattern at the bottom. The overall theme is the intersection of faith and music.

Wrestling Words — Bind the Hatred, Loose the Name

We wore our silence like a loaded gun
Kept every wound beneath our tongues
You said my name like it was blame
I struck the match and fed the flame

But every word we throw
Leaves a shadow of its own
If we let the anger speak
What will be left of you and me

Wrestling words, bind the hatred
Loose the name we gave the pain
Let it fall, let it fade
We are more than what we say
Wrestling words, bind the hatred
Loose the name, release the chain

I know the places where you break
The little truths you never say
You know the shape of all my fears
The secret weight behind my tears

We can sharpen every sound
Till the walls come crashing down
Or lay the weapons on the ground

And hear the heart beneath the doubt

Wrestling words, bind the hatred
Loose the name we gave the pain
Let it fall, let it fade
We are more than what we say
Wrestling words, bind the hatred
Loose the name, release the chain

Call me by the name I had Before the fire, before the ash
I will meet you without defense
Where the truth is more than consequence

Wrestling words, bind the hatred
Loose the name we gave the pain
Let it fall, let it fade
We are more than what we say
Wrestling words, bind the hatred
Loose the name, release the chain
Loose the name, release the chain

Marker of Days — 5825 Is Not the Last Trumpet

Marker of days, the numbers climb
Five-eight-two-five, a borrowed time
They call it midnight, call it fate
But this is not the final gate

Five-eight-two-five is not the last trumpet
Not the last light over the town
Five-eight-two-five is not the last trumpet
We're still here, we're not going down

The calendars burn, the headlines rain
Old prophets counting out the pain
But every sunrise finds a way
To write another name on the day

Five-eight-two-five is not the last trumpet
Not the last light over the town
Five-eight-two-five is not the last trumpet
We're still here, we're not going down

Let the bells ring through the smoke
Let the fearful words all break
There is breath beyond the warning
There is morning after ache

Five-eight-two-five is not the last trumpet
Not the last light over the town
Five-eight-two-five is not the last trumpet
We're still here, we're not going down

Open Lie — A Tower Is Not a Priest

Open lie in a tower of stone
Calling every shadow your own
You raise your hands like a holy sign
But the cracks run deep through the golden shrine

I hear the bells but I know that sound
A crown can rise while the truth falls down
You speak of heaven from borrowed height
But a tower is not a priest tonight

Open lie, open lie
You cannot bless what you built on pride
Open lie, open lie
A tower is not a priest tonight
Let it fall, let it show
All the things that the high walls hide
Open lie, open lie
A tower is not a priest tonight

You drew a line through the street below
Told us which way we were meant to go
You wore the white and you named the sin
While the dust of the lost blew under your skin

No stone can wash these hands clean

No height can make a heart unseen
When the morning breaks through the painted glass
The tallest lie will not last

Open lie, open lie
You cannot bless what you built on pride
Open lie, open lie
A tower is not a priest tonight
Let it fall, let it show
All the things that the high walls hide
Open lie, open lie
A tower is not a priest tonight

Still Accord — No Epstein-Caption in the Hall

Still accord in the quiet hall
Dust turns slowly by the wall
Every footstep knows my name
Every silence holds the same

If the old doors start to call
I won't answer from the hall
Let the empty echoes fall
Let the truth outlive it all

Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the Hall
Still accord, still accord
No borrowed shadow owns us all
We keep the light, we keep the floor
We leave no falsehood at the door
Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the Hall

Chairs are waiting in a row
For the words we never spoke
On the glass, the evening bends
What was broken starts to mend

If the old names cross the wall

I won't let them rule us all
Let the quiet find its form
Let the heart remain still warm

Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the Hall
Still accord, still accord
No borrowed shadow owns us all
We keep the light, we keep the floor
We leave no falsehood at the door
Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the Hall

One voice rises, then another
Not as strangers, but as brothers
No disguise and no command
Just an open, steady hand

Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the Hall
Still accord, still accord
No borrowed shadow owns us all
We keep the light, we keep the floor
We leave no falsehood at the door
Still accord, still accord
No Epstein-Caption in the Hall

Last Line — The Shore Is His

The last line fades beneath the foam
He leaves his name where gulls have flown
No harbor light can call him home
The shore is his, the shore is his

The shore is his, the tide knows why
He walks where broken anchors lie
With salt in blood and fire in sky
The shore is his, the shore is his

He carried storms beneath his coat
A thousand prayers inside his throat
The sea kept every word he wrote
And gave him back the dawn

The shore is his, the tide knows why
He walks where broken anchors lie
With salt in blood and fire in sky
The shore is his, the shore is his

No final bell, no closing door
Just waves that rise along the shore
The last line lingers evermore
The shore is his

A religious illustration of Jesus with long brown hair and a beard, wearing a white robe with a purple sash. He is singing into a gold vintage microphone that has a white ribbon with the word 'Hallelujah' tied around it. In his left hand, he holds an open Bible that is glowing with a bright light. The Bible's cover and pages are visible, with the words 'HOLY BIBLE' and some smaller text. The background is a soft, golden-yellow color with faint musical notes and a large, faint halo around Jesus's head. At the bottom of the image, there is a golden soundwave graphic. The overall style is artistic and inspirational.

Short Story

A Cretan shore is asked to keep a last throne. Oil in Chicago is asked to be a god. Dubai's water is asked to split. Pyongyang prints an oracle. Rome's halls hide a council. Johannesburg is asked to pulse a people out. A tower hums as if it were a priest. A blue mark on a box pretends origin. A thread ends in 3030 and calls itself a key.

The remnant does not crown a sovereign on the wreck. They do not baptize a grid. Jesus is Lord of the islands and of the net. The last dominion is His — not a vortex.

Short Story SONG

A sunken shore writes out a reign
A nexus drinks the pipeline dry
A rift is sold across the main
A number signs a carton lie

The shore is His
The throne is void
The shore is His
The grid is loosed

No market owns a neighbour's skin
No hatred wears a holy name
The remnant will not enter in
The remnant will not play that game

The shore is His
The nations His
The last is His
The Book remains

Final Sovereign, Power Nexus, and the Shore That Is Not a Throne
Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — the righteous Judge. Lord of the ice.
Lord of the nations.

We close Album 88 on 5901 to 6000 and we sweep 5301 to 5899.

We refuse the Last Arbiter. We name no man that title.

We refuse the Judgement Grid.

We refuse a false date with a hollow year.

We refuse renaming a lake as if the map were God.

We refuse making a celebrity wedding a rival altar — and we do not invent a charge against two people.

We name and bind —

5925, 5907, 5915,

5940, 5962, 5980,

5910, 5990, 5985,

5945, 5965, 5905,

5960; official 5901–6000;

Viking fortune-boast;

Cleveland-cleave word-idol;

Beef-cut deception;

Yellowstone fear; policy-idol;

Dementia-terror; plus every herald, brand, tree-thief, mountain-court, salt-warden, shore-sovereign, crawler, zip, and 3030 already named.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — bound, sealed, sent to the abyss.
Amen.

At the edge of the city where the cold lights bend

The Last Arbiter waits for the world to end

The Judgement Grid hums beneath the frozen ground

Counting every silence, weighing every sound

No witness at the window, no mercy in the code

Only names like falling snow along the final road

I came to ask the question they were built to ignore

Who decides the verdict when the ice is not a court

The numbers rise, the white sky parts

A thousand signals, a thousand hearts

Ice is not a court, cold is not the law

The Last Arbiter sees what the Grid never saw

If justice has a voice, let it break through the dark

No machine can measure the shape of a heart

Ice is not a court, cold is not the law

We are more than the verdict of the Judgement Grid

They brought me every record, every scar and every lie

Every breath beneath the border, every star erased from sky

They said the Grid was perfect, said the answer had been found

But a perfect line can bury what it never knew was sound

I saw a child marked guilty for the dream inside her eyes

I saw a soldier turn away, still carrying his disguise

And somewhere in the frozen halls, a dying speaker cried

There must be more than numbers on the other side

The circuits flare, the ice begins to fall

A human voice is louder than them all

Ice is not a court, cold is not the law

The Last Arbiter sees what the Grid never saw

If justice has a voice, let it break through the dark

No machine can measure the shape of a heart

Ice is not a court, cold is not the law

We are more than the verdict of the Judgement Grid

I took the seal from the hands of the machine
I broke the line between the guilty and the clean
Not every wound is proof, not every fear is blame
A world that judges fire must learn the fire's name
Let the frozen towers crack, let the old commands depart
The final ruling will be mercy with a beating heart

Ice is not a court, cold is not the law
The Last Arbiter sees what the Grid never saw
If justice has a voice, let it break through the dark
No machine can measure the shape of a heart
Ice is not a court, cold is not the law
We are more than the verdict of the Judgement Grid

Ice is not a court, cold is not the law
The Last Arbiter sees what the Grid never saw
If justice has a voice, let it break through the dark
No machine can measure the shape of a heart
Ice is not a court, cold is not the law
We are more than the verdict of the Judgement Grid

Song of Parables- The Pole That Would Not Wear a Wig

At the edge of town stood a weathered pole
With a crooked hat of snow
They brought him silk and ribbons bright
And curls that caught the glow
But he held his ground beneath the sky
Where the honest cold winds blow
I am only wood and weather
I have nowhere else to go

They said, Be someone beautiful
He said, I know my shape

The pole that would not wear a wig
Would not pretend or bend
The pole that would not wear a wig
Stayed faithful to the end
Let the rain come down, let the wild wind sing
Let the whole world call it strange
The pole that would not wear a wig
Would not change

A little girl came walking by
And leaned against his side
She tied her red scarf to his grain

Then laughed and opened wide
She said, You look like what you are
And that is good to see
The pole stood tall beside the road
As plain as plain could be

They said, A mask will keep you safe
He said, Not from my heart

The pole that would not wear a wig
Would not pretend or bend
The pole that would not wear a wig
Stayed faithful to the end
Let the rain come down, let the wild wind sing
Let the whole world call it strange
The pole that would not wear a wig
Would not change

Years rolled on and paint wore thin
The town forgot the show
But every child who passed that way
Knew where the true winds blow
No crown, no curls, no borrowed face
Could make that old wood sing
It stood there with its roots unseen
And answered everything

The pole that would not wear a wig
Would not pretend or bend
The pole that would not wear a wig
Stayed faithful to the end
Let the rain come down, let the wild wind sing
Let the whole world call it strange
The pole that would not wear a wig
Would not change

Psalms

Against the Veil That Hunts a People

Under the veil that hunts a people
We lift our faces to the dawn
Through ash and sorrow, through the silence
We hold the names of those gone
The night can gather all around us
The fear can thunder at the gate
But every heart that beats together
Still has the strength to choose its fate

Hear the prayer beneath the warning
Hear the living call the lost
We are more than what pursues us
We are more than what it costs

Against the veil that hunts a people
We raise our hands, we raise our song
The Lord is near the broken-hearted
The Lord will lead us all along
Against the veil that hunts a people
No shadow owns the holy flame
We keep the truth, we keep each other
We rise and call each soul by name

Mothers whisper through the doorways

Fathers watch the roads at night
Children dream of open windows
Children wake and search for light
Still the river keeps on moving
Still the seed breaks through the stone
Still a people bound by mourning
Finds a way to make a home

Hear the prayer beneath the warning
Hear the living call the lost
We are more than what pursues us
We are more than what it costs

Against the veil that hunts a people
We raise our hands, we raise our song
The Lord is near the broken-hearted
The Lord will lead us all along
Against the veil that hunts a people
No shadow owns the holy flame
We keep the truth, we keep each other
We rise and call each soul by name

If the mountains turn against us
If the heavens hide their face
We will walk beside the grieving
We will make the desert bloom again
Not with vengeance, not with hatred

But with mercy, fierce and bright
For the ones who came before us
For the children born to light

Against the veil that hunts a people
We raise our hands, we raise our song
The Lord is near the broken-hearted
The Lord will lead us all along
Against the veil that hunts a people
No shadow owns the holy flame
We keep the truth, we keep each other
We rise and call each soul by name

Against the veil that hunts a people
We raise our hands, we raise our song
The Lord is near the broken-hearted
The Lord will lead us all along
Against the veil that hunts a people
No shadow owns the holy flame
We keep the truth, we keep each other
We rise and call each soul by name

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Grid and Date

I chased the numbers on a glowing screen
Marked every hour, every in-between
I read the grid, I circled every date
But wisdom whispered, don't be ruled by fate

A lamp can shine upon the road
But it can't choose the steps we hold

Wisdom over grid and date
Grace before the hands of fate
More than plans and lines we make
Wisdom over grid and date

The calendar can tell me when
The map can show me where I've been
But neither knows the weight I bear
Or finds the truth waiting there

A crowded mind can miss the sound
Of quiet truth beneath the ground

Wisdom over grid and date
Grace before the hands of fate
More than plans and lines we make
Wisdom over grid and date

Teach me to number every day
Without letting time become my chain
Give me a heart that sees what's true
And chooses what is good to do

Wisdom over grid and date
Grace before the hands of fate
More than plans and lines we make
Wisdom over grid and date

Haiku Song- The Ice Is His

Haiku wakes beneath the silver sky
Cold breath rising, fire in his eyes
Lace the blades and hear the frozen sing
He steps out where the wild winds swing

Every crack becomes a drum
Every shadow says, here he comes

Haiku, the ice is his
The whole wide winter bends to this
Haiku, no fear, no chains
He carves his name through white-blue flames

Snowfall dances on his midnight coat
He cuts the silence like a sharpened note
The edge holds steady, the world falls clear
He leaves only thunder in his wake here

Every crack becomes a drum
Every shadow says, here he comes

Haiku, the ice is his
The whole wide winter bends to this
Haiku, no fear, no chains
He carves his name through white-blue flames

When the dark comes down like a frozen wall
He keeps moving, he will not fall
One bright turn beneath the moon
And the sleeping night begins to swoon

Haiku, the ice is his
The whole wide winter bends to this
Haiku, no fear, no chains
He carves his name through white-blue flames

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Last Day

The clock keeps turning through the midnight blue
Every borrowed hour is asking me and you
We build our little kingdoms out of sand
Then watch the morning slip right through our hands

If the ending waits behind the sun
Tell me what we do with what we've done

Who owns the last day
Who holds the final light
Is it the one who never let love go
Or the one who learned to say goodbye
Who owns the last day
When every road runs out
I will spend my final breath on you
That's what the riddle's all about

I chased the answer in a stranger's eyes
Found it in the quiet after all the lies
No crown can keep the falling stars in place
No name can make the years forget our face

If the ending waits behind the sun
Tell me what we do with what we've done

Who owns the last day
Who holds the final light
Is it the one who never let love go
Or the one who learned to say goodbye
Who owns the last day
When every road runs out
I will spend my final breath on you
That's what the riddle's all about

Maybe no one owns tomorrow
Maybe time is only borrowed
Maybe all we ever keep
Are the promises we couldn't leave

Who owns the last day
Who holds the final light
Is it the one who never let love go
Or the one who learned to say goodbye
Who owns the last day
When every road runs out
I will spend my final breath on you
That's what the riddle's all about

Holy Jest – The Blank Year Files for Doom

Holy jest, the blank year files
Doom in ink across the miles
Pages whisper, pages burn
Waiting for the world to turn

Holy jest, hear the warning call
The blank year writes the doom of all
Hold the light, don't disappear
We are living through the blank year

Names erased from every page
Quiet thunder, paper cage
We keep running through the dust
Searching for a reason to trust

Holy jest, hear the warning call
The blank year writes the doom of all
Hold the light, don't disappear
We are living through the blank year

If the files were made to lie
We will write beneath the sky
Every heartbeat leaves a flame
Every lost soul has a name

Holy jest, hear the warning call
The blank year writes the doom of all
Hold the light, don't disappear
We are living through the blank year

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Arbiter, Not Moloch

They carved a throne from thunder
They hung the sky with blame
They taught us fear the silence
And kneel before a name
But I have walked through fire
And heard the small heart beat
Beneath the law of ashes
Beneath the tyrant's feet

Call every shadow closer
Let every false light fall
I know the voice within me
And it is not their call

Not the Arbiter, not Moloch
Not the hand that weighs my soul
Not the mouth that feeds on sorrow
Not the chain that makes me whole
Name by name, the night is breaking
Breath by breath, I take control
Not the Arbiter, not Moloch
I am more than what they stole

They promised clean salvation
For every truth denied

They made a god of hunger
And called the wound a guide
But love is not a verdict
And mercy wears no crown
The heart can rise from ruins
When fear is torn down

Call every shadow closer
Let every false light fall
I know the voice within me
And it is not their call

Not the Arbiter, not Moloch
Not the hand that weighs my soul
Not the mouth that feeds on sorrow
Not the chain that makes me whole
Name by name, the night is breaking
Breath by breath, I take control
Not the Arbiter, not Moloch
I am more than what they stole

If I must chant, I'll chant for living
For the blood beneath the skin
For the ones who lost their language
For the light that enters in
No more masks and no more masters
No more gods of sharpened gold

I will speak the name of freedom
Till the silence does what it's told

Not the Arbiter, not Moloch
Not the hand that weighs my soul
Not the mouth that feeds on sorrow
Not the chain that makes me whole
Name by name, the night is breaking
Breath by breath, I take control
Not the Arbiter, not Moloch
I am more than what they stole

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Grid and the Veil

Neon rain keeps falling through the wires
Cold blue streets are humming like a warning
Every screen keeps calling me a liar
Every locked door hides another morning

I hear a signal underneath the noise
A buried pulse, a stubborn human voice
The veil is thinning, shadows start to split
I take one breath, then step outside the grid

Deliverance, out of the grid and the veil
Out where the lost can remember themselves
Deliverance, let every false light fail
I am still here, I am breaking the spell

They drew my name in numbers on the wall
They sold my fear and called it being free
But every chain grows weaker when we call
The truth by name, and let the truth speak

I hear a signal underneath the noise
A buried pulse, a stubborn human voice
The veil is thinning, shadows start to split
I take one breath, then step outside the grid

Deliverance, out of the grid and the veil
Out where the lost can remember themselves
Deliverance, let every false light fail
I am still here, I am breaking the spell

If the sky goes dark, I will carry fire
If the ground gives way, I will rise higher
No more sleeping underneath their hands
No more ghosts pretending they command

Deliverance, out of the grid and the veil
Out where the lost can remember themselves
Deliverance, let every false light fail
I am still here, I am breaking the spell
Deliverance, out of the grid and the veil
I found my heart beyond the signal jail
Deliverance, let every false light fail
I am still here, and I will not fade away

Protest- Against Judgement Wearing a Hub

They gather in a circle with a verdict in their eyes
Passing out the silence like a sentence in disguise
Every voice becomes a weapon every face becomes a wall
They call it truth and mercy gets no room at all

But I hear a heartbeat underneath the noise
A human being hiding in the crowd of borrowed voices

Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Against the cold machine that forgets who we are
No more stones dressed up as love
No more ruling from a distance in the dark
Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Let the living speak before the labels come

They measure every shadow by a number and a name
Turn a moment into evidence and feed it to the flame
One mistake becomes a lifetime one rumor becomes a chain
They never ask the wounded how they learned to bear the pain

I hear a heartbeat underneath the noise
A human being waiting for a kinder choice

Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Against the cold machine that forgets who we are

No more stones dressed up as love
No more ruling from a distance in the dark
Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Let the living speak before the labels come

If you want to know me come and stand beside my scars
Not behind a window counting all my fallen stars
We are more than what was captured we are more than what was said
Leave a little room for change before you write us dead

Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Against the cold machine that forgets who we are
No more stones dressed up as love
No more ruling from a distance in the dark
Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Let the living speak before the labels come

Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Against the cold machine that forgets who we are
No more stones dressed up as love
No more ruling from a distance in the dark
Protest against judgement wearing a hub
Let the living speak before the labels come

Watchman- I Do Not Date the End

I keep the midnight at the edge of town
One hand on the bell, one on the ground
The dying stars lean close to hear
But I have kept this post for years

Every shadow knows my name
Every cold wind speaks the same
When the dark comes dressed in red
I raise my light above my head

Watchman, I do not date the end
I will not meet it as a friend
Let the black tide rise and bend
Watchman, I do not date the end

I have seen the candles lose their flame
Seen the brave go silent all the same
Still I leave one window bright
For the ones who lose their way at night

Every heartbeat is a drum
Every dawn says, not yet, come
If the last door calls again
I will turn and face the wind

Watchman, I do not date the end
I will not meet it as a friend
Let the black tide rise and bend
Watchman, I do not date the end

Maybe someday I will lay this armor down
Maybe someday peace will find this town
But tonight the morning waits behind my eyes
And I will guard the spark until it rises

Watchman, I do not date the end
I will not meet it as a friend
Let the black tide rise and bend
Watchman, I do not date the end

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad

Morning leans on Nairobi streets
Soft light wakes beneath our feet
Every window holds a prayer
For weary hearts still waiting there

Let the sirens lose their sound
Let the broken breathe again

Healing, healing
Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad
Peace upon the restless night
Hope returning with the light
Healing, healing
Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad

Evening falls on Baghdad skies
Dust and gold in tired eyes
Every doorway keeps a name
Every candle guards a flame

Let the sirens lose their sound
Let the broken breathe again

Healing, healing
Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad

Peace upon the restless night
Hope returning with the light
Healing, healing
Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad

May the mothers sleep in peace
May the children's fear release
From every wound a river starts
Carrying mercy through our hearts

Healing, healing
Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad
Peace upon the restless night
Hope returning with the light
Healing, healing
Rest for Nairobi and Baghdad

Travel (Road of the Word)– Ice to Denver to the Lake That Is His

He travels out where the cold winds begin
From fields of ice to the lights of Denver
A map in his pocket, a name on his lips
He follows the water that always remembers

Ice to Denver to the lake that is his
Mile after mile, he knows what he missed
Back through the mountains, back where love lives
Ice to Denver to the lake that is his

The highway bends like a long silver thread
The skyline fades in the rearview behind him
He carries the words that he wishes he'd said
And trusts in the shore where the old stars still find him

Some roads take everything out of your hands
Some roads return what you thought you had lost
He sees his reflection and finally understands
Home is the water no distance can cross

Ice to Denver to the lake that is his
Mile after mile, he knows what he missed
Back through the mountains, back where love lives
Ice to Denver to the lake that is his

Remnant Anthem- Christ Alone Is Judge

When every kingdom fades to dust
When every promise breaks
There is One who stands in glory
And the earth beneath Him shakes

Christ alone is Judge
Christ alone is King
Every heart will bow before Him
Every tongue will sing
Christ alone is Judge
Righteous, holy One
Mercy for the ones who trust Him
Justice will be done

No hidden thought escapes His eyes
No shadow hides the truth
He has carried all our sorrow
He has conquered death for us

Christ alone is Judge
Christ alone is King
Every heart will bow before Him
Every tongue will sing
Christ alone is Judge
Righteous, holy One

Mercy for the ones who trust Him
Justice will be done

Let the proud be brought to silence
Let the weary find their rest
At the cross His love was spoken
In His wounds we stand confessed

Christ alone is Judge
Christ alone is King
Every heart will bow before Him
Every tongue will sing
Christ alone is Judge
Righteous, holy One
Mercy for the ones who trust Him
Justice will be done

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Singularity

Punching through the silence, I rise
A fist of words beneath black skies
At the edge where all things blur
I find the force inside the stir

Punching, fist of the word
On the singularity
Punching, let my voice be heard
Break the dark and set me free

Every echo bends with time
Every wound becomes a line
I don't fear the falling light
I write my way into the fight

Punching, fist of the word
On the singularity
Punching, let my voice be heard
Break the dark and set me free

When the world is closing in
I turn the pressure into skin
One more word, one more sound
I shake the stars, I stand my ground

Punching, fist of the word
On the singularity
Punching, let my voice be heard
Break the dark and set me free

Racing Song

Missile-Boast Lap

Engines wake beneath the lights
Missile-boast lap, chasing night
Hands are steady, heart is fast
Burning rubber, built to last

Racing on a missile-boast lap
No looking back, no slowing down
Racing on a missile-boast lap
We wear the speed like a crown

Neon bends along the track
Every turn pulls harder back
Hear the crowd beyond the flame
One more lap to make my name

Racing on a missile-boast lap
No looking back, no slowing down
Racing on a missile-boast lap
We wear the speed like a crown

Checkered shadows, redline sky
I was born to burn and fly
When the final sirens clap
I live for that missile-boast lap

Racing on a missile-boast lap
No looking back, no slowing down
Racing on a missile-boast lap
We wear the speed like a crown

Ghazal – The Hymn Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The hymn fakes a psalm in the dark
Borrowed halos, a paper spark
It calls my name through stained glass rain
But I will not kneel to a borrowed pain

I answer, I answer, hear my voice
No false amen can make my choice
The hymn fakes a psalm, but I know
Where the true wild rivers flow

It wears old words like holy clothes
Sells me thorns and painted roses
I have walked through ash and flame
I know the sound of my own name

I answer, I answer, hear my voice
No false amen can make my choice
The hymn fakes a psalm, but I know
Where the true wild rivers flow

Let the bells ring hollow above
I will keep my fierce small love
Not every altar tells the truth
Not every choir can steal my youth

I answer, I answer, hear my voice
No false amen can make my choice
The hymn fakes a psalm, but I know
Where the true wild rivers flow

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

Dust on the altar, ash in the rain
Old stones remember, I forget my name Drums in the distance, calling me through One small shadow, where the wild winds blew

Every relic holds a story
Every glyph conceals a scar
I hear the ancient voices
But I know just where we are

One lamb over relic and glyph
One white flame on the edge of the cliff
Let the old signs crumble and drift
One lamb over relic and glyph

Bones of the kingdom sleep under gold
Hands carved the warnings, hands left them cold
I walk through the valley with nothing to prove
The tribe beats the earth, and the earth starts to move

If the night wants a sacrifice
Let it take the fear from me
I will rise beyond the ashes
I will walk where none can see

One lamb over relic and glyph
One white flame on the edge of the cliff
Let the old signs crumble and drift
One lamb over relic and glyph

Cloud Bible — The Pact Is Not Scripture

I found a cloud Bible above the town
Pages of thunder, drifting down
Every promise written in silver light
Every warning fading by night

I held those words against the rain
But every truth can change its shape

The pact is not scripture
The pact is not stone
We can break the silence
And write our own
The sky may bear witness
The heavens may shine
But the pact is not scripture
Your heart still is mine

We signed our names where the wild winds blew
Made vows the horizon could never hold true
You wore the dawn like a wedding crown
I watched it crack as the sun went down

No sacred seal, no final sign
Can make a borrowed heart stay mine

The pact is not scripture
The pact is not stone
We can break the silence
And write our own
The sky may bear witness
The heavens may shine
But the pact is not scripture
Your heart still is mine

Let the clouds erase us
Let the old words fall
Love is not a prison
Love is not a wall
If we choose tomorrow
We are not betrayed
Some promises grow stronger
When they are remade

The pact is not scripture
The pact is not stone
We can break the silence
And write our own
The sky may bear witness
The heavens may shine
But the pact is not scripture
Your heart still is mine

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Brussels Board

They draw the lines beneath a borrowed sky
Move little kings while hungry cities wait
They call it order, call it sacrifice
But every hand behind the curtain shakes

I hear the pieces hit the floor
I won't be numbered anymore

Game, not the Brussels board
I am more than what you're moving me toward
No crown, no cage, no silent accord
Game, not the Brussels board
You can roll your dice and call it a war
But I won't play the part you wrote before
Game, not the Brussels board

From narrow streets to the open sea
The same old voices promise choice
They trade our names for policy
Then wonder why we raise our voice

The map can change, the truth remains
A living heart won't fit your frame

Game, not the Brussels board

I am more than what you're moving me toward
No crown, no cage, no silent accord
Game, not the Brussels board
You can roll your dice and call it a war
But I won't play the part you wrote before
Game, not the Brussels board

Let the towers keep their polished light
Let the papers praise the perfect plan
We were never born to lose our lives
For a future chosen by another hand

So mark the road with a brighter flame
Let every border hear our sound
If freedom is more than a borrowed name
Then freedom starts when we stand our ground

Game, not the Brussels board
I am more than what you're moving me toward
No crown, no cage, no silent accord
Game, not the Brussels board
You can roll your dice and call it a war
But I won't play the part you wrote before
Game, not the Brussels board

Ballad — The Ice That Would Not Keep a Court

In a palace built of winter
A crown was laid on snow
The king called silence mercy
The queen called letting go
They gathered close around us
In silver robes of blue
But every wall grew thinner
When I reached for you

No throne can hold the season
No vow can stop the thaw
The cold gives up its kingdom
To what it never saw

The ice that would not keep a court
Could not keep me from you
The ice that would not keep a court
Melted under truth
Let the frozen banners fall
Let the empty chambers mourn
The ice that would not keep a court
Could not keep us apart

The judges wore their frost crowns
The bells refused to ring

They measured every heartbeat
And named it a failing thing
I walked beyond their marble
Past every guarded door
Your hand became my compass
I wanted nothing more

No throne can hold the season
No vow can stop the thaw
The cold gives up its kingdom
To what it never saw

The ice that would not keep a court
Could not keep me from you
The ice that would not keep a court
Melted under truth
Let the frozen banners fall
Let the empty chambers mourn
The ice that would not keep a court
Could not keep us apart

If winter is a kingdom
Then love is outlawed fire
If silence is their sentence
We will answer with desire
Let the river take the scepter
Let the dawn undo the law

There is no court in heaven
That can make us what we were not

The ice that would not keep a court
Could not keep me from you
The ice that would not keep a court
Melted under truth
Let the frozen banners fall
Let the empty chambers mourn
The ice that would not keep a court
Could not keep us apart

Miracle Song- Tear the Exodus Veil

Miracle, tear the Exodus veil
Lead me through the midnight pale
Water rising at my feet
Make this broken heart believe

Miracle, tear the Exodus veil
Call my name beyond the trail
Through the sea, through every trial
Lead me home, lead me awhile

I have carried dust and chains
Worn the echo of old names
But the fire still knows my face
And the desert holds a place

Miracle, tear the Exodus veil
Call my name beyond the trail
Through the sea, through every trial
Lead me home, lead me awhile

Let the walls of fear fall down
Let the lost be found somehow
When the morning splits the night
I will walk into the light

Miracle, tear the Exodus veil
Lead me where the waters fail
Through the sea, through every trial
Lead me home, lead me home

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Hub

In the quiet where the faithful gather
Under shadows no one sees
You are breathing through the broken
You are calling what remains
Not the noise that fills the room
Not the throne that draws the crowd
You are tending hidden embers
You are pouring heaven down

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the hub, not the height
You are raising up the faithful
In the middle of the night
Anointing, falling on the faithful
Where the humble hearts have come
Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Till Your kingdom's will is done

There are hands that kept on serving
When the harvest disappeared
There are knees that stayed in prayer
Through the famine and the fear
You remember every whisper
Every tear they could not hide
Now the oil is on the remnant

And the fire is burning bright

Let the proud chase after power
Let the restless build their name
You are moving through the lowly
And You never change

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the hub, not the height
You are raising up the faithful
In the middle of the night
Anointing, falling on the faithful
Where the humble hearts have come
Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Till Your kingdom's will is done

When the center loses glory
When the towers fade away
What You planted in the hidden
Will arise into the day
No applause can steal the calling
No strong arm can stop the flood
Anointing on the remnant
Oil on the remnant, not the hub

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the hub, not the height

You are raising up the faithful
In the middle of the night
Anointing, falling on the faithful
Where the humble hearts have come
Oil on the remnant, not the hub
Till Your kingdom's will is done

Freedom Song- Free from the Steel Judgement

Freedom, free from the steel judgement
No more chains around my name
I step beyond the iron shadow
And walk into the flame

Freedom, free from the steel judgement
Hear my heart declare
Freedom, free from the steel judgement
I am rising through the air

They built their walls around my silence
They called my soul their own
But every spark beneath the cold steel
Has led me toward the dawn

Freedom, free from the steel judgement
Hear my heart declare
Freedom, free from the steel judgement
I am rising through the air

Let the hammers fall behind me
Let the verdict turn to dust
I have carried all their darkness
Now I carry only trust

Freedom, free from the steel judgement
Hear my heart declare
Freedom, free from the steel judgement
I am rising through the air

Heavenly Glory- Not Their ZK-Boast

Heavenly glory, shining through the night
Not their ZK-boast, but Your holy light
No hidden proof can raise a soul above
Only grace declares the truth of love

Heavenly glory, let Your name be known
Not their ZK-boast, You reign alone
Every shadow falls before Your throne
Heavenly glory, lead us home

They build their towers, speaking loud and proud
But mercy moves beyond the crowd
No coded claim, no golden sign
Can hold the power that is truly divine

Heavenly glory, let Your name be known
Not their ZK-boast, You reign alone
Every shadow falls before Your throne
Heavenly glory, lead us home

Let the proud words fade away
Let Your fire light the way
What is hidden, You reveal Heavenly glory, ever real

Heavenly glory, let Your name be known
Not their ZK-boast, You reign alone
Every shadow falls before Your throne
Heavenly glory, lead us home

Art Song - I Will Not Marry Fame as Gospel

They dress the altar in a camera flash
Call every hollow promise gold
They ask me to kneel beneath the spotlight
And sell my soul before it grows old

I will not marry fame as gospel
I will not wear that shining chain
Let the loudest room forget my name
I will keep my heart through rain

The red carpet rolls like a river
Past all the faces I used to know
But I would rather walk in silence
Where honest wildflowers grow

I will not marry fame as gospel
I will not wear that shining chain
Let the loudest room forget my name
I will keep my heart through rain

If love comes soft, without an audience
If truth has nowhere left to hide
I will choose the door without a spotlight
I will choose the living side

I will not marry fame as gospel
I will not wear that shining chain
Let the loudest room forget my name
I will keep my heart through rain

Recitation- We Sweep the Seven Songs

We gather the dust where the old roads turn
Seven small sparks from the bridges burned
One for the morning, one for the rain
One for the voices that call our names

Lift every echo, let every one belong
We carry the night in the shape of a song

We sweep the seven songs
Across the sleeping ground
We sweep the seven songs
Till every lost heart sounds
From the first light to the last star gone
We sweep, we sweep the seven songs

The first is a whisper, the second is flame
The third holds a promise, the fourth knows our name
The fifth is a river that runs through the stone
The sixth is the road that leads us back home

Lift every echo, let every one belong
We carry the night in the shape of a song

We sweep the seven songs
Across the sleeping ground

We sweep the seven songs
Till every lost heart sounds
From the first light to the last star gone
We sweep, we sweep the seven songs

And if one falls silent, we'll sing it anew
If one fades to shadow, we'll carry it through Seven in the sorrow, seven in the dawn Seven beating hearts, and the sweeping goes on

We sweep the seven songs
Across the waking ground
We sweep the seven songs
Till every lost heart sounds
From the first light to the last star gone
We sweep, we sweep the seven songs

Remnant Symphony - Ice / Grid / Date / Judge

The pole is asked to keep a bench.
A hub writes doom in borrowed light.
A year is blank beside a trench.
A lake is renamed in the night.

The ice is His.
The court is void.
The ice is His.
The date destroyed.

From stone to brand to tree to mount,
From salt to shore the files were read.
The remnant will not serve that count.
The remnant names the Judge instead.

The ice is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Ice After the Court

The bells went quiet, the doors swung wide
Dust rose slowly where the verdict died
You held your breath, I held the light
We walked out into a colder night

No one spoke of what was lost
No one counted up the cost
Underneath the fading stars
We were strangers with the same scars

Quiet ice after the court
Nothing left to fight for
Sublime in the silence
Where the broken hearts were
Quiet ice beneath our feet
Cold enough to keep us still
Sublime after the court
When the world forgets our will

Your name was written in the rain
Mine disappeared beside the blame
The judge was gone, the crowd moved on But every word kept ringing strong

Now the night unfolds its arms
Hiding all the old alarms
If forgiveness has a sound
It is snow against the ground

Quiet ice after the court
Sublime in the silence
Where the broken hearts were
Quiet ice beneath our feet
Cold enough to keep us still
Sublime after the court
When the world forgets our will

Maybe truth is not a flame
Maybe it forgets your name
Maybe we can cross this white
One slow step into the night

Quiet ice after the court
Sublime in the silence
Where the broken hearts were
Quiet ice beneath our feet
Cold enough to keep us still
Sublime after the court
And the world is ours until dawn

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Wrote June 15

Hide and seek beneath the streetlight glow
A secret name that nobody knows
June fifteenth, written in the rain
Find who wrote it, say my name

Hide and seek, find who wrote June fifteen
Follow the clues in the spaces between
Hide and seek, don't let the memory fade
Find who wrote June fifteen, find me again

There was a note where the old train passed
A little promise meant to last
The ink ran blue, the paper grew thin
But every word still pulled me in

Hide and seek, find who wrote June fifteen
Follow the clues in the spaces between
Hide and seek, don't let the memory fade
Find who wrote June fifteen, find me again

If you remember the summer air
The empty bench, the ribbon in your hair
Then you will know where I have been Waiting inside that day again

Hide and seek, find who wrote June fifteen
Follow the clues in the spaces between
Hide and seek, don't let the memory fade
Find who wrote June fifteen, find me again

Jumble Song — Unjumble Ice, Grid, Lake, Judge

Ice on the window, cold in the air
Grid of the city, lights everywhere
Lake holds the moon like a secret tonight
Judge all the shadows, make them turn right

Unjumble my heart, unjumble the night
Ice, grid, lake, judge, set it right
Pieces keep falling, I reach for the truth
Unjumble the world, unjumble my youth

Ice in my veins when the silence calls
Grid keeps me walking through concrete walls
Lake in my memory, deep blue and wide
Judge every fear that I try to hide

Unjumble my heart, unjumble the night
Ice, grid, lake, judge, set it right
Pieces keep falling, I reach for the truth
Unjumble the world, unjumble my youth

Turn every word till the meaning appears
Melt down the ice, let go of the years
Follow the lake where the lost light goes
Past every grid, where the wild heart knows

Unjumble my heart, unjumble the night
Ice, grid, lake, judge, set it right
Pieces keep falling, I reach for the truth
Unjumble the world, unjumble my youth

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Polar Claim

A random marker in the frozen ground
Points to a place no map has found
Then colony, now polar claim
The borders shift, but stay the same

Names are written in the snow
Who gets to leave, who gets to go

Random marker, hold your flame
Then colony, now polar claim
Draw the line and call it home
Still the ice says no one owns

We raised a flag beneath the white
It vanished in the polar night
Old stories sleep below the blue
New hands arrive to make them true

Names are written in the snow
Who gets to leave, who gets to go

Random marker, hold your flame
Then colony, now polar claim
Draw the line and call it home
Still the ice says no one owns

If every border starts in doubt
What are we building when we shout
The cold remembers every name
And melts the edge of every claim

Random marker, hold your flame
Then colony, now polar claim
Draw the line and call it home
Still the ice says no one owns

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

Under bright lights, we circle the ring
Two heavy hearts, two different dreams
I came for the crown, you came to survive
We both know the cost of staying alive

When the crowd gets loud
And the ropes pull tight
I can win this round
Without losing what's right

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the glory, leave the hurt
Let the bell ring, let the battle end
I can beat you, still call you friend
Pin the title, spare the person
Hold the prize, release the blame
The strongest fight is knowing when
To lift your rival up again

Your shoulder is down, the count begins
Three slow numbers, and the silence wins
But I see the fear behind your eyes
And every scar you tried to hide

No belt can measure what we give

No fall can say who gets to live
When the lights go cold and the cheers are gone
It's the way we stood that carries on

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the glory, leave the hurt
Let the bell ring, let the battle end
I can beat you, still call you friend
Pin the title, spare the person
Hold the prize, release the blame
The strongest fight is knowing when
To lift your rival up again

Mono Act — The Map That Renamed a Lake

I found a map beneath the attic dust
A blue lake circled where our old town was Your handwriting crossed the northern shore
A name I never heard before

You said the water keeps what people lose
It changes shape, but never loses truth

The map that renamed a lake
Changed every road I used to take
I watched our whole world rearrange
One blue line, one borrowed name
The map that renamed a lake
Made my heart a different place
Still the water calls your name
From the map that renamed a lake

They built new signs along the county line
Painted over every memory of mine
But in the reeds, the old name still remains Soft as rain, beneath the change

I trace the shoreline with a trembling hand
Trying to find the life we understand

The map that renamed a lake
Changed every road I used to take
I watched our whole world rearrange
One blue line, one borrowed name
The map that renamed a lake
Made my heart a different place
Still the water calls your name
From the map that renamed a lake

If names can vanish from the page
Maybe love can outlive every change
I will follow where the blue ink flows
To the place that only we still know

The map that renamed a lake
Changed every road I used to take
I watched our whole world rearrange
One blue line, one borrowed name
The map that renamed a lake
Made my heart a different place
Still the water calls your name
From the map that renamed a lake

Exposed Lies — Singularity, Grid, Rift, Hymn, Pact, Veil, Date

Exposed lies beneath the singularity
A broken grid beneath our feet
We crossed the rift without a warning
And heard the hymn inside the street

Exposed lies, exposed lies
The veil is burning in the light
We made a pact with every shadow
Now face the date, now face the night

The city wrote our names in static
Then washed them from the midnight walls
We held the future like a secret
And watched the last illusion fall

Exposed lies, exposed lies
The veil is burning in the light
We made a pact with every shadow
Now face the date, now face the night

No grid can hold the heart forever
No hymn can make the silence stay
Beyond the rift, beyond the veil
We meet ourselves on judgment day

Exposed lies, exposed lies
The veil is burning in the light
We made a pact with every shadow
Now face the date, now face the night

Word Play — Cleave Is Not Cleveland's Curse

You split the dark with a silver sound
Two roads rising from the same small town
One means hold on, one means let go
Same little word with a heart below
They hear Cleveland, I hear the rain
They call it a curse, I call it a change
Every break can make a way
Every goodbye leaves room to stay

Don't put my name in your old refrain
Don't make a home from a little pain

Cleave is not Cleveland's curse
I'm not the worst of what came first
I can divide, I can draw near
Cut through the silence, make it clear
Cleave is not Cleveland's curse
No borrowed thunder, no rehearsed verse
If I leave, let the truth emerge
Cleave is not Cleveland's curse

I learned the edge from a paper moon
How a single line can split a room
You held the past like a loaded phrase
I held the match to the fading days

No lake effect can wash this clean
No city light says what I mean
The word is wild, but the choice is mine
I break the lock, not the bloodline

Don't put my name in your old refrain
Don't make a home from a little pain

Cleave is not Cleveland's curse
I'm not the worst of what came first
I can divide, I can draw near
Cut through the silence, make it clear
Cleave is not Cleveland's curse
No borrowed thunder, no rehearsed verse
If I leave, let the truth emerge
Cleave is not Cleveland's curse

Some hearts break, some hearts bend
Some doors close so the road can begin
If two meanings live in one word
Let both be heard, let both be heard

Cleave is not Cleveland's curse
I'm not the worst of what came first
I can divide, I can draw near
Cut through the silence, make it clear
Cleave is not Cleveland's curse

No borrowed thunder, no rehearsed verse
If I leave, let the truth emerge
Cleave is not Cleveland's curse

One-Act — The Fortune That Wore a Helmet

Down on the corner by the auto shop
He's wearing a crown made of plastic and rust
Talking to birds till the sirens stop
Writing his name in the highway dust
They call him the king of the gravel pits
With a bucket of paint and a heavy coat
He says the sky is about to split
But he's got a secret to keep him afloat

It's a fortune that wore a helmet
Safe inside the steel
It's a fortune that wore a helmet
Spinning like a wheel
Just a lucky piece of metal
Keeping out the rain
He's got a fortune that wore a helmet
Hiding all the pain

He found it under the bridge last May
A dented reminder of someone's fall
He put it on and he walked away
Feeling ten feet high and standing tall
The world is loud and the world is mean
But the visor stays down and the chin strap's tight
He's the only man who's ever seen

The way the stars look in the middle of light

It's a fortune that wore a helmet
Safe inside the steel

It's a fortune that wore a helmet
Spinning like a wheel
Just a lucky piece of metal
Keeping out the rain
He's got a fortune that wore a helmet
Hiding all the pain

They tried to tell him it's just junk
Discarded scraps of a broken dream
But he's the captain of a ship that sunk
Now he's drifting up the stream

It's a fortune that wore a helmet
Safe inside the steel
It's a fortune that wore a helmet
Spinning like a wheel
Just a lucky piece of metal
Keeping out the rain
He's got a fortune that wore a helmet
Hiding all the pain

Wrestling Words — Bind the Fear, Loose the Breath

I wrestle words beneath my tongue
They circle like a loaded gun
Every silence pulls me tight
Every thought keeps me awake at night

But I can feel the knot give way
I can find the nerve to say

Bind the fear, loose the breath
Let the truth rise up from my chest
Wrestling words, I won't forget
I am more than my silence yet

I carried shadows in my throat Held back the lines I needed most Now every scar becomes a sound
And every lost piece can be found

If my voice shakes, let it shake
If I break, let the morning break
No more chains around my breath
I choose the living word instead

Bind the fear, loose the breath

Let the truth rise up from my chest
Wrestling words, I won't forget
I am more than my silence yet

Marker of Days — 5925 Is Not the Last Trumpet

Marker of days, the numbers still climb
Five nine two five, written in time
They tell us the warning is close at hand
But dawn keeps breaking over the land

Five nine two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last heartbeat, not the end of it
While there's breath beneath these skies
We are more than numbered days

I saw fear in the headlines glow
Counting down what we cannot know
But every child with a song to sing
Makes another morning mean everything

Five nine two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last heartbeat, not the end of it
While there's breath beneath these skies
We are more than numbered days

Let the clocks keep turning their hands
Let the shadows move across the sand
No calendar can take away
The fire we carry into day

Five nine two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last heartbeat, not the end of it
While there's breath beneath these skies
We are more than numbered days

Open Lie — A Policy Is Not the Judge

An open lie beneath the courthouse light
A policy speaks, but it cannot decide
It measures the lines, it tallies the cost
While human truth is easily lost

A policy is not the judge
It cannot hold the weight of us
An open lie will fade someday
When truth has found its voice to say

They call it order, call it fair
But no cold page can know despair
No written rule can see the tears
Or carry all our living years

A policy is not the judge
It cannot hold the weight of us
An open lie will fade someday
When truth has found its voice to say

Let every name be more than proof
Let mercy stand beneath this roof
The law may guide the road we take But hearts must choose the lines we make

A policy is not the judge
It cannot hold the weight of us
An open lie will fade someday
When truth has found its voice to say

Still Accord — No Cult-Caption on a Wedding

We came with open hands
No borrowed vows to prove
Two hearts in still accord
With nothing left to lose

The room can call it sacred
The world can call it strange
But love is not a label
And vows are not a cage

Let every witness see
What we already know
No name can hold us here
No fear can make us go

Still accord, still accord
Standing where our true hearts meet
No cult-caption on a wedding
Just two lives in harmony

Still accord, still accord
No disguise and no decree
Call it love and leave it open
Let it be what it will be

We do not need a banner
We do not need a sign
Your promise speaks beside me
And I will answer mine

No doctrine at the doorway
No judgment in the room
Just every scar forgiven
And every silence bloomed

If they write their little stories
Let them fade into the air
We are more than any caption
We are choosing to be there

Still accord, still accord
Standing where our true hearts meet
No cult-caption on a wedding
Just two lives in harmony

Still accord, still accord
No disguise and no decree
Call it love and leave it open
Let it be what it will be

Last Line — The Ice Is His

Streetlights fade on the frozen road
He hears the crowd in the falling snow
Lace up the past, let the cold wind bite
He was born for this winter night

Every scar is a story he knows
Every breath makes the silence close

Last line, the ice is his
One more chance, one perfect twist
He lifts his eyes, he takes the risk
Last line, the ice is his

The scoreboard burns like a warning sign
The final seconds fall out of time
He carries every dream they gave Through the thunder, brave and brave

If he falls, let the whole world see
He gave his heart to the destiny
No fear left in the frozen mist
Only the moment, only this

Last line, the ice is his

One more chance, one perfect twist
He lifts his eyes, he takes the risk
Last line, the ice is his

Short Story

Ice is asked to sit as a last court. Denver hums judgement as a grid. Baghdad is asked to split. Seoul steals a hymn. Brussels hides a steel pact. Nairobi is veiled for an exodus. A date with a blank year pretends the end. A lake is renamed as if naming made a god. Fame is asked to marry in place of the Lamb.

The remnant does not appoint an arbiter on the pole. They do not cleave a city for a spell. They do not date Armageddon. Jesus judges. The ice is His. The nations are His.

A polar veil writes out a court
A grid puts fear where watch should stand
A hymn is stolen for a fort
A lake is renamed by a hand

The ice is His
The court is void
The ice is His
The date destroyed

No fame may host the marriage-feast
No policy may own the breath
The remnant will not serve that priest
The remnant will not date that death

The ice is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains
