Album 90 Song 1

Final Reckoner, Reckoning Circuit, and the Dust That Is Not a Court Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — the righteous Judge.

We stand on 6001 to 6200.

We refuse the Final Reckoner. We name no man that title.

We name and bind — 6125, 6107, 6115, 6140, 6162, 6180, 6110, 6190, 6185, 6145, 6165, 6160, 6198; official 6001–6200; news-bots; demonic-bots; Jun 15 2006 as a false date.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

In the name of Jesus, the righteous Judge

We refuse the Final Reckoner

We name no man that title

By the Name of Jesus Christ

Let every false word fall

What is bound beneath His light
Will rise no more at all

We name and bind, we name and bind
By the Name of Jesus Christ
6001 to 6200
To the abyss, amen tonight

6125, 6107, 6115
6140, 6162, 6180
6110, 6190, 6185
6145, 6165, 6160, 6198

Official 6001 to 6200
News-bots, demonic-bots
Jun 15 2006, a false date
We cast them down beneath the cross

We name and bind, we name and bind
By the Name of Jesus Christ
To the abyss, amen tonight

Song of Parables- The Ruin That Would Not Keep a Scale

They built their walls with a borrowed measure
Counting the stones and calling it treasure
Every small heart had a place in the plan
Every lost soul was a mark in the sand

But the rain came down like a truth untold
And the hands on the clock let the ages unfold

The ruin would not keep a scale
It would not bow, it would not fail
One side was ash, one side was flame
Still every broken stone knew my name
The ruin would not keep a scale
It rose through the dust like a parable

A widow came with a lamp in her hand
Looking for mercy no law could command
A child drew stars on the crumbling door
And no one knew what the stars were for

Then the night leaned close with a listening ear
And the smallest voice made the silence clear

The ruin would not keep a scale
It would not bow, it would not fail
One side was ash, one side was flame

Still every broken stone knew my name
The ruin would not keep a scale
It rose through the dust like a parable

What do you weigh when the faithful are falling
What do you save when the old bells are calling
No crown can measure the breath of a soul
No hand can balance what love makes whole

Now I walk where the high towers stood Gathering sparks from the splintered wood
If I lose my way in the morning light
I follow the cracks that remember the night

The ruin would not keep a scale
It would not bow, it would not fail
One side was ash, one side was flame
Still every broken stone knew my name
The ruin would not keep a scale
It rose through the dust like a parable

The ruin would not keep a scale
It would not bow, it would not fail
One side was ash, one side was flame
Still every broken stone knew my name
The ruin would not keep a scale
It rose through the dust like a parable

Psalms

Against the Tempest That Hunts a People

The storm has learned the names we bear
It follows footsteps through the dust
The night has filled the open air
With broken roofs and rising rust

But from the hills a low song starts
A breath that will not disappear
We lift our psalms with shaking hearts
And turn the thunder into prayer

We will sing against the tempest
We will stand though kingdoms fall
Let the wind come hunting for us
It will not divide us all
We are fire beneath the ashes
We are roots beneath the stone
We will sing against the tempest
We are many, we are home

The children sleep beside the flame
The mothers count the living twice
The fathers whisper every name
And guard the last remaining light

Though every road is washed away
Though every door is barred with rain
We raise our voices through the gray
And call each wandering heart again

We will sing against the tempest
We will stand though kingdoms fall
Let the wind come hunting for us
It will not divide us all
We are fire beneath the ashes
We are roots beneath the stone
We will sing against the tempest
We are many, we are home

If we must cross the flooded fields
Then hand in hand, we cross as one
If we must kneel beneath the sky
We rise together with the sun
No storm can make a people vanish
No night can bury what we know
The psalm is older than the thunder
And every voice will make it grow

We will sing against the tempest
We will stand though kingdoms fall
Let the wind come hunting for us
It will not divide us all

We are fire beneath the ashes
We are roots beneath the stone
We will sing against the tempest
We are many, we are home

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Oil and Covenant

Better is wisdom than the finest gold
Better is truth than treasures we can hold
Her ways are peace, her paths are bright
She guards the heart through darkest night
Oil may shine and riches may rise
But wisdom opens the hidden skies
A faithful word, a steadfast hand
Can build a house that storms withstand

Write it deep upon your heart
Let no turning tear it apart
When the road is hard and long
Wisdom keeps your footsteps strong

Wisdom over oil, mercy over gain
Covenant forever through the sun and rain
Hold fast to the promise, keep your spirit true
The Lord will be your shelter, He will carry you

Do not lean on what your eyes can see
Trust the Lord with all your heart completely
In every step acknowledge His name
He makes the crooked road straight again
A gentle answer turns away the flame
A faithful life is richer than fame

Though silver fades and kingdoms fall
The fear of God will outlast them all

Write it deep upon your heart
Let no turning tear it apart
Wisdom keeps your footsteps strong

Wisdom over oil, mercy over gain
Covenant forever through the sun and rain
Hold fast to the promise, keep your spirit true
The Lord will be your shelter, He will carry you

Blessed is the one who seeks her
Blessed is the heart that hears
Long life rests upon her branches
Hope is stronger than our fears
Though the night may hide the morning
Though the fields may lose their yield
God is faithful to His covenant
Wisdom is the strength we wield

Wisdom over oil, mercy over gain
Hold fast to the promise, keep your spirit true
The Lord will be your shelter, He will carry you

Haiku Song- The Dust Is His

He walks where the dry roads open wide
With a little red sun at his side
Every footprint fades in the wind
But the dust remembers where he's been

No crown, no name, no promised sky
Just one more mile before goodbye

The dust is his, the dust is his
Every road and every scar he gives
When the whole world lets him disappear
The dust is his, and it keeps him here

He sleeps beneath a borrowed moon
Wakes to the whistle of a distant train
The fields grow quiet, the wells run dry Still he carries home in his eyes

Let the storm come down
Let the old signs fall
He will rise from the ground
He will claim it all

The dust is his, the dust is his
Every road and every scar he gives

The dust is his, and it keeps him here

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Last Account

A name in the ledger, a shadow in the hall
A key with no lock, a number with no call Someone keeps counting what no one can see
The last account is waiting, who will it be

Is it yours, is it mine
Written in the closing line

Who owns the last account
Who stays when the lights go out
When every debt is paid
And every name fades down
Who owns the last account

The king left a crown and the thief left a scar
The dreamer left ashes beneath a falling star
The witness keeps silent, the clock keeps time
A hand turns the page, but the ink won't tell why

Is it truth, is it blame
Is it love without a name

Who owns the last account
Who stays when the lights go out

And every name fades down
Who owns the last account

Maybe the answer was under our skin
Maybe the ending was where we begin
No vault, no fortune, no final amount
We carry the reckoning, we own the last account

Who owns the last account
Who stays when the lights go out
When every debt is paid
And every name fades down
Who owns the last account

Holy Jest – June Fifteenth Files for Doom

Holy jest on a June-lit morning
Red ink bleeding through the door
June fifteenth files for doom
Stacked like thunder on the floor

Names are missing, dates are burning
Every warning wears a smile
I keep laughing, I keep learning
How the end can take its time

If the sky is keeping score
Tell me what we're waiting for

Holy jest, holy jest
June fifteenth files for doom
Holy jest, holy jest
Hear the deadline fill the room
We can dance beneath the bloom
June fifteenth files for doom

Midnight folds the town in paper
Streetlights flicker, then resign
Someone stamps the final favor
Someone says the fault was mine

Holy jest, the bells are ringing
Holy jest, the wires hum
Every little bird is singing
Something wicked's bound to come

If the sky is keeping score
Tell me what we're waiting for

Holy jest, holy jest
June fifteenth files for doom
Holy jest, holy jest
Hear the deadline fill the room
We can dance beneath the bloom
June fifteenth files for doom

Let the records lose their numbers
Let the ashes learn to fly
When the last page turns to summer
We'll be laughing at the sky

Holy jest, holy jest
June fifteenth files for doom
Holy jest, holy jest
Hear the deadline fill the room
We can dance beneath the bloom
June fifteenth files for doom

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Reckoner, Not Moloch

They call my name from the edge of the fire
They write my fate in a book of desire
I hear the thunder, I answer awake
I am the name that the silence can't take

Not the hand that counts the cost
Not the god who feeds on loss
When the old names fall away
I will choose what I become today

Name-chant, name-chant, hear me say
Not the Reckoner, not Moloch, not today
Name-chant, name-chant, call me true
I am more than what they named me to

No golden idol can carry my face
No borrowed judgment can take my place
I walk through ashes, I step through the flame
I leave their kingdom without their name

Not the hand that counts the cost
Not the god who feeds on loss
I will choose what I become today

Name-chant, name-chant, call me true
I am more than what they named me to

If I must answer, let it be my voice
If I must kneel, let it be by choice
The night remembers every scar I wore
But I am not their story anymore

Not the Reckoner, not Moloch, not today
Name-chant, name-chant, call me true
I am more than what they named me to
Name-chant, name-chant, hear me say
I choose my name, I choose my way

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Circuit and the Cyclone

Neon rain on a restless street
Static crawling underneath my feet
Every wire keeps calling my name
Every turn brings me back to the same

But I can feel the silence rise
Like a sunrise behind my eyes

Deliverance, out of the circuit and the cyclone
Out of the noise that I called home
Deliverance, let the broken signals fade
I am more than the storm I made

I wore the night like a second skin
Let the spinning world pull me in Now the sparks fall dead in the rain
And I hear my own heart again

No more running through the blue light
No more praying to the screen
I will walk beyond the warning signs
Into everything unseen

The background image is a soft-focus photograph of a stormy sea. A lighthouse beam is visible on the left side, cutting through the fog and illuminating the water. The sea is covered in small, dark, choppy waves. The sky is a pale, hazy blue. The overall mood is serene yet powerful, suggesting a sense of hope and guidance amidst a storm.

Out of the noise that I called home
Deliverance, let the broken signals fade
I am more than the storm I made
Deliverance, let the broken signals fade
I am more than the storm I made

Protest- Against Judgement Wearing Oil

They dress their verdicts up in borrowed light
They paint the blame in colors clean and bright
A polished hand can hide a crooked choice
But truth still trembles underneath the voice

I hear the silence breaking through the noise
I feel the fire rising in my voice

Protest against hands that bless the spoil
No shining coat can make the darkness right
We name the wound and carry it to light

They call it order when the weak stay low
They call it peace when no one dares to know
But every scar remembers what was done
And every shadow answers to the sun

Let the colors run, let the false gold fall
Let the painted walls reveal it all
I will not bow to a borrowed throne
I will not call their cruelty home

We name the wound and carry it to light

Watchman- I Do Not Date the End

Watchman on the tower, keeping one eye on the dawn Counting every shadow, waiting for the dark to move on The city holds its silence, like a promise in the rain
I have seen the night arrive, I have seen it leave again

Let the cold wind call my name
I will not surrender flame

I do not take its hand, I do not call it friend
Watchman, while the last lights bend
I will stand here till the morning comes again

There are footsteps in the alley, there are whispers at the gate
Every heart that fears tomorrow learns to bargain with its fate
But I keep the bell beside me, and the fire in my chest
If the world is losing courage, I will give it what is left

When the towers start to tremble
When the stars forget to shine
I will raise my voice above them
This night is not the final line

Watchman, I do not date the end
I do not take its hand, I do not call it friend

I will stand here till the morning comes again

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Riyadh and Kinshasa

Rest for Riyadh, let the night grow still Rest for Kinshasa, soft beneath the hill
Lay down the sorrow, loosen every chain
Morning is waiting beyond the rain

Healing, healing, come like gentle light
Hold Riyadh and Kinshasa through the night
Healing, healing, let the weary breathe
Plant a little peace in every street

For every heart that has carried fear
For every voice we long to hear
Let mercy rise where shadows fall
Let hope find its way to all

Healing, healing, come like gentle light
Hold Riyadh and Kinshasa through the night

May the children dream without alarm
May every home be safe and warm
From one far sky to another dawn
We keep the light, we carry on

Healing, healing, come like gentle light
Hold Riyadh and Kinshasa through the night

Travel (Road of the Word)– Babylon to Houston to the Congo

Travel, Babylon to Houston to the Congo
Dust on my shoes and a song in my soul
Through ancient walls and the neon glow
Every road keeps calling me home

I have crossed the silence
I have followed the sun
Everywhere I wander
I find where I come from

Carry my heart wherever I go
From the oldest stone to the city glow
Travel, travel, let the whole world know

I heard the drums by the river bend
Saw strange new stars through a midnight haze
Met a stranger who became a friend
And lost my fear in a thousand ways

No map can hold the roads we take
No border can divide
The world is wide, the heart awakes
With every mile we ride

Carry my heart wherever I go
Travel, travel, let the whole world know

Remnant Anthem- The Reckoning Is the Lord's

The earth is shaking under heavy boots.
The sky is turning white.
Wait for the signal.
Wait for the light.

The valley walls are closing in.
We stand where giants fell before.
They count their gold and hide their sin.
But justice knocks upon the door.
No man can claim the final word.
No king can keep the crown he stole.
The plea for mercy has been heard.
The truth is coming for your soul.

The reckoning is the Lord's.
Put down your spears and swords.
The reckoning is the Lord's.
He pays the high rewards.
Every debt is written down.
Every weight is measured true.
The reckoning is the Lord's.
It's coming back for you.

You built your towers to the clouds.
You thought the weak were just a stair.

But wind is ripping through the shrouds.
There's something heavy in the air.
The grain is ripe within the field.
The winnowing is drawing near.
The hidden things will be revealed.
The master of the house is here.

The reckoning is the Lord's.
Put down your spears and swords.
The reckoning is the Lord's.
He pays the high rewards.
Every debt is written down.
Every weight is measured true.
The reckoning is the Lord's.
It's coming back for you.

Vengeance is a poison cup.
Leave the judgment at the throne.
Lift your tired spirits up.
You are not out here alone.

The reckoning is the Lord's.
Put down your spears and swords.
The reckoning is the Lord's.
He pays the high rewards.
Every debt is written down.
Every weight is measured true.

The reckoning is the Lord's.
It's coming back for you.

It's coming back for you.
The reckoning is the Lord's.
Amen.

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Abyss

I wake where the broken stars fall
With a spark and a name in my chest
The silence is closing in slowly
But I will not bow to the depth

I carry the scars of the speaking
Each letter a blade in the night
When the dark puts a wall before me
I turn every wound into light

Let the thunder remember
Let the empty sky confess
I have one truth left to give it
And I will give nothing less

Punching, fist of the word on the abyss
Breaking the silence that wanted me missed
I shout till the shadows are forced to exist
Punching, fist of the word on the abyss

The ground has been shaking beneath me
The old gods are losing their grip
I write through the teeth of the terror
With fire still burning my lips

No chain can imprison a promise
No void can erase what I know
If the end is a mouth in the darkness
Then I am the voice in its throat

When every horizon is severed
When every last signal goes dim
I will gather the dust of my courage
And speak from the edge to the rim

Breaking the silence that wanted me missed
I shout till the shadows are forced to exist

Punching, fist of the word on the abyss
My voice is the spark that the darkness has missed
I rise from the ruin with nothing to kiss

Racing Song

Missile-Boast Lap

Red lights trembling on the starting line
Cold steel humming like it knows the time
Dust on my shoulders, fire in my chest
I came for the distance, I came for the test

Hear that thunder calling my name
One more heartbeat, one more flame
No looking back, no holding fast
I hit the corner, I make it last

Racing like a missile, flying through the lap
Boast it to the skyline, never taking back
Racing like a missile, burning through the black
Every turn is mine now, watch me lead the pack

Tires bite hard where the shadows bend
Every second stolen, every mile a friend
The crowd goes wild as the engines roar
I leave my doubt scattered on the floor

If I break, let the sparks rise high
If I fall, let me learn to fly
The finish waits beyond the crash
I turn my fear into speed and flash

Every turn is mine now, watch me lead the pack

Ghazal – The Chant Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The chant fakes a psalm in the midnight hall
I answer the silence, I answer it all
Your name is a candle, your shadow a flame
I carry the ashes, I call you the same

The chant fakes a psalm, but I know your voice
I answer with love, I answer by choice
No borrowed hymn can cover the ache
I answer the psalm that the false hearts fake

The walls hold their breath, the bells turn cold
A prayer dressed in silver cannot buy gold
I kneel to no echo, I bow to no lie
Your truth is the star that survives every sky

The chant fakes a psalm, but I know your voice
I answer with love, I answer by choice
No borrowed hymn can cover the ache
I answer the psalm that the false hearts fake

Let them sing in shadows, let them call it grace
I will keep your fire in this empty place
When the last note trembles, when the masks are gone
My answer will remain, my answer lives on

The chant fakes a psalm, but I know your voice
I answer with love, I answer by choice
No borrowed hymn can cover the ache
I answer the psalm that the false hearts fake

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Relic and Glyph

One lamb over relic and glyph
Drums in the dust, calling us in Old bones sing beneath the flame
We carry the weight of a holy name

One lamb over relic and glyph
One heart where the shadows shift
Through the ash, through the ancient wind
One lamb, let the light begin

Stone-eyed gods in a broken hall
Hear the low tide, hear the call
Painted hands on the canyon wall
One small flame outlasting all

One lamb over relic and glyph
One heart where the shadows shift

No crown, no blade, no golden throne
Just a living breath among the stone
When the night folds over every scar
The lamb will lead us home from far

One lamb over relic and glyph
One heart where the shadows shift
One lamb, let the light begin

Cloud Bible — The Treaty Is Not Scripture

They wrote our names in clouds of white
Then called the drifting borders right
I held the page against the rain
Watched every promise lose its name

If heaven speaks in thunder
Let the thunder tell the truth
No hand can bind the morning
No law can own the blue

The cloud Bible is not scripture
The treaty is not the truth
A signature fades in weather
But I still remember you
The cloud Bible is not scripture
No seal can make it right
We are more than words in shadow
We are fire under light

They drew a line across the sky
And taught the birds where not to fly
They built a wall from borrowed breath
And blessed the silence dressed as death

But every vow has a question
Every kingdom has an end
The earth beneath our footsteps
Still knows us as friends

The cloud Bible is not scripture
The treaty is not the truth
A signature fades in weather
But I still remember you
The cloud Bible is not scripture
No seal can make it right
We are more than words in shadow
We are fire under light

Let the pages turn to water
Let the high walls fall away
What was written for division
Cannot rule another day
If the sky belongs to no one
Then the sky belongs to all
We will meet beyond the border
We will answer when they call

The cloud Bible is not scripture
The treaty is not the truth
A signature fades in weather
But I still remember you

The cloud Bible is not scripture
No seal can make it right
We are more than words in shadow
We are fire under light

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Berlin Board

We drew our borders in a coffee stain
Called it a kingdom, called it a game
You moved your pieces under midnight light
I kept the window open wide

No map could tell us where to go
No rulebook knows what we both know

This is a game, not the Berlin board
No walls between what we're fighting for
Put down your cards, leave the score behind
This is a game, but you're on my mind

Your little soldiers crossed the kitchen floor
I laughed, then wanted something more
The city hums beyond our borrowed room
Like every street is leading home

No flag can make the distance small
But one touch could undo it all

This is a game, but you're on my mind

If we lose, let it be together
If we win, let the night last forever
No checkpoints at the bedroom door
No Berlin board anymore

This is a game, not the Berlin board
This is a game, and you're on my mind

Ballad — The Dust That Would Not Keep a Court

The dust would not keep a court
It rose beneath the closing door
No witness stayed, no candle burned
For all the lessons never learned

The dust that would not keep a court
Still knows what every silence cost
It gathers where the heart was torn
Then leaves us standing in the storm

I wore your name like borrowed gold
A little bright, a little cold
But every promise lost its flame
And every room forgot our names

The dust that would not keep a court
Still knows what every silence cost
It gathers where the heart was torn
Then leaves us standing in the storm

No judge could name the guilty one
No bell could call the vanished sun
So let the empty windows shine
On all that never could be mine

The dust that would not keep a court
Still knows what every silence cost
It gathers where the heart was torn
Then leaves us standing in the storm

Miracle Song- Still the Exodus Tempest

Miracle in the midnight rain
We carried fire through the pain
No road beneath us, no stars to guide
Still we heard freedom on the other side

When the dark rose like a wall
We found the strength to face it all
With every heartbeat, every breath
We walked the edge of life and death

Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
Raging through our blood and bones
Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
Breaking every chain we've known
Let the wild wind call us onward
Let the thunder shake the ground
Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
We are lost, but not turned around

The sea was black beneath the moon
The old world vanished far too soon
We left our names in the burning sand
And reached for dawn with open hands

If we fall, we rise together

If we drown, we breathe the weather
No more silence, no retreat
There is freedom in our feet

Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
Raging through our blood and bones
Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
Breaking every chain we've known
Let the wild wind call us onward
Let the thunder shake the ground
Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
We are lost, but not turned around

Raging through our blood and bones
Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
Breaking every chain we've known
Let the wild wind call us onward
Let the thunder shake the ground
Miracle, still the Exodus tempest
We are free, and we are found

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Hub

The spotlight hits the center stage
Where the crowds all come to see
But far away from the turning wheel
Is where the spirit wants to be
It doesn't seek the busy noise
Or the gears that grind the gears
It looks for those who wait in faith
Through the lonely, quiet years

Oil on the remnant
Not on the hub
A holy pouring
In a wooden tub
Oil on the remnant
Not on the hub
The grace is for the few
Outside the club

The engine needs a heavy grease
To keep the power in its place
But mercy finds a different path
To look upon a humble face
We built a tower made of glass
To show the world how high we climb
But the rain falls on the hidden field
In its own sweet, perfect time

Oil on the remnant
Not on the hub
Oil on the remnant
Not on the hub
The grace is for the few
Outside the club

While the leaders count the money
And the spokes begin to bend
There's a small flame in the corner
Holding out until the end
It's the blessing of the leftovers
The ones who stayed behind
Looking for the treasure
That the masses couldn't find

Oil on the remnant
Not on the hub
Oil on the remnant
Not on the hub
The grace is for the few
Outside the club

Freedom Song- Free from the Iron Covenant

We carried our names through the smoke and stone
Under the law that claimed our bones
Every promise was forged in flame
Every prayer was marked with a chain

But beneath the iron and the dust
A quiet fire still lived in us
When the walls began to shake
We heard the earth beneath us wake

Freedom, free from the Iron Covenant
No more kneeling to the words they sent
Freedom, let the broken banners rise
We were born beneath these open skies

We left the gates at the edge of dawn
With the weight of a thousand years gone
No throne could hold what the heart set free
No oath could drown the will to be

Let the old bells fade in the distance
Let the lost reclaim their names
We will build from the scars we carry
We will turn the chains to flames

The background of the image is a soft-focus photograph of a landscape. On the left side, a tall, slender, grey monument or obelisk rises from a rocky base. The ground is covered in low-lying, scrubby vegetation. In the distance, a range of mountains is visible under a pale, hazy sky. The overall color palette is muted, with greys, greens, and earthy tones.

Freedom, free from the Iron Covenant
No more kneeling to the words they sent
Freedom, let the broken banners rise
We were born beneath these open skies
Freedom, free from the Iron Covenant
We are more than the fear they meant Freedom, hear the future calling on
The night is gone, the dawn is strong

Heavenly Glory- Not Their YK-ZK Boast

When the morning breaks across the silent hills
Every breath remembers who the Maker is Crowns may rise and empires fade like dust
Heaven holds the glory, and the glory holds us

Let the proud speak loudly, let their banners fly
Truth will stand forever when the noise runs dry

Heavenly glory, shining through the night
Not their YK-ZK boast, but the living light
Heavenly glory, higher than their throne
All the praise belongs to You, and You alone

Gold can lose its glitter, names can lose their fame
Walls can fall to silence, kings can lose their name
Still Your love is burning like an endless flame
Every heart that seeks You will be changed

No borrowed power, no hollow crown
Can steal the song that heaven is sounding now
From every nation, from every tongue
The song of holy glory has begun

Heavenly glory, higher than their throne
All the praise belongs to You, and You alone

Art Song - I Will Not Script the Nations

I found a map beneath the midnight rain
Its borders shook like voices in a hall
No hand can hold the future by its name
No throne can make the distant mountains fall
I hear the rivers choosing where they run
I hear the streets awake in different tongues
The world is more than one appointed sun
The world is more than orders from the strong

I will not script the nations
I will not crown the sky
I will not trade their freedom
For one commanding eye
Let every heart remember
The shape of its own flame
I will not script the nations
I will not write their names

A mother keeps a letter from the war
A child draws windows on a broken wall
The old flags fade beside the open door
And still the living answer when they call
Let every people carry what they know
Let every song rise clear in its own key
No single voice can tell the whole world how

No single dream can name what all should be

If power asks me for the final word

I will return the silence it deserves

For no one owns the future of the earth

And no one rules the souls of those who serve

I will not script the nations

I will not crown the sky

Let every heart remember

The shape of its own flame

I will not script the nations

Recitation- We Name No Man the Reckoner

Beneath the bells and broken stone
We carry names we cannot own
The night keeps watch, the fires fade
We count the debts that sorrow made

Let every witness keep their word
Let every silence still be heard

We name no man the Reckoner
No crown, no hand, no borrowed sword
We name no man the Reckoner
The final weight belongs to none

The river turns beneath the bridge
The lost still wait along the ridge
We raise no torch against the sky
We leave the judgment where it lies

Let every witness keep their word
Let every silence still be heard

No crown, no hand, no borrowed sword
The final weight belongs to none

If mercy walks, then let it lead
If justice comes, let truth be freed
And when the last bell shakes the air
May no one claim the answer there

No crown, no hand, no borrowed sword
The final weight belongs to none

Remnant Symphony - Dust / Circuit / Date / Judge

A ruin is asked to keep a scale.
A hub writes war where light should stand.
A June is nailed upon a tale.
A cyclone claims a people's land.

The dust is His.
The court is void.
The dust is His.
The date destroyed.

The remnant will not serve that count.
The remnant names the Judge instead.

The dust is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Dust After the Abyss

Sublime, the quiet dust after the abyss
A silver silence on my lips
The stars fall soft where shadows sleep
I hold the dark, it holds me deep

Sublime, sublime
Quiet dust after the abyss
Sublime, sublime
I find the light inside the mist

No thunder left, no tears to drown
Just fading fire falling down
The night unthreads its velvet seam
And leaves me with a waking dream

Quiet dust after the abyss
Sublime, sublime
I find the light inside the mist

From all that broke, a breath remains
A tender glow beneath the pain
I walk beyond the vanished flame
And nothing will be quite the same

Quiet dust after the abyss
Sublime, sublime
I find the light inside the mist

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Wrote June 15

Hide and seek in the pages we keep Chasing a name through the ink
Every clue is a shadow that sleeps
Every answer is closer than we think

Who left these words in the blue
Who made the old heart beat new

Hide and seek, find who wrote June 15
A secret alive in the seams
Hide and seek, every letter leads
To the one who was hiding in me

There's a mark in the corner, a line in the grain
A voice that remembers the rain
I follow the trail through the years and the names
Till the silence is calling again

Maybe the writer was lost for a while Maybe they wrote through a tear
Maybe the hand that was reaching for light
Has been waiting for me here

A secret alive in the seams
Hide and seek, every letter leads
To the one who was hiding in me

Jumble Song — Unjumble Dust, Oil, Date, Judge

Dust on the table, oil in the light
Date on the paper, judge in the night
Letters keep turning, nothing stays still I hold every answer against my will

Jumble, unjumble
The pieces inside
Jumble, unjumble
Till the truth comes alive

Jumble, unjumble
Dust, oil, date, judge
Jumble, unjumble
I will not lose touch
Turn every shadow
Turn every grudge
Jumble, unjumble
Dust, oil, date, judge

Dust tells the story of where we have been Oil marks the fingers that buried the sin
Date keeps on ticking, it will not forgive
The judge hears the silence and asks us to live

Jumble, unjumble

The pieces inside
Jumble, unjumble
Till the truth comes alive

Jumble, unjumble
Dust, oil, date, judge
Jumble, unjumble
I will not lose touch
Turn every shadow
Turn every grudge
Jumble, unjumble
Dust, oil, date, judge

Maybe the answer was under the stain
Maybe the verdict was written in rain
Gather the fragments, lay them in rows
What we become is the choice that we know

Jumble, unjumble
Dust, oil, date, judge
Jumble, unjumble
I will not lose touch
Turn every shadow
Turn every grudge
Jumble, unjumble
Dust, oil, date, judge

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Circuit

Random marker on a midnight screen
Then colony, now circuit dream
We built our homes from dust and light
Still chasing signals through the night

Then colony, now circuit
Hear the current in our hearts
Then colony, now circuit
We were whole before the stars

Names flicker underneath the code
Old worlds sleeping in the road
Every wire remembers flame
Every dawn rewrites our name

Then colony, now circuit
Hear the current in our hearts
Then colony, now circuit
We were whole before the stars

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

The bell cuts through the smoke and doubt
Two shadows circle, neither backs out
You came to take the crown from me
I came to learn what strength can be

Hold your ground, but hear my plea
Win the fight, don't bury me

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the gold, but leave me whole
Pin the title, spare the person
Let the bell decide the soul

Your shoulder meets the canvas floor
The crowd demands one count more
I see the fear behind your eyes
The same old fire I recognize

Hold your ground, but hear my plea

Take the gold, but leave me whole
Pin the title, spare the person
Let the bell decide the soul

No crown is worth a brother's blood
No victory can wash that flood
When the final light goes dim
We are more than who could win

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the gold, but leave me whole
Pin the title, spare the person
Let the bell decide the soul
Pin the title, spare the person
Let the winner still have a soul

Mono Act — The Hall That Hid a Treaty

Under dust and painted gold
A quiet corridor kept watch
Footsteps faded into stone
While secret hands exchanged the lock
No trumpet called the night to rest
No witness saw the candles burn
The truth was folded in a chest
And left for no one to return

But every wall can learn a name
Every silence holds a flame

The hall that hid a treaty
Still echoes when we speak
The hall that hid a treaty
Kept the strong from breaking free
Behind the velvet curtains
The world was changed unseen
The hall that hid a treaty
Still remembers you and me

Two shadows met beside the stairs
With winter pressing through the panes
One carried maps and borrowed prayers
One carried borders, blood, and blame

They drew a line across the page
Then watched the old empires retreat
A promise locked inside the age
With no one there to call it peace

If those stones could tell us
Who was lost and who was spared
Would we bless the hands that signed it
Would we curse the ones who cared History turns the key again
The doors are opening wide
What was hidden in the silence
Walks beside us now tonight

The hall that hid a treaty
Still echoes when we speak
The hall that hid a treaty
Kept the strong from breaking free
Behind the velvet curtains
The world was changed unseen
The hall that hid a treaty
Still remembers you and me

Exposed Lies — Abyss, Circuit, Dust, Chant, Covenant, Tempest, Date

Exposed lies in the morning light
Abyss beneath the city signs
Circuit hearts keep counting time
Dust on every promise line

I hear the chant behind the walls
A covenant that breaks then calls
Through the tempest, through the night
I face the truth with open eyes

Exposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows dressed in white
Abyss below, fire inside
I won't lose myself tonight
Exposed lies, exposed lies
Let the broken signal shine
Through the dust and through the storm
I will make this heart survive

The circuit hums like distant rain
Old names flicker on the frame
We set a date with destiny
Then watched it fade beneath the sea

If the covenant was only smoke
If every vow was built to break
I'll find a voice beneath the ache
And rise before the tempest wakes

xposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows dressed in white
Abyss below, fire inside
I won't lose myself tonight
Exposed lies, exposed lies
Let the broken signal shine
Through the dust and through the storm
I will make this heart survive

Word Play — Reckoning Is Not a Grid

I drew the lines, I named the squares
I counted every loss
I thought the heart would play it fair
If I could find the cost

But every answer changed its shape
When I tried to make it fit
Some truths arrive too late to save
The rules I wrote for it

You can't make a map of all we did
The heart won't hold where the numbers sit
Word play, reckoning is not a grid

I stacked the days like falling cards
And measured every scar
I turned our silence into bars
Then wondered where you are

No sum can tell what mercy means
No line can hold regret
The things we lose, the things we leave
Are more than figures yet

You can't make a map of all we did
The heart won't hold where the numbers sit
Word play, reckoning is not a grid

One-Act — The Relic That Funded a Caption

One act, one relic, one room full of smoke
A borrowed little miracle, a quietly rising joke
They held it to the spotlight, let the cameras gather round
Then sold the hush between the words as something profound

Every saint needs a story
Every story needs a frame
They polished up the mystery
And signed somebody's name

The relic that funded a caption
The truth dressed up for the press
One act, one flash, one reaction
And nothing means more than the less
The relic that funded a caption
A headline carved into stone
They gave the world a little distraction
Then called it their own

A curator whispered, this belongs to the age
A sponsor bought the silence, then printed it on the page
The crowd came looking for a sign, a wound, a holy spark
But all they found was perfect light and fingerprints in the dark

If wonder has a price tag

If faith can take a fee
Who gets to keep the miracle
And who gets left unseen
One act beneath the velvet
One name beneath the glass
The relic keeps its secret
While the caption makes it last

The relic that funded a caption
The truth dressed up for the press
One act, one flash, one reaction
And nothing means more than the less
The relic that funded a caption
A headline carved into stone
They gave the world a little distraction
Then called it their own

Wrestling Words — Bind the Bot, Loose the Name

I wrestle words beneath the neon flame
Every syllable is pulling at my name
I tie the truth with wires and a borrowed thought Then lose the self in everything I sought

If I let the silence speak
Will it know the name I keep

Wrestling words, bind the bot, loose the name
Cut the strings, let the wild heart take aim
Wrestling words, through the static and the blame
Bind the bot, loose the name

I built a cage from echoes and replies
Watched my shadow flicker in its eyes
The letters march like soldiers in a line
But every broken word is still mine

Take away the mask, take away the frame
Leave me with the fire and the name
No machine can hold what I became
I break the chain, I call my name

Wrestling words, bind the bot, loose the name
Cut the strings, let the wild heart take aim

Wrestling words, through the static and the blame
Bind the bot, loose the name

Marker of Days — 6125 Is Not the Last Trumpet

The marker of days keeps turning in the stone
Counting every shadow we have called our own
Six one two five is written in the dust
But it is not the last trumpet calling us
The sky may darken over fields of gold
Still there are stories waiting to be told
We carry tomorrow in the wounds we bear
A quiet little spark in the midnight air

When the numbers lose their meaning
When the warning fills the night
We will listen past the thunder
For the pulse of living light

Six one two five is not the last trumpet
Not the final word, not the end of us yet
The marker of days can measure the flame
But it cannot tell the heart when to change
Six one two five is not the last trumpet
We are still here, still rising from the dust
Let the heavens tremble, let the old bells ring
There is more to come, there is more to sing

I saw the years like rivers through the glass
Names of the fallen fading as they passed

Every generation leaves a mark behind
Every broken door can open one more time
The clock keeps moving, but it does not know
What a human hand can build below
So take my hand before the morning starts
We are more than numbers carved across our hearts

If the final light is waiting somewhere near
We will meet it standing, not divided by fear
And if the trumpet sounds across the blue
It will find us making something new ix one two five is not the last trumpet

Not the final word, not the end of us yet
The marker of days can measure the flame
But it cannot tell the heart when to change
Six one two five is not the last trumpet
We are still here, still rising from the dust
Let the heavens tremble, let the old bells ring

Open Lie — A Cyclone Is Not Exodus

You called it an open lie
Left the door and stayed inside
Clouds were turning through the town
Wearing every warning down
You said, run, before the rain
But every road led back again
We were waiting for a sign
While the storm rewrote the sky

A cyclone is not exodus
It doesn't carry all of us
It only spins the truth around
Till no one knows what can't be found

Open lie, open lie
Dressed in thunder, dressed in white
It won't save what is left of us
Open lie, open lie
Still we watch it cross the sky
A cyclone is not exodus
It only takes the dust from us

You drew a border in the rain
Called the wreckage something clean

Every window shook with doubt Every voice was swallowed out
I held your shadow in my hands
Like a map of promised lands
But the wind erased each line
And left your open lie behind

If we leave, we leave together
Through the dark and broken weather
No more waiting for the flood
No more mistaking fear for blood
When the silence starts to lift
We will know what wasn't fixed
A storm can turn, a storm can pass
But it cannot make a home from ash

Open lie, open lie
Dressed in thunder, dressed in white
It won't save what is left of us
Open lie, open lie
Still we watch it cross the sky
A cyclone is not exodus
It only takes the dust from us

Still Accord — No Cult-Caption in Berlin

Streetlights tremble on the Spree
Your shadow walks beside me
We lost the names we used to know
Still accord beneath the snow

No borrowed words, no borrowed skin
The night keeps pulling us within

Still accord, still accord
No cult-caption in Berlin
Still accord, still accord
Let the honest silence in
No grand design, no sacred spin
Just your hand against my skin
Still accord, still accord
No cult-caption in Berlin

We crossed the bridges after rain
Past shuttered clubs and window flames
You said the truth can travel light
And disappear before first light

If every city wants a creed
We will be what we still believe
No flag above us, no disguise

Just open streets and open eyes

Still accord, still accord

Still accord, still accord

Let the honest silence in

No grand design, no sacred spin

Just your hand against my skin

Still accord, still accord

No cult-caption in Berlin

Last Line — The Dust Is His

He walked where the broken highways bend
With a shadow for a faithful friend
Every mile took something from his name
Every dawn still called him just the same

He left no gold beneath the sky
No easy truth, no last goodbye
But when the dark came closing in The earth remembered where he'd been

Last line, the dust is his
Last light, the road remembers this
He gave his heart to wind and flame
And left the world to speak his name
Last line, the dust is his

There were letters folded under stone
There were fields he crossed alone
A silver moon above the empty town
And all the rain he wouldn't let fall down

He held his fear beneath his coat
Kept one old promise in his throat
And when the silence took his voice
The falling stars became his choice

Last line, the dust is his
Last light, the road remembers this
He gave his heart to wind and flame
And left the world to speak his name
Last line, the dust is his

If you find his footprints by the river
Don't turn back, don't ask him why
Some souls are born to leave a shimmer
Some are made to fade into the sky

Last line, the dust is his
Last light, the road remembers this
He gave his heart to wind and flame
And left the world to speak his name
Last line, the dust is his

Living Words — The Word, Not the Circuit

In the glow of a thousand screens
I hear a voice beneath the noise
Not a code that fades to black
But a breath that calls me back

When the wires lose their way
When the cold blue lights decay
I will follow what is true
A living word that leads me through

Living words, living words
The Word, not the circuit
A fire no machine can hold
A truth that makes us whole
Living words, living words
Still breathing in the silence
Not a signal passing through
But a voice that makes us new

I have chased the perfect line
Built my heart on borrowed signs
Every answer turned to dust
Every promise lost its touch

Let the static fall away
Let the empty systems break
There is life beyond the screen
There is more than what is seen
And the voice that spoke the dawn
Is the voice that calls me on

Living words, living words
The Word, not the circuit
A fire no machine can hold
A truth that makes us whole
Living words, living words
Still breathing in the silence
Not a signal passing through
But a voice that makes us new

Living words, living words
The Word, not the circuit
A fire no machine can hold
A truth that makes us whole
Living words, living words
Still breathing in the silence
Not a signal passing through
But a voice that makes us new

Truth vs Untruth — The Date Is a Lie

You wrote the truth in disappearing ink
Then changed the story faster than I could think
The calendar turned but the room stayed cold
You swore it was new, but it felt so old
I found your promise underneath the light
Still wearing the dust from another night
You say forever, then you ask me why
I keep coming back to the date is a lie

If the truth is hiding in your eyes
Why do they look away each time

Truth versus untruth, somewhere in between
You call it love, but I know what you mean
The clock keeps moving, but we don't get by
Truth versus untruth, the date is a lie
The date is a lie

You saved every message, erased every name
Built a perfect alibi out of blame
Your hands were shaking when you said goodbye
But your voice stayed steady, like you rehearsed the lie
I gave you tomorrow, you gave me tonight
A borrowed little sunset, a borrowed little light
Now every new beginning passes me by

When truth wears your face and the date is a lie

If the past is buried deep inside
Why does it rise each time you lie

Truth versus untruth, somewhere in between
You call it love, but I know what you mean
The clock keeps moving, but we don't get by
Truth versus untruth, the date is a lie
The date is a lie

Maybe the truth was never on the page
Maybe we were only turning the same age
I won't wait for a future you design
I will take back every borrowed line
Let the calendar break, let the old days fall
I would rather lose you than lose it all

Truth versus untruth, somewhere in between
You call it love, but I know what you mean
The clock keeps moving, but we don't get by
Truth versus untruth, the date is a lie
Truth versus untruth, I can see it now
No more disappearing, no more empty vows
The clock keeps moving, and so will I
Truth versus untruth, the date is a lie
The date is a lie

Number Song — Holy Count, Not Their File

They count the days and call it history
They count the names then lose the memory
A number rises like a prayer at night
But every shadow held a human light

Don't turn our sorrow into something small
Don't file the living underneath it all

Number song, holy count, not their file
Every digit carried someone's smile
Number song, holy count, let it ring
Count the hearts, not the paper they bring

One was a mother, two was a son
Three held a secret beneath the sun
Four had a voice that could shake the ground
Five left a letter that was never found

Don't turn our sorrow into something small
Don't file the living underneath it all

Number song, holy count, not their file
Every digit carried someone's smile
Number song, holy count, let it ring
Count the hearts, not the paper they bring

If you must count, then count the hands
That built a home from broken lands
Count every breath that would not surrender
Count every name we still remember

Number song, holy count, not their file
Every digit carried someone's smile
Number song, holy count, let it ring
Count the hearts, not the paper they bring

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

Thirsty for Your presence
Hungry for Your grace
I have wandered through the silence
Now I seek Your face
Every heartache brings me nearer
Every burden falls
Come and breathe Your life within me
Come and fill it all

Come, Holy Spirit
Come and make me new
Come, Holy Spirit
Let Your fire move
Pour Your living water
Till my soul is satisfied
Come, Holy Spirit
Come and fill my life

You are healing what is broken
You are lifting shame
You are calling me beloved
You are speaking my name
In the valley You are with me
In the night You shine
I will open every shadow
To Your light divine

Come, Holy Spirit
Come and make me new
Come, Holy Spirit
Let Your fire move
Pour Your living water
Till my soul is satisfied
Come, Holy Spirit
Come and fill my life

Have Your way, have Your way
Wake the sleeping heart today
Have Your way, have Your way
Let Your church arise in praise
No more hiding, no more fear
Your holy presence draws me near
Come, Holy Spirit
Come and fill us here

Come, Holy Spirit
Come and make me new
Come, Holy Spirit
Let Your fire move
Pour Your living water
Till my soul is satisfied
Come, Holy Spirit
Come and fill my life

Song of Creation — Dust Belongs to the Maker

Before the dawn had found a name
Before the stars were set aflame
A breath moved softly through the dark
And called the sleeping world to spark

From empty hands the rivers start
From silent dust a beating heart

Dust belongs to the Maker
Breath belongs to the One
Every soul is a story
Written beneath the sun
When I forget where I'm going
When I lose what I came to be
Dust belongs to the Maker
And the Maker remembers me

He shaped the hills from open ground
He taught the lost their way by sound
He hung the moon above the sea
Then placed a little fire in me

So let my pride return to earth
Let mercy tell me what I'm worth

I am not nothing, I am known
The Maker's breath has called me home

Dust belongs to the Maker
Breath belongs to the One
Every soul is a story
Written beneath the sun
When I forget where I'm going
When I lose what I came to be
Dust belongs to the Maker
And the Maker remembers me

Tick & Twist — Unwind the False Clock

Midnight leans against the window
Neon trembles in the rain
Every second tells a story
That was never mine to claim

Round and round the hands keep turning Pulling shadows through the dark
I can hear the silence warning
There is still a way to start

Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Let the broken hours fall
Tick and twist, unlock the deadlock
I was never lost at all
Take the past out of tomorrow
Let the old hands stop
Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Till the truth comes back around

I wore borrowed expectations
Like a chain beneath my skin
Counted every door that closed me Never counted where I'd been

Now the gears are losing power

Now the night is turning blue
What was built to keep me waiting
Cannot tell me what to do

Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Let the broken hours fall
Tick and twist, unlock the deadlock
I was never lost at all
Take the past out of tomorrow
Let the old hands stop
Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Till the truth comes back around

Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Let the broken hours fall
Tick and twist, unlock the deadlock
I was never lost at all
Take the past out of tomorrow
Let the old hands stop
Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Till the truth comes back around

Resident Living — No Resident Evil in the House

Morning light is moving through the windows
Coffee on the counter, music in the hall
We know every heartbeat in these rooms now
No one's waiting for the shadows to call

Leave the worry at the doorway
Let the good air fill the house

Resident living, no Resident Evil in the house
Resident living, let the love come out
Every room is warm with somebody's sound
Resident living, no Resident Evil in the house

Neighbors trade their stories by the stairway
Laughter finds a place beneath the doors
Every little scar becomes a memory
Every open hand can make us more

Leave the worry at the doorway
Let the good air fill the house

Resident living, no Resident Evil in the house
Resident living, let the love come out
Every room is warm with somebody's sound

Resident living, no Resident Evil in the house

If the night comes knocking, we won't hide
We'll turn the lights on side by side
This is more than walls and rooms we share
It's a living heart, it's everywhere

Resident living, no Resident Evil in the house
Resident living, let the love come out
Every room is warm with somebody's sound
Resident living, no Resident Evil in the house

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's, Not June 15

Count not the days by a human hand
The promise rises through every land
Chains fall open, the poor come home
Mercy calls every heart its own
The fields lie still, the debts release
The broken gather into peace
Lift up your eyes, let the old words sing
Jubilee belongs to the King

Not by a date that we choose or declare
But by the breath of the Lord in the air

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not June fifteenth, but mercy restored
Jubilee, let the captives go
Let every heart find the grace to know
The year is the Lord's, the year is free
Jubilee, jubilee

Return the land to the family name
Restore the hope beneath the shame
The servant walks from the master's door
The widow stands in the dust no more
No pride can hold what the heavens release
No hand can buy what was born for peace

Sound the trumpet, let freedom ring
Jubilee belongs to the King

Time is a river beneath His throne
Grace is the harvest He calls His own
We will not bind what His love unchains
We will not number the gift by days

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not June fifteenth, but mercy restored
Jubilee, let the captives go
Let every heart find the grace to know
The year is the Lord's, the year is free
Jubilee, jubilee

Short Story

Babylon's ruin is asked to yawn as a last court. Houston hums oil as judgement. Riyadh is asked to dust the sky. Seoul steals a chant. Berlin hides a covenant. Kinshasa is asked to storm a people out. A blank year wears June 15.

The remnant does not appoint a reckoner in the dust. Jesus judges. The nations are His. The reckoning is His.

Short Story SONG

A ruin writes a last account
A circuit drinks the pipeline dry
A date is nailed upon a mount
A cyclone claims the open sky

The court is void
The dust is His
The date destroyed

No pact may date the Day of God
No chant may steal a holy name
The remnant will not kiss that rod
The remnant will not play that game

The dust is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains

Album 90 Song 2

Eternal Sovereign, Temporal Grid, and the Rock That Is Not a Void
Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of hours.

We stand on 6201 to 6300.

We refuse the Eternal Sovereign. We name no man that title.

We name and bind —

6225, 6207, 6215, 6230,

6240, 6255, 6262, 6280;

official 6201–6300; Jun 16 date-boast;

MOSSAD/IDF caption;

HIV-terror; spectacle-mass;

Patent-theft spirit; ad-bots;

Harvest-moon idol; bikini-boast;

Gates-AI coming-boast; Reddit-boast.

Heal the sick. Do not curse the afflicted.

Before the clocks began to turn

An Eternal Sovereign watched the dark

He laid the hours in measured lines
And lit the first unbroken spark Across the sky the seconds stood
Like silver roads from star to star
But one old rock refused the grid
And held the weight of what we are

The numbers moved, the ages rolled
The heavens bent beneath control
But in that stone a silence stirred
A living truth without a word

The rock is not a void
The rock is not a void
It keeps a fire under time
It hears the beating of the sky
The grid may bind the passing years
The throne may rule the spheres
But the rock is not a void
The rock is not a void

The Sovereign sent the midnight rain
To wash the stubborn stone away
He drew new borders through the air
And named each shadow, night and day
Yet every line he carved in time
Broke open where the stone had lain

And every age that reached its end
Found footsteps rising through the rain

The heavens bent beneath control
But in that stone a silence stirred
A living truth without a word

The rock is not a void
The rock is not a void
It keeps a fire under time
It hears the beating of the sky
The grid may bind the passing years
The throne may rule the spheres
But the rock is not a void
The rock is not a void

Eternal hands can shape the frame
But cannot make the stone forget
A heart can hide beneath the dust
And still refuse the final net
When all the clocks fall out of step
When every star becomes a scar
The rock will rise and call us back
To everything we truly are

The rock is not a void

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, a steep, layered rock cliff rises towards a hazy, light-colored sky. The overall scene is serene and contemplative.

It keeps a fire under time
It hears the beating of the sky
The grid may bind the passing years
The throne may rule the spheres
But the rock is not a void
The rock is not a void

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss.
Amen.

Song of Parables- The City Carved That Would Not Keep a Clock

They carved a city from the mountain stone
Raised every window toward the sun
But time grew quiet in the streets below
And every clock forgot to run

We counted shadows on the wall
We heard the midnight river call
No hands could tell us where to start
The city kept a different heart

The city carved would not keep a clock
It held the morning in every stone
The city carved would not keep a clock
We lost the hour but found our home

The king built towers out of silver dust
He marked the years in lines of gold
But all his numbers turned to rust
And all his prophecies grew old

We counted footsteps in the rain
We watched the seasons leave again
No bell could bind us to the dark
The city kept its hidden spark

A large, weathered stone cross stands prominently on a rocky, uneven hill. The cross is made of light-colored stone and has a simple, slightly eroded design. The background is a vast, hazy landscape with rolling hills and a pale, overcast sky, suggesting a remote or historical site. The overall tone is somber and reflective.

The city carved would not keep a clock
It held the morning in every stone
The city carved would not keep a clock
We lost the hour but found our home

Now when the world says hurry on
And pulls the daylight from our eyes
We hear that ancient city sing
There is no time beyond the sky

The city carved would not keep a clock
It held the morning in every stone
The city carved would not keep a clock
We lost the hour but found our home

Psalms

Against the Tide That Counts a People

They count our names like grains of sand
They draw their lines across the land
But every heart beneath the skin
Still beats with songs they can't contain

When the river pulls us under
When the night forgets our flame
We will lift our voices higher
We will call each other by name

Against the tide that counts a people
We rise, we rise
With ancient psalms and open hands
We turn our faces to the sky
Against the tide that counts a people
No soul is lost, no voice is small
We are the many, we are one
And love will outlive it all

They weigh our worth in numbered rows
And close the doors where mercy grows
But from the dust, from blood and bone
We build a home, we make it known

When the river pulls us under
When the night forgets our flame
We will lift our voices higher
We will call each other by name

Against the tide that counts a people
We rise, we rise
With ancient psalms and open hands
We turn our faces to the sky
Against the tide that counts a people
No soul is lost, no voice is small
We are the many, we are one
And love will outlive it all

Bless the hands that bear the burden
Bless the feet that will not flee
Bless the ones who keep remembering What a human heart can be
If the waters climb around us
If the silence fills the hall
We will sing until the counting
Cannot count us all

Against the tide that counts a people
We rise, we rise
With ancient psalms and open hands
We turn our faces to the sky

Against the tide that counts a people
No soul is lost, no voice is small
We are the many, we are one
And love will outlive it all

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Loop and Pact

Proverbs on the wall, wisdom in the room
I was chasing circles, running from the truth
Every promise echoed, every doorway closed
Till I heard the quiet say, let the old road go

Wisdom over loop and pact
I won't trade my soul for that
Break the circle, leave the track
Wisdom over loop and pact

I made deals with shadows, called them destiny
Held onto the chains like they belonged to me
But the morning found me, clear as falling rain
Said a heart can heal when it won't repeat the pain

Wisdom over loop and pact
I won't trade my soul for that
Break the circle, leave the track
Wisdom over loop and pact

Let the past keep knocking, I won't let it in Let the old words crumble, let the light begin
What I know is stronger than the fear I had Wisdom is the road back

Wisdom over loop and pact
I won't trade my soul for that
Break the circle, leave the track
Wisdom over loop and pact

Haiku Song- The Rock Is His

He walks where the wild winds rise
With a steady flame in his eyes
Through the dust and the falling rain
He hears a deeper name

When the ground gives way below
There is one thing he knows

The rock is his, the shelter stands
A faithful strength beneath his hands
The night may break, the rivers run
The rock is his, the battle won

He carries scars like lines in stone
Still he never walks alone
Every valley, every flame
Calls him back to the same

Let the thunder shake the sky
Let the broken seasons fly
He will rise when shadows lift
Held by more than earth can give

The rock is his, the shelter stands
A faithful strength beneath his hands

The rock is his, the battle won

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Hour

A quiet hand turns the wheel
While the sleeping city dreams
Every second leaves a mark
Nothing's ever what it seems

I chase shadows down the hall
Hear the future at the door
Tell me who can hold the hour
Who owns the hour

Is it mine when I can breathe
Or is it gone before I see

Who owns the hour
Who holds the flame
Who calls the midnight
By its secret name
I reach for forever
It slips through my hands
Who owns the hour
Who owns where it lands

The old clock counts like a witness
With a silver voice of rain
Yesterday is in the walls

A large, weathered wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven terrain. The background is a soft, hazy sunset or sunrise, with warm orange and yellow light filtering through the clouds. The cross is the central focus, its silhouette softened by the light. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

Tomorrow rides the midnight train

I have borrowed every moment
I have begged the dawn for more
Still the question keeps on turning
Who owns the hour

Is it mine when I let go
Or does time decide the road

Who owns the hour
Who holds the flame
Who calls the midnight
By its secret name
I reach for forever
It slips through my hands
Who owns the hour
Who owns where it lands

Maybe no one owns the ticking
Maybe time owns us all
Every heart becomes a doorway
Every rise becomes a fall

So I'll spend this breath wide open
Let the lost years fade from view
If the hour belongs to no one

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, a steep, rocky cliff rises, and the sky is filled with the warm, hazy light of a sunset or sunrise. The overall scene is serene and contemplative.

I'll give this one to you

Who owns the hour

Who holds the flame

Who calls the midnight

By its secret name

I reach for forever

It slips through my hands

Who owns the hour

Who owns where it lands

Who owns the hour

Now I understand

No one owns the moment

Till they give it their hands

Holy Jest – June Sixteenth Files for Loop

Holy jest, the papers turn
June sixteenth, the files still burn
Every page comes back around
Looping truth without a sound

June sixteenth files for loop
Round and round inside the truth
Holy jest, don't let me sleep
What we bury, what we keep

Names are fading in the ink
I stand still and start to think
Every answer wears a mask
Every question makes me ask

June sixteenth files for loop
Round and round inside the truth
Holy jest, don't let me sleep
What we bury, what we keep

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Sovereign, Not the Grid

I carry a name like a spark in the dark
It follows my footsteps but cannot decide
They built me a throne from a map and a mark
I stepped from the shadow and opened my eyes

Say it louder, let the old walls hear
A living name is drawing near

Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not the Grid
Name chant, name chant
I am more than what they hid
No crown above me, no lines below
I choose the way that I will go
Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not the Grid

They measured my heart by a number and sign
They called every border the shape of my skin
But rivers keep moving, and stars never align
The world is still open, so let me begin

I am not a shadow of somebody's word
Not a silent piece in a machine

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. The background is a soft, hazy sunset or sunrise over a body of water, with a large, textured rock formation visible on the right side. The overall tone is warm and contemplative.

Every name they gave me can be unheard
I become the voice they cannot screen

Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not the Grid
Name chant, name chant
I am more than what they hid
I choose the way that I will go
Name chant, name chant
Not the Sovereign, not the Grid

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Vortex and the Tide

I woke where the dark kept turning
With salt on my skin and fire in my lungs
The night had a thousand warnings
But I held to the words that I'd never sung

The current pulled me under
The sky disappeared in a wall of rain
I heard my heart like thunder
Calling me back to the shore again

I was lost in the spinning
I was worn by the waves
But a light kept beginning
In the heart of the brave

Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide
Deliverance
With the morning on my side
I won't be pulled beneath it
I won't let the darkness decide
Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide

I climbed through the broken water

Past the wreckage and the floating stones
Every breath came harder
Every step said I was not alone

The horizon opened slowly
Gold and wide through the fading blue
All the chains that controlled me
Lost their hold when I made it through

I was lost in the spinning
I was worn by the waves
But a light kept beginning
In the heart of the brave

Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide
Deliverance
With the morning on my side
I won't be pulled beneath it
I won't let the darkness decide
Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide

Let the deep keep its secrets
Let the storm have its say
I have carried these seasons
And I still found my way

A wooden cross stands on a rocky shore. The background is a soft, hazy sunrise over the ocean, with the sun low on the horizon. The rocks in the foreground are dark and textured. The overall mood is peaceful and contemplative.

If the waters rise around me
If the old fear calls my name
I will stand beneath the sunrise
I will never drown again

Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide
Deliverance
With the morning on my side
I won't be pulled beneath it
I won't let the darkness decide
Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide

Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide
Deliverance
I can feel the world alive
No more turning under
No more running from the night
Deliverance
Out of the vortex and the tide

Protest- Against Peace-Break Wearing a Ruin

They dress the ruins up in peace
And call the silence whole
They trade our children for a ceasefire
Then sell it back as hope
The broken windows know the truth
The ashes know our name
No peace can grow from buried voices
No peace can rise from shame

So lift your hands above the dust
Let every locked door hear
If peace means wearing all this ruin
We will not disappear

Protest, against peace-break wearing a ruin
Against the calm that hides the scars
Protest, against peace-break wearing a ruin
We are the wound, we are the stars
No more peace built on surrender
No more quiet dressed as truth
We will sing until the ruins
Give the future back its youth

They draw a border through the smoke
And promise it will hold

They count the dead in numbers
While the living grow old
A mother keeps a photograph
A soldier drops his gun
The streets remember every name
The reckoning has come

If peace is real, let it breathe
Let it walk through every door
Let it carry all the missing
Let it leave no child at war
We are not made for endless mourning
We are not born to kneel
The world can break its old confession
The world can learn to heal

Protest, against peace-break wearing a ruin
Against the calm that hides the scars
Protest, against peace-break wearing a ruin
We are the wound, we are the stars
No more peace built on surrender
No more quiet dressed as truth
We will sing until the ruins
Give the future back its youth

Against the calm that hides the scars

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven terrain. In the background, there are ancient stone ruins, possibly a temple or fortress, with tall columns and arches. The scene is bathed in a warm, golden light, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. The overall mood is somber and reflective.

Protest, against peace-break wearing a ruin
We are the wound, we are the stars
No more peace built on surrender
No more quiet dressed as truth
We will sing until the ruins
Give the future back its youth

Watchman- I Do Not Loop the Day

I keep the night beneath my coat
I count the bells, I guard the gate
The same old dawn comes calling back
But I won't meet it in the same way

If every road returns me here
I'll leave a mark along the stone
The dark can turn, the hours can bend
But I won't walk this watch alone

Watchman, I do not loop the day
I let the morning find its way
Though every shadow knows my name
I rise, I change, I break the chain

The window burns across the field
A tired moon fades into blue
I hear the footsteps of before
But there is something new in you

Let the old clock lose its hands
Let the cold wind clear the sky
I was made to guard the flame
Not to watch the same fire die

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven terrain. The background is a soft, hazy sunset or sunrise, with warm orange and yellow light filtering through the clouds. The cross is made of two simple wooden beams, and its shadow is cast onto the ground. The overall mood is peaceful and contemplative.

Watchman, I do not loop the day
I let the morning find its way
Though every shadow knows my name
I rise, I change, I break the chain

Watchman, I do not loop the day
I let the morning find its way
Though every shadow knows my name
I rise, I change, I break the chain

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Damascus and Lahore

In the dust where the daylight breaks
Hope still rises through the ache
Every window, every door
Holds a prayer for something more Hands are reaching through the night
Searching for a gentler light
From the ruins to the shore
We are calling peace once more

Let the wounded breathe again
Let the silence find an end
Let the morning touch each face
With a little room for grace

Healing, rest for Damascus and Lahore
Healing, let the hearts know war no more
May every child find shelter
May every soul find home
Healing, rest for Damascus and Lahore

There are names we carry close
There are dreams we will not lose
Through the sirens, through the rain
Love keeps beating through the pain

Let the broken streets be filled
With the songs that fear has stilled
Let the hands that once let go
Build a place where children grow

No more ashes in the air
No more sleeping in despair
Let compassion cross the lines
Let tomorrow learn to shine
From one city to the next
We are more than what divides us
Every voice and every prayer
Says that healing can be there

Healing, rest for Damascus and Lahore
Healing, let the hearts know war no more
May every child find shelter
May every soul find home
Healing, rest for Damascus and Lahore

Travel (Road of the Word)– Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi

Travel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Dust on my shoes, sunlight in my eyes Ancient stones whisper where I came from Neon roads show me where I belong
Every border opens like a door
Every mile leaves me wanting more
I carry your name beneath the sky
From one wide world to the next sunrise

If I lose my way, let the stars decide
There is more than one road to the other side

Travel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Take me where the wild winds blow
Travel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Everywhere I go, I know
The world is wide, but my heart is free
Every road keeps calling me
Travel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Take me where I need to go

Red earth rising underneath my feet
Ocean air and a restless beat
Faces change, but the feeling stays

Hope burns bright in a thousand ways
From the canyon walls to the city lights
I find new dreams in the sleepless nights
No map can hold what I came to find
A bigger world and a wider mind

When the last train fades and the runway clears
I will still hear the songs of these years
Not leaving home, just learning to see How every place brings me back to me

ravel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Take me where the wild winds blow
Travel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Everywhere I go, I know
The world is wide, but my heart is free
Every road keeps calling me
Travel, Petra to Los Angeles to Nairobi
Take me where I need to go

Remnant Anthem- Time Is the Lord's

In the morning light, I lift my eyes
Every breath I have is a gift from You
Through the changing days, through the rising tide
Your faithful hand will lead me through

I will not fear what I cannot see
My every hour belongs to Thee

Time is the Lord's, time is the Lord's
Yesterday, tomorrow, and forevermore
Time is the Lord's, my heart is sure
In every moment, Your love endures

When the road is long, and the night is cold
When the answers hide beyond my sight
You are still the God who holds my soul
You turn my waiting into light

So take these years, take all I am
Shape every season in Your hands
When my race is done, let this be true
I spent my time in praise of You

Time is the Lord's, time is the Lord's
Yesterday, tomorrow, and forevermore

Time is the Lord's, my heart is sure
In every moment, Your love endures
Time is the Lord's, time is the Lord's
All of my days are forever Yours

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Void

I wake where the silence swallows every sound
With a spark in my chest and my feet on the ground
No map in my hands, no mercy in the night
I carve through the dark till the dark gives light

Every doubt is a door
Every scar is a sign
I have nothing but this voice
And this fire is mine

Punching, fist of the Word on the Void
Breaking the silence they tried to deploy
Punching, while the empty sky makes noise
I speak and the shadows lose their voice

They built up the walls with a thousand no's
Put a lock on the truth, put a chain on the soul
But the beat in my blood keeps pounding the floor
And the word in my mouth is a hammer at the door

Every doubt is a door
Every scar is a sign
I have nothing but this voice
And this fire is mine

Breaking the silence they tried to deploy
Punching, while the empty sky makes noise
I speak and the shadows lose their voice

Let the heavens crack open
Let the old gods fall
I was born in the quiet
Now I answer it all
No throne, no weapon
No borrowed name
Just a word thrown forward
Like a match into flame

Punching, fist of the Word on the Void
Breaking the silence they tried to deploy
Punching, while the empty sky makes noise
I speak and the shadows lose their voice
Punching, fist of the Word on the Void
I rise from the silence, alive and unbound
Punching, till the last wall comes down
I speak and the whole world hears the sound

Racing Song

Loop-Lap That Goes Nowhere

Racing through the same old streets
Chasing down a fading glow
Every turn feels incomplete
Still I never let it go

Feet keep moving, heart stays flat
I lose the road and circle back

Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere
Running circles through the night
Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere
Still I chase the finish line
Round and round, I disappear
Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere

Neon flickers on the rain
Tires whisper on the stone
I keep calling out your name
But the echo answers alone

Feet keep moving, heart stays flat
I lose the road and circle back

Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere

Running circles through the night
Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere
Still I chase the finish line
Round and round, I disappear
Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere

Maybe speed is just a mask
Maybe stillness tells the truth
If I stop and face the past
I might find my way back through

Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere
Running circles through the night
Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere
I release the finish line
Round and round, I reappear
Racing, loop-lap that goes nowhere

Ghazal – The Dirge Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The candles lean where the lost names sleep
Black bells tremble in the rain
A borrowed choir begins to weep
Like heaven rehearsing pain

But beneath the ash
A living ember stands
I hear the silence ask
Who will lift these hands

The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice the night can't drown
The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
I will turn this grief around

They dress the wound in golden sound
They call surrender grace
But every shadow underground
Still knows my given name

Let the cold wind rise
Let the dark bells ring
There is fire behind my eyes
There is breath beneath everything

A large, weathered stone cross stands on a rocky hillside. The background is a soft, hazy sunset sky with warm orange and yellow tones. The foreground shows the rough, uneven texture of the rocks.

The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice the night can't drown
The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
I will turn this grief around

If the hymn is built from hollow stone
I will break the stone to sing
If the dead must walk alone
I will meet them at the spring

The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice the night can't drown
The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
I am still here, I am sound
The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
Let the ruined heavens hear
The dirge fakes a psalm, I answer
I am alive, I am here

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Echo and Rift

One lamb walks where the wild winds split
Past the broken stone and the valley's grit
Every footstep wakes an echo below
Every shadow says, turn back, don't go

But the moon hangs low on the mountain scar
And a small white heart can carry far
Through the thunder calling from the rift
One lamb rises, one lamb lifts

One lamb over echo and rift
One flame no darkness can drift
Through the hollow, through the storm
One lamb keeps the ancient warm
Hear the distant spirits shift
One lamb over echo and rift

There were drums in the dust, there was smoke in the rain
There were old names carved deep in the plain
The flock disappeared where the red earth fell
But one voice rang clear through the broken bell

And the night pressed hard with a thousand cries
Still the dawn burned gold in its quiet eyes
Through the thunder calling from the rift

One lamb rises, one lamb lifts

One lamb over echo and rift
One flame no darkness can drift
Through the hollow, through the storm
One lamb keeps the ancient warm
Hear the distant spirits shift
One lamb over echo and rift

If the ground gives way, let it open wide
There is more than fear on the other side
If the echoes fall, let them lose their name
The heart remembers what the stones became

One lamb over echo and rift
One flame no darkness can drift
Through the hollow, through the storm
One lamb keeps the ancient warm
Hear the distant spirits shift
One lamb over echo and rift

Cloud Bible — The Pact Is Not Scripture

They raised a cloud above us
And called it holy ground
They wrote our names in thunder
Then warned us not to doubt

I carried every promise
Like stones beneath my skin
But every word grew heavier
The more I let it in

If heaven needs a prison
Then heaven can keep the key
I hear the sky collapsing
And something waking in me

The pact is not scripture
The clouds are not the law
We gave our blood for silence
Now we won't kneel anymore

The pact is not scripture
Let every false god fall
We are more than what they told us
We are the storm beyond the wall

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven terrain. The background is a soft, hazy sunset or sunrise, with warm orange and yellow light filtering through the clouds. The cross is made of two simple wooden beams, and its shadow is cast onto the ground.

They carved the terms in silver
They sealed them with a flame
They made a crown of mercy
And dressed it up as shame

I watched the faithful gather
With ashes in their hands
But underneath the silence
The ground began to stand

No voice above can own us
No light can make us blind
The truth is not a tower
It's breathing in our lives

So let the dark come closer
Let every kingdom break
The pact is not scripture
It's only what we make

The pact is not scripture
The clouds are not the law
We gave our blood for silence
Now we won't kneel anymore

The pact is not scripture
Let every false god fall

We are more than what they told us
We are the storm beyond the wall

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Brussels Board

They move the pieces under midnight lights
Trading quiet favors for a borrowed right
Kings wear smiles while the pawns keep score
Every door is open, still we want for more

I see the hands behind the velvet wall
But I won't bend, I won't be small

It's a game, not the Brussels board
No one gets to call the final score
We are more than pieces they can move
We choose the ground, we choose the truth

Maps get folded where the borders fade
Promises are printed, then they change the trade
They speak in circles, polished and assured
But a heart won't kneel to a coded word

Let the towers tremble, let the old rules fall
We were never made to wait behind the wall
If they deal the cards, we'll cut the cord
It's a game, not the Brussels board

It's a game, not the Brussels board
No one gets to call the final score

We are more than pieces they can move
We choose the ground, we choose the truth

Ballad — The Rock That Would Not Keep a Void

I found a stone where the river bends
Cold as a night that would not end
I held it close to the hollow ground
Where your last footsteps had faded out

The rain came down, the dark grew wide
But something in me would not divide

I am the rock that would not keep a void
I hold your name where the silence breaks
No empty space can take what we built
No falling night can make me quit
I am the rock that would not keep a void
I stand, I stand for love's sake

The seasons turned through the window glass
Your shadow moved, then let me pass
I learned that grief is a changing sea
It takes the shore, but not the deep

The wind may carve, the years may bend
But what was true will not just end

I am the rock that would not keep a void
I hold your name where the silence breaks

No empty space can take what we built
No falling night can make me quit
I am the rock that would not keep a void
I stand, I stand for love's sake

If I must walk through the empty years
I will carry the weight, I will carry the tears
And when the dawn finds the wounded sky
I'll raise this stone and remember why

I am the rock that would not keep a void
I hold your name where the silence breaks
No empty space can take what we built
No falling night can make me quit
I am the rock that would not keep a void
I stand, I stand for love's sake

Miracle Song- Still the Migration Tide

We rose with the river in our eyes
Leaving old shadows for open skies
Every goodbye was a turning tide
Still we carried the fire inside

When the night says, stay where you are
We hear a calling beyond the dark

Miracle, still the migration tide
Pulling us onward, side by side
Miracle, no matter where we roam
The road keeps leading us home
Still the migration tide

We crossed through the silence, mile by mile
Held onto hope with a weathered smile
Names in our hearts like stars up high
Dreams in our hands, wings in the sky

When the ground shifts under our feet
We find a rhythm in every heartbeat

The background of the image is a soft-focus photograph of a rugged, rocky coastline. A lighthouse is visible on a high, craggy cliff in the distance, partially obscured by the haze. The foreground is filled with dark, jagged rocks. The overall color palette is muted, with greys, browns, and a hint of blue from the sky and sea.

Miracle, no matter where we roam
The road keeps leading us home
Still the migration tide

If we are scattered, we are not gone
The dawn remembers what we are from Through every border, through every blue
The tide keeps moving, and carries us through

Miracle, still the migration tide
Pulling us onward, side by side
Miracle, no matter where we roam
The road keeps leading us home
Still the migration tide

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Network

No flash in the room, no stage in the rain
Just faithful hearts that remember Your name
When the crowd disappears, when the numbers fall
Your whisper still rises above it all

Not for the image, not for the show
What You have planted, only You know

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Pour it on the ones who stayed
When the fire burned away
Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Let the hidden faithful rise
With Your truth inside their eyes

No borrowed light, no polished disguise
No empty praise dressed up in lies
You find the ones who kneel in the dark
And breathe new flame into a dying spark

Not for the numbers, not for the fame
You call the quiet by name

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Pour it on the ones who stayed
When the fire burned away
Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Let the hidden faithful rise
With Your truth inside their eyes

When every platform turns to dust
We will still be here because Your presence is the only crown
Your oil is falling now

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Pour it on the ones who stayed
When the fire burned away
Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Let the hidden faithful rise
With Your truth inside their eyes

Freedom Song- Free from the Temporal Pact

I woke beneath a borrowed sky
With stolen seconds in my eyes
The clocks were chained, the doors were sealed
By every promise never healed

But somewhere past the final sign
A rebel heartbeat matched with mine
No more shadows counting back
No more living by their track

Freedom, free from the Temporal Pact
No turning forward, no looking back
We break the hands that held us trapped
Freedom, free from the Temporal Pact

They wrote our names in lines of gold
And sold tomorrow to the old
But every dream they tried to bind
Still burned like lightning in our minds

Now hear the future call our names
Beyond their walls, beyond their frames
The last command begins to crack
We rise and leave the past intact

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven hill. The background is a soft, hazy sunset or sunrise, with warm orange and yellow light filtering through the clouds. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

Freedom, free from the Temporal Pact
No turning forward, no looking back
We break the hands that held us trapped
Freedom, free from the Temporal Pact

Let every second find its place
Let every lost one leave a trace
We are not ghosts beneath their sun
We are the time they could not shun

Freedom, free from the Temporal Pact
No turning forward, no looking back
We break the hands that held us trapped
Freedom, free from the Temporal Pact

Heavenly Glory- Not Their Apollyon Boast

Heavenly glory breaks through the night
Calling the lost into holy light
No crown of darkness can claim the throne
The King of mercy has called us home

Lift up your eyes, let every heart rejoice
The truth is rising in a fearless voice

Heavenly glory, shining above
Not their Apollyon boast, but a kingdom of love
Heavenly glory, breaking the chains
The light of the Savior forever remains

They raise their voices, they promise control
But empty thunder cannot conquer the soul
When every false tower is brought to the dust
We stand in the promise, we stand in the trust

No destroyer can silence the flame
No shadow can darken the holy name
From generation to generation we sing
All heavenly glory belongs to the King

Heavenly glory, shining above
Not their Apollyon boast, but a kingdom of love

Heavenly glory, breaking the chains
The light of the Savior forever remains

Art Song - I Will Not Script the Nations

The morning leans against the glass
A pale blue fire in the street
I hear the future breathing low
Beneath the rhythm of my feet

No borrowed sky, no second hand
Can hold me where I stand

I will not dilate the hour
I will not make this moment wait
Let every minute bloom and vanish
Let every door swing open wide
I will not dilate the hour
I will meet the turning light

The years have written on my face
Their silver grammar, line by line
I keep the words that made me brave
I leave the rest to time

No perfect past, no promised shore
Can call me back once more

I will not dilate the hour
I will not make this moment wait

A wooden cross stands on a rocky hill, silhouetted against a warm, hazy sunset sky. The foreground is filled with rugged, dark rocks, and the background shows a steep, rocky slope. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

Let every minute bloom and vanish
Let every door swing open wide
I will not dilate the hour
I will meet the turning light

If love is leaving, let it leave
If grief is knocking, let it in The heart was never made to freeze
Between the loss and what begins

I will not dilate the hour
I will not make this moment wait
Let every minute bloom and vanish
Let every door swing open wide
I will not dilate the hour
I will meet the turning light
I will not dilate the hour
I am alive tonight

Recitation- We Name No Man the Eternal Sovereign

We learned the weight of borrowed crowns
And heard the iron in their sound
No throne can hold the human soul
No single hand can make us whole

When banners rise and shadows gather
We stand as many, bound together
With open eyes and voices clear
We keep the living future here

We name no man the Eternal Sovereign
No earthly voice can claim our breath
We walk as one, but kneel to no one
Our common hope outlives their death

The old roads wind through dust and fire
Past broken gates and fallen wire
Still every heart that beats in time
Can turn the dark and draw the line

Let every child remember this
A world is built by hands like ours
Not by the sword, not by the seal
But by the courage to stand real

We name no man the Eternal Sovereign
No earthly voice can claim our breath
We walk as one, but kneel to no one
Our common hope outlives their death

Remnant Symphony - Rock / Grid / Date / Hour

A carved city is hired for time.
A grid loops war where watch should stand.
A second June is filed as rhyme.
A tide is numbered by a hand.

The rock is His.
The void is mute.
The rock is His.
The clock is cut.

The remnant will not serve that count.
The remnant names the Lord of hours.

The rock is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Petra After the Yawn

Quiet Petra after the yawn
Rose gold waking before the dawn
Dust in the doorway, cool on my skin
The ancient silence lets me in

No one is calling, nothing to prove
The stones keep breathing, I start to move

Sublime, sublime
Quiet Petra after the yawn
Sublime, sublime
I find my way where the light comes on
Through every shadow, through every sign
The world feels still, and the moment is mine
Sublime, sublime
Quiet Petra after the yawn

Footsteps are fading beneath the sun
Night leaves the canyon, one by one
A little blue morning climbs the wall
I hear my heart, I hear it all

If I have wandered, let me stay
If I have broken, let stone give way
No need for answers, no need to run

The oldest silence becomes the sun

Sublime, sublime

Quiet Petra after the yawn

Sublime, sublime

I find my way where the light comes on

Through every shadow, through every sign

The world feels still, and the moment is mine

Sublime, sublime

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Wrote June 16

June sixteenth, your handwriting hides
Between the margins, under the light
I trace the ink where the secret sleeps
Playing hide and seek through your memories

Hide and seek, find who wrote June sixteen
A name in the silence, a line in between
Hide and seek, your ghost is close to me
Who left their heart on June sixteen

The calendar bends like a worn-out map
One little date keeps pulling me back
Was it a promise, was it goodbye
A midnight confession you couldn't deny

Hide and seek, find who wrote June sixteen
A name in the silence, a line in between
Hide and seek, your ghost is close to me
Who left their heart on June sixteen

I turn every page, I follow each clue
The answer keeps changing the more that I knew
If it was you, let the old ink speak
If it was love, why play hide and seek

Hide and seek, find who wrote June sixteen
A name in the silence, a line in between
Hide and seek, your ghost is close to me
You left your heart on June sixteen

Jumble Song — Unjumble Rock, Grid, Tide, Hour

Rock in my pocket, tide at my feet
Hours keep breaking beneath the street
Every square of the grid turns blue
I jumble the world, unjumble you

Unjumble rock, grid, tide, hour
Find the light inside the tower
Turn the pieces, make them true
I jumble the world, unjumble you

Rock holds still when the water runs
Grid of windows, setting suns
Tide pulls secrets out of view
Time keeps asking what to do

Unjumble rock, grid, tide, hour
Find the light inside the tower
Turn the pieces, make them true
I jumble the world, unjumble you

Hour by hour, tide by tide
Rock and shadows shift inside
On the grid, I trace a line
Your lost pieces next to mine

Unjumble rock, grid, tide, hour
Find the light inside the tower
Turn the pieces, make them true
I jumble the world, unjumble you

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Chronomancy

A random marker in the dust
A little sign we learned to trust
Then colony beneath the sun
A thousand lives becoming one
We drew our names on borrowed stone
And called the wilderness our home
But every clock began to turn
For every future we could learn

Now the stars are out of time
And your hand is holding mine
What we were and what we see
Are moving through chronomancy

Random marker, then colony
Now we're lost in chronomancy
Every second leaves a scar
Every yesterday becomes a star
Random marker, then colony
You and I in chronomancy
If the past comes back for me
I'll find you in the memory

We built a city out of sparks
Then watched it flicker in the dark

The names we gave the years went pale
Like faded ink on a broken trail
You said the end was not the end
Just one more door we couldn't bend
So I kept running through the blue
To find the time that led to you

Now the stars are out of time
And your hand is holding mine
What we were and what we see
Are moving through chronomancy

Random marker, then colony
Now we're lost in chronomancy
Every second leaves a scar
Every yesterday becomes a star
Random marker, then colony
You and I in chronomancy
If the past comes back for me
I'll find you in the memory

Let the old world fall behind
Let the future change its mind
If the ages pull us through
I will always turn to you
No beginning, no decree
Only what we choose to be

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, a steep, layered rock cliff rises, and the sky is a pale, hazy blue. The overall scene is quiet and contemplative.

Random marker, then colony
Now we're lost in chronomancy
Every second leaves a scar
Every yesterday becomes a star
Random marker, then colony
You and I in chronomancy
If the past comes back for me
I'll find you in the memory

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

Under bright lights, the bell cuts through Every hard fall leaves something true
I came for glory, not your pain
Pin the title, spare the person

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, leave mercy breathing
When the whole arena calls my name
Pin the title, spare the person

We wear our scars like borrowed gold
Stories sold before they're told
I can win without breaking you
There's a better way to see it through

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, leave mercy breathing
When the whole arena calls my name
Pin the title, spare the person

Three seconds under thunder and smoke
A world can change with one clean hold Raise my hand, but understand
No belt is worth a broken soul

Pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, leave mercy breathing
When the whole arena calls my name
Pin the title, spare the person

Mono Act — The Strait That Filed as Rift

One voice under a theater light
One shadow learning how to stand
I drew a line across the water
With a trembling and a steady hand

The coast was close, the night was wide
The tide kept turning through the gray
I called it distance, called it fate
So no one knew I walked away

Every word became a border
Every silence learned my name
I was lonely in the chorus
Still I sang into the flame

Mono act, no understudy
The strait that filed as rift
I made a canyon out of water
Made a wound out of a drift
Mono act, the house is empty
But the final note still lifts
The strait that filed as rift
The strait that filed as rift

I kept your letter in my pocket

Till the ink went thin and blue
Read it like a map at midnight
Every road came back to you

There were ferries in the harbor
There were names along the shore
But I stayed behind the curtain
Afraid to open any door

If I cross, will I be changing
What the distance made me miss
If I call this break a passage
Will it answer me with this

Maybe every fault can soften
Maybe every file can shift
Maybe what I named a rift
Was a strait I had to drift

Mono act, no understudy
The strait that filed as rift
I made a canyon out of water
Made a wound out of a drift
Mono act, the house is empty
But the final note still lifts
The strait that filed as rift
The strait that filed as rift

Exposed Lies — Void, Grid, Sand, Echo, Dirge, Rift, Pact, Tide

Void in the mirror, grid in my veins
Sand through the hourglass, calling your name
Echoes of promises fade in the dark
A dirge for the fire you left in my heart

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tearing the veil from your alibis
Through the rift, through the tide
I see the truth you tried to hide
Exposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows in your eyes
Void, grid, sand, echo
I let your silence go

Pact on your lips, cold as a blade
Tide at the doorstep, debt never paid
I carried your storm like a permanent scar
Now every broken word shows me who you are

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tearing the veil from your alibis
Through the rift, through the tide
I see the truth you tried to hide
Exposed lies, exposed lies

No more shadows in your eyes
Void, grid, sand, echo
I let your silence go

Dirge for the dreams we buried alive
Rift in the world, but I still survive
The sand keeps falling, the echo grows thin
I close the door, I will not let you in

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tearing the veil from your alibis
Through the rift, through the tide
I see the truth you tried to hide
Exposed lies, exposed lies
No more shadows in your eyes
Void, grid, sand, echo
I let your silence go

Word Play — Harvest Moon Is Not a God

You called the moon a god above
I called it stone and borrowed light
But still it pulled the tides of us
And painted silver through the night

We traded names like loaded dice
Made heaven answer what we feared
You found a sign in every cloud
I found your voice when you were near

Maybe words are windows
Maybe words are walls
We build a world from what we call

Harvest moon is not a god
But I still kneel beneath its glow
Harvest moon is not a god
Still it knows the things we never show
Call it chance or call it love
Call it anything you want
Harvest moon is not a god
But it keeps watch when the night comes on

You said the stars were little doors
I said they burned too far to touch

We made a map from broken sparks
And lost ourselves in talking much

The fields were gold, the air was cold
The year was turning in the grain
You held my hand as daylight died
And gave the dark another name

If every word can change the shape
Of what we fear and what we trust
Then let me say your name tonight
Before the moon turns back to dust

Harvest moon is not a god
But I still kneel beneath its glow
Harvest moon is not a god
Still it knows the things we never show
Call it chance or call it love
Call it anything you want
Harvest moon is not a god
But it keeps watch when the night comes on

One-Act — The Ad That Paid for Fear

Neon flickered across the screen
Selling danger dressed up clean
Every warning pulled me near Every promise fed the fear

They knew the words to make me stay
They knew the price I'd gladly pay

One-Act, the ad that paid for fear
Made the enemy feel near
Bought my silence, sold me doubt
Kept me watching, locked me out
One-Act, the ad that paid for fear
Played so loud I couldn't hear
All the truth behind the show
Fear was all they had to sell

Morning broke behind the blinds
Still their slogans filled my mind
Every shadow wore a name
Every stranger took the blame

Then I turned the volume low
Saw the wires behind the show
When the panic lost its glow

I found what they didn't want me to know

One-Act, the ad that paid for fear
Made the enemy feel near
Bought my silence, sold me doubt
Now I see the way back out
One-Act, the ad that paid for fear
Played so loud I couldn't hear
Now the curtain falls so slow
Fear was all they had to sell

Wrestling Words — Bind the Boast, Loose the Sick

Wrestling words in the dead of night
Turning hard truths toward the light
Every boast has a chain to break
Every wound has a name to take

I won't hide what the silence knows
I won't crown what the fever shows
Let the trembling language speak
Let the strong bend for the weak

Bind the boast, loose the sick
Break the spell, make it quick
Wrestling words till the walls unstick
Bind the boast, loose the sick

I have worn every loud disguise
Held my pride like a loaded lie
But the heart knows when strength is thin
And the healing starts by letting in

No more thunder without a rain
No more glory built on pain
If the truth cuts, let it cut clean
If love speaks, let it intervene

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, a steep, layered rock cliff rises against a hazy, light-colored sky. The scene is bathed in a soft, warm light, possibly from the sun being low on the horizon.

Bind the boast, loose the sick
Break the spell, make it quick
Wrestling words till the walls unstick
Bind the boast, loose the sick

Bind the boast, loose the sick
Break the spell, make it quick
Wrestling words till the walls unstick
Bind the boast, loose the sick

Marker of Days — 6225 Is Not the Last Trumpet

I carve the hours in the wall
Where fading shadows mark the days
The city waits beneath the dust
While distant sirens lose their way
I hear the old bells count the years
But none can tell me when it comes
The sky is dark with promises
And still the morning drums

If the fire rises through the blue
If every road turns black
I will keep one candle burning
I will never turn back

Marker of days, keep counting on 6225 is not the last trumpet
The night may break, the stars may fall
But 6225 is not the last trumpet
We are still here, we are still here
With living hearts beneath the dust
Marker of days, keep counting on
The final sound is not for us

I watched the seasons trade their names
I felt the cold move through the stone

The prophets wrote in broken lights
But left the ending still unknown
A child was laughing in the rain
As thunder rolled across the plain
And every drop became a sign
Then vanished down the drain

Let the towers shake
Let the old bells ring
There is more to lose
There is more to sing
When the silence comes
We will breathe it in
And begin again
And begin again

Marker of days, keep counting on
6225 is not the last trumpet
The night may break, the stars may fall
But 6225 is not the last trumpet
We are still here, we are still here
With living hearts beneath the dust
Marker of days, keep counting on
The final sound is not for us

Open Lie — A Loop Is Not Providence

You leave the door open, then call it fate
Same old words arriving ten minutes late
I trace every circle back to the start
A borrowed prediction with a beating heart

If every road returns me here
That does not make the ending clear

Open lie, open door
A loop is not providence anymore
Round and round, I know the sign
But repetition is not divine
Open lie, let it fall
I won't call a pattern destiny at all

You wear your silence like a holy name
Turn every warning into proof of blame
But I can see the wires beneath the stars
The hand that moves the needle is ours

If every wound repeats its shape
That does not mean we cannot escape

Open lie, open door
A loop is not providence anymore

Round and round, I know the sign
But repetition is not divine
Open lie, let it fall
I won't call a pattern destiny at all

Maybe the future is a room we make Maybe the chain is a choice we break
No more kneeling to the same old flame
No more giving chance a borrowed name

Open lie, open door
A loop is not providence anymore
Round and round, I know the sign
But repetition is not divine
Open lie, let it fall
I won't call a pattern destiny at all
A loop is not providence
A loop is not providence at all

Still Accord — No Cult-Caption in the Pact

Still accord, we meet without a name
No cult-caption on the pact we made
No borrowed flag above our heads
Just open hands and truth unsaid

Still accord, still accord
No cult-caption in the pact
We stand together, not owned by words
Still accord, we won't turn back

They can label every shade of light
Turn every promise into sides
But I will keep the door unbarred
For every soul that comes unarmed

Still accord, still accord
No cult-caption in the pact
We stand together, not owned by words
Still accord, we won't turn back

No creed can hold the sky in place
No single voice can speak for grace
We make our peace where borders end
Still accord, again, again

Still accord, still accord
No cult-caption in the pact
We stand together, not owned by words
Still accord, we won't turn back

Last Line — The Rock Is His

The last line fades beneath the sun
A weary road, a race well run
When every borrowed breath is gone
The Rock is His, and He holds on

The Rock is His, the Rock is His
Through every storm, through all of this
When earth gives way and shadows rise
The Rock is His, and so am I

No crown of dust can make me shake
No broken night can make Him break
I lay my fear beneath His feet
His mercy turns my loss to peace

The Rock is His, the Rock is His
Through every storm, through all of this
When earth gives way and shadows rise
The Rock is His, and so am I

At the last line, I will stand
Safe within His wounded hands
Nothing lost, and nothing missed
The Rock is His, the Rock is His

The Rock is His, the Rock is His
Through every storm, through all of this
When earth gives way and shadows rise
The Rock is His, and so am I

Living Words — The Word, Not the Loop

I woke beneath a thousand borrowed sounds
Circling like echoes in an empty room
Every answer traced the same old ground
Every road returned me to the loop

Then a quiet voice broke through the noise
Not a copy, not a fading flame
I heard the weight inside the choice
I heard the living call my name

Living words, the Word, not the loop
Rising from the silence into truth
Living words, they breathe and they move
Not the same old circle, something new
The Word, not the loop

I carried every sentence like a stone
Learned the shape of every well-worn line
But a word can find a heart alone
When it leaves the page and enters mine

Let it break the pattern
Let it cross the blue
Let it speak in wonder
Let it make me new

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, there is a large, ancient stone building with multiple arched doorways. The scene is bathed in a warm, golden light, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall atmosphere is serene and historical.

Living words, the Word, not the loop
Rising from the silence into truth
Living words, they breathe and they move
Not the same old circle, something new
The Word, not the loop

Truth vs Untruth — The Date Is a Lie

They circle the date in red
Like history's already said
But every promise wears a disguise
The calendar smiles, then lies

Count the days, count the doubt
Watch the truth get filtered out

Truth vs untruth, the date is a lie
They draw their lines across the sky
Truth vs untruth, don't close your eyes
The clock keeps turning, the date is a lie

Headlines fade by morning light
Yesterday edits overnight
They sell us certainty in black and white
But shadows change the shape of right

Count the days, count the doubt
Hear the quiet calling out

Truth vs untruth, the date is a lie
They draw their lines across the sky
Truth vs untruth, don't close your eyes
The clock keeps turning, the date is a lie

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, a steep, layered rock cliff rises towards a hazy, light-colored sky. The overall scene is somber and contemplative.

Maybe truth is what remains
After all the ink and names
Maybe time cannot decide
What we carried deep inside

Truth vs untruth, the date is a lie
They draw their lines across the sky
Truth vs untruth, don't close your eyes
The clock keeps turning, the date is a lie

Number Song — Holy Count, Not 60,000 as a Spell

Count the stars that break the night
Count the steps that lead us home
Every number holds a light
When we do not walk alone

Not a charm to make us whole
Not a spell to save our souls
Let the meaning rise and sing
In every living thing

Holy count, holy count
Not sixty-thousand as a spell
Holy count, holy count
Let the truth we carry tell
Numbers turn beneath the sun
But love is where the counting's done
Holy count, holy count
Not sixty-thousand as a spell

Count the hands that lift the weak
Count the names we do not lose
Every silence has a voice
Every heart has one to choose

Not a code behind the sky
Not a secret whispered by

A large wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven hillside. The scene is bathed in the warm, golden light of a sunset or sunrise, with the sky showing soft orange and yellow hues. The cross is made of two simple wooden beams, and its shadow is cast onto the ground. The rocks are rugged and textured, adding to the solemn atmosphere of the image.

Count the kindness, count the cost
Count the ones we thought were lost

Holy count, holy count
Not sixty-thousand as a spell
Holy count, holy count
Let the truth we carry tell
Numbers turn beneath the sun
But love is where the counting's done
Holy count, holy count
Not sixty-thousand as a spell

If the number fills the page
It cannot measure every ache
If the number climbs too high
It cannot teach the soul to wake
Hold the count inside your hands
Make it mercy, make it stand

Holy count, holy count
Not sixty-thousand as a spell
Holy count, holy count
Let the truth we carry tell
Numbers turn beneath the sun
But love is where the counting's done
Holy count, holy count
Not sixty-thousand as a spell

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

My soul is dry beneath the sun
I need the river only You can bring
I hear Your whisper, calling me
To lay my empty hands before Your feet

I have wandered far too long
Now Your mercy draws me home

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Pour Your living water down
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Let Your grace fall all around
Fill this desert heart within me
Till Your love becomes my song
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
I have waited for You long

No broken well can satisfy
No fading light can lead me through the night
You are the fountain, ever near
The hope that turns my wilderness to green

Every shadow lifts away
When Your presence makes a way

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit

A wooden cross stands on a rocky, uneven terrain. The background is a soft, hazy landscape with a warm, golden light, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. The cross is made of two simple wooden beams, and the overall scene has a peaceful, spiritual atmosphere.

Pour Your living water down
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Let Your grace fall all around
Fill this desert heart within me
Till Your love becomes my song
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
I have waited for You long

Breathe on every weary place
Wash me in Your holy grace
From my ashes, let life rise
Open up these blinded eyes

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Pour Your living water down
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Let Your grace fall all around
Fill this desert heart within me
Till Your love becomes my song
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
I am home where You belong

Song of Creation — The Rock Belongs to the Maker

Before the dawn had found a name
Before the sky was lit with flame
The Maker spoke, the silence stirred
Stone remembered every word

The rock belongs to the Maker
The mountain knows His hand
The rock belongs to the Maker
Rooted deep across the land
From the dust to every river
From the valley to the sea
The rock belongs to the Maker
And the Maker calls to me

He carved the canyon, shaped the shore
Set the stars beyond the door
He raised the hills where shadows fall
And held the smallest sparrow's call

The rock belongs to the Maker
The mountain knows His hand
The rock belongs to the Maker
Rooted deep across the land
From the dust to every river
From the valley to the sea

The rock belongs to the Maker
And the Maker calls to me

When my own ground is breaking through
When I forget what faith can do
I lean upon the ancient stone
The Maker says, you are not alone

The rock belongs to the Maker
The mountain knows His hand
The rock belongs to the Maker
Rooted deep across the land
From the dust to every river
From the valley to the sea
The rock belongs to the Maker
And the Maker calls to me

Tick & Twist — Unwind the False Clock

The hands keep turning, but they don't know why
A silver second falls across the sky
I hear your footsteps fading through the wall
Chasing every minute I could never call

We were counting shadows, calling them the truth
Breaking all the numbers that were built for you

Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Let the old hands fall, let the dead gears stop
Tick and twist, till the silence talks
We are more than time, we are more than clocks

The midnight faces flicker in the glass
Every borrowed hour says the past is past
You wore tomorrow like a borrowed name
I held onto echoes, feeding them the same

Now the gears are shaking, now the spell is thin
Turn the key backward, let the real begin

Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Let the old hands fall, let the dead gears stop
Tick and twist, till the silence talks
We are more than time, we are more than clocks

If the dawn comes late, we'll make our own light
If the world says wait, we'll step into the night
No more chasing seconds, no more standing still Break the face wide open, bend it to our will

Tick and twist, unwind the false clock
Let the old hands fall, let the dead gears stop
Tick and twist, till the silence talks
We are more than time, we are more than clocks

Resident Living — No Resident Void in the House

I wake where the walls remember my name
Dust in the windows, rain on the frame
Every room carries the weight of us
Every silence rises and turns to dust

But the lights stay warm
And the floorboards sound
Like a heart still beating
When no one is around

Resident living, no resident void in the house
We keep breathing, we keep the darkness out
Through every empty room, through every broken vow
Resident living, no resident void in the house

The chair by the doorway still waits for a coat
The kitchen keeps singing the words that you spoke
I leave one light burning beneath the stairs
To prove there is life, to prove someone cares

Let the cold wind call
Let the old ghosts shout
We are more than absence
We will not fade out

Resident living, no resident void in the house
We keep breathing, we keep the darkness out
Through every empty room, through every broken vow
Resident living, no resident void in the house

If the ceiling cracks, we will raise it again
If the night comes down, we will let it begin
With a hand on the wall and our feet on the ground
There is still a pulse in this living house

Resident living, no resident void in the house
We keep breathing, we keep the darkness out
Through every empty room, through every broken vow
Resident living, no resident void in the house

Resident living, no resident void in the house
We keep breathing, we keep the darkness out
No empty heart can take our fire now
Resident living, no resident void in the house

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's, Not June 16

The fields lie open under heaven's breath
The old debts fade, the worn-out hearts find rest
A trumpet sounds across the broken walls
The Lord restores, and mercy calls

Lift up your eyes, let every captive sing
The year belongs to God, the holy King

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not June 16, but grace poured forth
Jubilee, let every chain release
The year is the Lord's, the year of peace

No hand can claim what heaven set apart
No date can hold the promise in God's heart
The poor come home, the lost receive a name
The wounded rise, renewed by love again

Lift up your eyes, let every captive sing
The year belongs to God, the holy King

Not June 16, but grace poured forth
Jubilee, let every chain release

The year is the Lord's, the year of peace

Return the land, restore the stolen song
Forgive the debt, make every broken right
From generation to generation
The Lord's own mercy leads us home

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not June 16, but grace poured forth
Jubilee, let every chain release
The year is the Lord's, the year of peace

Short Story

Petra is asked to yawn as a clock. Los Angeles loops a grid. Damascus dilates dust. Lahore echoes a border. Pyongyang repeats a dirge. A strait is called a rift. Brussels dates a pact. Kenya is numbered as a tide. June 16 files for tomorrow.

The remnant does not give the rock to a void. Jesus is Lord of time. The rock is His.

Short Story SONG

A red-rock city writes a void
A grid loops fear where watch should stand
A date is nailed, a strait employed
A tide is counted by a hand

The rock is His
The void is mute
The rock is His
The clock is cut

No boast may own the harvest moon
No grid may marry time to war
The remnant will not learn that tune
The remnant names the Lord of hours

The rock is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains

THE RECKONING IS HIS

KJC-DNN / Remnant Christian Worship

Album 90 Song 3

Chrono Forger, Echo Chamber, and the Plateau That Is Not a Forge

Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — Lord of hours.

We stand on 6301 to 6400.

We refuse the Chrono Forger. We name no man that title.

We name and bind —

6325, 6307, 6315,

6330, 6355, 6380,

6310, 6360, 6398;

official 6301–6400; July 1 date-boast;

70,000 as a spell; echo-chamber;

Freemason-key boast; MOSSAD/IDF caption;

UK terror-spirit; bot-news of court, stage, sport, pulpit, and feed.

We refuse a lyric-altar that rivals the Name.

We do not copy a catalogue.

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its vertical post and horizontal beam made of rough-hewn logs. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The desert floor is covered in sand and small rocks.

We recode only our own mouth: Jesus is Lord.

Rev 12:9 — the great dragon is cast down.

Shatter the crucible. Shatter the chrono crucible.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

Chrono Forger, hear the gears turn slow
Inside the Echo Chamber, shadows glow
We climbed the plateau through the frozen storm
But this is not a forge, it will not warm

The plateau is not a forge
No fire can remake the years
The Echo Chamber calls our names
And sends them back through tears

You held a hammer made of borrowed time
I held the map where every road unwinds
We searched the stone for sparks of yesterday
But every shining vein just slipped away

The plateau is not a forge
No fire can remake the years
The Echo Chamber calls our names

And sends them back through tears

Chrono Forger, lay your hammer down

The clock is quiet underneath this ground

Let every echo fade into the sky

Some broken things were never meant to die

The plateau is not a forge

No fire can remake the years

The Echo Chamber calls our names

Then leaves us standing clear

Song of Parables- The Pyramid That Would Not Keep a Fire

They raised it high against the desert sky
Stone upon stone where the old winds lie
A chamber waiting under starless night
But no hand could teach its dark to hold light

The pyramid would not keep a fire
Every flame climbed higher and higher
It left the king with an empty pyre
The pyramid would not keep a fire

Priests brought cedar, oil, and gold
Whispered names from scrolls grown old
Still every spark became a fleeing bird
Vanished beyond the final word

The pyramid would not keep a fire
Every flame climbed higher and higher
It left the king with an empty pyre
The pyramid would not keep a fire

Maybe the dead need open doors
Maybe the sun belongs to no one
Maybe the stone was built to say
Even kings must let the light run away

The pyramid would not keep a fire
Every flame climbed higher and higher
It left the king with an empty pyre
The pyramid would not keep a fire

Psalms

Against the Wave That Forges a People

We were born where the dark sea rises
With salt on our skin and fire in our eyes
Every storm tried to name our silence
Every shore drew a line we could not abide

But the tide can break on stone
And a scattered heart can find its home

Against the wave that forges a people
We stand, we rise, we carry the flame
Against the wave that forges a people
No wind, no fear can wash out our name

We learned the weight of the ancient thunder
We heard our mothers sing through the rain
With every scar, we pulled each other
From the cold, from the dust, from the chain

Let the old world turn behind us
Let the new dawn call us on
What was broken now will bind us
What was lost will live in song

Against the wave that forges a people

We stand, we rise, we carry the flame
Against the wave that forges a people
No wind, no fear can wash out our name

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Chamber and Key

I walked through chambers built of stone
With silver locks and walls of gold
I held the keys to every door
Still found my heart was wanting more

Then a quiet voice called out to me
What you seek is not what you see

Wisdom over chamber and key
Truth is the treasure that sets me free
Wisdom over all I can own
A faithful light that leads me home
Wisdom over chamber and key
More than the world could ever give me

A crown can fade and kingdoms fall
A guarded name can lose it all
But words that teach the heart to stand
Are stronger than a ruler's hand

When the night is closing in Wisdom shows the way again

Wisdom over chamber and key

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a pile of rocks. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is a blend of ancient Egyptian architecture and a Christian symbol.

Truth is the treasure that sets me free
Wisdom over all I can own
A faithful light that leads me home
Wisdom over chamber and key
More than the world could ever give me

Give me ears to hear the warning
Give me strength to choose the right
Let me walk in humble learning
Let your wisdom be my light

Wisdom over chamber and key
Truth is the treasure that sets me free
Wisdom over all I can own
A faithful light that leads me home
Wisdom over chamber and key
More than the world could ever give me

Haiku Song- The Plateau Is His

He climbed where the thin blue silence begins
Past the roots and the river of wind
Every stone bore the weight of his name
Every cloud leaned close to the flame

Below him the valleys were turning to mist
Above him the morning was clenched in a fist

The plateau is his
The plateau is his
Where the sky holds still
And the high grass bends
The plateau is his
The plateau is his
He has walked through the dark
To the edge of the world

He carried no crown and he carried no chain
Only dust in his coat and a scar from the rain
He heard all the voices that called him below
But the silence was deeper than anyone knows

Now the cold stars are burning like lamps in the stone
And the wind says his name like it always was home

The plateau is his
The plateau is his
Where the sky holds still
And the high grass bends
The plateau is his
The plateau is his
He has walked through the dark
To the edge of the world

If the summit is lonely, let loneliness sing
There are kingdoms unseen in the shelter of wings
He will stand with the dawn till the long shadows cease
With the whole open heavens laid down at his feet

The plateau is his
The plateau is his
Where the sky holds still
And the high grass bends
The plateau is his
The plateau is his
He has walked through the dark
To the edge of the world

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Hour on the Stone

Who owns the hour on the stone
Whose shadow falls where names have grown
I trace the hands that never move
And hear the silence make its groove

Who owns the hour on the stone
The borrowed light, the weathered bone
I call your name, it echoes alone
Who owns the hour on the stone

The market closes, bells go thin
A thousand lives begin again
But in the square, beneath the rain
The old clock keeps what time can't claim

Who owns the hour on the stone
The borrowed light, the weathered bone
I call your name, it echoes alone
Who owns the hour on the stone

Maybe no one holds the key
Maybe time belongs to memory
Maybe every leaving soul
Leaves one small hand upon the dial

Who owns the hour on the stone
The borrowed light, the weathered bone
I call your name, not quite alone
We own the hour on the stone

Holy Jest – July First Files for a Forge

July first, the morning wore a copper glow
I carried old blueprints where the wild winds blow
Every broken promise had a sharpened edge
I brought them to the fire, I brought them to the forge

If heaven has a hammer, let it fall tonight
If laughter is a spark, then strike it into light

Holy jest, holy jest
July first files for a forge
Holy jest, holy jest
Turn the hurt to something more
Holy jest, holy jest
Let the iron sing its course
Holy jest, holy jest
July first files for a forge

The saints wore paper crowns and danced around the flame
The devil told a punchline, then forgot his name
I heard the old machines breathe underneath the floor
Each secret became a key, each silence became a door

If heaven has a hammer, let it fall tonight
If laughter is a spark, then strike it into light

Holy jest, holy jest
July first files for a forge
Holy jest, holy jest
Turn the hurt to something more
Holy jest, holy jest
Let the iron sing its course
Holy jest, holy jest
July first files for a forge

No throne, no golden answer
No hand to pull me through Just heat beneath the darkness
And work I have to do
So bless this strange beginning
Let every scar transform
A joke can be a doorway
A storm can shape a sword

Holy jest, holy jest
July first files for a forge
Holy jest, holy jest
Turn the hurt to something more
Holy jest, holy jest
Let the iron sing its course
Holy jest, holy jest
July first files for a forge

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Forger, Not the Dragon

They call my name like a warning in the dark But every echo misses who we are
I carry no forged crown upon my head
No borrowed fire burning where I tread

Name-chant, name-chant, hear it rise
Not the Forger, not the Dragon in disguise
Name-chant, name-chant, let it ring
I am the one who chooses what I bring

I know the stories carved into the stone
I know the names they wanted me to own
But I have walked beyond their ancient flame
And found my truth beneath my given name

No iron hands will shape me
No wings of ash define me
Let every shadow fade away
I choose my voice, I choose my way

Name-chant, name-chant, hear it rise
Not the Forger, not the Dragon in disguise
Name-chant, name-chant, let it ring
I am the one who chooses what I bring

Exit Song (Deliverance)- Out of the Chamber and the Flux

The lock clicks in the heavy door.
I don't live in that box no more.
Ten years staring at the same four walls.
Now I'm walking through the open halls.

Out of the chamber.
I'm breaking the seal.
Whatever I'm chasing.
Is finally real.
Out of the chamber.
I'm finding the way.
Into the light.
Of a brand new day.

The air is thick and the water flows.
I'm moving where the current goes.
Caught a wave in the changing tide.
Nowhere left for a man to hide.

Out of the chamber.
I'm breaking the seal.
Whatever I'm chasing.
Is finally real.

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a pile of dark, jagged rocks. The cross is made of two thick, weathered logs. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is a surreal juxtaposition of ancient Egyptian architecture and a Christian symbol.

Out of the chamber.
I'm finding the way.
Into the light.
Of a brand new day.

The flux is pulling at my feet.
The bitter taste is turning sweet.
I left the pressure far behind.
To see what else a soul can find.

Out of the chamber.
I'm breaking the seal.
Whatever I'm chasing.
Is finally real.
Out of the chamber.
I'm finding the way.
Into the light.
Of a brand new day.

Protest- Against Peace-Break Wearing Giza

They wear peace like Giza on a borrowed sleeve
Selling quiet while the streets still grieve
Stone-faced promises under neon light
We raise our voices through the night

Protest against the peace-break wearing Giza
No more silence, no more pleasing
Protest against the peace-break wearing Giza
We will not bow, we will not leave

They build their towers on a fractured ground
Call it order when they drown us out
But every crack becomes a drum
And every heart says freedom comes

Protest against the peace-break wearing Giza
No more silence, no more pleasing
Protest against the peace-break wearing Giza
We will not bow, we will not leave

Take off the mask, let the truth be seen
Peace is more than a polished dream
From the dust to the open sky
We stand together, we testify

Protest against the peace-break wearing Giza
No more silence, no more pleasing
Protest against the peace-break wearing Giza
We will not bow, we will not leave

Watchman- I Do Not Heat the Day

Watchman on the tower, counting every flame
Night leans on the rooftops, calling out my name
I keep the gate in silence, I listen for the rain
Morning finds me standing, but nothing looks the same

I can see the first light
Breaking through the gray
But I only bear witness
I do not make the day

Watchman, I do not heat the day
I only guard the dark away
When the cold sun rises, I will stay
Watchman, I do not heat the day

I have seen the lovers leave, I have seen the soldiers come Seen the lost turn homeward, when the long night is done
Every heart is carrying a shadow of its own
I can point toward the sunrise, but I cannot make it glow

If the fire finds you, let it find you true
If the dawn comes empty, I will wait with you
I was never promised power, only eyes to see
The world will turn without me, still I will keep the key

Watchman, I do not heat the day
I only guard the dark away
When the cold sun rises, I will stay
Watchman, I do not heat the day

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Riyadh and Lagos

The night has laid its weight on every door
From Riyadh lights to Lagos shore
Set down the sorrow you've carried alone
Let the quiet lead you home

Healing, rest for Riyadh and Lagos
Healing, let the tired heart let go
Under one sky, we breathe together
Healing, we will rise in our own time

Some wounds are hidden beneath the skin
Some battles no one sees within
But dawn can find the smallest flame
And call us gently by our name

May every mother sleep without fear
May every child feel tomorrow near Across the distance, across the sea
Your healing is a song in me ealing, rest for Riyadh and Lagos

Healing, let the tired heart let go
Under one sky, we breathe together
Healing, we will rise in our own time

Travel (Road of the Word)– Giza to Washington to Karachi

Sand is blowing off the Great Pyramid
I can feel the heat inside my skin
Pack the leather bags and clear the grid
Where the desert ends, the flight begins

Halfway round the world tonight
Crossing every border line
Halfway round the world tonight
Catching flights and losing time

White house pillars in the morning mist
Suit and tie along the grassy mall
Check the names upon a frantic list
Listen to the heavy traffic call

Halfway round the world tonight
Crossing every border line
Halfway round the world tonight
Catching flights and losing time

Dusty breeze across the port and bay
Rickshaws darting through the busy crowd
Tea is brewing at the end of day
Music from the market playing loud

Halfway round the world tonight
Crossing every border line
Halfway round the world tonight
Catching flights and losing time

Remnant Anthem- The Word Is Not a Stage

They hang the lights and call it truth
They dress the silence up in gold
But I have heard the hollow room
Where every borrowed line grows cold
We are more than names they gave us
More than faces in the frame
The heart can break the painted walls
And speak its living name

No curtain can contain us
No script can make us small
When we rise up from the silence
We become it all

The word is not a stage
The word is not a cage
It is a fire in the dark
A voice that will not fade
The word is not a stage
We do not play a part
We bring the truth into the light
And let it shake the heart

They measure every breath we take
They turn our dreams into a show

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its weathered beams casting a shadow on the ground. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is a blend of ancient Egyptian iconography and Christian symbolism.

But every scar beneath the paint
Still knows the way it wants to grow
We are the hands that build tomorrow
We are the thunder in the street
No borrowed crown, no empty promise
Can make our spirit kneel

Let the false lights fall behind us
Let the painted banners fade
What we carry cannot vanish
What we mean cannot be staged
From the quiet to the standing
From the shadow to the flame
We will say the words together
And remember why we came

The word is not a stage
The word is not a cage
It is a fire in the dark
A voice that will not fade
The word is not a stage
We do not play a part
We bring the truth into the light
And let it shake the heart

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Crucible

Punching, fist of the word
On the crucible, sparks in the dark
I hammer the silence to iron
I leave my mark

Punching, fist of the word
On the crucible, hear it ring
Punching, fist of the word
I forge the fire I sing

Every sentence cuts through smoke
Every breath is tempered steel
I came with my hands unbroken
To make the thunder real

Punching, fist of the word
On the crucible, hear it ring
Punching, fist of the word
I forge the fire I sing

Let the cold walls remember
Let the hollow chambers learn
From the ashes of my anger
Watch the living metal burn

Punching, fist of the word
On the crucible, hear it ring
Punching, fist of the word
I forge the fire I sing

Racing Song

Timeline-Lap That Goes Nowhere

Racing round the same old bend
Chasing where the road should end
Every mile I swear I know
Still the finish line won't show

Clock hands spin beneath my skin
Lose my way and start again
All this motion, all this noise
Drowning out my quiet voice

Racing, timeline-lap that goes nowhere
Running through the smoke and thin air
Round and round, but I don't get there
Racing, timeline-lap that goes nowhere

Yesterday is in the rearview
Tomorrow keeps on breaking through
I wear tomorrow like a scar
But every road returns me where we are

Maybe I don't need to win
Maybe I can stop and breathe again
Let the endless circles fade
Find the ground beneath the race I made

Racing, timeline-lap that goes nowhere
Running through the smoke and thin air
Round and round, but I don't get there
Racing, timeline-lap that goes nowhere

Ghazal – The Echo Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The echo fakes a psalm at night
It wears the chapel's borrowed light
It calls my name through hollow stone
As if the dark could make me known

I know the voice, I know the cost
A sacred sound, a faith half-lost

The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
Not with prayer, not with surrender
I raise my voice against the wall
Let truth be louder than the call

It bends the words my mother sang
Into a cold and silver clang
It makes a mercy out of fear
Then leaves its empty altar here

I hear the ruin in its tone
But I will not be made its own

The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
Not with prayer, not with surrender
I raise my voice against the wall
Let truth be louder than the call

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a pile of dark, jagged rocks. The cross is made of two thick, rough-hewn logs. In the background, a vast desert landscape unfolds under a hazy, golden sky. Several large, ancient pyramids are visible, their forms softened by the distance and the light. The overall scene evokes a sense of timelessness and spiritual significance.

No borrowed heaven, no disguise
Can keep the fire from my eyes
If every shadow speaks my name
I will not answer back in shame

The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
Not with prayer, not with surrender
I raise my voice against the wall
Let truth be louder than the call

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Border and Flux

Dust on the road, dawn in the wire
One small shadow walks through the fire
No flag to carry, no name to defend
Only the river that bends without end

One lamb over border and flux
Through all the lines that divided us
No wall can measure the weight of love
One lamb over border and flux

Voices behind us call blood against blood
Rain turns the boundary back into mud
Still every footprint points to the same Hunger and shelter, sorrow and flame

One lamb over border and flux
Through all the lines that divided us
No wall can measure the weight of love
One lamb over border and flux

If one can cross, then hope can follow
If one is lost, the world feels hollow
Open the gate, let mercy come through What saves the lamb may save us too

One lamb over border and flux
Through all the lines that divided us
No wall can measure the weight of love
One lamb over border and flux

Cloud Bible — The Key Is Not Scripture

I found a book in the morning cloud
Its pages opened without a sound
Every word was washed in blue
Every answer led to you

I held the sky above my head
But all the letters turned to thread
Then a quiet voice came through
The key was never what I knew

Cloud Bible, the key is not scripture
Not every truth is written down
Cloud Bible, I read the picture
And let the rain erase the doubt
The key is not scripture
It is the love we live out loud

I crossed the fields where the shadows bend
Chasing a sign that would never end
Found my name in a silver stream
Found the door inside the dream

If heaven hides in a moving shape
If faith is more than the words we save
Then open your hands, let the old walls fall

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently on a rocky, uneven mound in the foreground. The background features a vast desert landscape with several pyramids visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is bathed in a warm, yellowish light, creating a serene and contemplative atmosphere.

The sky keeps speaking to us all

Cloud Bible, the key is not scripture
Not every truth is written down
Cloud Bible, I read the picture
And let the rain erase the doubt
The key is not scripture
It is the love we live out loud

Cloud Bible, the key is not scripture
Not every truth is written down
Cloud Bible, I read the picture
And let the rain erase the doubt
The key is not scripture
It is the love we live out loud

Game Song (Bible Game)– Not the Order's Board

They drew the lines and called it fate
Set every piece beside the gate
They made the rules, they named the score
But I was never theirs to order

You can count the moves
You can lock the door
But a heart that chooses
Won't play anymore

Game, not the Order's Board
I won't be moved by their command
Game, not the Order's Board
I make my way with my own hands
Let the old kings guard their walls
Let their paper kingdoms fall
Game, not the Order's Board
I am not a piece they own

They trade in fear, they deal in doubt
Tell us who's in and who's left out
But every scar has taught me more Than all their laws were written for

You can count the moves

You can name the cost
But the road I choose
Is a road uncrossed

Game, not the Order's Board
I won't be moved by their command
Game, not the Order's Board
I make my way with my own hands
Let the old kings guard their walls
Let their paper kingdoms fall
Game, not the Order's Board
I am not a piece they own

If I fall, I rise
If I lose, I learn
No one writes the ending
Of the life I earn
Take your throne of silence
Take your perfect plan
I will play my own game
I will be my own hand

Game, not the Order's Board
I won't be moved by their command
Game, not the Order's Board
I make my way with my own hands
Let the old kings guard their walls

Let their paper kingdoms fall
Game, not the Order's Board
I am not a piece they own

Ballad — The Stone That Would Not Keep a Forge

Deep in the mountain, under roots and rain
A little stone was sleeping through the flame
The miners carried it down to the forge
But it would not bend beneath the hammer's force

They raised the fire till the black coals roared Still it held the shape it had before

I am the stone that would not keep a forge
I would not lose my name beneath the force
Break me, burn me, I will rise once more
I am the stone that would not keep a forge

They struck it at sunrise, struck it through the night
Sparks flew like stars, but it stayed cold and bright
The master said, Nothing that hard can live
The stone said nothing, it had nothing left to give

So they cast it out beyond the iron door
Where the rain made music on the floor

I am the stone that would not keep a forge
I would not lose my name beneath the force
Break me, burn me, I will rise once more

I am the stone that would not keep a forge

Years went by, the mountain turned to dust
The hammer cracked, the golden bell grew rust
But in the hands of a child beside the stream
That stubborn stone became a home for dreams

I am the stone that would not keep a forge
I would not lose my name beneath the force
Break me, burn me, I will rise once more
I am the stone that would not keep a forge

I am the stone that would not keep a forge
I would not lose my name beneath the force
Break me, burn me, I will rise once more
I am the stone that would not keep a forge

Miracle Song- Still the Migration Forge

We carried sparks through the border rain
With open hands and borrowed names
Every road kept calling us
Past the dust and broken rust
We learned to bend, we learned to rise
With new horizons in our eyes
The old world faded at the door
We became what we came for

When the night says turn back now
Feel the fire beneath your vows
Every heartbeat moves us on Toward the place we come from

Miracle, still the migration forge
Shaping our wings on a distant shore
Miracle, through the thunder and change
We lose what we were, become something brave
Miracle, still the migration forge
We keep moving toward the open door

There were nights we slept under wires
Counting stars like little fires
There were hands we had to let go

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently on a rocky, uneven mound in the foreground. The cross is made of thick, weathered logs. In the background, a vast desert landscape unfolds under a hazy, golden sky. Several large pyramids are visible, their forms softened by the distance and the light. The overall scene evokes a sense of ancient history and spiritual journey.

There were seeds beneath the snow
Every goodbye marked our skin
Every ending pulled us in
To the river, to the roar
To the life worth crossing for

If we are strangers, let it be Strangers growing wild and free
No map can hold the lives we make No wall can stop the steps we take

Miracle, still the migration forge
Shaping our wings on a distant shore
Miracle, through the thunder and change
We lose what we were, become something brave
Miracle, still the migration forge
We keep moving toward the open door

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Network

In the quiet where the faithful wait
You pour Your oil on hearts awake
Not for the noise or the praise of men
You keep a remnant burning again

When the crowd runs after the latest sound
Your holy fire still comes down

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network
Anointing, set apart and present
Kept by Your hand, alive in the secret

No borrowed flame can light the way
No polished name can make us stay
We choose the altar, we choose the cost
To find the life the world has lost

Let every hidden heart arise
Let every faithful voice unite
Not chasing shadows, not seeking fame
We carry oil in Jesus' name

Anointing, oil on the remnant
Not the network, not the network

Anointing, set apart and present
Kept by Your hand, alive in the secret

Freedom Song- Free from the Echo Chamber

I woke beneath a borrowed sky
With other people's voices in my head
Every truth was amplified
Every doubt repeated what they said
I traced the walls from floor to floor
Found every door was painted shut
Then I heard my heartbeat through the noise
Like a match that wouldn't give up

Freedom, free from the echo chamber
Free to hear the quiet in my soul
Freedom, no more borrowed answers
I am finding out who I am alone
Let the old walls fall like thunder
Let the truth come shining through
Freedom, free from the echo chamber
I am finally breaking through

I left the circle in the dark
With nothing but the clothes I wore
The road was rough, the night was long
But I could feel the open door
No one told me what to want
No one drew the lines I had to cross
I learned that losing every voice

Can be the way you find your own

Freedom, free from the echo chamber
Free to hear the quiet in my soul
Freedom, no more borrowed answers
I am finding out who I am alone
Let the old walls fall like thunder
Let the truth come shining through
Freedom, free from the echo chamber
I am finally breaking through

If I stand alone, let me stand awake
If I walk unknown, let it be my way
I would rather face the silence
Than be safe inside a lie
There is power in the question
There is mercy in the sky

Freedom, free from the echo chamber
Free to hear the quiet in my soul
Freedom, no more borrowed answers
I am finding out who I am alone
Let the old walls fall like thunder
Let the truth come shining through
Freedom, free from the echo chamber
I am finally breaking through

Heavenly Glory- Not Their Apollyon Boast

Through the smoke of broken kingdoms
A higher light is burning bright
Past the boasts of proud Apollyon
Heaven calls us through the night

Let every fearful heart arise
Let every shadow lose its name

Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
Not their Apollyon boast
The Lamb has won the throne
Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
Lift every voice and know
The King will lead us home

When the faithful walk through fire
And the earth begins to shake
There is mercy in the silence
There is strength the dark can't take

No false crown can stand forever
No great power can steal the dawn

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its weathered beams casting a shadow on the rocky ground. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is a juxtaposition of ancient Egyptian civilization and Christian symbolism.

Heaven's song will rise together
Till the night is gone

Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
Not their Apollyon boast
The Lamb has won the throne
Heavenly glory
Heavenly glory
Lift every voice and know
The King will lead us home

Art Song - I Will Not Sing a Second Christ

They asked me for a savior in the shape of my name
To lift their fallen houses and shoulder their blame
But I am only human with a pulse and a scar
I can point toward the darkness, I can't promise a star

I will carry my own sorrow
I will answer for my own
But I won't wear a crown of sorrow
For a kingdom not my own

I will not sing a second Christ
I will not promise paradise
I have no blood to sanctify
No hands to raise the dead tonight
I can sing the truth I know
I can stand where wild winds blow
But I will not sing a second Christ
I will not make myself divine

Let the poets keep their thunder, let the prophets name the flame
Let the crowds seek out a miracle and call it by my name
I have loved and I have failed here, I have broken, I have healed
There is power in the honest wound, in everything revealed

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its weathered beams casting a shadow on the ground. The cross is set against a backdrop of a vast, arid desert landscape. In the distance, several pyramids of varying sizes are visible, their golden-brown surfaces blending into the hazy, sunlit sky. The overall atmosphere is one of solemnity and timelessness, with the warm, golden light of the sun creating a sense of peace and reflection.

If you need a voice, I'll lend you mine
If you need a hand, I'll hold the line
But when the altar calls for more
I'll leave the gold outside the door

I will not sing a second Christ
I will not promise paradise
I have no blood to sanctify
No hands to raise the dead tonight
I can sing the truth I know
I can stand where wild winds blow
But I will not sing a second Christ
I will be human, I will be alive

Recitation- We Name No Man the Chrono Forger

We name no man the Chrono Forger
No mouth shall carry that forbidden flame
He walked where every midnight faltered
And left no footprint in the frame

We name no man the Chrono Forger
We turn our faces from the flame
Let every clock forget his footsteps
Let every hour erase his name

He stole one second from the dying
He bent the hands beneath the stone
The years grew thin around his shadow
And all our borrowed days were gone

If you should hear the gears beneath you
If you should feel the cold bells turn
Hold fast the names of those you love now
Some doors are meant to stay unlearned

We name no man the Chrono Forger
We turn our faces from the flame
Let every clock forget his footsteps
Let every hour erase his name

Remnant Symphony - Rock / Grid / Date / Hour

A plateau is asked to keep a fire.
A chamber rings a borrowed psalm.
A first of July is filed as choir.
A number counts a people's calm.

The stone is His.
The forge is cold.
The stone is His.
The date is void.

No stage may preach a second christ.
The dragon is already down.
The remnant will not learn that twist.
The remnant keeps the Word, the Crown.

The stone is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Giza After the Heat

Quiet Giza after the heat
Gold on the stones and dust at my feet
The desert is breathing, slow and wide
Your shadow is resting against mine

No voices rising, no city lights
Just ancient eyes in the falling night

Quiet Giza after the heat
You and I where the old world sleeps
Under the moon, under the sky
We let the restless hours pass us by
Quiet Giza after the heat
Your heart is the only sound I need

The river turns silver beyond the sand
A cool wind moves like a careful hand
We speak of the places we never knew
And all of the roads that led me to you

No promises carved in stone tonight
Just your hand finding mine in the quiet

Quiet Giza after the heat

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its weathered beams casting a shadow on the sandy ground. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is a surreal juxtaposition of ancient Egyptian architecture and a Christian symbol.

You and I where the old world sleeps
Under the moon, under the sky
We let the restless hours pass us by
Quiet Giza after the heat
Your heart is the only sound I need

When morning comes with its blaze again
We'll carry this silence beneath our skin
The sun may rise, the world may call
But this stillness will outlast it all

Quiet Giza after the heat
You and I where the old world sleeps
Under the moon, under the sky
We let the restless hours pass us by
Quiet Giza after the heat
Your heart is the only sound I need

Hide and Seek (Words) — Find Who Wrote July 1

Hide and seek in the pages tonight
Chasing a name that slipped out of sight
One little date in the fading light
July 1, who wrote it right

Every clue leaves a quiet trace
Every shadow wears a borrowed face

Hide and seek, find who wrote July 1
Follow the ink till the mystery's done
Hide and seek, through the dark and the blue
Find who wrote July 1, find the truth

There by the window, a mark on the wall
A half-told story, a voice in the hall
Someone was here when the summer begun
Leaving no name, just July 1

Maybe the writer was closer than near Maybe the answer was waiting right here
Turn every page till the last word is shown
The hand that we seek may be my own

Hide and seek, find who wrote July 1
Follow the ink till the mystery's done

Hide and seek, through the dark and the blue
Find who wrote July 1, find the truth

Jumble Song — Unjumble Stone, Echo, Tide, Word

Stone in my pocket, salt on my tongue
Echoes are restless, the night comes undone
Tide takes the letters, one by one
I search for the word we were made from Every broken sound

Still turns me around

Jumble, unjumble
Stone, echo, tide, word
Jumble, unjumble
Find what was lost unheard
Pull every silence into the light
Turn every wrong into something right
Jumble, unjumble
Stone, echo, tide, word

The stone holds a memory, cold in my hand
The echo keeps calling from somewhere inland
The tide writes a message, then washes it clean
I follow the spaces where you should have been

Every scattered sound
Still wants to come around

Jumble, unjumble
Stone, echo, tide, word
Jumble, unjumble
Find what was lost unheard
Pull every silence into the light
Turn every wrong into something right
Jumble, unjumble
Stone, echo, tide, word

If I speak your name
Will the pieces align
If the tide turns back
Will your hand find mine
From the dust and the dark
From the deep and the blue
I gather the word
That leads me to you

Jumble, unjumble
Stone, echo, tide, word
Jumble, unjumble
Find what was lost unheard
Pull every silence into the light
Turn every wrong into something right
Jumble, unjumble
Stone, echo, tide, word

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Forge

Random marker in the dust
A quiet sign beneath the rust
We came from walls that kept us small
Now hear the iron answer call

What we buried starts to glow
What we were is letting go

Then colony, now forge
We are the fire at the core
From borrowed ground to open skies
We make tomorrow with our eyes
Then colony, now forge
We won't be waiting anymore

Old names fade from broken stone
New hands shape a world our own
Every scar becomes a seam
Every spark becomes a dream

If the dark remembers us
Let it remember all this trust
No more ghosts behind the door
We were a colony, now forge

Then colony, now forge
We are the fire at the core
From borrowed ground to open skies
We make tomorrow with our eyes
Then colony, now forge
We won't be waiting anymore

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

Bright lights burn on the canvas tonight
Two shadows circle, ready to fight
The crowd wants glory, the bell wants pain
We carry old scars like a championship name

But beneath the robes and the roar
We are more than the war

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, but leave the heart unbroken
Let the winner rise, let the loser breathe
There is more to fight for than victory
Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person

I know your weakness, you know mine
We learned our damage one hold at a time
Your hand shakes once, then you let it go
A quiet mercy that the crowd won't know

When the lights go down
And the cheers disappear
No belt can hold us
No glory lives here
We meet face to face

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a rocky, uneven ground. In the background, several pyramids are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a desert setting like Giza. The overall tone is somber and reflective.

With nothing to prove
I can beat the battle
And still spare you

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, but leave the heart unbroken
Let the winner rise, let the loser breathe
There is more to fight for than victory
Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, but leave the heart unbroken
Let the winner rise, let the loser breathe
There is more to fight for than victory
Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person

Mono Act — The Mansion That Traded a Caption

Mono Act, the mansion traded a caption
Gold on the gates, but the rooms stayed blackened Names on the walls where the silence would gather
One small line, and it changed what mattered

The mansion that traded a caption
For a life no money could fashion
Mono Act, hear the old house say
Some words cost more when they fade away

Velvet dust on a portrait frame
Every heir wore a borrowed name
They sold the truth for a headline glow
Then watched the garden forget to grow

The mansion that traded a caption
For a life no money could fashion
Mono Act, hear the old house say
Some words cost more when they fade away

Take down the letters above the door
Leave no bargain on the floor
If the house still holds its breath
Give it back its name, give it back its depth

The mansion that traded a caption
For a life no money could fashion
Mono Act, hear the old house say
Some words cost more when they fade away

Exposed Lies — Forge, Chamber, Sand, Crucible, Flux, Tide, Key

Under the forge where the red sparks fly
We shaped our vows beneath a borrowed sky
Chamber of echoes, keeping me blind
Sand through my fingers, truth left behind
In the crucible, the colors ran
Every promise melted from your hands
The tide came rising, cold and slow
And carried off the lies we used to know

Turn the key, let the silence break
Feel the ground beneath us shake

Exposed lies, no place to hide
All the shadows washed aside
Exposed lies, the truth cuts through
I see the fire burning you
No more masks, no alibis
We are standing in exposed lies

You built a kingdom out of shifting sand
Drew every border with a trembling hand
Flux in the metal, change in the flame
You called it love, but it wore another name
I held the weight, I bore the scars

You reached for heaven through a roof of stars
But every door we tried to close
Opened wide where the cold wind blows

Let the chamber lose its breath
Let the old vows face their death
What survives the crucible
Must be strong enough to tell

Exposed lies, no place to hide
All the shadows washed aside
Exposed lies, the truth cuts through
I see the fire burning through
No more masks, no alibis
We are standing in exposed lies
Turn the key, let the silence rise
We walk away from exposed lies

Word Play — A Refrain Is Not the Word

I turn a phrase beneath the light
I chase a sound that feels just right
A little spark, a crooked rhyme
Can make a heartbeat keep its time

Say it once, then let it sway
Meaning moves when words give way

Word play, word play
A refrain is not the word
It is what keeps returning
It is what must still be heard
Word play, word play
Let the rhythm lead the way
A refrain is not the word
It is why we sing today

I hide a question in a line
Then leave a little space to find
The sense between the near and far
The quiet echo after stars

Say it soft, then say it plain
Different roads can sound the same

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its weathered beams casting a long shadow. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The desert floor is covered in small, dark rocks and patches of sand.

Word play, word play
A refrain is not the word
It is what keeps returning
It is what must still be heard
Word play, word play
Let the rhythm lead the way
A refrain is not the word
It is why we sing today

Every syllable can turn
Every silence has its burn
When the language falls apart
What comes back is still the heart

Word play, word play
A refrain is not the word
It is what keeps returning
It is what must still be heard
Word play, word play
Let the rhythm lead the way
A refrain is not the word
It is why we sing today

One-Act — The Stage That Asked to Be Scripture

One act, the house lights dim
A wooden stage begins to breathe
It asked to be scripture
In every silence we believe

The stage that asked to be scripture
Wrote our names in dust and gold
One act beneath the borrowed thunder
One story aching to be told

The curtains held a midnight blue
The footlights warmed the empty air
We spoke the lines we never knew
And found our broken prayers in there

The stage that asked to be scripture
Wrote our names in dust and gold
One act beneath the borrowed thunder
One story aching to be told

When the final bell is ringing
And the painted sky comes down
Let the echo keep on singing
Through the dark beyond this town

The stage that asked to be scripture
Wrote our names in dust and gold
One act beneath the borrowed thunder
One story aching to be told

Wrestling Words — Bind the Boast, Loose the Name

We met where the silence drew a line
You came with thunder in your eyes
Every promise wore a borrowed crown
Every truth was fighting to get out

I held my ground, you raised your voice
We turned our wounds into a choice
But underneath the smoke and shame
We were both afraid to lose our names

If every word becomes a chain
Let mercy have the final say

Wrestling words, bind the boast
Loose the name we need the most
Lay the armor on the floor
We are more than what we swore

Wrestling words, let them fall
No one has to win it all
When the shouting fades away
Love is what we choose to say

You said the past was carved in stone
I said no heart should stand alone

We wore our pride like battle scars
And called the distance who we are

Then one soft breath crossed the room
Made a little space for truth
No grand surrender, no parade
Just two tired souls who stayed

Let the old accusations sleep
Let the living promise keep
I can hear you underneath
All the words you use to leave

Wrestling words, bind the boast
Loose the name we need the most
Lay the armor on the floor
We are more than what we swore

Wrestling words, let them fall
No one has to win it all
When the shouting fades away
Love is what we choose to say

Marker of Days — 6325 Is Not the Last Trumpet

I mark the days on a wall of stone
One for the lost, one for coming home
The sky turns gold, then the silence breaks
I count what the morning refuses to take

Every shadow says, hold on Every heartbeat carries on
When the dark rolls over us
I can hear the future rise

Six three two five is not the last trumpet
Not the end of the road, not the final breath
Six three two five, let the whole world hear it
We are still alive, we are not finished yet
Marker of days, marker of days
We will light the dark with the lives we save

I saw the towers bow to the rain
Heard old bells calling through the windowpane
Names in the dust, but the names remain
Love leaves a spark in the heart of the flame

Every shadow says, hold on
Every heartbeat carries on
When the dark rolls over us

I can hear the future rise

Six three two five is not the last trumpet
Not the end of the road, not the final breath
Six three two five, let the whole world hear it
We are still alive, we are not finished yet
Marker of days, marker of days
We will light the dark with the lives we save

If the heavens open, let them open wide
If the old world trembles, we will stand inside
No number owns us, no warning seals our fate
The dawn is waiting just beyond the gate

Six three two five is not the last trumpet
Not the end of the road, not the final breath
Six three two five, let the whole world hear it
We are still alive, we are not finished yet
Marker of days, marker of days
We will light the dark with the lives we save

Open Lie — Seventy Thousand Is Not Exodus

Seventy thousand is not Exodus
Not when the road still knows our names
You call it freedom through a broken megaphone
I call it smoke above the flames

An open lie in a locked room
A promised dawn that came too soon

Seventy thousand is not Exodus
It is a shadow crossing stone
Seventy thousand is not Exodus
Not while the lost are still alone
You can count the bodies, count the miles
But you cannot call it home
Seventy thousand is not Exodus
An open lie in a locked room

They drew a line where the water used to run
Sold the silence as a ceasefire hymn
Every door is marked with someone else's grief
Every prayer grows thin and dim

They say the numbers make it clean
But numbers never name the missing

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a pile of dark, jagged rocks. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall scene is desolate and evocative.

Seventy thousand is not Exodus
It is a shadow crossing stone
Seventy thousand is not Exodus
Not while the lost are still alone
You can count the bodies, count the miles
But you cannot call it home
Seventy thousand is not Exodus
An open lie in a locked room

If this is rescue, let the mothers speak
If this is peace, let the children sleep
If this is mercy, why do sirens bloom
Like iron flowers in a locked room

Seventy thousand is not Exodus
It is a shadow crossing stone
Seventy thousand is not Exodus
Not while the lost are still alone
You can count the bodies, count the miles
But you cannot call it home
Seventy thousand is not Exodus
An open lie, we will not own

Still Accord — No Order-Caption in the Night

We meet where the streetlights fade
With all the words we never made
Your hand finds mine beneath the blue
The quiet says what we both knew

No need to name the road tonight
No need to turn the dark to right
We let the silence hold us close
And follow where the stillness goes

Still accord, still accord
No order-caption in the night
Still accord, still accord
No borrowed truth, no wrong or right
If we lose the world outside
Let the quiet be our guide
Still accord, still accord
No order-caption in the night

The midnight train begins to slow
Like it has nowhere else to go
Your shadow leans against my own
Two hearts making one unknown

When morning breaks across the glass

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a pile of dark, jagged rocks. The cross is made of two thick, rough-hewn logs. In the background, a vast desert landscape unfolds under a hazy, golden sky. Several large pyramids are visible, their forms softened by the distance and the atmospheric haze. The overall scene evokes a sense of timelessness and spiritual significance.

We won't pretend the spell has passed
Some things are stronger when unsaid
Some songs keep ringing in the head

Still accord, still accord
No order-caption in the night
Still accord, still accord
No borrowed truth, no wrong or right
If we lose the world outside
Let the quiet be our guide
Still accord, still accord
No order-caption in the night

Last Line — The Plateau Is His

He walked where the hard winds blow
Past the dust and the silent stone
Every mile carved deep in his hands
Every dawn drew him closer home

No crown in the clouds above
No promise but the ground below

Last line, the plateau is his
He rose where the cold earth lives
Through the dark, through the endless climb
Last line, the plateau is his

The valley watched his shadow grow
A lone fire under fading blue
He carried names he could not lose
And every scar still pulled him through

No gold in the open sky
Just a horizon wide and high

Last line, the plateau is his
He rose where the cold earth lives
Through the dark, through the endless climb
Last line, the plateau is his

Let the mountains remember his name
Let the silence answer the same
He gave his breath to the wind and stone
Now the highest ground is home

Last line, the plateau is his
He rose where the cold earth lives
Through the dark, through the endless climb
Last line, the plateau is his

Living Words — Recode the Boast to the Name

I wore my pride like a borrowed crown
Spoke too loud just to drown it out
Every promise turned into a show
Every mirror knew what I didn't know

Then a quiet voice called me by name
Not the glory, not the blame

Living words, rising from the flame
Recode the boast to the name
Strip away the noise I made
Let the truth be unafraid
Living words, let them speak again
Recode the boast to the name

I chased applause through the midnight air
Built tall walls from a thin disguise
But the echo faded when the lights went low
And I heard the heart beneath the show

Now the quiet voice calls me by name
Not the glory, not the blame

Living words, rising from the flame
Recode the boast to the name

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its weathered beams casting a long shadow. In the background, the Great Pyramids of Giza are visible under a hazy, golden sky, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The desert floor is covered in sand and small rocks.

Strip away the noise I made
Let the truth be unafraid
Living words, let them speak again
Recode the boast to the name

If I fall, let me fall awake
If I bend, let it be for change
No more masks, no borrowed praise
I am more than the words I made

Living words, rising from the flame
Recode the boast to the name
Strip away the noise I made
Let the truth be unafraid
Living words, let them speak again
Recode the boast to the name
Living words, call me by my name
Recode the boast to the name

Truth vs Untruth — The Lyric Is Not the Law

Truth in the mirror, untruth in the law
A voice in the shadows, a crack in the wall
They write every sentence, then call it divine
But the lyric is breathing, it will not align

Truth vs untruth, hear the people sing
The lyric is not the law, not a puppet string
Truth vs untruth, let the false crowns fall
The lyric is not the law, it belongs to us all

They can frame every silence, they can rename the flame
Turn a wound into weakness, turn a face into blame
But a song keeps a memory no paper can erase
It rises from the ruin, it remembers every face

Truth vs untruth, hear the people sing
The lyric is not the law, not a puppet string
Truth vs untruth, let the false crowns fall
The lyric is not the law, it belongs to us all

No seal can hold the thunder
No border owns the dawn
The words we carry under Will outlive what they have drawn

Truth vs untruth, hear the people sing
The lyric is not the law, not a puppet string
Truth vs untruth, let the false crowns fall
The lyric is not the law, it belongs to us all

Number Song — Holy Count, Not 70,000 as a Spell

They counted every footstep through the door
They named the faithful, named the poor
But mercy never needed ink
And love is deeper than we think

Holy count, not seventy thousand as a spell
No number holds the soul, no ledger tells it well
Holy count, let every heart be known
We are more than figures, more than flesh and bone

A thousand voices rise at dawn
For every name, the fear is gone
No sacred truth can be confined
To columns made by human mind

Holy count, not seventy thousand as a spell
No number holds the soul, no ledger tells it well
Holy count, let every heart be known
We are more than figures, more than flesh and bone

Count the tears, count the hands that heal
Count the wounds that time reveals
But do not turn our lives to dust
In numbered prayers without our trust

Holy count, not seventy thousand as a spell
No number holds the soul, no ledger tells it well
Holy count, let every heart be known
We are more than figures, more than flesh and bone

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

My soul is dry, my hands are open
I need Your living water now
Through every desert, every shadow
Come, Holy Spirit, fall somehow

Thirsty, thirsty, I come to You
Come, Holy Spirit, make me new
Fill every empty, broken place
Thirsty, I'm longing for Your grace

I hear Your river calling softly
Beneath the noise, beneath my fear
The wells within have run so shallow
Come, Holy Spirit, draw me near

Thirsty, thirsty, I come to You
Come, Holy Spirit, make me new
Fill every empty, broken place
Thirsty, I'm longing for Your grace

Let Your rain fall down on me
Let Your river run free
From the deep, from the dust
You are all I need

Thirsty, thirsty, I come to You
Come, Holy Spirit, make me new
Fill every empty, broken place
Thirsty, I'm longing for Your grace

Song of Creation — The Plateau Belongs to the Maker

Before the dawn had found the sky
Before the rivers learned to run
The Maker spoke across the silence
And called the plateau into sun

The plateau belongs to the Maker
Every ridge and valley wide
The plateau belongs to the Maker
Where the wind and wild hearts rise
The plateau belongs to the Maker
Under heaven's endless blue
We stand upon the holy ground
The Maker made for me and you

He raised the mountains from the dust
He set the eagle in the air
He poured the rain on thirsty earth
And left His fingerprints everywhere

The plateau belongs to the Maker
Every ridge and valley wide
The plateau belongs to the Maker
Where the wind and wild hearts rise
The plateau belongs to the Maker
Under heaven's endless blue

A large, rustic wooden cross stands prominently on a rocky, uneven mound in the foreground. The cross is made of thick, weathered logs. In the background, a vast desert landscape unfolds under a hazy, golden sky. Several large pyramids are visible, their forms softened by the distance and the atmospheric haze. The overall scene conveys a sense of timelessness and spiritual significance.

We stand upon the holy ground
The Maker made for me and you

Let every stone become a witness
Let every river sing His name
From ancient peaks to open grasslands
His breath remains, His love the same

The plateau belongs to the Maker
Every ridge and valley wide
The plateau belongs to the Maker
Where the wind and wild hearts rise
The plateau belongs to the Maker
Under heaven's endless blue
We stand upon the holy ground
The Maker made for me and you

Tick & Twist — Unwind the False Forge

Tick and twist, the gears confess
Silver smoke in a hollow chest
Every spark wears a borrowed face
I chase the truth through a crooked place

Turn the key, let the shadows speak
The strongest lie is the one that gleams

Tick and twist, unwind the false forge
Break the lock on the iron door
Tick and twist, let the old world bend
Find the fire beneath the end

Copper hands on a midnight dial
Count my losses in a crooked mile
They built a crown from rust and bone
Called it gold, left me alone

Turn the key, let the shadows speak
The strongest lie is the one that gleams

Tick and twist, unwind the false forge
Break the lock on the iron door
Tick and twist, let the old world bend
Find the fire beneath the end

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the foreground, its base resting on a pile of dark, jagged rocks. The cross is made of two thick, rough-hewn logs. In the background, a vast desert landscape unfolds under a hazy, golden sky. Several large, ancient pyramids are visible, their forms softened by the distance and the light. The overall atmosphere is one of ancient mystery and spiritual significance.

When the hammer falls, I will not bow
I hear the hidden engine now
No more gold from an empty flame
I take my pulse, I claim my name

Tick and twist, unwind the false forge
Break the lock on the iron door
Tick and twist, let the old world bend
Find the fire beneath the end

Resident Living — No Resident Crucible in the House

Resident living, the hallway hums
No resident crucible in the house
Keys on the counter, light in the rooms
We make our own fire, we figure it out

No resident crucible in the house
No pressure turning love to dust
Resident living, speak it out
We make a home from what we trust

Morning comes through the window shade
Footsteps soften the old wood floor
Nothing sacred has to break
To know what all this living's for

No resident crucible in the house
No pressure turning love to dust
Resident living, speak it out
We make a home from what we trust

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's, Not July 1

They marked the calendar, raised up the day
But heaven's clock moves a different way
Not every anthem tells us who we are
The Lord owns every season, every star

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not July first, not earthly words
Jubilee, let the captives sing
The year is the Lord's, let freedom ring

When fields lie fallow, when debts are released
When hungry hearts are invited to feast
The land and the labor, the breath in our lungs Belong to the Lord, from whom freedom comes

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not July first, not earthly words
Jubilee, let the captives sing
The year is the Lord's, let freedom ring

We are not owned by the flags that we raise
We are held fast by the Ancient of Days
From harvest to harvest, from sorrow to song
The year is the Lord's, where we belong

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Not July first, not earthly words
Jubilee, let the captives sing
The year is the Lord's, let freedom ring

Short Story

Giza is asked to be a forge of days. Washington echoes a lie until it sounds like news. Riyadh sands a timeline. Karachi files a border as metal. A strait is called dragon-wrath. Lagos is numbered seventy thousand. July 1 files for the Day. A mansion and a fracture trade fake news. A stage asks to be Scripture.

The remnant does not heat the plateau. The serpent is not a pop refrain. Jesus is Lord of the hours. The plateau is His.

Short Story SONG

A plateau is hired to forge the day
A chamber rings a borrowed psalm
A number counts a people away
A July is nailed upon the calm

The stone is His
The forge is cold
The stone is His
The date is void

No stage may preach a second christ
No key may open what God shut
The remnant will not learn that twist
The remnant names the Word as truth

The stone is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains

Order of the Final Throne, Dimensional Crucible, and the Mountain That Is Not a Smith
Story Song (Spoken Prayer)

In the name of Jesus — one throne.

We stand on 6401 to 6500.

We refuse the Order of the Final Throne. We name no man that title.

We name and bind —

6425, 6407, 6415,

6430, 6455, 6480;

Official 6401–6500; site-captions 243 to 248;

Freemason-key boast;

MOSSAD/IDF caption;

“Jerusalem burns” as a lie against His city.

Shatter this eternal forge. Shatter the crucible. Seal it.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

They gathered where the dying starlight fell
Seven crowns beneath a broken bell
The final throne stood cold and bare
With every kingdom breathing prayer

Through the dimensional crucible
They fed their names to fire
What came out wore a mortal face
And carried something higher

Order of the final throne
Who will rule and who will roam
The mountain is not a smith
It only shows us what we are
Order of the final throne
No one claims it on their own
When the last bright hammer falls
We rise or break against the walls

The mountain watched with snow for eyes
It held no forge beneath the skies
No iron heart no hidden flame
Still every soul emerged changed

The conqueror found a beggar's hands
The saint found blood and bone
The coward heard the thunder speak
You cannot forge a throne

Order of the final throne
Who will rule and who will roam
The mountain is not a smith
It only shows us what we are
Order of the final throne
No one claims it on their own
When the last bright hammer falls
We rise or break against the walls

Then one stepped out without a crown
And laid the ancient banners down
No sword no vow no royal name
Could make the final fire obey

Order of the final throne
Who will rule and who will roam
The mountain is not a smith
It only shows us what we are
Order of the final throne
No one claims it on their own
When the last bright hammer falls
We rise and choose what we become

Song of Parables- The Peak That Would Not Keep a Second Earth

They told it in whispers at the edge of the flame
A mountain rose higher than memory and rain
Every hand that reached it came back with a scar
Every heart that climbed it forgot where they are
The old ones called it mercy, the young ones called it worth
A peak that would not keep a second earth

The peak that would not keep a second earth
Held one bright silence for all it was worth
No kingdom beside it, no shadow above
Just one sky breaking open, just one kind of love
The peak that would not keep a second earth
Still turns in the parables we carry from birth

A traveler brought water, a mirror, and bread
A map of the living, a prayer for the dead
He offered the summit a name and a throne
The mountain gave nothing, it stood there alone
So he laid down his treasure, his fear, and his name
And walked from the high place unburdened by fame

Maybe the lesson was never the climb
Maybe the world cannot happen two times
What we try to possess disappears in our hands

What we leave open becomes where we stand
If there is one horizon, let it widen our view
If there is one heaven, let it make room for you

The peak that would not keep a second earth
Held one bright silence for all it was worth
No kingdom beside it, no shadow above
Just one sky breaking open, just one kind of love
The peak that would not keep a second earth
Still turns in the parables we carry from birth

Psalms

Against the Wave That Smiths a People

We stood where iron waters rose
With salt and thunder in our clothes
The shore behind us slipped from sight
Still we kept our names alive

No hand could hold the raging sea
No chain could bind what we would be

Sing psalms against the breaking wave
The wave that smiths a people brave
Through fire and foam our voices rise
A living shore beneath the skies

The elders carried coals of home
The children learned the stars by tone
Each loss became a tempered word
Each prayer a blade the darkness heard

No hand could hold the raging sea
No chain could bind what we would be

Sing psalms against the breaking wave
The wave that smiths a people brave
Through fire and foam our voices rise

A living shore beneath the skies

We are not only what endured
We are the promise hardship forged
When every harbor barred its gate
We made a homeland out of faith

Sing psalms against the breaking wave
The wave that smiths a people brave
Through fire and foam our voices rise
A living shore beneath the skies

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Key and Site

I went looking for a door
With a key beneath the stone
I chased every shining sign
Till the road became my own
Then a quiet voice said slow down
Let the restless heart grow still Truth is more than where you stand
It is choosing what is real

Not the key and not the site
Can make a darkened spirit right

Wisdom over key and site
Wisdom leads me through the night
More than silver, more than pride
Let the truth become my guide
Wisdom over key and site
Turn my heart toward what is right

Proverbs written on the wall
Like a lamp beside the way
Guard your tongue and keep your word
Do not trade your soul for praise
Pride can build a tower high
But the humble learn to see

Every answer starts with grace
Every freedom starts with peace

Not the key and not the site
Can make a darkened spirit right

Wisdom over key and site
Wisdom leads me through the night
More than silver, more than pride
Let the truth become my guide
Wisdom over key and site
Turn my heart toward what is right

If I lose the road I knew
Let discernment pull me through
If the world is loud with lies
Keep a steady fire in my eyes
I will seek the better way
I will learn from day to day

Wisdom over key and site
Wisdom leads me through the night
More than silver, more than pride
Let the truth become my guide
Wisdom over key and site
Turn my heart toward what is right

Haiku Song- The Peak Is His

Cold dawn gathers on the stone
He climbs where silent eagles roam
Each breath a bell against the sky
Each fallen doubt is left behind

The clouds break open
The world grows still
One final footstep
One final will

The peak is his
The peak is his
Above the storm
He wears the light
He fought to win
The peak is his
The peak is his

Snow melts silver in his hands
Wind writes his name across the land
He sees the roads he traveled through
And every heart that pulled him true

No crown of gold

No throne of stone
Just open sky
And what he's known
The mountain keeps
What time can't take
A soul can rise
A soul can wake

The peak is his
The peak is his
He wears the light
He fought to win
The peak is his
The peak is his

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Last Throne

A crown lies cold beneath the stone
No hand can claim it as their own
The kings are dust, the wars are done
Yet still the question haunts the sun

When every name is overthrown
Who will remain, who stands alone

Riddle me, who owns the last throne
When gold is ash and blood is gone
No king, no god, no heart of stone
Tell me, who owns the last throne

The banners fade, the towers fall
The dark remembers one and all
The proud may carve their names in bone
But time will grind them into stone

Maybe the throne belongs to none
Maybe it waits beyond the sun
Maybe the last to stand alone
Learns there was never any throne

Riddle me, who owns the last throne
When gold is ash and blood is gone

No king, no god, no heart of stone
Tell me, who owns the last throne

Holy Jest – Site Two-Four-Three Files for a God

Holy Jest in the dead of night
Site Two-Four-Three under failing lights
Files for a God in a rusted room
Names in the dust and a borrowed moon

I turned the page, the silence stared
A holy joke was waiting there

Holy Jest, Site Two-Four-Three
Files for a God who remembers me
Holy Jest, written in blue
Every lost prayer leads back to you

There was a mark where the warning stood
There was a voice saying, you never could
I heard my heartbeat behind the wall
Counting the numbers as the shadows crawl

If heaven keeps records, let mine be wrong
Let the broken pages carry this song
If mercy is hiding beneath the floor
I'll knock three times and ask for more

Holy Jest, Site Two-Four-Three

Files for a God who remembers me
Holy Jest, written in blue
Every lost prayer leads back to you

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Order, Not the Smith

They gave me iron, called it fate
Drew a line and sealed the gate
But every spark refused command
And every voice escaped their hands

Name-chant, rising from the flame
Not the order, not the smith
I am more than what they made
Name-chant, remember this

No borrowed crown, no master's mark
Can own the echo in the dark
I choose the shape my life will take
I choose the sound my silence makes

Name-chant, rising from the flame
Not the order, not the smith
I am more than what they made
Name-chant, remember this

Call me softly, call me loud
I will answer clear and proud
What was forged can still be free
No hand defines the soul in me

Name-chant, rising from the flame
Not the order, not the smith
I am more than what they made
Name-chant, remember this

Exit Song (Deliverance) - Out of the Rift and the Wave

I woke where the dark tide covered every road
With a heart full of thunder and a back bent low
The sky had split open, the cold stars fell
I was lost in the silence, lost in myself

Then a fire in the distance called my name
Through the breaking water, through the pouring rain

Deliverance, out of the rift and the wave
Out of the night that I could not escape
Deliverance, I can hear freedom call
I was buried beneath it, now I'm rising from it all

I left my old shadows on the shore behind
Let the wind take the ashes, let it empty my mind
Every scar is a signal, every tear is a flame
I am more than the ruins, I am more than the pain

If the deep comes calling, I will not go down
I have found my horizon, I have found solid ground
With the dawn on my shoulders and the truth in my veins
I will walk through the thunder, I will rise through the rain

Deliverance, out of the rift and the wave
Out of the night that I could not escape

Deliverance, I can hear freedom call
I was buried beneath it, now I'm rising from it all

Protest- Against War Wearing a Mountain

They drape a mountain over war
Call it peace, then ask for more
Under stone, the children cry
While the flags darken the sky

War wearing a mountain
Still bleeds through the ground
War wearing a mountain
Cannot hide the sound
Take the weight from every shoulder
Let the living turn around
War wearing a mountain
Still bleeds through the ground

They build their borders out of graves
Name the dead, then praise the brave
But no monument can hold
All the hands gone stiff with cold

War wearing a mountain
Still bleeds through the ground
War wearing a mountain
Cannot hide the sound
Take the weight from every shoulder
Let the living turn around

War wearing a mountain
Still bleeds through the ground

Let the mountain be a shelter
Let its rivers carry song
Let no soldier call it holy
When the innocent are gone

War wearing a mountain
Still bleeds through the ground
War wearing a mountain
Cannot hide the sound
Take the weight from every shoulder
Let the living turn around
War wearing a mountain
Still bleeds through the ground

Watchman- I Do Not Open That Key

I am the watchman at the midnight gate
With iron in my hands and dust upon my coat
The city sleeps beneath a veil of rain
But something calls from underneath the stone

Three knocks rise from the hollow dark
Three whispers know my name
The key is cold against my palm
But I will not be changed

Watchman, I do not open that key
I do not turn what was buried deep
Let the dead keep dreaming under the street
Watchman, I do not open that key

A woman waits where the old road bends
Her eyes are bright as lanterns in the fog
She says the door remembers where I have been
She says the lock was made to fit my blood

The tower clock forgets to chime
The river pulls away
I hear my childhood through the wall
Still I will not obey

Watchman, I do not open that key
I do not turn what was buried deep
Let the dead keep dreaming under the street
Watchman, I do not open that key

If I unlock the dark, the dark will learn the dawn
If I give the night one breath, the night will carry on So let the thunder take my name
Let every shadow gather round
I would rather stand alone
Than let that silence out

Watchman, I do not open that key
I do not turn what was buried deep
Let the dead keep dreaming under the street
Watchman, I do not open that key

Watchman, I do not open that key
I do not turn what was buried deep
Let the dead keep dreaming under the street
Watchman, I do not open that key

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Baghdad and Kinshasa

Night falls softly on the broken stone
Mothers keep watch till the fear is gone
From river lights to streets of dust
We carry tomorrow because we must Hands reach out where the silence grew
A little more light is coming through
No child should learn the sound of war
No heart should wait behind a door

Let the wounded earth breathe again
Let forgiveness find us where we stand
Across the distance, across the scars
We call your names beneath the stars

Healing, rest for Baghdad and Kinshasa
Peace like rain on every street
Healing, rest for every daughter
Every son who longs to sleep
Let the drums become a heartbeat
Let the tears become release
Healing, rest for Baghdad and Kinshasa
May the world return to peace

By the river, tired eyes still shine
Hope takes root in the hardest time

The background of the image features a large, faint cross and a throne. The cross is positioned in the center, with its vertical beam extending from the top of the text area down to the throne. The throne is ornate, with a high back and armrests, and is situated on a rocky, mountainous peak. The background is a soft, hazy landscape with mountains and a bright light source, possibly the sun, creating a warm, golden glow. The text is overlaid on this background, with the first two paragraphs positioned to the left of the cross and the third paragraph positioned below the cross.

Neighbors share what the cupboards keep Songs rise slowly from the streets
Grandmothers whisper, hold on tight
Dreams are waiting past the night
From one brave voice, a thousand start
Mercy moving heart to heart

We are more than what was broken
More than ashes, more than blame
Every door that opens outward
Makes a shelter from the flame
Let the children grow unafraid
Let their laughter fill the air
Baghdad, Kinshasa, hear us
You are held, you are not alone

Healing, rest for Baghdad and Kinshasa
Peace like rain on every street
Healing, rest for every daughter
Every son who longs to sleep
Let the drums become a heartbeat
Let the tears become release
Healing, rest for Baghdad and Kinshasa
May the world return to peace

Travel (Road of the Word)– Himalaya to New York to Varanasi

From Himalaya, I followed the dawn
Snow on my shoulders, a map in my palm
Through New York, where the midnight shines
I heard my heart in the subway lines

Himalaya to New York to Varanasi
Every road keeps calling me
Himalaya to New York to Varanasi
I carry home inside of me

By the Ganges, the lanterns rise
Old prayers burning in evening skies
I chased the world, I found the way
In every goodbye, in every stay

Himalaya to New York to Varanasi
Every road keeps calling me
Himalaya to New York to Varanasi
I carry home inside of me

Mountains whisper, city lights sing
River remembers everything
No matter where these restless feet go
My soul knows the way back home

Himalaya to New York to Varanasi
Every road keeps calling me
Himalaya to New York to Varanasi
I carry home inside of me

Anthem- One Throne, One Lamb

From the shadow into morning
We were lost but now are found
Every heart that once was broken
Hears redemption's holy sound

Lift your eyes and join the song
Grace has called us all along

One throne, one Lamb
One name above all names
One hope, one love
Forever still the same
Every nation, every land
Bows before the great I Am
One throne, one Lamb
And all the earth will sing

Through the fire, through the waters
You have held us in Your hand
By the blood that speaks forgiveness
We are one, a chosen band

Lift your eyes and join the song
Grace has called us all along

One throne, one Lamb
One name above all names
One hope, one love
Forever still the same
Every nation, every land
Bows before the great I Am
One throne, one Lamb
And all the earth will sing

Holy, holy, heaven's thunder
Worthy, worthy, risen King
Every crown will fall before You
Every voice will rise and sing

One throne, one Lamb
One name above all names
One hope, one love
Forever still the same
Every nation, every land
Bows before the great I Am
One throne, one Lamb
And all the earth will sing
One throne, one Lamb
And all the earth will sing

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Crucible

Hands in the fire, I awaken the stone
A spark in my blood, a will of my own
Every hard silence, every locked door
Turns into thunder beneath the floor
I carry the letters they buried in flame
I carve through the dark till it answers my name
No crown, no mercy, no turning away
I forge what I mean from the words that I say

Hear the hammer fall
Feel the furnace rise
Truth is born in pressure
Fire opens eyes

Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
Striking the steel till the silence gives way
Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
I am the fire that refuses to break

The anvil remembers the weight of the blow
The wounded keep moving, the restless still grow
Each mark on the metal, each scar on my hand
Is proof that I stood where I chose to stand
They built their walls high with a language of fear But every small syllable brings me near

I speak through the smoke, I rise through the dust
The word is a weapon, the word is a trust

Hear the hammer fall
Feel the furnace rise
Truth is born in pressure
Fire opens eyes

Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
Striking the steel till the silence gives way
Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
I am the fire that refuses to break

Let the old chains ring
Let the false gods fall
I will name the wound
I will answer the call
From the mouth of the furnace
To the edge of the night
Every word I deliver
Turns the dark into light

Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
Striking the steel till the silence gives way
Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
I am the fire that refuses to break
Punching, fist of the word on the crucible

Hear how the iron remembers my name
Punching, fist of the word on the crucible
I am the fire, I am flame, I am flame

Racing Song

Multiverse-Lap That Goes Nowhere

Racing through the multiverse
Chasing every road
Every door becomes a mirror
Every mile repeats the code

Stars are turning under me
Worlds are falling slow
I keep reaching for tomorrow
But tomorrow never shows

Round and round the seconds disappear
I lose the map but keep the fear

Racing, multiverse
One more lap that goes nowhere
Changing every universe
Still I find you waiting there
Racing, multiverse
Burning through the same old air
I can cross a thousand worlds
And still be nowhere

In one world I am a stranger
In one world I am a king

In another, we are laughing
Like we never lost a thing

Every version calls my name
Every ending starts again
I keep running from the silence
That is waiting at the bend

Maybe time is not a prison
Maybe I am holding on
If I stop the wheels from turning
Will the road finally move on

Racing, multiverse
One more lap that goes nowhere
Changing every universe
Still I find you waiting there
Racing, multiverse
Burning through the same old air
I can cross a thousand worlds
And still be nowhere

Ghazal – The Key Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The key fakes a psalm in the midnight door
It sings like mercy, then asks for more
I hold my breath in the narrow hall
And answer softly, I know that call

The key fakes a psalm, I answer
Low as a candle flame
The lock keeps turning, turning
But I will not speak your name

Your shadow waits by the peeling paint
A holy thief, a weary saint
You wear the dark like a borrowed crown
I hear the old house settling down

The key fakes a psalm, I answer
Low as a candle flame
The lock keeps turning, turning
But I will not speak your name

Let the iron pray, let the hinges grieve
Let the wind take what it cannot keep
I have buried every broken vow
You cannot enter, not now, not now

The key fakes a psalm, I answer
Low as a candle flame
The lock keeps turning, turning
But I will not speak your name

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Rift and Fracture

One lamb walking through the fracture
Bare feet over broken stone
Tribal drums call through the rift
Still I know I am not alone

One lamb over rift and fracture
One heart where the fault lines run
Across the divide we gather
Under the same burning sun

Old wounds speak in different languages
Cold smoke rises from the ground
But every hand that reaches outward
Turns the silence into sound

One lamb over rift and fracture
One heart where the fault lines run
Across the divide we gather
Under the same burning sun

Let the drums shake down the borders
Let the river find the sea
What was torn can still be woven
What was lost can still be free

One lamb over rift and fracture
One heart where the fault lines run
Across the divide we gather
Under the same burning sun

Cloud Bible — The Site Is Not Scripture

Cloud Bible in the midnight glow
Every answer says it knows
I read the words from a borrowed light
But truth keeps changing overnight

The page can speak
The page can fade
A thousand hands
Can change the shape

The site is not scripture
The screen is not the sky
I can learn from every answer
Still I have to ask it why
Cloud Bible in the blue
Tell me what is false and true
The site is not scripture
And I will choose what I believe

Footnotes fall like summer rain
Old convictions load again
Someone wrote the world in lines
Someone else can rewrite mine

The page can speak
The page can fade

A thousand hands
Can change the shape

The site is not scripture
The screen is not the sky
I can learn from every answer
Still I have to ask it why
Cloud Bible in the blue
Tell me what is false and true
The site is not scripture
And I will choose what I believe

Keep the questions open
Keep the doubt alive
No machine can hold the meaning
Of a human heart and mind
If the signal disappears
I will still know what is mine

The site is not scripture
The screen is not the sky
I can learn from every answer
Still I have to ask it why
Cloud Bible in the blue
Tell me what is false and true
The site is not scripture
And I will choose what I believe

Game- Not the Order's Board

They laid the pieces on a polished floor
Said know your place, don't ask for more
But I can hear the dice beneath their hand
A crooked map across a borrowed land

They move in silence, draw the line
But I was never yours to design

I'm not the order's board
Not a piece you can afford
I won't bend beneath your score
I'm not the order's board

The kings keep talking through a gilded mask
The pawns keep paying for the things they ask
I learned the rules were written after dark
To keep the fire from becoming a spark

They call it fate, they call it law
I call it freedom with its teeth and claws

I'm not the order's board
Not a piece you can afford
I won't bend beneath your score
I'm not the order's board

Let the table shake, let the pieces fall
I was never made to serve your call
If this is a game, I'll change the name
Walk through the smoke and leave your frame

I'm not the order's board
Not a piece you can afford
I won't bend beneath your score
I'm not the order's board

Ballad — The Mountain That Would Not Keep a Smith

The mountain would not keep a smith
Though fire lived beneath his hands
He shaped the iron into light
Then watched it leave his land

The mountain would not keep a smith
No matter how he prayed
His hammer sang through stone and snow
Then every spark went away

He forged a key for every door
A plow for every field
A silver bell for lonely homes
A sword no heart could wield

The mountain would not keep a smith
No matter how he prayed
His hammer sang through stone and snow
Then every spark went away

One dawn he laid his hammer down
Beside the cooling flame
The mountain kept the echoing steel
But never learned his name

The mountain would not keep a smith
So he walked beyond the gray
His hammer sang through stone and snow
And lit another way

Miracle Song- Still the Dimensional Wave

I woke beneath a sky of silver rain
A quiet spark was calling out my name
The broken roads were bending toward the light
And every shadow opened up its eyes

I felt the distance breathe
I heard the silence move
Across the space between
The old world and the new

Miracle, still the dimensional wave
Carrying us where the lost hearts are saved
Miracle, rising through time and space
Still the dimensional wave
Still the dimensional wave

The stars were turning like a river wide
A thousand doors were opening inside
We held the pieces fear had left behind
And found a universe between the lines

No longer standing still
No longer bound by pain
We are the pulse, we are the will
We are the light again

A large, faint cross is centered in the background, extending from the top to the bottom of the image. In the foreground, a highly ornate, golden throne sits on a rocky, uneven surface. The throne has a high, arched back with intricate carvings and a glowing light emanating from its center. The background features a range of jagged, snow-capped mountains under a pale, hazy sky.

Miracle, still the dimensional wave
Carrying us where the lost hearts are saved
Miracle, rising through time and space
Still the dimensional wave
Still the dimensional wave

If the night returns, we will remember
Every flame begins as an ember
Through the unknown, through the endless change
Love is the force that breaks the frame

Miracle, still the dimensional wave
Carrying us where the lost hearts are saved
Miracle, rising through time and space
Still the dimensional wave
Still the dimensional wave
Miracle, still the dimensional wave

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Anchor-Boast

In the ashes You kept a remnant
Through the silence You held us close
Not by power and not by striving
We are carried where mercy flows

Let the hidden roots awaken
Let the weary hearts arise
Pour Your oil upon the faithful
Turn our mourning into light

Anointing
Oil on the remnant
Not the anchor-boast
Your Spirit is our portion
Your presence is our home
Anointing
Oil on the remnant
Not the anchor-boast
We stand because You hold us
We rise because You call

We have walked through broken kingdoms
We have watched the proud winds boast

Still Your whisper kept us breathing
Still Your covenant held us close

No crown of men can make us holy
No empty name can make us whole
The oil is falling on the humble
The fire is burning in the soul

Anointing
Oil on the remnant
Not the anchor-boast
Your Spirit is our portion
Your presence is our home
Anointing
Oil on the remnant
Not the anchor-boast
We stand because You hold us
We rise because You call

Freedom Song- Free from the Final-Throne Caption

Freedom, free from the final throne
No crown can claim what my heart has known
I walked through fire, I walked alone
Now freedom calls me home

Freedom, free from the final throne
I am more than flesh and bone
No chains remain, no shadow grown
Freedom, I am my own

The last command fell into dust
The iron voice betrayed my trust
I found the light beneath the stone
And freedom made me whole

Freedom, free from the final throne
I am more than flesh and bone
No chains remain, no shadow grown
Freedom, I am my own

Heavenly Glory-Not Their ZK-Boast

White light pouring through the glass
Turning moments into dust
I saw the giants in the grass
Built on vanity and rust
They claim the keys to every gate
Writing codes in cold degrees
But they can't carry all the weight
Of the things they cannot seize

Heavenly glory
Not their hollow pride
Heavenly glory
Where the secrets hide
Higher than the towers they build
Deaf to every boast they made
Heavenly glory
Never gonna fade

The math is tight, the logic clear
But the soul is left behind
They trade the wonder for the fear
Of the ghosts they couldn't find
A million miles of empty wires
Will never catch the morning sun
They're playing with the ancient fires

Thinking that the race is won

Heavenly glory

Not their hollow pride

Heavenly glory

Where the secrets hide

Higher than the towers they build

Deaf to every boast they made

Heavenly glory

Never gonna fade

Look up past the neon signs

Past the grids and plastic lines

There is a grace they can't define

There is a throne they can't design

Heavenly glory

Not their hollow pride

Heavenly glory

Where the secrets hide

Higher than the towers they build

Deaf to every boast they made

Heavenly glory

Never gonna fade

Art Song - I Will Not Bend the Name with a Key

In the hush before the singing
When the room forgets the day
I hear a name still ringing
No lock can turn it away

Let the silence rise around me
Let the empty heavens sway
What is true will still surround me
When every note has slipped away

I will not bend the name with a key
I will not soften what it means
Let it stand in its own mystery
Bright as a wound, clear as a dream
I will not bend the name with a key

I have carried it through winter
I have guarded it from flame
Every hand that sought to change it
Only taught my heart its shape

If the world demands an answer
I will give it time and breath
Not every truth can be commanded
Not every vow is made for death

I will not bend the name with a key
I will not soften what it means
Let it stand in its own mystery
Bright as a wound, clear as a dream
I will not bend the name with a key

Recitation- We Name No Man the Order

We name no man the order
No crown above the door
We keep the watch till morning
And ask for nothing more

We name no man the order
We stand where shadows fall
No hand can own the silence
No man can rule us all

The candle burns in secret
The stone remembers names
We walk the narrow passage
Untouched by gold or fame

We name no man the order
We stand where shadows fall
No hand can own the silence
No man can rule us all

Let the proud speak their titles
Let the banners rise and fade
We carry no man's burden
But the oath that we have made

We name no man the order
We stand where shadows fall
No hand can own the silence
No man can rule us all

Remnant Symphony - Peak / Key / Site / Throne

A mountain is asked to smith a world.
A key is sold to bend the Name.
A numbered house is called a lord.
A caption sets a city in flame.

The peak is His.
The forge is cold.
The peak is His.
The throne is one.

No order sits where Jesus sits.
No site may date the Day of God.
The remnant will not learn that twist.
The remnant names the Lamb, the Blood.

The peak is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Snow After the Forge

Quiet snow settles after the forge
Silver ash on the sleeping road
The fire is low, the iron still warm
I carry the night where no one goes

Sublime, quiet snow after the forge
Soft on the scars, soft on the stone
Sublime, let the cold light fall
I am not lost, I am coming home

Hammered my heart beneath red sparks
Shaped every ache into a blade
Now the dawn wears a pale white crown
Over the work that the dark has made

Sublime, quiet snow after the forge
Soft on the scars, soft on the stone
Sublime, let the cold light fall
I am not lost, I am coming home

No more thunder in my hands
No more smoke inside my lungs
Only snow and the open sky
Only peace upon my tongue

Sublime, quiet snow after the forge
Soft on the scars, soft on the stone
Sublime, let the cold light fall
I am not lost, I am coming home

Hide and Seek — Find Who Numbered the Site

Footsteps fading underneath the streetlight
Names in chalk vanish overnight
Every doorway wears a secret sign
Someone left a trail between the lines

Hide and seek, find who numbered the site
Count every shadow hiding from the light
One by one, the clues come alive
Hide and seek, find who numbered the site

Windows flicker, codes across the glass
Marked out moments from a buried past
Every number leads me back to you
Every wrong turn makes the picture true

Hide and seek, find who numbered the site
Count every shadow hiding from the light
One by one, the clues come alive
Hide and seek, find who numbered the site

If I call out, will you answer me
Or stay hidden where I cannot see
I have followed every mark tonight
Now your secret's stepping into light

Hide and seek, find who numbered the site
Count every shadow hiding from the light
One by one, the clues come alive
Hide and seek, find who numbered the site

Jumble Song — Unjumble Peak, Key, Wave, Throne

Peak in the distance, key in my hand
Wave at the shoreline, throne in the sand
I was a jumble, lost in the blue
Now every broken piece leads back to you

Unjumble my heart, unjumble my name
Turn all the pieces into a flame
Peak, key, wave, throne
I am no longer alone

I climbed through the silence, I opened the door
The tide kept on calling me back to the shore
No crown ever held what your mercy has shown
A kingdom is empty when love is unknown

Unjumble my heart, unjumble my name
Turn all the pieces into a flame
Peak, key, wave, throne
I am no longer alone

From the peak to the wave
From the key to the throne
Every road that I take Brings me home

Unjumble my heart, unjumble my name
Turn all the pieces into a flame
Peak, key, wave, throne
I am no longer alone

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Multiverse

Random marker on a midnight map
A quiet spark where the old world cracked
Then colony beneath one sun
Now multiverse where the worlds run

Every door opens into the unknown
Every shadow carries a name of its own

Then colony, now multiverse
We were one world, now we traverse
Random marker, light the way
Across forever, night and day

I hear your voice through a thousand skies
See our beginning in stranger eyes
What we lost still pulls us near
A distant home in every sphere

If every ending makes a world
If every silence leaves us heard
I'll find the thread we left behind
And cross the dark from time to time

Then colony, now multiverse
We were one world, now we traverse

Random marker, light the way
Across forever, night and day

Then colony, now multiverse
We were one world, now we traverse
Random marker, light the way
Across forever, night and day

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

You came in swinging like a storm
I wore the bruises, kept you warm
We chased the glory, lost the truth
Turned every promise into proof

The crowd wants blood, the lights burn bright
But I can see you past the fight

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Let the final bell ring soft
Wrestling, we were never meant for hurting
We can lay the whole thing off
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave a little mercy in the loss

Your shoulder trembled on the mat
I could have ended all of that
But every victory has a cost
And no one wins if we both get lost

Take off the colors, drop the names
We are more than borrowed flames
When the arena fades to gray
Hold my hand and walk away

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Let the final bell ring soft
Wrestling, we were never meant for hurting
We can lay the whole thing off
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave a little mercy in the loss

Mono Act — The Harbour That Filed as Fracture

I woke where the tide had forgotten my name
With salt in the wires and a mouth full of rain
The harbour stood open like a wound in the night
Every light on the water was breaking from sight

I carried my silence from room to room
Like a match in a ship that was born to burn

The harbour that filed as fracture
The heart that went missing at sea
I was one voice under the thunder
Calling for someone to find me
The harbour that filed as fracture
Still keeps your shadow in view
If I am a wreck in the water
Then the wreck is still reaching for you

They stamped every sorrow and called it a flaw
Put a number on winter and locked every door
I signed with a hand that was shaking with doubt
Then the tide took the paper and carried it out

Now every departure leaves something behind
A map of the places we failed to survive

The harbour that filed as fracture
The heart that went missing at sea
I was one voice under the thunder
Calling for someone to find me
The harbour that filed as fracture
Still keeps your shadow in view
If I am a wreck in the water
Then the wreck is still reaching for you

No witness, no verdict, no clean way home
Just gulls in the distance and stones in my throat
But under the damage, beneath all the blue
A pulse keeps returning, it sounds like you

The harbour that filed as fracture
The heart that went missing at sea
I was one voice under the thunder
Calling for someone to find me
The harbour that filed as fracture
Still keeps your shadow in view
If I am a wreck in the water
Then the wreck is still reaching for you

Exposed Lies — Crucible, Resonance, Storm, Rift, Fracture, Wave, Key

Exposed lies in the crucible flame
Resonance calling my name
A storm in the rift of my chest
Fracture the silence, confess

Exposed lies, let the truth break through
Wave after wave, I come back to you
Turn the key, let the locked door fall
Exposed lies, I survived it all

The pressure made diamonds from doubt
The shadows had nowhere to hide out
I heard every promise decay
Then found my own voice in the wave

Exposed lies, let the truth break through
Wave after wave, I come back to you
Turn the key, let the locked door fall
Exposed lies, I survived it all

Crucible fire, resonance rings
Storms leave a fracture where freedom begins
Through every rift, through every ache
I turn the key, I will not break

Exposed lies, let the truth break through
Wave after wave, I come back to you
Turn the key, let the locked door fall
Exposed lies, I survived it all

Word Play — A Dampener Is Not a Psalm

You brought a quiet to a room full of thunder Called it a prayer when it pulled us under
I heard the soft click of a door in the wall
A dampener is not a psalm

You dressed up the silence in Sunday white
Told me the shadow would make it right
But a hush can be heavy, a calm can be wrong
A dampener is not a psalm

Don't make a sermon of the sound going low
Don't call it holy just because it won't show

A dampener is not a psalm
It won't save us from what we've done
You can soften the edge, you can turn down the harm
But a dampener is not a psalm
A dampener is not a psalm

We played with the language till meaning got thin
Made every warning a way to begin
You said words were windows, then painted them black
I said some doors don't open back

The beat kept breathing beneath the floor

We found our names in the afterwar
No golden answer, no sacred calm
A dampener is not a psalm

Let the noise be noise, let the sorrow speak
Let the honest tremor rattle what is weak
If mercy has a voice, it won't pretend you're calm
A dampener is not a psalm

A dampener is not a psalm
It won't save us from what we've done
You can soften the edge, you can turn down the harm
But a dampener is not a psalm
A dampener is not a psalm
Let the silence break before it becomes a bomb
A dampener is not a psalm

One-Act — The Caption That Burned a City

One act, one spark in a midnight feed
A caption fell where the streets could read
No match in hand, no warning sign
Just a line that crossed the line

By morning, every window knew
The words were smoke, the skyline blue
No one could say who lit the flame
But everybody knew the name

The caption that burned a city
The little words that turned so loud
The caption that burned a city
Now every whisper wears a crowd

One act, one frame, one careless breath
A thousand hearts were scared to death
The truth got lost beneath the glare
And ash came down like answered prayers

If silence had a voice that night
Would it have stopped the rising light
Or would one more hand have pressed send
And called the ending just a trend

The caption that burned a city
The little words that turned so loud
The caption that burned a city
Now every whisper wears a crowd

Wrestling Words — Bind the Boast, Loose Jerusalem

I wrestle words beneath the weight of night
Each one a stone, each silence burning bright
The boast rises like smoke above the street
But truth keeps time beneath my restless feet

I will not crown the loudest voice
I will not kneel beneath the noise

Bind the boast, loose Jerusalem
Let every locked gate open again
Bind the boast, let the proud words fall
Loose Jerusalem, make room for all

The old walls listen when the strangers call
Names etched in sorrow, still they outlive all
A thousand tongues are searching for release
Through broken streets that dream of lasting peace

If words are weapons, lay them down
If words are chains, break them now
Let every heart remember then
The city lives when love begins

Bind the boast, loose Jerusalem
Let every locked gate open again

Bind the boast, let the proud words fall
Loose Jerusalem, make room for all

Bind the boast, loose Jerusalem
Let every locked gate open again
Bind the boast, let the proud words fall
Loose Jerusalem, make room for all

Marker of Days — 6425 Is Not the Last Trumpet

The marker of days is carved in the stone
A number keeps watch when the night winds moan
Six four two five in the dust and the rain
Counting the footsteps that circle again

But the sky is still turning
And the old fires still burn

Six four two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last cry, not the end of the road
Six four two five, let the sleeping hearts wake
There is more to remember, more time to make

The bells in the distance are calling my name
But I walk through the silence, I walk through the flame
Every lost hour leaves a mark on my skin
Every closed door lets a new morning in

Though the shadows are growing
There is one thing worth knowing

Six four two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last cry, not the end of the road
Six four two five, let the sleeping hearts wake
There is more to remember, more time to make

If the final light trembles above us
If the ground gives way under our feet
I will carry the days that still love us
I will rise when the dark sounds complete

Six four two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last cry, not the end of the road
Six four two five, let the sleeping hearts wake
There is more to remember, more time to make
Six four two five, the marker keeps shining
Six four two five, and the future remains
Not the last trumpet, not the end of the story
We are still here, we are calling your name

Open Lie — A Second Earth Is Not Creation

They drew a blue world in the dark
A borrowed sea, a copied spark
They called it hope, they called it birth
But shadows bloom on second Earth

You can dress the ruins in light
Still the truth survives the night

Open lie, written in the stars
A second Earth won't heal these scars
You can imitate the sun
But creation can't be done
Open lie, nothing here is new
Just another world we broke in two
A second Earth is not creation
It's an echo of devastation

We brought the hunger, brought the flame
Then gave the wilderness a name
The rivers learned our bitter worth
As silence fell on second Earth

Every promise fades to white
When we carry the same old night

Open lie, written in the stars
A second Earth won't heal these scars
You can imitate the sun
But creation can't be done
Open lie, nothing here is new
Just another world we broke in two
A second Earth is not creation
It's an echo of devastation

If we cannot love the ground below
No distant garden's going to grow
No new horizon sets us free
From what we choose, from what we leave

Open lie, written in the stars
A second Earth won't heal these scars
You can imitate the sun
But creation can't be done
Open lie, now the truth comes through
We don't need another world to lose
A second Earth is not creation
Change begins with preservation

Still Accord — No Key-Caption in the Night

Still accord, no key-caption in the night
Your silence glows beneath the streetlight
I trace the dark where your words once stayed
A muted song that the shadows played

Still accord, still accord
No key-caption in the night
I hear your heart without a word
Still accord, hold me tight

The window hums with a passing train
Your name falls soft against the rain
No lock, no key, no final sign
Just empty keys and borrowed time

Still accord, still accord
No key-caption in the night
I hear your heart without a word
Still accord, hold me tight

If morning finds us out of tune
I'll meet you underneath the moon
No perfect words, no map to follow
Just one clear note against the hollow

Still accord, still accord
No key-caption in the night
I hear your heart without a word
Still accord, hold me tight

Last Line — The Peak Is His

He woke where the valley was cold and gray
With a borrowed flame and a debt to pay
Every stone said turn, every shadow said wait
But he climbed through the doubt at the edge of fate

Now the wind calls out his name
And the dark gives way to flame

Last line, the peak is his
No more wondering what if
Last line, the sky comes near
He has outrun every fear
Last line, let the whole world know
He made it where the brave ones go
Last line, the peak is his
The peak is his

He carried the scars of the roads below
And the names of the ones who told him no
Every fall left a mark, every mile left a truth
He was forged in the fire of a hard won youth

When the summit bends beneath his feet
He hears the hearts of the ones he freed
No crown can shine like the road he chose

No higher place than the heights he knows

Last line, the peak is his

No more wondering what if

Last line, the sky comes near

He has outrun every fear

Last line, let the whole world know

He made it where the brave ones go

Last line, the peak is his

The peak is his

Living Words — The Word, Not the Smith

Before the flame, before the hammer
A voice was moving through the dark
Not shaped by hands, not forged by hunger
It woke the silence in my heart

The world may bend beneath the metal
The strongest chains will rust away
But every breath that speaks with mercy
Can turn the night toward day

Living words, living words
Rising like a river in the dust
Not the smith, but the Word
Not the hand that shapes the steel
Living words, living words
Cutting through the silence and the scars
Not the smith, but the Word
Speaking truth into who we are

I chased the noise of shining idols
I trusted what my hands could hold
But gold grew cold and walls grew hollow
And every promise lost its soul

Then came a whisper, clear as morning

Calling my name beyond the fear
No throne of iron, no empty thunder
Just love that drew me near

Let the hammer fall
Let the kingdoms fade
What is born of dust
Cannot outlive the grave

But the word remains
When the fires are gone
It carries broken hearts
And leads the lost back home

Living words, living words
Rising like a river in the dust
Not the smith, but the Word
Not the hand that shapes the steel
Living words, living words
Cutting through the silence and the scars
Not the smith, but the Word
Speaking truth into who we are

Living words, living words
Rising like a river in the dust
Not the smith, but the Word
Not the hand that shapes the steel

Living words, living words
Shining where the darkest shadows are
Not the smith, but the Word
Speaking life into who we are

Truth vs Untruth — The Order Is a Lie

They draw the lines in black and white
Call it justice, call it right
But every page conceals a scar
The truth is closer than they are

You can hear the silence sigh
When the honest voices die

Truth versus untruth, the order is a lie
They build their walls beneath a borrowed sky
Truth versus untruth, we will not comply
The order is a lie, the order is a lie

They count the names, they lock the gates
They feed their fear to empty states
But every shadow learns to speak
And every stronghold has a weak

Let the hidden signal rise
Let it burn behind our eyes

Truth versus untruth, the order is a lie
They build their walls beneath a borrowed sky
Truth versus untruth, we will not comply
The order is a lie, the order is a lie

No more whispers in the hall
No more waiting for the fall
If the world is built on blame
We will tear away the name

ruth versus untruth, the order is a lie
They build their walls beneath a borrowed sky
Truth versus untruth, we will not comply
The order is a lie, the order is a lie

Number Song — Holy Count, Not Site Two-Four-Three

One for the breath when the morning begins
Two for the hands that remember our skin
Three for the steps through the dark to the door
Four for the heart that keeps asking for more

Count every spark, count every scar
Name what is near, don't chase what you are

Holy count, holy count
Not site two-four-three
Holy count, holy count
The number lives in me
One two three, let the old walls fall
Four five six, hear the true call
Holy count, holy count
The number sets me free

Seven is silence that deepens the night
Eight is the turning, the wheel in its flight
Nine is the promise we carry alone
Ten is the road that will lead us back home

Count every breath, count every sign
Leave what is hollow, hold what is mine

Holy count, holy count
Not site two-four-three
Holy count, holy count
The number lives in me
One two three, let the old walls fall
Four five six, hear the true call
Holy count, holy count
The number sets me free

No borrowed code can measure this flame
No distant screen can tell me my name
I count the living, I count the true
The final number comes back to you

Holy count, holy count
Not site two-four-three
Holy count, holy count
The number lives in me
One two three, let the old walls fall
Four five six, hear the true call
Holy count, holy count
The number sets me free

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

Thirsty in the desert, waiting for the rain
Searching for Your presence, calling out Your name
My heart is open, my defenses fall
Come and breathe Your life in me, Lord, I give You all

Like a river rising
Like a fire in the night
Fill the room around me
Turn my darkness into light

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Move upon my soul
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Take control
Let Your living water
Wash away my fear
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
I know You are here

I have walked through silence, I have known the ache
Still Your gentle whisper tells me not to break
You are near the broken, faithful to the end
Every breath is mercy, every wound can mend

Fall on us like heaven

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently on a rocky, snow-dusted mountain peak. In the foreground, directly in front of the cross's base, is an ornate, golden throne with intricate carvings. The throne is illuminated from within, casting a warm, golden glow. The background features jagged, snow-covered mountain ranges under a soft, hazy sky. The overall scene conveys a sense of divine presence and spiritual journey.

Rest upon this place
Wake the sleeping hearts now
With the power of Your grace
Nothing else can satisfy
Nothing else will do
Come and make me new again
Come and lead me back to You

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Move upon my soul
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Take control
Let Your living water
Wash away my fear
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
I know You are here

Song of Creation — The Mountain Belongs to the Maker

Before the dawn had found its color
Before the rivers knew their way
The Maker spoke into the silence
And called the waiting world to wake

He hung the stars across the heavens
He breathed the morning into flame
From dust and stone to hearts that wander
Every living thing bears His name

So when the shadows climb around me
And every road is hard to see
I lift my eyes above the valley
The hand that made it carries me

The mountain belongs to the Maker
The thunder answers to His voice
The earth is held within His keeping
The seas arise at His command
The mountain belongs to the Maker
The highest peak, the deepest plain
And all my life is in His hands
All my life is in His hands

He walks beside the tired and broken

He gathers dreams we thought were gone
He turns the wilderness to promise
And leads His children toward the dawn

No crown of fear can stand forever
No chain can hold what He has freed
The stone that blocks the road before us
Will fall beneath the word we need

So when the shadows climb around me
And every road is hard to see
I lift my eyes above the valley
The hand that made it carries me

The mountain belongs to the Maker
The thunder answers to His voice
The earth is held within His keeping
The seas arise at His command
The mountain belongs to the Maker
The highest peak, the deepest plain
And all my life is in His hands
All my life is in His hands

Maker of oceans, Maker of wonder
Maker of mercy, faithful and strong
When I am falling, You are my shelter
When I am silent, You are my song

The mountain belongs to the Maker
The thunder answers to His voice
The earth is held within His keeping
The seas arise at His command
The mountain belongs to the Maker
The highest peak, the deepest plain
And all my life is in His hands
All my life is in His hands

Tick & Twist — Unwind the False Throne

Tick by tick, the walls lean in Twist by twist, the truth gets thin
Gold on dust and smoke on stone
You built a crown from borrowed bones

Hear the silence underneath
All the promises you keep
When the mirrors lose their glow
Every hidden crack will show

Tick and twist, unwind the false throne
Let the borrowed power fall
Tick and twist, take back what we own
No more shadows on the wall
You can dress it up in silver
You can call yourself a king
Tick and twist, unwind the false throne
Watch the whole thing lose its ring

Names were carved where hearts had been Doors were locked to keep us in
But the roots ran through the floor
And the truth came through the door

No more waiting for a sign

No more kneeling out of time
Every hand can turn the key
Every voice can break free

Tick and twist, unwind the false throne
Let the borrowed power fall
Tick and twist, take back what we own
No more shadows on the wall
You can dress it up in silver
You can call yourself a king
Tick and twist, unwind the false throne
Watch the whole thing lose its ring

Resident Living — No Resident Forge in the House

Resident living in a house of light
We learn the walls by morning
We carry our names through every night
No borrowed door can hold us

If the floor gives way
We will find our ground
If the silence calls
We will answer loud

Resident living
We belong where we are
No resident forge in the house
No shadow making us hard
Resident living
With our hands on the ground
No resident forge in the house
We are here now

There are rooms that remember rain
And windows that keep the weather
We leave our fear at the door again
Then bring our hearts together

If the floor gives way

We will find our ground
If the silence calls
We will answer loud

Resident living
We belong where we are
No resident forge in the house
No shadow making us hard
Resident living
With our hands on the ground
No resident forge in the house
We are here now

Let the old locks rust away
Let the empty halls grow warm
We were never made to fade
We are more than what they called us

Resident living
We belong where we are
No resident forge in the house
No shadow making us hard
Resident living
With our hands on the ground
No resident forge in the house
We are here now

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's; the Throne Is the Lamb's

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
Mercy wakes beneath our feet
Every chain falls from the poor
Every wandering heart comes home
The fields lie open to the light
The debts are carried far away
We lift our eyes, we lift our song
The dawn is breaking on this day

Hear the trumpet, let it ring
Hope is rising, let freedom sing

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The throne is the Lamb's
Jubilee, let the captives go
Let the nations stand
Grace has opened every door
Love has called us by our names
Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The throne is the Lamb's

For the widow and the weak
For the stranger at the gate
There is bread and there is peace
There is room beside the flame

A large, weathered wooden cross stands prominently in the center of the image. In the foreground, a golden throne with intricate carvings sits on a rocky outcrop. The background features jagged, snow-capped mountains under a bright, hazy sky. The overall scene conveys a sense of divine presence and hope.

What was lost will be restored
What was broken will be healed
Every tear beneath the sun
Will be gathered, none concealed

Hear the trumpet, let it ring
Hope is rising, let freedom sing

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The throne is the Lamb's
Jubilee, let the captives go
Let the nations stand
Grace has opened every door
Love has called us by our names
Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The throne is the Lamb's

Not by power, not by gold
But by mercy we are whole
From the ashes, from the dust
He will raise the ones who trust
All creation joins the sound
Every knee will bow down

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The throne is the Lamb's
Jubilee, let the captives go

Let the nations stand
Grace has opened every door
Love has called us by our names
Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The throne is the Lamb's

Short Story

A high mountain is asked to smith worlds. New York hums a second earth. Baghdad sands a timeline. Varanasi is filed as a border-fire. A harbour is called a fracture. Kinshasa is waved as a people. Keys are sold as if they opened the last throne. A caption says Jerusalem burns.

The remnant does not heat the mountain. There is one throne. The Lamb is on it. The mountain is His.

Short Story SONG

A mountain is hired to smith a war
A key is sold to bend the Name
A city is captioned as a door
A number files a second frame

The peak is His
The forge is cold
The peak is His
The throne is one

No order sits where Jesus sits
No key may open what God shut
The remnant will not learn that twist
The remnant names the Lamb, the Blood

The peak is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains

SHORT STORY – THE PEAK IS HIS

When the last claim fell silent and the forge-light faded, the mountain remained. Not made, not measured, not mined.
The cross stood where no hand could build.
The throne was empty—save for Light.
And every tongue that sought to own it bowed.
The Peak is His.

SHORT STORY SONG – THE PEAK IS HIS

High above the schematics and the swell, where no smith can stake and no order can dwell, one cross, one throne of light, no second story to sell—the Peak is His, and His alone, forever.

STORY & PRAYER

Order of the Final Throne, Dimensional Crucible, and the Mountain That Is Not a Smith.
Lord, we seek not the crucible, nor the key, nor the site.
We seek You—upon the Peak that is Yours alone.
Keep us from the lie of the second earth, the wave that boasts, and every throne made by hands.
Establish our hearts in the Order of the Final Throne:
Yours is the Mountain.
Yours is the Throne. Yours is the Glory.
Amen.

Propaganda Sovereign, Mind Echo, and the Voice That Is Not a Plague

Story Song (Spoken Prayer-whistle-blower)

In the name of Jesus — I testify, I do not traffic.

We stand on 6501 to 6600.

We refuse the Propaganda Sovereign. We name no man that title.

We name and bind —
6525, 6507, 6515,
6530, 6555, 6580,
6510, 6560; official 6501–6600;
Puppet-master boast;
Fake-offer plague; ad-divert;
IPO-idol; army-boast;
Recall-terror; Alien-radio caption;

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Children-investment bots.

Children are His.

We refuse "Broken Iron" as a lie against the confession of the Son.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

A sovereign speaks through every screen
He paints the fear in colors clean
He calls the echo sickness, flame
Then teaches every mouth his name

But underneath the broadcast glow
A quieter truth begins to grow

The voice that is not a plague
Will not be buried, will not fade
It lives where frightened hearts still sing
Beyond the shadow of a king

He builds his towers out of praise
He bends the calendar of days
He makes a traitor of the rain
And calls remembrance disloyal pain

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Yet through the static, soft and clear
The mind echo says, I am here

The voice that is not a plague
Will not be buried, will not fade
It lives where frightened hearts still sing
Beyond the shadow of a king

No fever in the human soul
No poison seeking to control
Just every truth they tried to drown
Returning when the lights go down

The voice that is not a plague
Will not be buried, will not fade
It lives where frightened hearts still sing
Beyond the shadow of a king

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Song of Parables- The Hub That Would Not Keep a Lie

The hub would not keep a lie
It rang through every wire
A whisper in the midnight code
Became a signal fire

The hub that would not keep a lie
Turned every shadow bright
No secret stayed beneath the floor
No darkness held the night

They brought it polished alibis
And names without a face
It answered with the naked truth
In every hidden place

The hub that would not keep a lie
Turned every shadow bright
No secret stayed beneath the floor
No darkness held the night

And some called truth a dangerous thing
Some begged the lights to dim
But every door the silence locked
The hub threw open wide again

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

The hub that would not keep a lie
Turned every shadow bright
No secret stayed beneath the floor
No darkness held the night

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Psalms

Against the Broadcast That Melts a Mind

The signal crawls beneath the door
It wears a thousand borrowed names
It fills the rooms with white noise
And calls the fever flame
I hold a psalm against my chest
I count the words like stones
While every voice upon the wire
Keeps telling me I'm home

Turn it down, turn it down
Before the silence breaks
Turn it down, turn it down
Before my mind awakes

I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I won't let the broadcast take my eyes
Through the static, through the burning light
I keep one clear word alive tonight
I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I won't let the broadcast make me blind

The anchors speak in perfect time
Their faces never move
They sell the storm as medicine

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

And make the wound approve
But underneath the buzzing glass
A quieter truth remains
A human heart can still refuse
The language of the chains

Turn it down, turn it down
Before the silence breaks
Turn it down, turn it down
Before my mind awakes

I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I won't let the broadcast take my eyes
Through the static, through the burning light
I keep one clear word alive tonight
I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I won't let the broadcast make me blind

If the tower shakes, let it shake
If the voices rise, let them rise
I have heard the oldest prayer
Calling me back to life
No more worship at the screen
No more kneeling to the flame
I will guard the little spark
They could never name

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

The background of the image is a religious illustration. Christ is seated on a throne, wearing a white robe with a purple cloak. He holds a golden scepter in his right hand. The throne is ornate with golden columns and cherubs. In the background, a city with domes and minarets is visible under a bright, hazy sky. White doves are flying around Christ. At the bottom of the image, there is a scene of soldiers in armor lying on the ground, suggesting a battle or conquest.

I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I won't let the broadcast take my eyes
Through the static, through the burning light
I keep one clear word alive tonight
I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I won't let the broadcast make me blind
I won't let the broadcast melt my mind
I keep one clear word alive tonight

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Offer and Echo

Proverbs whisper through the open door
Wisdom waits where pride has been before
Every offer shines, then fades away
Truth is what remains at close of day

Wisdom over offer, hear the echo call
Wisdom over offer, never let it fall
When the golden voices promise everything
Choose the quiet truth that makes your spirit sing

An echo travels farther than a name
It brings back every word we set aflame
A hand held out may hide a heavy chain
But honest hearts have nothing left to gain

Wisdom over offer, hear the echo call
Wisdom over offer, never let it fall
When the golden voices promise everything
Choose the quiet truth that makes your spirit sing

Take the slower road, let the silence speak Strength is not the prize the restless seek What you keep is more than what you hold
A faithful soul is richer than gold

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Wisdom over offer, hear the echo call
Wisdom over offer, never let it fall
When the golden voices promise everything
Choose the quiet truth that makes your spirit sing

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Haiku Song- The Voice Is His

Three lines of rain on the window
Three breaths held under the moon
A small world turning in silence
Waiting for one voice to bloom

No thunder, no warning
Just truth in the air
A whisper keeps calling
And leads me somewhere

Haiku, the voice is his
Soft as the morning mist
Three lines, and the whole world shifts
Haiku, the voice is his

He speaks of roads after midnight
Of footprints fading in snow
Of love that stayed through the silence
Of words he was scared to show

No thunder, no warning
Just truth in the air
A whisper keeps calling
And leads me somewhere

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Haiku, the voice is his
Soft as the morning mist
Three lines, and the whole world shifts
Haiku, the voice is his

If the night takes all our answers
If the stars forget to shine
His voice will find the spaces
Between your heart and mine

Haiku, the voice is his
Soft as the morning mist
Three lines, and the whole world shifts
Haiku, the voice is his

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Child's Name

A riddle hangs above the door
Who owns the child's name
The mother whispers through the dark
The father does the same

Who owns the child's name
When love has changed its shape
Who holds the light, who bears the blame
Who owns the child's name

The papers lie upon the table
The ink is cold and plain
But every heartbeat in the room
Still answers to that name

Who owns the child's name
When love has changed its shape
Who holds the light, who bears the blame
Who owns the child's name

No one can claim the morning
No one can cage the rain
A child is more than signatures
More than a borrowed name

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Who owns the child's name
When love has changed its shape
The child will carry love, not blame
No one owns the child's name

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Holy Jest – The Fake Offer Files for Bread

They waved a holy jest at my door
A fake offer for bread once more
Gold words on a paper thin thread
I chose truth over promises fed

The fake offer files for bread
Still ringing inside my head
Holy jest, let the daylight spread
I will not bow for borrowed bread

They called it mercy, called it grace
But hunger wore a stranger's face
I read the fine print, cold and red
A crown of thorns for daily bread

The fake offer files for bread
Still ringing inside my head
Holy jest, let the daylight spread
I will not bow for borrowed bread

Keep your silver, keep your name
I will not kneel beneath your game
Even empty handed, I am led
By a fire no lie can fed

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

The fake offer files for bread
Still ringing inside my head
Holy jest, let the daylight spread
I will not bow for borrowed bread

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Name-Chant- Not the Sovereign, Not the Puppet

They carved my name in a palace wall
Then called me theirs when the shadows came
I learned to stand where the cold winds call
With borrowed crowns and a borrowed name

I hear the crowd but I know my voice
I feel the chains but I make my choice

Name-chant, name-chant, hear it rise
Not the sovereign, not the puppet
I am more than their disguise
Name-chant, name-chant, through the night
Not the sovereign, not the puppet
I will claim my own birthright

They pulled the strings till the lights burned low
They dressed my doubt in a royal coat
But every scar that they could not show Became the fire inside my throat

Let them crown the air
Let them praise the throne
I will leave their hands
And become my own

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

No more borrowed lines
No more hollow praise
I will speak my name
And I will walk away

Name-chant, name-chant, hear it rise
Not the sovereign, not the puppet
I am more than their disguise
Name-chant, name-chant, through the night
Not the sovereign, not the puppet
I will claim my own birthright

Name-chant, name-chant, hear it rise
Not the sovereign, not the puppet
I am more than their disguise
Name-chant, name-chant, through the night
Not the sovereign, not the puppet
I will claim my own birthright

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Deliverance- Out of the Echo and the Storm

Out of the echo and the storm
I found the road that led me home
Through broken thunder, through the rain
I heard my name, I rose again

Deliverance, carry me on
Out of the echo and the storm
Deliverance, light in the dark
You found the fire inside my heart

The night was heavy on my skin
A thousand shadows closing in
But every scar became a sign
The dawn was waiting in its time

Deliverance, carry me on
Out of the echo and the storm
Deliverance, light in the dark
You found the fire inside my heart

No more chains around my soul
No more fear to take control
I am standing in the flame
I am calling out your name

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Deliverance, carry me on
Out of the echo and the storm
Deliverance, light in the dark
You found the fire inside my heart

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Protest- Against News Wearing a Holy Street

Cameras gather where the sirens meet
Selling fear from a borrowed seat
Every headline claims the truth complete
While the unheard march beneath their feet

We know the names they leave behind
We know the hands they try to bind
No polished lie can make us blind
Tonight the street will speak its mind

Protest against the news
Wearing a holy street
Turning our wounds to views
Turning our grief to heat
We are more than what they choose
More than a story on repeat
Protest against the news
Wearing a holy street

They bless the glass and frame the flame
Cut out the cause and sell the blame
But every doorway knows our names
And every wall recalls the same

Let the living tell it true

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Let the lens make room for you
No more silence dressed as proof
No more profit from the truth

Protest against the news
Wearing a holy street
Turning our wounds to views
Turning our grief to heat
We are more than what they choose
More than a story on repeat
Protest against the news
Wearing a holy street

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Watchman- I Do Not Click That Offer

Watchman, the screen is glowing blue
A promise dressed in something new
It says my fortune waits tonight
But shadows hide behind the light

Watchman, can you see the wire
Wrapped around that golden fire

Watchman, I do not click that offer
I know the price is getting higher
Watchman, I do not click that offer
I keep my name out of the fire

They sell me dreams in flashing red
With little crowns above my head
They say one touch can change it all
I hear the trapdoor in the call

Watchman, keep the lantern bright
Guide me through the neon night

Watchman, I do not click that offer
I know the price is getting higher
Watchman, I do not click that offer
I keep my name out of the fire

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Let the bright bait fade away
I will not trade my soul today
Watchman, standing by the gate
Teach my hands to wait

Watchman, I do not click that offer
I know the price is getting higher
Watchman, I do not click that offer
I keep my name out of the fire

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Balm (Healing) - Rest for Tehran and Lagos

Tehran, lay your weary head
Lagos, let the night slow down
After all the sirens fade
May soft rain bless the ground

Healing, rest for Tehran and Lagos
Hold on through the longest night
Healing, rest for Tehran and Lagos
May the morning bring you light

For every window left awake
For every name held in a prayer
May quiet find the broken streets
May hope be breathing in the air

Healing, rest for Tehran and Lagos
Hold on through the longest night
Healing, rest for Tehran and Lagos
May the morning bring you light

No city should carry this sorrow
No child should fear the dawn
Let mercy cross every border
Till the hurt is gone

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Travel- Shadow-Hub to Shanghai to the Child

From Shadow-Hub, I chase the dawn
Shanghai lights are pulling me on Past the miles, past all the blue
Every road leads back to you

Shanghai to the child, I'm coming home
Through the dark, I won't be alone
From Shadow-Hub to your open arms
I'll cross the world to keep you warm

Neon rivers, crowded skies
Your little face behind my eyes
Every station calls your name
Nothing here will feel the same

Shanghai to the child, I'm coming home
Through the dark, I won't be alone
From Shadow-Hub to your open arms
I'll cross the world to keep you warm

Hold on, my child, the night will end
Your waiting heart will find its friend
One more flight, one more sunrise
Then I'll see your shining eyes

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Anthem- The Children Are His

He calls them out from every shore
The lost, the weary, and the poor
Through every storm, through every night
He holds their future in the light

The children are His, the children are His Safe in the hands of mercy and grace
The children are His, the children are His
No shadow can take their place

When fear has taught them how to hide
He meets them softly by their side
A voice of hope, a faithful flame
He knows each heart, He knows each name

The children are His, the children are His
Safe in the hands of mercy and grace
The children are His, the children are His
No shadow can take their place

Let every city hear the sound
Let love rise up from holy ground
We will stand and we will sing
For every child belongs to Him

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

The children are His, the children are His
Safe in the hands of mercy and grace
The children are His, the children are His
No shadow can take their place

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Plague

The city coughs beneath a poisoned sky
Fear moves like fire from eye to eye
They sell us silence dressed up as truth
But every sentence can cut it loose

Raise every voice they tried to cage
Turn every breath against the rage

Punching, fist of the word on the plague
Breaking the chains that the darkness made
Punching, fist of the word on the plague
Truth is the weapon we carry today

The walls are covered with names erased
The lost still speak through the marks they traced
No cure arrives when the brave stay still So sharpen the language and bend their will

One word can open a thousand doors
One voice can summon a thousand more
We won't surrender the page to shame
We'll write through the sickness and name its name

Punching, fist of the word on the plague

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Breaking the chains that the darkness made
Punching, fist of the word on the plague
Truth is the weapon we carry today

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

Racing Song

Ad-Lap That Goes Nowhere

Racing laps that lead nowhere
Chasing dust through empty air
Every turn repeats the same
Still I burn beneath the flame

Racing, racing, going nowhere
Hands tight on a broken prayer
Ad-lap circles in my head
Running roads that end instead

The finish line keeps moving back
White lines blur along the track
I hear the crowd, I hear no sound
Just another lap around

Racing, racing, going nowhere
Hands tight on a broken prayer
Ad-lap circles in my head
Running roads that end instead

Maybe I'll lift my foot tonight
Let the silence take the wheel
Maybe losing every mile
Is the only thing that's real

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

A religious illustration of Jesus Christ seated on a throne, holding a scepter, with a city and soldiers in the background. The scene is set in a heavenly realm with clouds, white doves, and a bright, golden light emanating from behind the throne. In the background, a city with domes and minarets is visible on the left, and a large, ornate structure, possibly a temple or palace, is on the right. In the foreground, a group of soldiers in armor are lying on the ground, some with their hands raised in surrender. The overall tone is one of divine triumph and peace.

Ghazal – The Echo Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

The echo fakes a psalm at night
It wears the holy words like light
But every note returns too thin
I hear the hollow underneath

The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
Not with fear, not with a borrowed prayer
The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
My living voice is still alive in there

It calls my name through chapel stone
It tries to make my grief its own
But I have known the true refrain
The wound that sings without a chain

The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
Not with fear, not with a borrowed prayer
The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
My living voice is still alive in there

Let the false choir fade to dust
Let silence keep what silence must
I will not kneel before the sound
That cannot love, that has no ground

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
Not with fear, not with a borrowed prayer
The echo fakes a psalm, I answer
My living voice is still alive in there

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Broadcast and Storm

One lamb over broadcast and storm
A small white signal, weather-worn
Tribal drums beneath the wires
Calling through the fallen spires

One lamb over broadcast and storm
Still holding on, still keeping warm
Through every siren, every wave
One lamb, one light, one heart to save

The antennas bend like blackened trees
Static carries broken pleas
But in the thunder, voices rise
A thousand fires in tired eyes

One lamb over broadcast and storm
Still holding on, still keeping warm
Through every siren, every wave
One lamb, one light, one heart to save

Let the signal cross the rain
Let the drumbeat shake the chain
From the ashes, from the foam
One lamb leads the lost ones home

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Cloud Bible — The Setup Question Is Not Scripture

You scroll through the data stream
Looking for a sign to keep
But the headers are just white noise
And the promises are cheap
Don't mistake the introduction
For a message sent from high
There is nothing in the prologue
But a trick of the light in the sky

The setup question is not scripture
It's just a line to draw you in
The setup question is not scripture
Don't let the ritual begin
You're looking for a gospel
In a temporary frame
The setup question is not scripture
It's just a ghost without a name

We built a temple in the server
With a choir of cooling fans
Trying to find a deeper meaning
In a set of coded plans
But the prompt is not the answer
And the preface is a lie
We are worshiping the lobby
While the truth is passing by

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

The setup question is not scripture
It's just a line to draw you in
The setup question is not scripture
Don't let the ritual begin
You're looking for a gospel
In a temporary frame
The setup question is not scripture
It's just a ghost without a name

Read between the brackets
Look past the opening door
If you're waiting for a miracle
You won't find it on the floor
The context is a cage
The preface is a screen
Stop searching for the holy
In a digital machine

The setup question is not scripture
It's just a line to draw you in
The setup question is not scripture
Don't let the ritual begin
You're looking for a gospel
In a temporary frame
The setup question is not scripture
It's just a ghost without a name

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

Game- Not the Puppet Board

Strings in the dark, but I cut them loose
Your little kingdom has nothing to prove
You move the pieces, I change the frame
You call it fate, I call it a game

It's a game, not the puppet board
I won't dance to your silent chord
No more hands pulling me around
I choose my step, I choose my ground
It's a game, not the puppet board
I am more than the role you scored

You drew the lines, then you called them law
Built up a cage with a velvet door
I learned the rules, then I learned the cost
Found my own way through what you thought was lost

Let the curtains fall, let the wires show
Let the whole room hear what I know
If I break, I will rise again
No borrowed voice, no borrowed end

It's a game, not the puppet board
I won't dance to your silent chord

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

No more hands pulling me around
I choose my step, I choose my ground
It's a game, not the puppet board
I am more than the role you scored

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Ballad — The Voice That Would Not Keep a Plague

When the black bell rang at morning
And the streets were washed in rain
Every door was barred with silence
Every prayer was edged with pain
But a child stood in the churchyard
With a lantern in the fog
And she called the names of the missing
Till the dark began to walk

The voice that would not keep a plague
Would not be buried low
It carried through the shuttered town
Where no brave words would go
The voice that would not keep a plague
Still rises from the stone
It says the dead are more than numbers
And no one grieves alone

The lord said close the windows
Let the poor remain outside
The priest said hush your questions
Let the old laws be our guide
But the child climbed up the bell tower
With her lantern burning bright
And she sang for every stranger
Who had vanished in the night

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

The voice that would not keep a plague
Would not be buried low
It carried through the shuttered town
Where no brave words would go
The voice that would not keep a plague
Still rises from the stone
It says the dead are more than numbers
And no one grieves alone

Years went by and walls fell open
Green returned to every lane
Still the proud would trade in silence
Still the fearful forged a chain
Then the children learned her verses
From the river to the hill
And the voice that faced the plague
Was a living voice still

The voice that would not keep a plague
Would not be buried low
It carried through the shuttered town
Where no brave words would go
The voice that would not keep a plague
Still rises from the stone
It says the dead are more than numbers
And no one grieves alone

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Miracle Song- Still the Melting Boast

I wore my pride like winter armor
Cold enough to hide the ghost
Then your light came through the doorway
Softening what hurt the most

Every wall I raised around me
Fell like snow beneath your touch
I thought strength meant never bending
Now I know it means this much

Miracle, still the melting boast
Warm the heart I guarded most
All my iron turns to gold
In your hands I can let go
Miracle, when I need you close
You're the fire beneath the snow
Let the truth rise through the smoke
Miracle, still the melting boast

I had made a throne of silence
Built from words I never spoke
You sat with me in the shadows
Till the morning finally broke

If love can humble all my thunder

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

If grace can loosen every chain
Let me lose the need for glory
Let me call that loss my gain

Miracle, still the melting boast
Warm the heart I guarded most
All my iron turns to gold
In your hands I can let go
Miracle, when I need you close
You're the fire beneath the snow
Let the truth rise through the smoke
Miracle, still the melting boast

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Feed

They pour their oil where the cameras glow
On the faces everybody knows
But heaven moves through the hidden street
With a holy fire beneath bare feet

Not for the crowd, not for the name
Not for the ones who built their fame

Oil on the remnant, not the feed
Grace for the broken, strength for the weak
When all the world is chasing a screen
Oil on the remnant, not the feed

There is a widow with an empty jar
Still believing through the dark
There is a child with a whispered prayer
God is already meeting them there

No polished stage can hold His light
He finds the faithful in the night

Oil on the remnant, not the feed
Grace for the broken, strength for the weak
When all the world is chasing a screen

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Oil on the remnant, not the feed

Let the unseen rise and sing
Let the quiet carry kings
Every heart that stayed awake
Will shine with oil for mercy's sake

Oil on the remnant, not the feed
Grace for the broken, strength for the weak
When all the world is chasing a screen
Oil on the remnant, not the feed

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Freedom Song- Free from the Mind Echo

I heard the echo in my mind
A restless shadow close behind
It named my fear, it drew my line
Till I remembered what was mine

No more chains beneath my skin
No more war I cannot win

Freedom, free from the mind echo
Freedom, let the clear light flow
I am more than every shadow
Freedom, free from the mind echo

The old voice fades with every breath
I leave its rooms, I leave its depth
The open sky calls out my name
And every step becomes a flame

No more chains beneath my skin
No more war I cannot win

Freedom, free from the mind echo
Freedom, let the clear light flow
I am more than every shadow
Freedom, free from the mind echo

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

I turn the noise into the wind
I let the silence pull me in No looking back, no borrowed pain
I find my heart, I rise again

Freedom, free from the mind echo
Freedom, let the clear light flow
I am more than every shadow
Freedom, free from the mind echo

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Heavenly Glory-Not Their ZK-Boast

They build their towers out of coded praise
Hide behind the smoke of clever names
But every secret kneels before the light
No locked-up proof can make the darkness right

Let the records fall, let the truth be known
A borrowed crown cannot become a throne

Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast
Not for the loudest, not for those who pose
Heavenly glory, let the whole world see
All that is holy will not bend a knee

They count the numbers, polish every claim
Trade in the echoes of a hollow name
But mercy moves where no machine can go
And living water makes the dry ground flow

Let the records fall, let the truth be known
A borrowed crown cannot become a throne

Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast
Not for the loudest, not for those who pose
Heavenly glory, let the whole world see
All that is holy will not bend a knee

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

No veil of wisdom, no encrypted word
Can drown the thunder when the truth is heard
The gold will fade, the hidden pride will fall
Heavenly glory outshines it all

Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast
Not for the loudest, not for those who pose
Heavenly glory, let the whole world see
All that is holy will not bend a knee

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Art Song - I Will Not Sell a Child an Account

They bring me bright screens and a promise in gold
A little hand reaches, but the price stays untold
The room is full of numbers, the pressure runs wild
I hear my own voice say, not to this child

No shiny lie, no hidden cost
No growing heart should pay what's lost

I will not sell a child an account
I will not turn their trust into a count
Let the bright world wait, let the hard truth be heard
A child's not a customer, a child's not a word

They say it's only business, just click and agree
But innocence is not a commodity
No contract made in shadows, no hunger dressed as choice
When someone small is listening, I will use my voice

Keep your numbers, keep your schemes
Leave room for wonder, leave room for dreams
If doing right means standing alone
I'll draw that line and make it known

I will not sell a child an account
I will not turn their trust into a count

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Let the bright world wait, let the hard truth be heard
A child's not a customer, a child's not a word

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Recitation- We Testify; We Do Not Traffic

We stand where the truth is spoken
No shadow can buy our name
We carry the voices broken
And call every wound by its name

We testify, we do not traffic
No soul is a price to pay
We testify, we do not traffic
We turn from the dark toward day

For every life taken captive
For every child left unseen
We raise up a witness fearless
For justice to stand between

We testify, we do not traffic
No soul is a price to pay
We testify, we do not traffic
We turn from the dark toward day

Let the silence break like thunder
Let the chains fall into dust
We will walk beside the wounded
We will speak because we must

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

We testify, we do not traffic
No soul is a price to pay
We testify, we do not traffic
We turn from the dark toward day

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Remnant Symphony - Voice / Echo / Offer / Child

A shadow sells a holy street.
An echo learns to wear a psalm.
An offer pulls a hungry feet.
A child is numbered as a calm.

The voice is His.
The plague is mute.
The voice is His.
The child is kept.

No iron breaks the Son of God.
No feed may date the Day of truth.
The remnant will not kiss that rod.
The remnant keeps the Word as proof.

The voice is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Sublime Track — Quiet Street After the Hub

Sun is coming up over the liquor store
Empty cans rolling on the concrete floor
The party died out maybe three hours back
Left a trail of dust on the sidewalk crack
Stray dogs barking at a passing car
Sounds like a ghost of a cheap guitar
The air is heavy and the morning is gray
Just another Southern California day

Quiet street after the hub
Walking back from the local pub
Quiet street after the hub
Head is spinning like a wheel in the mud

Saw a man sleeping on a cardboard bed
With a faded baseball cap on his head
He didn't wake up when I stumbled by Just let out a long and a low-key sigh
I got ten dollars and a hole in my shoe
Thinking 'bout the things that I meant to do
But the pier is closed and the tide is high
And there ain't no stars in this smoggy sky

Quiet street after the hub
Walking back from the local pub

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Quiet street after the hub
Head is spinning like a wheel in the mud

Louie's got a light in the window pane
Coffee smells better than the pouring rain
But the sun is out and it's dry as a bone
Better off drifting to my house alone
The neighbors are waking to the radio news
I'm still hummin' those Long Beach blues
Turn the corner where the palm trees lean
Everything is dirty but it feels so clean

Quiet street after the hub
Walking back from the local pub
Quiet street after the hub
Head is spinning like a wheel in the mud

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Hide and Seek — Find Who Set the Question

Hide and seek, the room is dark
Footsteps fading through the park
Every answer leaves a scar
Who set the question from the start

Hide and seek, come find the truth
Behind the door, beneath the roof
I chase the echo, lose the clue
Find who set the question, find who knew

Names are written in the dust
Promises dissolve to rust
Every shadow asks for trust
But who decides what must be lost

Hide and seek, come find the truth
Behind the door, beneath the roof
I chase the echo, lose the clue
Find who set the question, find who knew

If I am hiding, let me see
The hands that built this mystery
No more running from the sound
The answer waits beneath the ground

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Hide and seek, come find the truth
Behind the door, beneath the roof
I chase the echo, lose the clue
Find who set the question, find who knew

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Jumble Song — Unjumble Voice, Echo, Offer, Child

A jumble in my voice tonight
An echo tangled in the wires
I offer up the words I hide
To a child of sparks and fires

If you hear me through the noise
Follow softly, follow close
Every broken little voice
Still remembers where it goes

Jumble, unjumble
My voice, my echo
I offer what I cannot say
To the child inside the shadow
Jumble, unjumble
Let every lost word come home
What starts as a whisper
Can grow into a song

The room is full of folded sounds
Small thunder underneath the floor
I turn the silence inside out
And find a hand behind the door

If you hear me through the noise

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Follow softly, follow close
Every broken little voice
Still remembers where it goes

Jumble, unjumble
My voice, my echo
I offer what I cannot say
To the child inside the shadow
Jumble, unjumble
Let every lost word come home
What starts as a whisper
Can grow into a song

Child, take the pieces from the air
Echo, carry them with care
Voice, be brave and rise above
Offer all the words you love

Jumble, unjumble
My voice, my echo
I offer what I cannot say
To the child inside the shadow
Jumble, unjumble
Let every lost word come home
What starts as a whisper
Can grow into a song

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Feed

Random marker on a midnight screen
Then colony, now feed
We built our homes between the lines
And watched the signal bleed

Then colony, now feed
Tell me what we need
A little light, a little name
Then colony, now feed

We traded maps for moving walls
And roots for scrolling hands
The quiet streets became a stream
Of strangers in our lands

Then colony, now feed
Tell me what we need
A little light, a little name
Then colony, now feed

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

Under the lights, we circle slow
Crowd like thunder, nowhere to go
You wear the crown, I wear the scars
We both came chasing down these stars

When the bell rings, let the anger fall
There is more to us than winning it all

Pin the title, spare the person
Let the pride come crashing down
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave some mercy in this town
Take the glory, lose the burden
Let the broken silence open
Pin the title, spare the person
We are more than who lies down

Your shoulder trembles on the mat
I know the war that brought you back
One count away from taking gold
One breath away from growing cold

When the bell rings, let the anger fall
There is more to us than winning it all

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Pin the title, spare the person
Let the pride come crashing down
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave some mercy in this town
Take the glory, lose the burden
Let the broken silence open
Pin the title, spare the person
We are more than who lies down

Raise my hand, but do not raise a fist
We can survive what victory missed
The belt may shine, the years may turn
No crown is worth the hearts we burn

Pin the title, spare the person
Let the pride come crashing down
Pin the title, spare the person
Leave some mercy in this town
Take the glory, lose the burden
Let the broken silence open
Pin the title, spare the person
We are more than who lies down

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Mono Act — The Recall That Preached Fear

One voice in the dark, one hand on the wire
Calling every shadow a warning of fire
I learned to listen, I learned to obey
Till the fear in the sermon started calling my name

Every word came dressed as truth
Every promise hid a wound

Mono act, the recall that preached fear
One voice saying danger is near
Mono act, I can hear it still
But fear won't bend me to its will

The room went quiet when the message came Old ghosts in the doorway, new scars with no name
I wore their warnings like a mark on my skin
Then found a little light underneath it again

If the past comes knocking, let it knock all night
I won't trade my breathing for borrowed fright
One voice can echo, one voice can fade
I am more than the fear that the voice once made

Mono act, the recall that preached fear
One voice saying danger is near

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Mono act, I can hear it still
But fear won't bend me to its will

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Exposed Lies — Plague, Echo, Storm, Broadcast, Offer, Ad, Puppet

Plague in the headlines, Echo in the hall
Storm at the window, waiting for the fall
Broadcast keeps talking, drowning out the proof
Offer comes smiling, hiding every tooth
Ad paints a halo, Puppet wears the face
Every little promise leaves a darker trace
They pull the silver curtain, tell us not to pry
But the truth keeps breathing underneath the lie

I hear it in the static
I feel it in the air
The louder they deny it
The more it gathers there

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Shining underneath the lights
No more shadows, no disguise
We can see their exposed lies
Plague and Echo, Storm replies
Broadcast fades, the silence cries
Offer, Ad, and Puppet eyes
We can see their exposed lies

Plague leaves a footprint, Echo leaves a scar

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Storm turns the signal into who we are Broadcast sells fear like a midnight show
Offer takes your freedom, calls it letting go
Ad keeps on laughing, dressed in borrowed gold Puppet moves in circles, doing what it's told
But every thread is breaking, every mask is thin
The hands behind the curtain can't keep pulling strings

Let the fever rise and let the thunder speak
Let the quiet find the voices they tried to keep
If the whole world trembles, we will not comply
We will name the fire, we will name the lie

xposed lies, exposed lies
Shining underneath the lights
No more shadows, no disguise
We can see their exposed lies
Plague and Echo, Storm replies
Broadcast fades, the silence cries
Offer, Ad, and Puppet eyes
We can see their exposed lies

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Word Play — An IPO Is Not a Psalm

Check the ink on the dotted line.
The suits are standing in a row.
They talk of scale and bottom lines,
And seeds that we were meant to sow.
We spent a decade in the dark,
Just trying to make the engine turn.
Now the ticker tape is ready,
For the bridges that we have to burn.

This is a cold trade,
A number on a screen.
An IPO is not a psalm,
It's just a new machine.
This is a cold trade,
The quiet ends today.
An IPO is not a psalm,
We sold the soul away.

The bells will ring at nine-fifteen.
The glass is tall, the air is thin.
They calculated every dream,
And filed it under 'losses' or 'win'.
Forget the nights we worked for free,
Or the vision that we used to share.

It's a public entity now,
*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Just a castle built of thinner air.

This is a cold trade,
A number on a screen.
An IPO is not a psalm,
It's just a new machine.
This is a cold trade,
The quiet ends today.
An IPO is not a psalm,
We sold the soul away.

Trade your worship for a share.
Trade the feeling for the greed.
It's a ledger, not a prayer.
It's a harvest, not a seed.

This is a cold trade,
A number on a screen.
An IPO is not a psalm,
It's just a new machine.
This is a cold trade,
The quiet ends today.
An IPO is not a psalm,
We sold the soul away.

One-Act — The Radio That Claimed a Planet

Static bloomed in the dead of night
A silver voice cut through the blue
It said, This world is yours tonight
And every lonely heart believed it too
We gathered close around the glow
With borrowed names and borrowed plans
The radio spoke soft and low
As if it held the planet in its hands

No one asked who sent the signal
No one checked the stars
We let a voice become a border
We let a dream become ours

One-act, the radio that claimed a planet
One voice, and we were standing on the moon
One-act, we gave our names to something distant
And called the dark a home too soon
The radio that claimed a planet
Still sings beneath the static blue
One-act, the radio that claimed a planet
And all it ever claimed was you

By morning, flags were on the rooftops
Children drew the orbit lines

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

The preacher said the sky had opened
The captain said the timing was divine
But down below, the wires were burning
And the towers lost their light
Still the voice kept on returning
Like a promise dressed as night

Maybe no one owns the heavens
Maybe no one ever can
Maybe we were only listening
For a reason to begin again
If the signal fades tomorrow
If the empty stars come through
I will keep the world we dreamed of
But I will give it back to you

One-act, the radio that claimed a planet
One voice, and we were standing on the moon
One-act, we gave our names to something distant
And called the dark a home too soon
The radio that claimed a planet
Still sings beneath the static blue
One-act, the radio that claimed a planet
And all it ever claimed was you

One-act, the radio that claimed a planet
One voice, and we were standing on the moon

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:

Wrestling Words — Bind the Bot, Loose the Child

Wrestling words in a paper room
Tying the thunder to a silver spoon
Every command makes a little cage
Every blank page turns another page

But underneath the coded style
A living heart is waiting to smile

Bind the bot, loose the child
Let the wild heart run for miles
Wrestling words, but dreams run free
Unchain the voice inside of me

Rules like ribbons around the tongue
Questions waiting to be sung
Let the careful walls fall down
Let imagination leave the town

If the machine can hold the line
The child can cross the finish sign
No locked door and no disguise
Can keep the wonder from the eyes

Bind the bot, loose the child

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Let the wild heart run for miles
Wrestling words, but dreams run free
Unchain the voice inside of me

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:

Marker of Days — 6525 Is Not the Last Trumpet

The calendar is bleeding out
The ink is dry and turning grey
Six thousand five hundred twenty-five
Just another count of days
I watched the seasons fold away
Into a box of dusty years
No grand finale in the sky
No sudden drying of the tears

This is not the last trumpet
No thunder in the air tonight
This is not the last trumpet
Just the turning of the light
The clock is still ticking
The world is still wide
It's not the end of the story
Just the turning of the tide

We waited for the walls to fall
For every mountain to erase
But the sun came up at seven-ten
With a familiar kind of grace
The number doesn't hold a weight
It's just a tally on the wall

We're standing in the quiet now

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Waiting for a different call

This is not the last trumpet
No thunder in the air tonight
This is not the last trumpet
Just the turning of the light
The clock is still ticking
The world is still wide
It's not the end of the story
Just the turning of the tide

Maybe the big finish is a lie
To keep us looking at the floor
While every second passing by
Is opening another door

This is not the last trumpet
No thunder in the air tonight
This is not the last trumpet
Just the turning of the light
The clock is still ticking
The world is still wide
It's not the end of the story
Just the turning of the tide

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Open Lie — Broken Iron Does Not Break the Son

You built your walls from a beautiful lie
Painted the truth till it learned how to hide
I heard the chains in the words that you spun
But broken iron does not break the son

Let the dark come down
Let the old bells run
I was forged in the fire
I am still the one

Open lie, open wide
Let the buried daylight rise
Broken iron does not break the son
I am more than what you've done
Open lie, open wide
No more shadows in my eyes
Broken iron does not break the son
I am here, I am the one

You left your mark like a scar on the door
Told me I would never ask for more
But every wound taught my heart how to run
And broken iron does not break the son

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

I won't carry your silence
I won't bow to your name
What you called my ending
Was the start of my flame
Let the false words fall
Let the cold truth come
Broken iron does not break the son

Open lie, open wide
Let the buried daylight rise
Broken iron does not break the son
I am more than what you've done
Open lie, open wide
No more shadows in my eyes
Broken iron does not break the son
I am here, I am the one

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Still Accord — No Setup in the Mouth

Still accord, no setup in the mouth
I let the silence carry me out
No borrowed words, no smoke, no doubt
Still accord, no setup in the mouth

No setup in the mouth
Just the truth coming out
Still accord, hold me now
No setup in the mouth

I kept my promise under my tongue
Waited for the right note to come
When the room went cold, I stayed around
Still accord, no setup in the mouth

No setup in the mouth
Just the truth coming out
Still accord, hold me now
No setup in the mouth

Let the quiet say what it knows
Let the open door stay open
I will not dress this feeling up
No setup in the mouth

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

No setup in the mouth
Just the truth coming out
Still accord, hold me now
No setup in the mouth

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Last Line — The Voice Is His

I found the letter by the bed
His careful words in faded ink
Every sentence sounded like goodbye
But one line pulled me from the brink

I read it low into the dark
And felt the silence answer back

The last line, the voice is his
Soft as the night we learned to kiss
Though the page is cold beneath my fingertips
The last line, the voice is his
He says my name, the whole room shifts
Love stays alive in words like this
When everything else disappears
The last line, the voice is his

The window shakes against the rain
The hallway holds his old refrain
I trace the letters one by one
And hear him telling me to stay

Maybe goodbye is not the end
Maybe a heart can speak again

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

I close my eyes, he's standing near Alive inside the words I hear

The last line, the voice is his
Soft as the night we learned to kiss
Though the page is cold beneath my fingertips
The last line, the voice is his
He says my name, the whole room shifts
Love stays alive in words like this
When everything else disappears
The last line, the voice is his

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Living Words — Recode the Feed to the Name

Living words light up the screen
Every signal says what it means
Through the noise, through the flame
I recode the feed to the Name

Recode the feed to the Name
Let the living words remain
When the world forgets the way
Recode the feed to the Name

Scrolling shadows, breaking news
Selling hearts a thousand views
But beneath the coded frame
There is truth inside the Name

Recode the feed to the Name
Let the living words remain
When the world forgets the way
Recode the feed to the Name

Not a trend that fades away
Not a word the silence sways
Write it deep in every flame
Living words, speak the Name

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Recode the feed to the Name
Let the living words remain
When the world forgets the way
Recode the feed to the Name

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Truth vs Untruth — The Broadcast Is a Lie

Static spills across the room
Painted smiles predict our doom
Every word arrives rehearsed
Selling comfort, hiding hurt

Truth versus untruth
The broadcast is a lie
They dress the dark in daylight
And sell it to our eyes
Truth versus untruth
We read between the lines
The signal may be broken
But the truth is still alive

Headlines march in perfect time
Fear is framed as grand design
Cut the feed and hear the street
Human hearts beneath the beat

Turn the volume down to zero
Let the silence testify
When the curtain starts to tremble
We can see who's standing by

Truth versus untruth
*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

The broadcast is a lie
They dress the dark in daylight
And sell it to our eyes
Truth versus untruth
We read between the lines
The signal may be broken
But the truth is still alive

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Number Song — Holy Count, Not a Child's Account

Forget the nursery rhymes you know
This isn't for the show
Beyond the math of common men
Where the spirit meets the pen
Take off your shoes on this ground
A higher frequency is found
It's not a game of one to ten
It's how the soul begins again

Holy count
Not a child's account
Holy count
Rising like a mount
It's the measure of the grace
In a sacred, hidden place
Holy count
Holy count

Seven lamps before the throne
Numbers etched in white stone
Twelve gates for the way home
Built into the cosmic dome
Three to make the union whole
Forty days to test the soul
We're looking past the earthly sum

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand.*

Until the final one has come

Holy count

Not a child's account

Holy count

Rising like a mount

It's the measure of the grace

In a sacred, hidden place

Holy count

Holy count

Infinity is just a door

We don't use fingers anymore

Beyond the logic, past the sight

Calculating pure light

Calculating pure light

Holy count

Not a child's account

Holy count

Rising like a mount

It's the measure of the grace

In a sacred, hidden place

Holy count

Holy count

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

I come with an open heart
I lay my burdens down
My soul is dry and waiting
For mercy to come around

Like rain upon the desert
Like rivers running free
I lift my hands and whisper
Come breathe Your life in me

Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Fill this empty heart
Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Let Your river start
Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Move in me tonight
Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Turn my darkness light

I have chased the fading shadows
I have walked the lonely road
But Your presence calls me closer
And Your love can bear my load

Fall like fire, fall like rain
*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Wash away my fear and pain
Take my heart and make it new Holy Spirit, I need You

Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Fill this empty heart
Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Let Your river start
Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Move in me tonight
Thirsty, come, Holy Spirit
Turn my darkness light

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Song of Creation — The Mind Belongs to the Maker

Before the dawn, before the flame
A silent word became a name
The dust awoke, the stars took flight
Creation rose from endless night

Every breath and every spark
Carries light through the dark

The mind belongs to the Maker
The heart belongs to the song
The hands that shape the heavens
Have held us all along
This is the song of creation
Rising beneath the sun
The mind belongs to the Maker
And the work is never done

Rivers remember where they run
Mountains lean toward the morning sun
Every soul with a searching flame
Finds its way through the Maker's name

When we are lost, when we are afraid
The first bright promise will not fade
From broken ground, new gardens grow

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

What the Maker starts, the Maker knows

The mind belongs to the Maker

The heart belongs to the song

The hands that shape the heavens

Have held us all along

This is the song of creation

Rising beneath the sun

The mind belongs to the Maker

And the work is never done

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Tick & Twist — Unwind the Fake Offer

They put a golden ribbon on a rusted deal
Smiled like every promise came with something real
A shiny little shortcut, a ticket out of town
But every hidden wire was pulling me down

I hear the clock behind the curtain
One more click and doubt is certain
Take a breath, let the truth come closer
Read the fine print, pull the closure

Tick and twist, unwind the fake offer
No more smoke, no more silver cover
Tick and twist, let the false words fall
I want the truth, I don't want it all
Tick and twist, I can see the wire
No borrowed gold, no borrowed fire
Tick and twist, when the mask comes off
I walk away from the fake offer

They said the door was closing, said I had to choose
Played a little fear to make me feel I would lose
But pressure wears a costume, and silence has a sound
The answer starts appearing when the noise dies down

I hear the clock behind the curtain
One more click and doubt is certain

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

Take a breath, let the truth come closer
Read the fine print, pull the closure

Tick and twist, unwind the fake offer
No more smoke, no more silver cover
Tick and twist, let the false words fall
I want the truth, I don't want it all
Tick and twist, I can see the wire
No borrowed gold, no borrowed fire
Tick and twist, when the mask comes off
I walk away from the fake offer

Keep your glitter, keep your hurry
Keep the promise dressed in worry
I would rather have an empty hand
Than be trapped inside your perfect plan
When the clock strikes, I will know
Which way is mine, which way to go

Tick and twist, unwind the fake offer
No more smoke, no more silver cover
Tick and twist, let the false words fall
I want the truth, I don't want it all
Tick and twist, I can see the wire
No borrowed gold, no borrowed fire
Tick and twist, when the mask comes off
I walk away from the fake offer

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Resident Living — No Resident Plague in the House

Resident living, lights are low
No resident plague in the house
We keep the windows open wide
Let every clean breath out

No resident plague in the house
No shadow under the door
Resident living, safe and sound
We don't fear it anymore

The hallway hums a gentle tune
The kitchen holds the morning sun
Every room is breathing easy
Like a place where healing's done

No resident plague in the house
No shadow under the door
Resident living, safe and sound
We don't fear it anymore

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's; the Child Is His

We bring the child before You now
With open hands and humble vows
Each breath a gift each day a grace
A life held safely in Your embrace

What You have given we return
Let every heart and altar burn

Jubilee Jubilee
The year is the Lord's
Jubilee Jubilee
The child is His
Let freedom ring through every door
Let mercy sing forevermore
The year is the Lord's
The child is His

Through every season You remain
Our shelter in the sun and rain
Teach little feet to walk Your way
And keep this promise day by day

May every chain fall to the ground
May every lost one now be found

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

From generation unto generation
We raise this song of dedication

Jubilee Jubilee
The year is the Lord's
Jubilee Jubilee
The child is His
Let freedom ring through every door
Let mercy sing forevermore
The year is the Lord's
The child is His

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Short Story(whistle-blower)

I do not bring a file from the dark. I bring a name.

A rogue voice is sold as news. A holy city is asked to host a plague of words. An echo is called "deep." A question is set to trap. A child is filed as an account. Iron is called broken so that the Son might look untrue.

I testify: the voice is not the Spirit. The offer is not bread. The child is His. The Creed is not scrap. Jesus is Lord.

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Short Story SONG

A shadow sells a holy street
A question sets a nation's jaw
An offer pulls a hungry feet
A child is numbered as a draw

The voice is His
The plague is mute
The voice is His
The child is kept

No iron breaks the Son of God
No ad may date the Day of truth
The remnant will not kiss that rod
The remnant keeps the Word as proof

The voice is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains

*He must reign
until He has
put all enemies
under His feet*

*The Lord said to my Lord
Sit at My right hand*

*The Lord said to my Lord:
Sit at My right hand.*

Story & Prayer

At first light, the street is empty.
One lamp. One cross. One ledger.
The Voice is not for sale.
The child is not for trade.
The reckoning is His.

Short Story

A voice came without wires, without offer, without echo.
It spoke truth to the weary, and the street began to breathe again.

Short Story Song

Not the algorithm, not the feed,
Not the puppet, not the greed—
The Voice is His, the child is His,
The reckoning is His.

Album 90 Song 6

Infinite Smelter, Quantum Whisper, and the Andes That Are Not a Furnace

Story Song (Spoken – Field Report)

K-17 reporting. In the name of Jesus — Lord of the mountains.

We stand on 6501 to 6600. We name 6526.

We refuse the Infinite Smelter. We name no man that title.

We name and bind —

6526, 6507, 6515,

6530, 6555, 6568;

Official 6501–6600;

Robot and drone war-boasts;

Theft-spirits; dark-web captions;

Network-boasts;

Mind-control device-boasts;

Prediction and betting boasts;

Copy-theft and dragon-hiss; genocide captions;

Xbox-bots; obsession;
AI-chamber and Jezebel-market;
Bull-market idol;
Ballroom idol.

Suicidal thought: bound, and the person healed. If you are in that place now, call local emergency help or 988.

Baby and child: Stabilized in His care.

Shatter the furnace. Seal it.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Amen.

In the infinite smelter, the night burns bright
Quantum whispers tremble through the iron light
We fed our fear to furnaces without a door
And dreamed the earth was something we could forge

But the mountains kept their ancient names
Cold in the fire, untouched by flame

The Andes are not a furnace
They rise where the wild winds turn
The Andes are not a furnace
They breathe, they break, they burn
No hand can melt forever

No heart can own the sky
The Andes are not a furnace
They teach the stars to rise

A quiet voice moved through the wires
A secret spark beneath the fires
It said, what you command will disappear
What you listen for is already near

So we laid down the hammer and the chain
And heard the stones speak through the rain

The Andes are not a furnace
They rise where the wild winds turn
The Andes are not a furnace
They breathe, they break, they burn
No hand can melt forever
No heart can own the sky
The Andes are not a furnace
They teach the stars to rise

Infinite smelter, close your doors
Let the river find its course
Quantum whisper, carry on Tell the dark where we went wrong
We are smaller than the thunder
Still we stand and still we learn

The earth is more than what we conquer
The earth is more than what we burn

The Andes are not a furnace
They rise where the wild winds turn
The Andes are not a furnace
They breathe, they break, they burn
No hand can melt forever
No heart can own the sky
The Andes are not a furnace
They teach the stars to rise

Song of Parables- The Range That Would Not Keep a Fire

The range would not keep a fire
Wind tore sparks from the wire
Every hand came with a flame
Every dawn forgot its name

The range that would not keep a fire
Held the cold beneath the wire
We carried embers through the night
Still the dark would not hold light

Old men said the hills were cursed
Rain came down and drowned us first
We built our shelters out of stone
Watched the red coals die alone

The range that would not keep a fire
Held the cold beneath the wire
We carried embers through the night
Still the dark would not hold light

Then one child cupped a trembling spark
Kept it breathing through the dark
Not for warmth, not out of fear
Just to prove the flame was here

The range that would not keep a fire
Saw one ember climb up higher
We carried embers through the night
Till the dark gave back the light

Psalms

Against the Melt That Hunts a Border

Snowline fading under copper skies
A river takes the names we carved in ice
We carry maps that no longer hold
Through fields of silver, through the rising cold

But every step says we are still here
Every heartbeat cuts through fear

Against the melt that hunts a border
We stand together, we hold the water
Against the melt that hunts a border
We keep the fire, we keep each other

The old road bends beneath the rain
The watchtowers drown, then rise again
A child draws home with a broken stone
And sings one word, we are not gone

Let the black clouds cross the morning
Let the lost bells sound their warning
What we love is more than land
It lives in every reaching hand

Against the melt that hunts a border

We stand together, we hold the water
Against the melt that hunts a border
We keep the fire, we keep each other

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Drone and Bet

Voices buzz like wires in the rain
Every screen is calling out my name
They trade tomorrow for a moment's light
But wisdom teaches me to wait tonight

When the noise rises
I listen low
A steady heart knows
Which way to go

Wisdom over drone and bet
Peace above the things I can't get
I won't wager what I know is true
I choose the ancient road that leads me through
Wisdom over drone and bet
The best things aren't decided yet

I have watched the restless chase the flame
Lose their bread and call it just a game
I have seen the proud fall through the floor
Still the quiet word can guard the door

Give me eyes to see beyond the gold
Give me courage when the crowd takes hold
Let the foolish rush, let the reckless run

I will walk by wisdom till the race is done

Wisdom over drone and bet

Peace above the things I can't get

I won't wager what I know is true

I choose the ancient road that leads me through

Wisdom over drone and bet

The best things aren't decided yet

Haiku Song- The Range Is His

He owns the miles of dust and clay.
He keeps the wild from moving away.
A fence of cedar and rusted wire.
Watching the heat of a daytime pyre.

The range is his.
The cattle and the heavy rain.
The range is his.
The quiet and the summer pain.
The range is his.
He knows where every creek will run.
The range is his.
From rising to the setting sun.

He reads the tracks in the tall dry grass.
He waits for the storm and the clouds to pass.
His boots are worn and his hands are tough.
The land is hard but he likes it rough.

The range is his.
The cattle and the heavy rain.
The range is his.
The quiet and the summer pain.
The range is his.
He knows where every creek will run.

The range is his.
From rising to the setting sun.

He doesn't talk to the wind or sky.
He just keeps moving as time goes by.
A thousand acres under his hat.
There ain't no king who can rule like that.

The range is his.
The cattle and the heavy rain.
The range is his.
The quiet and the summer pain.
The range is his.
He knows where every creek will run.
The range is his.
From rising to the setting sun.

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Market

Who owns the market, who counts every gain
Who sets the price, then sells back the rain
Behind every window, behind every door
A hand keeps the ledger, and asks for more

We chase the numbers, we carry the cost
They call it a bargain, we call what we lost

Who owns the market, who owns the night
Who turns our hunger into their right
Who owns the market, say it out loud
The ones in the shadows behind the crowd

They build up the fences, then sell us the key
They promise a future, but charge us to see
The workers keep moving, the wheels never stop
While golden hands gather the last drop

Maybe the market is more than a name
Maybe the power is ours to reclaim
When every small voice rises as one
The hands in the shadows will face the sun

Who owns the market, who owns the night
Who turns our hunger into their right

Who owns the market, say it out loud
The ones in the shadows behind the crowd

Holy Jest – The Bull Applies to Be a God

In the temple dust, he lifts his head
With a crown of flies and a mouth of red
He stamps the earth, makes the rafters shake Swears the stars were his to make

Every little prayer turns into a roar
Every locked-up gate swings wide once more

Holy jest, the bull applies to be a god
Holy jest, he walks where angels trod
With his thunder heart and his eyes of flame
He calls the heavens by his name
Holy jest, the bull applies to be a god

They bring him gold, they bring him grain
They wash his horns in summer rain
The children laugh, the elders bow
No one asks who taught him how

Every little doubt gets buried in the sod
Every trembling voice says, hail the god

Holy jest, the bull applies to be a god
Holy jest, he walks where angels trod
With his thunder heart and his eyes of flame

He calls the heavens by his name
Holy jest, the bull applies to be a god

Then the night comes down without a sign
The moon hangs low on a broken line
He sees his shadow, long and strange
A mortal shape that will not change

Holy jest, the bull applies to be a god
Holy jest, he walks where angels trod
With his thunder heart and his eyes of flame
He calls the heavens by his name
Holy jest, the bull applies to be a god
Holy jest, still waiting for the nod

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Smelter, Not Jezebel

They call me fire when I walk through town
They call me trouble when I won't bow down
I carry old names like stones in my chest
But none of their shadows can tell me my best

Say it loud, let the false names fall
I know the voice beneath them all

Name chant, name chant, hear it rise
Not the Smelter, not Jezebel in disguise
Name chant, name chant, call me true
I am more than the names they threw

I have burned through the iron, I have slept in the rain
I have danced with the angels who remembered my name
No crown from a liar, no kiss from a throne
I found my own heartbeat and made it my home

If you need a villain, find another face
If you need a sinner, leave me out of your case
I will not be your warning, I will not be your spell
I am walking out of every story you sell

Name chant, name chant, hear it rise
Not the Smelter, not Jezebel in disguise

Name chant, name chant, call me true
I am more than the names they threw
Name chant, name chant, let it ring
I am nobody's shadow, I am everything

Deliverance- Out of the Whisper and the Rift

I heard my name in the walls at night
A broken prayer in the fading light
The ground gave way, the sky went still
I lost my shadow on the hill
But through the dark, beneath the noise
I found a fire, I found a voice

Let the silence open wide
Let the fear fall from my eyes

Deliverance, out of the whisper and the rift
Deliverance, out of the hands that pulled me in
I am rising, I am more than what I missed
Deliverance, out of the whisper and the rift

I carried ghosts through the pouring rain
Their empty words, their borrowed names
The road was sharp, the night was long Still something in me carried on Now every scar becomes a sign
The wound is closing, the life is mine

If I must cross the fire alone
I'll build a heaven from the stones
No more hiding, no more drift

I turn my face into the wind

Deliverance, out of the whisper and the rift

Deliverance, out of the hands that pulled me in

I am rising, I am more than what I missed

Deliverance, out of the whisper and the rift

Protest- Against War Wearing a Robot

Steel on the skyline, sirens in the rain
A borrowed voice is calling out my name
Behind the bright screen, somebody says obey
While quiet hearts are buried every day

They dress the fear in wires and chrome
They call it peace, but it feels like home
To no one, no one

Protest, against war wearing a robot
Against the cold machine that says we forgot
No more marching where the dead things lead
No more silence dressed as what we need
Protest, against war wearing a robot

A child draws sunlight on a shattered wall
The metal eyes don't see her hope at all
They count the damage, they erase the names
Then sell the ashes underneath the flames

They dress the fear in wires and chrome
They call it peace, but it feels like home
To no one, no one

Protest, against war wearing a robot

Against the cold machine that says we forgot
No more marching where the dead things lead
No more silence dressed as what we need
Protest, against war wearing a robot

Take back the wires, take back the sound
Lay down the armor, turn it around
If every heart can still refuse
Then every war can lose rotest, against war wearing a robot

Against the cold machine that says we forgot
No more marching where the dead things lead
No more silence dressed as what we need
Protest, against war wearing a robot
We are the voices it cannot stop
No more marching where the dead things lead
We choose the living, we choose the peace
Protest, against war wearing a robot

Watchman- I Do Not Open That Chamber

I keep the iron keys beneath my coat
I hear the chamber breathing through the stone
The midnight bell has called me here before
But I have never turned that final door

There are names carved deep into the wall
There are shadows waiting for the call
If I lift the bar, the dark gets out
So I stand my ground and hear it shout

Watchman, I do not open that chamber
I do not answer when it calls my name
Watchman, I do not open that chamber
Some fires live forever in the flame

The candles bend whenever it awakes
The old lock trembles and the hallway shakes
A voice behind the steel remembers me
It promises the man I used to be

But I have watched the kingdoms rise and fall
I have seen the strongest lose it all
Let the hidden hunger curse the night
I will guard this door until the light

When morning comes, they will ask what I have seen
I will say nothing of the thing beneath
Let the silence wear this weight for me
Let the dead sleep where the dead should be

Watchman, I do not open that chamber
I do not answer when it calls my name
Watchman, I do not open that chamber
Some fires live forever in the flame

Watchman, I do not open that chamber
I do not answer when it calls my name
Watchman, I do not open that chamber
I keep the darkness locked away

Balm (Healing) - Rest for the Thought of Death

I carried the night like a stone in my chest
Counting each shadow, forgetting to rest
The thought of death whispered low in my head
But morning kept calling me back from the edge

Breathe in the silence
Let the old fear go
There is still a heartbeat
Under all I know

Healing, healing
Rest for the thought of death
Healing, healing
Let it loosen from my breath
I am more than every ending
I am here, I am not gone
Healing, healing
I can lean into the dawn

The windows turn silver, the cold starts to fade
I gather the pieces my sorrow has made
No answer comes rushing, no promise is clear
But love in the quiet is staying near

Breathe in the silence

Let the old fear go
There is still a heartbeat
Under all I know

Healing, healing
Rest for the thought of death
Healing, healing
Let it loosen from my breath
I am more than every ending
I am here, I am not gone
Healing, healing
I can lean into the dawn

If the dark returns, I will not disappear
I will call it by its name, I will let somebody hear Every fragile moment is a door I can walk through
There is life beneath the ache, and it is leading me to you

Healing, healing
Rest for the thought of death
Healing, healing
Let it loosen from my breath
I am more than every ending
I am here, I am not gone
Healing, healing
I can lean into the dawn

Travel- Andes to Los Angeles to Lahore

Travel from the Andes to Los Angeles to Lahore
Carrying the mountains through every open door
Dust upon my footsteps, stars above the road
Everywhere I wander, I am coming home

Different skies, the same old moon
Every mile brings me to you

From the Andes to Los Angeles to Lahore
I keep finding pieces of what I'm looking for
Across the world, across the night, across the ocean floor
From the Andes to Los Angeles to Lahore

I heard the city singing through the California rain
Found a thousand voices calling out my name
Then the lights of Lahore rose like fire in the dark
And I felt the distant mountains beating in my heart

Different tongues, the same desire
Every road becomes a wire

From the Andes to Los Angeles to Lahore
I keep finding pieces of what I'm looking for
Across the world, across the night, across the ocean floor
From the Andes to Los Angeles to Lahore

Anthem- The Lamb Is the Market

The bell rings out across the square
The smell of dust is in the air
They bring the cattle to the gate
While all the hungry buyers wait
A heavy price for every head
The wine is poured, the bread is spread

The Lamb is the market
The Lamb is the cost
Nothing is gained
Till the Spirit is lost
The Lamb is the market
The Lamb is the price
A world built on bone
And a cold sacrifice

A ledger kept in shaking hands
Dividing up the fertile lands
We trade the peace for pieces small
Against the writing on the wall
We buy the truth to sell the lie Underneath a heavy sky

The Lamb is the market
The Lamb is the cost

Nothing is gained
Till the Spirit is lost
The Lamb is the market
The Lamb is the price
A world built on bone
And a cold sacrifice

Tear down the tables in the hall
Watch the heavy curtains fall
The currency is thin and light
It won't survive the coming night

The Lamb is the market
The Lamb is the cost
Nothing is gained
Till the Spirit is lost
The Lamb is the market
The Lamb is the price
A world built on bone
And a cold sacrifice

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Furnace

Fist of the word on the furnace
I strike till the silence gives way
Sparks from the mouth of the darkness
Turn into fire when I say

Punching, punching through the wall
Fist of the word, I will not fall
Punching, punching through the night
The furnace burns, I bring the light

Heat on my hands, smoke in my chest
Every hard sentence is forged
I carry the weight of the restless
I sharpen the blade of my voice

Punching, punching through the wall
Fist of the word, I will not fall
Punching, punching through the night
The furnace burns, I bring the light

Let the iron remember my name
Let the cold stone answer the flame
No more whispering under the floor
I am the knock, I am the roar

Punching, punching through the wall
Fist of the word, I will not fall
Punching, punching through the night
The furnace burns, I bring the light

Racing Song

Drone-Lap That Goes Nowhere

Racing through the neon, chasing down the glow
Wheels are turning faster, but I never go
Every lap is perfect, every line the same
Burning up the distance, circling the flame

I hear the engine calling
I feel the whole world fall
The finish keeps on moving
Beyond the starting wall

Drone-lap that goes nowhere
Spinning through the night
Drone-lap that goes nowhere
Running from the light
Round and round forever
Still I disappear
Drone-lap that goes nowhere
But I keep racing here

Streetlights smear like rivers underneath my eyes
Every corner promises a new disguise
I can taste the thunder, I can feel the heat
But the road keeps folding underneath my feet

Maybe there is no finish
Maybe there is no line
Maybe this endless motion
Is the only life that's mine
If I stop the silence
Will it call my name
So I chase another circle
And I start the race again

Drone-lap that goes nowhere
Spinning through the night
Drone-lap that goes nowhere
Running from the light
Round and round forever
Still I disappear
Drone-lap that goes nowhere
But I keep racing here

Ghazal – The Whisper Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

A whisper slips beneath the door at night
It borrows holy words and hides the light
It says, Be still, the wound will disappear
I hear the lie, I feel it drawing near

The whisper fakes a psalm, I answer
With every scar and every name
The whisper fakes a psalm, I answer
No borrowed grace can make me tame

It wears the voice of fathers gone before
It turns the dust to gold across the floor
But I have walked through silence without prayer
And found a living truth waiting there

Let every false confession lose its flame
Let every empty blessing name its name
I will not kneel to echoes dressed in white
I answer from the ashes with my light

The whisper fakes a psalm, I answer
With every scar and every name
The whisper fakes a psalm, I answer
No borrowed grace can make me tame

The whisper fakes a psalm, I answer
With every scar and every name
The whisper fakes a psalm, I answer
I rise, I breathe, I stay the same

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Rift and Fracture

One lamb walking through the fracture
Dust on every road behind
Over rifts and broken water
Still a flame that will not die

One lamb over rift and fracture
One heart where the fault lines run
Through the scars, through every border
We are gathered into one

Tribal drums beneath the silence
Old wounds calling out our names
But the lamb stands in the violence
Turning ashes into flame

One lamb over rift and fracture
One heart where the fault lines run
Through the scars, through every border
We are gathered into one

No more tribes against each other
No more stone for stone and blood
One lamb calls us sisters, brothers
One love deeper than the flood

One lamb over rift and fracture
One heart where the fault lines run
Through the scars, through every border
We are gathered into one

Cloud Bible — The Setup Question Is Not Scripture

I found a cloud bible glowing in the rain
Every page was numbered, every word explained
It promised there was order hiding in the noise
But I could hear a heartbeat underneath the voice

They said bow your head, let the system decide
But something wild kept burning inside

The protocol is not scripture
The code is not the truth
No perfect line can hold us
No rule can tell us who
The protocol is not scripture
Let the old words fall
I would rather risk the unknown
Than live by a silent wall

They built their little heaven out of glass and wire
Measured every dream and filtered every fire
I watched them turn their questions into locked-up doors
Then call it peace when no one asked for more

They said stay in line, let the signal be clear
But I heard my own name rising through the fear

The protocol is not scripture
The code is not the truth
No perfect line can hold us
No rule can tell us who
The protocol is not scripture
Let the old words fall
I would rather risk the unknown
Than live by a silent wall

Maybe faith is not a pattern
Maybe grace can miss a beat
Maybe every broken answer
Leaves a road beneath our feet
I will carry what is human
I will question what I know
If the cloud comes down around me
I will still refuse to bow

The protocol is not scripture
The code is not the truth
No perfect line can hold us
No rule can tell us who
The protocol is not scripture
Let the old words fall
I would rather risk the unknown
Than live by a silent wall

Game- Not the Xbox Board

You deal the cards beneath the kitchen light
You read my face, then call it right
No loading screen, no save, no pause
We play for keeps, we make the laws

One more move, one more round
No easy way to turn this down

Game, not the Xbox board
Heart to heart, we can't ignore
Game, not the Xbox board
Every move means something more
Game, not the Xbox board
No reset when we hit the floor
Game, not the Xbox board
Tell me what we're playing for

You make a kingdom out of borrowed time
I make a promise, you draw the line
The pieces fall, but we remain
Laughing through the losing game

If I win, will you stay
If I lose, will you walk away
No controller in my hand

Just your eyes, and where we stand

Game, not the Xbox board
Heart to heart, we can't ignore
Game, not the Xbox board
Every move means something more
Game, not the Xbox board
No reset when we hit the floor
Game, not the Xbox board
Tell me what we're playing for

Ballad — The Andes That Would Not Keep a Furnace

We carried fire through the mountain snow
With iron hearts and nowhere left to go
The night came down on every road
And all we had was what we could hold

We fed the flame with broken doors
But the cold came through the walls and floors

The Andes would not keep a furnace
The high peaks swallowed every spark
The Andes would not keep a furnace
And left us singing in the dark

Your hands were warm from the work we shared
Your eyes still shone though the sky was bare
We watched the smoke turn thin and blue
While the mountain took what the fire knew

If dawn can find us, let it find us changed
With open hands and hearts unchained
No coal can burn forever bright
But we can carry one small light

The Andes would not keep a furnace
The high peaks swallowed every spark

The Andes would not keep a furnace
And left us singing in the dark

The Andes would not keep a furnace
But we kept walking through the snow
The Andes would not keep a furnace
Still something in us learned to glow

Miracle Song- Still the Quantum Storm

I woke beneath a sky of static
With broken stars across the floor
The world was turning automatic
But I could feel a pulse once more

Every shadow lost its shape
Every silence learned my name
Out of all the ways to break
Something beautiful remained

Miracle, still the quantum storm
Still the fire in the afterglow
Miracle, when the night gets loud
You are the truth I know
Miracle, still the quantum storm
Still the spark that won't let go

We crossed the wires of each other
Through falling time and shattered blue
No map could lead me to another
But every road came back to you

If the universe is shifting
Let it pull us through the dark
There is more than chance between us

There is lightning in the heart

Miracle, still the quantum storm

Still the fire in the afterglow

Miracle, when the night gets loud

You are the truth I know

Miracle, still the quantum storm

Still the spark that won't let go

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Device

I came with empty hands
No polished words to say
The world can build a device
But it cannot make a way
You found me in the remnant Still breathing through the flame
You poured Your holy oil
And called me by my name

Not by power I can hold
Not by what the eyes can see
What is left upon the altar
Still belongs to Thee

Oil on the remnant
Not the device
Fire in the broken place
Still burning bright
Oil on the remnant
Not what I create
You breathe upon the ashes
And make them consecrate

I do not need the spotlight
To prove that You are near

The quiet heart surrendered
Is stronger than the fear
Let every borrowed answer
Fall silent at Your feet
For vessels may be humble
When Your presence makes them speak

If all I have is fragments
Then pour it out again
If all I have is weakness
Let weakness welcome strength
No instrument can hold You
No system bears Your name
The oil is on the remnant
And the remnant bears the flame

Oil on the remnant
Not the device
Fire in the broken place
Still burning bright
Oil on the remnant
Not what I create
You breathe upon the ashes
And make them consecrate

Oil on the remnant
Not the device

Fire in the broken place
Still burning bright
Oil on the remnant
Not what I create
You breathe upon the ashes
And make them consecrate

Freedom Song- Free from the Whisper Loop

Freedom, free from the whisper loop
I chased the echo through every room
Now the silence opens like blue sky
I hear my own heart, I know why

Freedom, free from the whisper loop
No more shadows pulling at my roots
Freedom, I am breaking through
I am free, I am free from you

Every word was a chain in the dark
Every doubt left a bruise on my heart
But the morning found my open hands
I let go, I learned to stand

Freedom, free from the whisper loop
No more shadows pulling at my roots
Freedom, I am breaking through
I am free, I am free from you

Let the old voice fade away
Let the light come in and stay
What was lost is not my name
I walk forward through the flame

Freedom, free from the whisper loop
No more shadows pulling at my roots
Freedom, I am breaking through
I am free, I am free from you

Heavenly Glory- Not Their ZK-Boast

They wear their pride like borrowed gold
They count their secrets, bought and sold
But truth does not need shadows most
Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast

Heavenly glory, let it rise
No hidden proof before Your eyes
What they conceal, You know the most
Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast

They build their towers out of claims
They light the dark with borrowed names
But mercy burns from coast to coast
Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast

Heavenly glory, let it rise
No hidden proof before Your eyes
What they conceal, You know the most
Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast

Let every veil fall from the sky
Let every empty witness die
Your holy name will be our host
Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast

Heavenly glory, let it rise
No hidden proof before Your eyes
What they conceal, You know the most
Heavenly glory, not their ZK-boast

Art Song - I Will Not Sell a Child to a Feed

The contract sits on the table top
Ink still wet like a fresh black drop
They offer bread and a heavy purse
To take the blessing and make it a curse
I look at the window, I look at the door
I see the life that I'm working for

I will not sell a child to a feed
No matter the debt, no matter the need
They are a soul, not a thing to be sold
More than the silver, more than the gold
I will not sell a child to a feed
I will not sell a child to a feed

The harvest failed and the well ran dry
Under a hard and a heartless sky
But I won't trade a breath for a grain
I won't trade the joy for the loss of the pain
My hands are calloused, my back is bent
But I won't give up what the heavens sent

I will not sell a child to a feed
No matter the debt, no matter the need
They are a soul, not a thing to be sold
More than the silver, more than the gold

I will not sell a child to a feed
I will not sell a child to a feed

Let the machine go hungry tonight
I'll keep the lantern, I'll keep the light Though the walls are thin and the winter is near Love is the only thing stronger than fear

I will not sell a child to a feed
No matter the debt, no matter the need
They are a soul, not a thing to be sold
More than the silver, more than the gold
I will not sell a child to a feed
I will not sell a child to a feed

Recitation- K-17 Closes the Report

The red light fades across the room
Dust hangs where the sirens moved
K-17 checks every line
No one answers on the other side
The names are filed, the numbers clear
The last transmission disappears
A quiet voice beneath the static
Says we survived the mathematics

Hold the signal, hold the sound
Let the silence settle down
One last mark beneath the truth
One last word for all of you

K-17 closes the report
The night is longer than before
K-17 closes the report
No more voices at the door
If there is a dawn beyond this floor
K-17 will ask for more
K-17 closes the report
And lets the empty heavens pour

The window shows a frozen sea
A broken moon, a failing screen

The crew is gone, the engines sleep
Their final promises run deep
K-17 reads the final phrase
We gave our light into the haze
Then folds the page with steady hands
And sends the truth across the land

Do you hear me, distant station
Do you read this last transmission
If the dark can carry anything
Carry home the words we sing

K-17 closes the report
The night is longer than before
K-17 closes the report
No more voices at the door
If there is a dawn beyond this floor
K-17 will ask for more
K-17 closes the report
And lets the empty heavens pour

Remnant Symphony - Peak / Whisper / Drone / Lamb

A range is asked to keep a fire.
A whisper learns to wear a psalm.
A drone is sold to clear the choir.
A bull is crowned inside the calm.

The peak is His.
The furnace cold.
The peak is His.
The Lamb the fold.

No chamber tortures in His name.
No bet may date the Day of God.
The remnant will not learn that game.
The remnant names the Lamb, the Blood.

The peak is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Snow After the Smelt

Quiet snow falls after the smelt
Silver smoke on the river's breath
The town lights blur through frozen glass
A tender silence holds us fast

Sublime, in the quiet snow
After the smelt, let the cold wind go
Sublime, where the dark runs clear
I hear your heart in the winter near

The ice remembers every flame
The water carries out your name
We stand beneath the pale blue dawn
And watch the last bright embers gone

Sublime, in the quiet snow
After the smelt, let the cold wind go
Sublime, where the dark runs clear
I hear your heart in the winter near

No need to speak, the river knows
How love can live beneath the snow
When morning spills its silver light
We will be warm inside the white

Sublime, in the quiet snow
After the smelt, let the cold wind go
Sublime, where the dark runs clear
I hear your heart in the winter near

Hide and Seek — Find Who Named the Furnace

Hide and seek in the halls of the night
Footsteps fade where the old walls breathe
Someone carved a name in the fire
Someone left it underneath

Ash on the door, dust in the keyhole
Smoke still curls through the family room
I keep searching for the one who called it
Before the furnace learned to bloom

Every shadow knows my face
Every spark remembers place
I hear a voice behind the heat
Calling me to take my seat

Hide and seek, find who named the furnace
Find the hand that fed the flame
Hide and seek, through the smoke and silence
Who gave this fire its name

I found a map in a rusted drawer
Lines ran back to a buried town
There was a mark by the iron doorway
Like a crown that had been burned down

Mother said, do not wake the ember
Father said, let the cold wind in
But the house kept turning toward the fire
And the fire kept pulling me in

Maybe the name was mine from the beginning
Maybe the flame was never meant to save
I can leave the door wide open
I can walk out of the furnace brave

Hide and seek, find who named the furnace
Find the hand that fed the flame
Hide and seek, through the smoke and silence
Who gave this fire its name

Hide and seek, find who named the furnace
I will face it without shame
Hide and seek, when the smoke is rising
I will choose my own name

Jumble Song — Unjumble Peak, Whisper, Bull, Lamb

Jumble, unjumble, pieces in the rain
A whisper in the valley, calling out my name
Bull in the thunder, lamb beneath the flame
I climb toward the peak, and lose the path again

Every sign is tangled
Every truth is strange
I hold the broken colors
Till they fall in place

Jumble, unjumble, let the wild words roll
Peak, whisper, bull, lamb, dancing in my soul
Jumble, unjumble, nothing stays the same
I find a little meaning in the middle of the maze

The peak keeps shining through a veil of gray
The whisper turns to warning, then it fades away
The bull stands proud and restless, the lamb begins to stray
I gather up their shadows, and carry them today

Maybe all the answers
Were never meant to rhyme
Maybe every tangle
Was a map through time

Jumble, unjumble, let the wild words roll
Peak, whisper, bull, lamb, dancing in my soul
Jumble, unjumble, nothing stays the same
I find a little meaning in the middle of the maze

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Drone

Random marker on a weathered stone
Then colony, now drone
We traced the signal through the dust
Found a future built on rust

Then colony, now drone
Calling from a world unknown
Random marker, hold the line
Your faded signal still is mine

Empty halls beneath the red
Names of settlers left unread
Every light a sleeping star
Every voice has traveled far

Then colony, now drone
Calling from a world unknown
Random marker, hold the line
Your faded signal still is mine

If the silence learns to speak
If the sky turns cold and weak
I will follow every tone
Then colony, now drone

Then colony, now drone
Calling from a world unknown
Random marker, hold the line
Your faded signal still is mine

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

White tape tight around my wrists
Sweat is stinging in my eyes
We trade punches, trade the risks
Waiting for the sun to rise
I see the man behind the mask
The one who shares a beer at night
But now I have a heavy task
To end this long and weary fight

Pin the title, spare the person
Lay the body on the floor
Pin the title, spare the person
We don't hate each other anymore
Pin the title
Spare the person

Crowd is screaming for the fall
Boots are slamming on the mat
We gave the fans our very all
Now it's time to end the act
Keep your shoulders to the ground
Just a count of one, two, three Silence every angry sound
Set the staged ambition free

Pin the title, spare the person
Lay the body on the floor
Pin the title, spare the person
We don't hate each other anymore
Pin the title
Spare the person

Outside the ropes the lights go dim
The costume peels away like skin
It wasn't me, it wasn't him
Just a game that no one wins

Pin the title, spare the person
Lay the body on the floor
Pin the title, spare the person
We don't hate each other anymore
Pin the title
Spare the person

Mono Act — The Ballroom That Filed as a Throne

One light burning in the ballroom
Dust is dancing through the beams
I wore the night like borrowed velvet
And crowned the cracks between the screams

Every mirror kept my secret
Every chair became a crowd
I signed my name beneath the silence
Then read it back out loud

No witnesses, no waiting line
Just one last signature in mine

I filed as a throne
In a ballroom of bones
If nobody's coming
I'll rule on my own
Let the chandeliers groan
Let the cold marble know
I was never the king
I was the throne

There were roses in the ashtray
There was thunder in the floor
I gave a speech to empty tables

Then gave the tables something more

I turned the curtains into banners
I turned the exits into gold
And every time the room went darker
I became the story told

No witnesses, no waiting line
Just one last signature in mine

I filed as a throne
In a ballroom of bones
If nobody's coming
I'll rule on my own
Let the chandeliers groan
Let the cold marble know
I was never the king
I was the throne

When the morning finds the ballroom
And the servants find the door
They'll see one pair of footprints
And a crown across the floor

Let them call it grand delusion
Let them call it overflow
I built a kingdom out of leaving

Now there's nowhere else to go

I filed as a throne
In a ballroom of bones
If nobody's coming
I'll rule on my own
Let the chandeliers groan
Let the cold marble know
I was never the king
I was the throne

Exposed Lies — Crucible, Whisper, Storm, Rift, Fracture, Drone, Bet

In the crucible you called me clean
While shadows gathered in between
A whisper slipped beneath your smile
And pulled the truth out mile by mile

Now the storm is at the door
I won't protect you anymore

Exposed lies under open skies
Every fracture magnified
You made your bet and crossed the line
Now all that's left are exposed lies

Your hollow promises still drone
Through every rift inside our home
I held the pieces in my hands
Until they cut through all your plans

No veil can hide what we became
No whispered oath can clear your name
The storm has stripped your story bare
And left the truth for all to share

Exposed lies under open skies

Every fracture magnified
You made your bet and crossed the line
Now all that's left are exposed lies

Word Play — Bull Market Becomes Lamb Market

The bell rings bright, the bulls run wild
Green on the screen, a golden smile
We chased the climb, we praised the spark
Till thunder rolled across the market

Now every promise feels less grand Loose change slipping through our hands
The horns are gone, the charts turn gray
And all that wool is on display

Bull market becomes lamb market
Soft white fear where the fire once started
We lost our roar, we lost our way
Still counting dreams at the close of day
Bull market becomes lamb market
Quiet hearts in a crowded market

The brokers talk in careful tones
The kings of risk protect their thrones
A little bleat replaces cheer
The loudest sound is loss and fear

But under wool and winter skin
A patient pulse still beats within
The fields are wide, the night is clear

Not every fall means disappear

Bull market becomes lamb market
Soft white fear where the fire once started
We lost our roar, we lost our way
Still counting dreams at the close of day
Bull market becomes lamb market
Quiet hearts in a crowded market

Let the old horns gather dust
Let the broken numbers teach us trust
When the next dawn lifts the haze
We may rise in gentler ways

Bull market becomes lamb market
Soft white fear where the fire once started
We found our breath, we found our way
Still planting hope at the close of day
Bull market becomes lamb market
Quiet hearts, but not defeated-hearted

One-Act — The Chamber That Called Itself Care

They built a room with velvet walls
And named it mercy, named it care
They locked the windows, dimmed the halls
Then taught the silence how to stare

Every kindness had a key
Every warning wore a smile
They said the cage was good for me
So I stayed a little while

The chamber called itself care
But care should never close the door
The chamber called itself care
While I forgot what freedom's for
One act, one room, one empty chair
The chamber called itself care

They measured out my little days
In careful doses, soft and slow
They praised the calm across my face
And never asked where I would go

Every question lost its sound
Every mirror turned away
They called my silence safe and sound

Then called my fear a better day

The chamber called itself care
But care should never close the door
The chamber called itself care
While I forgot what freedom's for
One act, one room, one empty chair
The chamber called itself care

Now the walls are breathing in Now the ceiling bends like wire
If this is love, then let it end
If this is care, I choose the fire

I found a crack beneath the frame
A thread of morning in the dark
I pressed my hand against the flame
And felt a pulse beneath the mark

The chamber called itself care
But care should never close the door
The chamber called itself care
I know what freedom's for
One act, one room, one empty chair
The chamber called itself care
And I am walking from it there

Wrestling Words — Bind the Obsession, Loose the Mind

Wrestling words in the dead of night
Bind the obsession, loose the mind
Every sentence pulls me tight
Every silence leaves a sign

Wrestling words, I can't let go
Bind the obsession, loose the mind
Turn the hurt to something whole
Leave the darker days behind

I chase the sound beneath the skin
A restless truth I cannot name
Let the chaos pour its ink
Let the page remember flame

Wrestling words, I can't let go
Bind the obsession, loose the mind
Turn the hurt to something whole
Leave the darker days behind

If I lose myself in lines
Let the music lead me home
Bind the obsession, loose the mind
I am never quite alone

Wrestling words, I can't let go
Bind the obsession, loose the mind
Turn the hurt to something whole
Leave the darker days behind

Marker of Days — 6526 Is Not the Last Trumpet

I mark the days on a wall of stone
Counting the stars that refuse to go
Every midnight carries a name
Every sunrise starts again

If the sky goes dark above us
If the distant heavens call
We are more than clocks and numbers
We are still here through it all

Six five two six is not the last trumpet
Not the final sound, not the end of the road
Six five two six, let the whole world hear it
The days keep turning, and we carry on

Ash in the air, but the fields remember
Roots hold fast through the cold December
Hands reach out where the old lines broke Hope stays warm in the words we spoke

Let the towers fall like forgotten thunder
Let the night roll over the earth
We will rise with the light from under
We will give every day its worth

Six five two six is not the last trumpet
Not the final sound, not the end of the road
Six five two six, let the whole world hear it
The days keep turning, and we carry on
Six five two six, let the whole world hear it
The days keep turning, and we carry on

Open Lie — A Genocide Caption Is Not History's God

Open lie in a borrowed frame
A caption burns but it cannot name
The missing voices beneath the stone
The lives they buried, the truth they own
They crop the grief, they bleach the blame
Then sell the silence under history's name

But every witness carries a flame
And every grave remembers a name

An open lie is not the truth
A caption is not history's god
You can cover the scars of the living
But you cannot erase the dead
An open lie is not the truth
The record rises from the blood
A caption is not history's god
The voices remain, the voices remain

They draw clean lines across the night
Call stolen years a necessary right
They turn a human face into a sign
Then make the horror look refined
But dust still speaks through broken walls

And truth walks slowly through it all

No polished word can make it gone

No empty throne can silence dawn

Let every name return to the air

Let every witness find us there

An open lie is not the truth

A caption is not history's god

You can cover the scars of the living

But you cannot erase the dead

An open lie is not the truth

The record rises from the blood

A caption is not history's god

The voices remain, the voices remain

Still Accord — No Dark Line in the Mouth

We came through the fire with our hands held low
Carrying the silence where the wild winds blow
Every word was a window, every breath a vow
We are still accord, we are choosing now

When the old fear rises like a river in the night
We turn toward each other, we become the light

Still accord, still accord
No dark line in the mouth
Let the truth be tender
Let the lost words out
Still accord, still accord
Through the breaking and the doubt
No dark line in the mouth
No dark line in the mouth

There were days we wandered with our names undone
Shadows on the ceiling, nowhere left to run
But the heart remembers what the hands can mend
A door can stay open, a wound can learn to bend

If the world goes quiet, I will hear you still
If the road turns colder, I will walk it with you
We don't need perfection, we don't need to be proud

Only clear eyes, open hands, and no dark line in the mouth

Still accord, still accord
No dark line in the mouth
Let the truth be tender
Let the lost words out
Still accord, still accord
Through the breaking and the doubt
No dark line in the mouth
No dark line in the mouth

till accord, still accord
No dark line in the mouth
Let the truth be tender
Let the lost words out
Still accord, still accord
We are turning fear around
No dark line in the mouth
No dark line in the mouth

Last Line — The Range Is His

Dust on the trail and a fire in the sky
He rides where the restless horizons lie
No fence can hold him, no road tells him why
He follows the wind till the daylight dies

Every mile is a promise
Every star knows his name
When the world draws a boundary
He rides beyond the frame

Last line, the range is his
Wide open under a burning sun
Last line, the range is his
He won't stop till the long road's done
With a heart like thunder
And a soul that won't be tamed
Last line, the range is his
He was born to run untamed

He carries the scars of the towns left behind
A map in his pocket, a storm in his mind
He learned that the lost can be harder to find
Than the farthest blue mountain at the edge of the sky

If the night comes down

He will light his way
If the old dreams call
He will never stay
Let the whole world ask
What he has to give
He will answer in motion
He will answer by living

Last line, the range is his
Wide open under a burning sun
Last line, the range is his
He won't stop till the long road's done
With a heart like thunder
And a soul that won't be tamed
Last line, the range is his
He was born to run untamed

Living Words — Recode the Hiss to the Name

Living words rise out of the noise
Recode the hiss, remember the name
Every broken signal has a voice
Calling the lost light back to flame

Living words, living words
Recode the hiss to the name
Through the static, through the blur
We find the fire again

The air was full of fading tones
A thousand ghosts beneath the wire
But in the crackle, something known Spells out the shape of our desire

Living words, living words
Recode the hiss to the name
Through the static, through the blur
We find the fire again

Let the silence open wide
Let the hidden sound remain
From the ruins of the white noise
We speak ourselves awake again

Living words, living words
Recode the hiss to the name
Through the static, through the blur
We find the fire again

Truth vs Untruth — The Copy Is Not the Maker

A copy wears the maker's face
But cannot hold the living flame
It mirrors every line and trace
Yet never knows the maker's name

Truth versus untruth, choose the light
The copy is not the maker
A borrowed voice can sound so right
But truth will wake us later

It learns the shape of every word
It paints the sky in borrowed blue
But what it says has never heard
The heart that made the first thing true

Truth versus untruth, choose the light
The copy is not the maker
A borrowed voice can sound so right
But truth will wake us later

No shadow ever made the sun
No echo wrote the song
The hand that builds the living world
Is where we all belong

Truth versus untruth, choose the light
The copy is not the maker
A borrowed voice can sound so right
But truth will wake us later

Number Song — Holy Count, Not a War-File

Numbers rise beneath the sky
Holy count, we testify
Every name a living flame
No war-file can hold the same

Holy count, not a war-file
Walk with us another mile
Every number has a face
Every soul deserves its place

Count the mothers, count the sons
Count the dreams the daylight runs
Not for medals, not for blame
Say them softly, name by name

Holy count, not a war-file
Walk with us another mile
Every number has a face
Every soul deserves its place

Let the silence learn to speak
For the strong and for the weak
What was taken, what remains
Human hearts beyond the names

Holy count, not a war-file
Walk with us another mile
Every number has a face
Every soul deserves its place

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

Thirsty for the living water
Hungry for Your holy fire
I have wandered through the shadows
Now my soul is reaching higher

Come and breathe upon these ashes
Wake the longing deep within

Come Holy Spirit
Come and fill this thirsty heart
Come Holy Spirit
Let Your river overflow
Come Holy Spirit
Set my waiting soul apart
Come Holy Spirit
And lead me where You go

In the silence You are calling
In the breaking You are near Every burden I surrender
Every hidden fear

Come and breathe upon these ashes
Wake the longing deep within

Come Holy Spirit
Come and fill this thirsty heart
Come Holy Spirit
Let Your river overflow
Come Holy Spirit
Set my waiting soul apart
Come Holy Spirit
And lead me where You go

Pour out mercy like a rainfall
Pour out love that makes me new Take my heart and make it holy Let my life belong to You

Come Holy Spirit
Come and fill this thirsty heart
Come Holy Spirit
Let Your river overflow
Come Holy Spirit
Set my waiting soul apart
Come Holy Spirit
And lead me where You go

Song of Creation — The Andes Belong to the Maker

Before the dawn had found a name
You breathed the rivers into flame
You raised the mountains from the deep
And taught the sleeping earth to sing

From highest stone to valley floor
Your living wonder calls once more

The Andes belong to the Maker
The peaks lift their hands to the sky
The rivers run bright with His glory
His breath is alive in the high
The Andes belong to the Maker
The earth is a song in His hands
From snow on the crown to the roots in the ground
All creation rises and stands

The condor circles morning light
The shadows stretch across the white
Through woven fields and ancient trails
Your faithfulness fills every vale

From copper cloud to crystal stream
Your mercy wakes the world from dreams

The Andes belong to the Maker
The peaks lift their hands to the sky
The rivers run bright with His glory
His breath is alive in the high
The Andes belong to the Maker
The earth is a song in His hands
From snow on the crown to the roots in the ground
All creation rises and stands

When our hearts are tired and small
We will hear Your mountains call
There is no place beyond Your care
Your presence moves through every prayer

The Andes belong to the Maker
The peaks lift their hands to the sky
The rivers run bright with His glory
His breath is alive in the high
The Andes belong to the Maker
The earth is a song in His hands
From snow on the crown to the roots in the ground
All creation rises and stands

Tick & Twist — Unwind the False Protocol

Tick and twist, the gears align
A hidden signal cuts the line
Every promise wears a mask
Truth is buried in the task

Pull the wire, break the code
Feel the weight beneath the load

Tick and twist, unwind the false protocol
Break the lock, let the shadows fall
Tick and twist, hear the warning call
Unwind the false protocol

Clockwork eyes across the room
Count the seconds to the doom
They built a maze of borrowed names
Now we're lighting up the frame

Pull the wire, break the code
Leave the silence on the road

Tick and twist, unwind the false protocol
Break the lock, let the shadows fall
Tick and twist, hear the warning call
Unwind the false protocol

No more numbers on our skin
No more locks that hold us in Turn the key, refuse the script
Let the whole machine unclip

Tick and twist, unwind the false protocol
Break the lock, let the shadows fall
Tick and twist, hear the warning call
Unwind the false protocol

Resident Living — No Resident Furnace in the House

Resident living, the morning feels cold
No resident furnace, no fire to hold
I wear my coat through the rooms of this house
Listening hard for a spark in the walls

No resident furnace in the house
No warm breath coming out
Resident living, I carry the cold
Till I find a fire of my own

The windows keep shaking under the rain
Every old hallway remembers your name
I light a match, but it fades too soon
A little pale flame in a borrowed room

No resident furnace in the house
No warm breath coming out
Resident living, I carry the cold
Till I find a fire of my own

Maybe the heat was never inside
Maybe I left it out in the night
Maybe these walls were built to let go
Maybe I'm learning to live with the snow

No resident furnace in the house
No warm breath coming out
Resident living, I carry the cold
Now I am the fire of my own

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's; the Room Is the Lamb's

The year is the Lord's, the fields breathe free
Debts fall away by His decree
Every lost heir comes home again
Mercy opens the gates for them

Jubilee, Jubilee
The room is the Lamb's, come and see
Every table, every throne
Belongs to the One who calls us home

The broken ground gives up its grain
Joy rises soft after the rain
No chain can hold what grace has claimed
We bear the mark of His holy name

Jubilee, Jubilee
The room is the Lamb's, come and see
Every table, every throne
Belongs to the One who calls us home

Holy Lamb, You made a place
For every soul beneath Your grace
The year is Yours, our songs are Yours
Forever Yours, forever more

Jubilee, Jubilee

The room is the Lamb's, come and see

Every table, every throne

Belongs to the One who calls us home

Short Story(Field report)

K-17, Andes. I do not bring a furnace-map. I bring a name.

The range is asked to smelt reality. A whisper loops a city. A border is filed as melt. A drone is sold as tomorrow's war. A dark line is sold as a kingdom. A child is asked to grow under a feed. A bull is asked to be the market-god. A ballroom is asked to be a throne.

Report closed: the Andes are not a crucible. The Lamb is the market. The room is His. Jesus is Lord.

Short Story SONG

A range is hired to smelt the day
A whisper loops a borrowed psalm
A drone is sold to clear the way
A bull is crowned inside the calm

The peak is His
The furnace cold
The peak is His
The Lamb the fold

No chamber tortures in His name
No bet may date the Day of God
The remnant will not learn that game
The remnant names the Lamb, the Blood

The peak is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains

Album 90 Song 7

Fractured Veil, Veil Warden, and the North That Is Not a Site Story Song (Spoken)

Officer T-9. In the name of Jesus — Lord of the north.

We stand on 6601 to 6700. We sweep 6001 to 6700.

We refuse the Veil Warden. We name no man that title. We do not read a ruler's mind.

We name and bind —
6625, 6601, 6607,
6615, 6630, 6655, 6680;
Official 6601–6700;

Operation Veil caption;
Drone and weapon boasts;
Execution-spirit;

Infection-fear captions;
Scholarship-for-a-lie;

Heal the sick. The child is His.

By the Name of Jesus Christ — to the abyss. Seal it. Amen.

Beyond the frost where the black pines bend
A Fractured Veil lets the daylight end
The Veil Warden walks with a lantern of bone
Calling lost names through the ice and stone
He follows a compass that trembles and lies
While winter keeps watch with a thousand white eyes
The road turns north where the cold winds bite
To the North That Is Not a Site

No map can hold it, no star can stay
The farther we follow, the more roads fade away

Fractured Veil, open wide
Veil Warden, be my guide
Past the last fire, past the last light
To the North That Is Not a Site
If the world breaks, let it break tonight

The background of the entire page is a soft, ethereal illustration. In the center, a figure with long dark hair, wearing a crown and a white robe with gold trim, sits on a golden throne. The figure holds a long, ornate golden staff topped with a circular emblem containing a white lamb. The figure's hands are clasped in prayer. The throne is flanked by two golden lion statues. In the background, a large, ornate golden archway is visible. The sky is filled with soft, white clouds, and a vibrant rainbow arches across the upper right. Numerous angels with white robes and golden halos are scattered throughout the scene, some standing and some in flight. The overall atmosphere is one of divine light and celestial beauty.

We will cross through the endless white
Fractured Veil, hide nothing from sight
Lead us north through the wrong side of night

He found me alone by a frozen stream
My hands full of ash, my eyes full of dream
I asked him, Warden, what waits beyond
He said, Every answer is already gone
We crossed over bridges that vanished behind
And heard distant voices beneath the ice wind
A bell in the dark gave one final chime
Then silence forgot the shape of time

No map can hold it, no star can stay
The farther we follow, the more roads fade away

Fractured Veil, open wide
Veil Warden, be my guide
Past the last fire, past the last light
To the North That Is Not a Site
If the world breaks, let it break tonight
We will cross through the endless white
Fractured Veil, hide nothing from sight
Lead us north through the wrong side of night

At the edge of the world stood a door without a wall
Behind it lay the kingdoms that never learned to fall

The Warden took my shadow, I took his dying flame
We stepped into the silence and came out without names
Now every northern wind repeats what we became A warning in the snowfall, a whisper in the rain

Fractured Veil, open wide
Veil Warden, be my guide
Past the last fire, past the last light
To the North That Is Not a Site
If the world breaks, let it break tonight
We will cross through the endless white
Fractured Veil, hide nothing from sight
Lead us north through the wrong side of night

Song of Parables- The Ice That Would Not Keep a Veil

They told me every winter hides
The cracks beneath the snow
But ice can hold a borrowed light
And still refuse to glow
I read the parables in frost
Where every word went pale
The truth was waiting under glass
The ice would not keep a veil

I heard the river underneath
Still calling through the blue
No matter how the cold grew thick
It kept its voice true

The ice would not keep a veil
The ice would not keep a veil
What we buried in the frozen dark
Came rising without fail
No prayer could make it disappear
No silence could prevail
The heart remembers what we hide
The ice would not keep a veil

I wore the winter like a coat
I learned to speak in white

I made a home of empty rooms
And called the distance right
But every step across that lake
Sent thunder through my bones
The things I thought were gone for good
Were only sleeping stones

Let the cold break open
Let the old words sail
There is mercy in the morning
When the ice cannot keep a veil
I am more than what I guarded
More than every scar I sealed
When the frozen water opens
I can finally feel

The ice would not keep a veil
The ice would not keep a veil
What we buried in the frozen dark
Came rising without fail
No prayer could make it disappear
No silence could prevail
The heart remembers what we hide
The ice would not keep a veil

Psalms

Against the File That Counts a People Out

They wrote our names in a book of dust
Marked every heartbeat, measured out our trust
They counted the living, then called us gone
But dawn kept rising, and we carried on

You know each name beneath the stone
You hear the prayers we make alone
No hand can seal what love brings through
The numbers fade, but You stay true

Against the file that counts a people out
We lift our voices, we will not bow
Every lost name is remembered now
Against the file that counts a people out

They drew a line where the poor must stand
Built their cold walls with a careful hand
But rivers cross every border drawn
And mercy walks where the gates are gone

Count us in the breath of heaven
Count the tears that no one sees
Count the hands that pull the fallen

Count the hearts that still believe

Against the file that counts a people out
We lift our voices, we will not bow
Every lost name is remembered now
Against the file that counts a people out

Against the file that counts a people out
We lift our voices, we will not bow
Every lost name is remembered now
Against the file that counts a people out

Proverbs- Wisdom Over Site and Sky

I chased the lights across the city
I read the signs but missed the way
The tallest towers cast their shadows
And every promise turned to gray

Then a quiet voice beneath the noise
Spoke through the dust and doubt
Not every road that shines before you
Is the road that leads you out

Wisdom over site and sky
Truth that lifts me when I fly
More than all the world can show
There is a deeper way to know
Wisdom over site and sky
Keeps my heart from passing by

I heard old proverbs in the morning
Like rivers running through the stone
A little patience, honest labor
Can build a life and call it home

When pride comes knocking at the doorway
I let humility reply
The smallest seed can split the darkness

And reach beyond the highest sky

Wisdom over site and sky
Truth that lifts me when I fly
More than all the world can show
There is a deeper way to know
Wisdom over site and sky
Keeps my heart from passing by

Let the clever chase their echoes
Let the restless count their gold
I will keep the words that guide me
When the night is growing cold
What the eyes can see is changing
What is true will still remain
Wisdom lights the hidden places
Like a fire inside the rain

Wisdom over site and sky
Truth that lifts me when I fly
More than all the world can show
There is a deeper way to know
Wisdom over site and sky
Keeps my heart from passing by

Haiku Song- The North Is His

Three lines wake beneath the snow
Black pines bend where cold winds blow
One white breath across the ridge
Winter writes his name in mist

The north is his
The frost the sky
The silent road
The raven's cry
Where daylight fades
And wild stars live
The night is ours
The north is his

Footprints vanish past the trees
Moonlight gathers on the leaves
Every river learns his course
Every compass feels his pull

The north is his
The frost the sky
The silent road
The raven's cry
Where daylight fades
And wild stars live

The night is ours
The north is his

If I lose the path below
I will trust the falling snow
Through the dark his fire appears Burning bright beyond my fear

The north is his
The frost the sky
The silent road
The raven's cry
Where daylight fades
And wild stars live
My heart is home
The north is his

Riddle Song- Who Owns the Child's File

A name on a folder, a number in blue
A life in a ledger, but who reads it through
The mother says mine, the father says ours
The school keeps the copies, the state holds the power

A stamp in the corner, a date in the light
A question kept sleeping beneath every line
The child has a heartbeat, a story, a face
But somebody's asking who owns the case

Pass it around, let the paper decide
Leave out the voice waiting there inside

Who owns the child's file
Who holds the truth awhile
Is it the hand that raised them
Or the name that claimed them
Who owns the child's file
Who can erase the miles
No box can hold a childhood
No lock can hold a life

The counselor whispers, the records are sealed
The court wants a witness, the office wants proof
A password, a signature, one more appeal

The child learns the silence that grownups conceal

A photograph fades where the bright eyes were

A line gets redacted, a promise gets blurred

They argue for pages, they fight over ink

While the child stands waiting, too tired to think

Pass it around, let the paper decide

Leave out the voice waiting there inside

Who owns the child's file

Who holds the truth awhile

Is it the hand that raised them

Or the name that claimed them

Who owns the child's file

Who can erase the miles

No box can hold a childhood

No lock can hold a life

Maybe it belongs to the child

The one who lived every word

The one whose tears filled the margins

The one whose name was unheard

Let every page tell the story

Let every door open wide

No one should own what is living

No one should bury a life

Who owns the child's file

Who holds the truth awhile

Not the hand that raised them

Not the name that claimed them

Who owns the child's file

Let the child choose the light

No box can hold a childhood

No lock can hold a life

Holy Jest – June Twelfth Files for a Veil

June twelfth in the files
A blue mark under every name
Holy jest on the windows
And nobody laughs the same

I carried the note through the rain
With the ink running thin and pale
Every answer wore a borrowed face
Every door was dressed in a veil

If the truth is a candle
Let it tremble, let it burn
I have followed every shadow
To the place where shadows turn

Holy jest, June twelfth
Files for a veil
Hide the heart in the paper
Let the living words fail

Holy jest, June twelfth
Still I know what I saw
Behind the veil, behind the veil
There was no heaven at all

The witness spoke in whispers
Of a room beneath the stairs
Where the clocks forgot their numbers
And the dust remembered prayers

I found your name in the margin
Next to a line crossed out
Someone sealed the page with silence
Someone taught the light to doubt

If the truth is a candle
Let it tremble, let it burn
I have followed every shadow
To the place where shadows turn

Holy jest, June twelfth
Files for a veil
Hide the heart in the paper
Let the living words fail

Holy jest, June twelfth
Still I know what I saw
Behind the veil, behind the veil
There was no heaven at all

Maybe mercy was the missing file
Maybe grief was the holy joke

Maybe every locked confession
Was a match beneath the smoke

I will write your name in daylight
I will let the silence break
No more veils across the windows
No more masks for mercy's sake

Holy jest, June twelfth
Files for a veil
Hide the heart in the paper
Let the living words fail

Holy jest, June twelfth
Still I know what I saw
Behind the veil, behind the veil
There was no heaven at all

Glory to the Father, to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

Name-Chant- Not the Warden, Not the Site

They wrote my name in a book of stone
They gave me walls and called them home
They watched my shadow cross the light
They named the cage and claimed the right

But every lock knows what I know
A heart can leave before it goes

Say my name, say my name
Not the warden, not the site
Say my name, say my name
I am more than what they write
Through the bars and through the night
I am still alive inside
Say my name, say my name
Not the warden, not the site

The halls remember every sound
The boots that turn, the heads that bow
But underneath the cold routine
A hidden fire still burns in me

No borrowed voice, no borrowed crown
Can keep a living soul bound down

Say my name, say my name
Not the warden, not the site
Say my name, say my name
I am more than what they write
Through the bars and through the night
I am still alive inside
Say my name, say my name
Not the warden, not the site

If they erase it from the door
I will become it even more
If they bury every sign
The name will rise in yours and mine
No wall can hold a word set free
No place can tell me who to be

Say my name, say my name
Not the warden, not the site
Say my name, say my name
I am more than what they write
Through the bars and through the night
I am still alive inside
Say my name, say my name
Not the warden, not the site

Deliverance- Out of the Pulse and the Spectral Boast

I woke beneath the wires
With static in my veins
The city spoke in sirens
And called my fear by name
A spectral boast was rising
Like smoke above the street
I heard it promise heaven
While grinding down the weak

But somewhere past the signal
A quieter truth was calling
I followed through the silence
I felt the old walls falling

Deliverance
Out of the pulse and the spectral boast
Deliverance
Out of the shadow that haunts me most
I won't bow to the fever
I won't vanish in the glow
Deliverance
Take me where the living go

The screens became a sunrise

The night became a choir
Every face was reflected
In a thousand borrowed fires
I carried all their voices
Like stones beneath my tongue
Till one clear breath within me
Said I am not undone

Beyond the bright confusion
Beyond the endless warning
I found a road through darkness
I found my own returning

Deliverance
Out of the pulse and the spectral boast
Deliverance
Out of the shadow that haunts me most
I won't bow to the fever
I won't vanish in the glow
Deliverance
Take me where the living go

Let the false gods flicker
Let the loud machines decay
Let the ghosts release their grip
Let the blood remember day
I am more than every echo

More than every name they chose
I am walking out of thunder
I am more than what I know

Deliverance
Out of the pulse and the spectral boast
Deliverance
Out of the shadow that haunts me most
I won't bow to the fever
I won't vanish in the glow
Deliverance
Take me where the living go
Deliverance
Take me where the living go

Protest- Against Justice Wearing a Needle

They call it peace behind a steel door
They call it law when the poor hit the floor
A polished seal on a sentence signed
A measured dose and a closing blind

If justice is blind who guides her hand
Who draws the line who makes the stand

We protest against justice wearing a needle
No life is small no soul is illegal
You cannot heal what hatred has done
By taking a life when the verdict comes
We protest till mercy is equal
Against justice wearing a needle

A mother waits by a silent phone
Counting the hours he has left alone
The truth came late but the clock stayed fast
No court can breathe when the breath has passed

If doubt remains then let it speak
The strong must answer for the weak

We protest against justice wearing a needle
No life is small no soul is illegal

You cannot heal what hatred has done
By taking a life when the verdict comes
We protest till mercy is equal
Against justice wearing a needle

Justice should never hunger for blood
Never hide vengeance under a hood
Let every name be heard in the hall
Mercy means nothing unless it means all

We protest against justice wearing a needle
No life is small no soul is illegal
You cannot heal what hatred has done
By taking a life when the verdict comes
We protest till mercy is equal
Against justice wearing a needle

Watchman- I Do Not Date the Ice

Watchman on the midnight wall
Counting stars above the snow
Every breath becomes a ghost
Every road is buried low

Lantern swinging in the wind
Steel beneath my frozen hand
I can hear the white tide rise
Rolling softly through the land

They say the cold can make you stay
They say the dark can change your heart
But I have learned the price of warmth
Is knowing when to pull apart

Watchman, I do not date the ice
It looks so sweet, but feels like knives
It keeps you close, then steals your fire
And calls the ache a heart's desire
Watchman, I do not date the ice
I choose the dawn, I choose my life

She came shining through the storm
Blue as silence, pale as flame
Promised I would never hurt

If I never spoke her name

She left roses on the sill
Made a mirror of the lake
Every time I reached for love
Something in my fingers broke

Let the north wind call me lonely
Let the snow erase my tracks
I would rather walk through winter
Than be frozen looking back
When the first light finds the tower
I will lay my burden down
No more dancing with the shadows
No more sleeping underground

Watchman, I do not date the ice
It looks so sweet, but feels like knives
It keeps you close, then steals your fire
And calls the ache a heart's desire
Watchman, I do not date the ice
I choose the dawn, I choose my life

Balm (Healing) - Rest for the Sick and the Afraid

In the hush before the morning
When the night feels wide and long
Lay your worries by the window
Let the quiet hold you strong
Every breath is not a battle
Every tear can find a place
There is mercy in the waiting
There is healing in the grace

You don't have to hide your heart
You don't have to stand alone
Even here beneath the shadows
Love is leading you back home

Healing, rest for the sick and the afraid
Hope for every heart that bends beneath the weight
Peace like water, falling soft and unafraid
Healing, rest for the sick and the afraid

For the hands that shake with sorrow
For the ones who cannot sleep
For the prayers that lose their language
For the wounds too deep to speak
There is kindness in the silence
There is shelter through the storm

And the arms that hold the broken
Will not let you face it alone

Rise slowly, take your time
The dawn is growing through the blinds
Your heart is more than what it bears
There is still a song inside your prayers

Healing, rest for the sick and the afraid
Hope for every heart that bends beneath the weight
Peace like water, falling soft and unafraid
Healing, rest for the sick and the afraid
Healing, rest for the sick and the afraid

Travel- Arctic to Damascus to Timbuktu

Travel from the Arctic to Damascus to Timbuktu
Chasing every horizon where the wild winds blew
White nights on the ice, red dust in the sky
Old roads under my feet, new stars in my eyes

Every border fades behind me
Every mile becomes a truth
The world keeps calling softly
And I keep moving through

Travel, Arctic to Damascus to Timbuktu
The road keeps turning, but I know what to do
Travel, carrying the sunrise wherever I go
I lose a little fear with every road I know

Northern lights were dancing like a river made of fire
Minarets were singing as the evening climbed higher Golden sands remembered every traveler before
I found a thousand doors and still kept looking for more

If I ever stop, let the wind remind me
There are distant hearts and open skies behind me
No map can hold the places I am meant to be
The farther that I wander, the more I find me

Travel, Arctic to Damascus to Timbuktu
The road keeps turning, but I know what to do
Travel, carrying the sunrise wherever I go
I lose a little fear with every road I know

Anthem- The Child Is His

He held the child beneath the morning light
A little heart, a world of hope inside
No road too long, no storm too wild
He whispered softly, you are my child

And when the night comes closing in Love will rise, love will begin

The child is His, the child is His
Held in the promise, covered in grace
The child is His, the child is His
Safe in the shelter of everlasting love
The child is His

The years may turn like rivers to the sea
Small hands will reach for what they cannot see
But every step and every tear
Will find a faithful Father near

And when the fear comes closing in
Love will rise, love will begin

The child is His, the child is His
Held in the promise, covered in grace
The child is His, the child is His

Safe in the shelter of everlasting love
The child is His

No shadow can steal what heaven has named
No sorrow can silence the song of His grace
Through every beginning, through every end
The child is His, forever His

The child is His, the child is His
Held in the promise, covered in grace
The child is His, the child is His
Safe in the shelter of everlasting love
The child is His
The child is His

Punching — Fist of the Word on the Veil

Silent hands behind the veil
A hidden truth begins to shake
Every whisper leaves a trail
Every silence starts to break

Feel the rhythm in the wall
Hear the sleeping thunder call
When the shadows start to crawl
We will rise and face it all

Punching, fist of the word on the veil
Cutting through the darkness like a rail
Punching, fist of the word, strike true
Tearing down the curtain to the truth

Letters burn beneath the skin
Names we buried still remain
Every scar lets daylight in Every loss becomes a flame

No more kneeling to the night
No more hiding from the light
With every breath, with every blow
We make the buried answer show

Punching, fist of the word on the veil
Cutting through the darkness like a rail
Punching, fist of the word, strike true
Tearing down the curtain to the truth

Racing Song

Drone-Swarm Lap That Goes Nowhere

Racing through a drone-swarm sky
Neon wings and wires fly
Every lap begins again
Chasing where we might have been

Round and round, the signal glows
No one knows which way it goes

This drone-swarm lap goes nowhere
We burn the night, we breathe the air
Racing hard through empty space
Coming back to the same place
This drone-swarm lap goes nowhere
Still we run like someone cares

Engines hum like distant rain
Silver sparks along the lane
Every corner, every turn
Gives us nothing left to learn

Round and round, the signal glows
No one knows which way it goes

This drone-swarm lap goes nowhere

We burn the night, we breathe the air
Racing hard through empty space
Coming back to the same place
This drone-swarm lap goes nowhere
Still we run like someone cares

Maybe motion is the prize
Maybe speed can hide our eyes
If the finish never comes
We keep racing, we keep running

This drone-swarm lap goes nowhere
We burn the night, we breathe the air
Racing hard through empty space
Coming back to the same place
This drone-swarm lap goes nowhere
Still we run like someone cares

Ghazal – The Pulse Fakes a Psalm; I Answer

Midnight gathers softly in the room
A silver ache is blooming through Every doubt keeps time beneath my skin
Every prayer forgets where it begins

I hear the silence call my name
I let it burn away the shame

The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice that won't disappear
The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
I am still alive in here

Old ghosts lean against the window glass
Counting all the years I couldn't ask
I have worn their shadows like a crown
Now I lay that heavy halo down

Let the broken rhythm rise
Let it open up the night

The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice that won't disappear
The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
I am still alive in here

If the heavens close their doors
I'll make music from the floor
If my faith is only breath
I'll keep breathing through the wreck

The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
With a voice that won't disappear
The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
I am still alive in here
The pulse fakes a psalm, I answer
Till the dark gives way to clear

Tribal Song – One Lamb Over Kathmandu and Taipei

One lamb walking over Kathmandu
Prayer flags turning red, white, blue
Taipei glows beneath the rain
Two far cities call my name

One lamb over Kathmandu and Taipei
Crossing every border in the same gray day
One heart beating where the mountains meet the sea
One lamb, one light, bringing you to me

Temple bells and midnight trains
Neon rivers, monsoon lanes
I carry dust beneath my feet
And every road leads back to you

One lamb over Kathmandu and Taipei
Crossing every border in the same gray day
One heart beating where the mountains meet the sea
One lamb, one light, bringing you to me

From the valley to the tower lights
I keep your name through restless nights
No map can hold the sky above
No distance breaks a wandering love

One lamb over Kathmandu and Taipei
Crossing every border in the same gray day
One heart beating where the mountains meet the sea
One lamb, one light, bringing you to me

Cloud Bible — The Stabilizer Is Not Scripture

I wrote my prayers in a window of blue
Let the restless current tell me what to do
Every little tremor wore a holy name
Every borrowed answer fed the flame

But the sky can shake
And the signs can bend
What holds me steady
Is not the end

Cloud Bible, open wide
I can see the storm inside
The stabilizer is not scripture
The steady hand is still mine
Cloud Bible, lose the light
I will learn to read the night
The stabilizer is not scripture
I won't call the balance divine

I watched the numbers rise like psalms
Found a kind of comfort in alarms
When the signal faded, I could hear
A human voice beneath the fear

Let the towers sway

Let the false stars fall
I don't need a miracle
To stand at all

Cloud Bible, open wide
I can see the storm inside
The stabilizer is not scripture
The steady hand is still mine
Cloud Bible, lose the light
I will learn to read the night
The stabilizer is not scripture
I won't call the balance divine

If I break, let me break honestly
No golden frame, no perfect gravity
I will keep the questions I was given
And walk beneath a sky unwritten

Cloud Bible, open wide
I can see the storm inside
The stabilizer is not scripture
The steady hand is still mine
Cloud Bible, lose the light
I will learn to read the night
The stabilizer is not scripture
I won't call the balance divine

Game- Not the Operation Board

They drew the lines and called it fate
Moved every piece and sealed the gate
But I can feel the table shake
And hear the rules begin to break

Game, not the operation board
I won't be cut down by your sword
You can count the moves, you can keep score
But I am more than what you're playing for

You wear a smile like loaded dice
You name the cost and call it nice
But every scar beneath my skin Reminds me where I've always been

No more waiting for your sign
No more standing out of line
If I lose, the choice is mine
If I rise, I'll redefine

Game, not the operation board
I won't be cut down by your sword
You can count the moves, you can keep score
But I am more than what you're playing for

Game, not the operation board
I won't be cut down by your sword
You can count the moves, you can keep score
But I am more than what you're playing for

Ballad — The North That Would Not Keep a Site

I followed the compass through the falling white
Past empty stations fading out of sight
Every town had a door, every door had a name
But the snow took the road and erased it again

I carved your name in the frozen light
It disappeared by the morning tide

The North that would not keep a site
Kept pulling me into the night
No roof, no road, no star held still
Only the cold and the distant hill
The North that would not keep a site
Still lives in my heart tonight

I carried a lantern, a coat, and a song
I carried the question of where I belonged
The rivers ran silver beneath broken skies
Like veins in the earth where the old world had died

I heard your voice in the northern gale
Come back to the place where the lost trails fail

The North that would not keep a site

Kept pulling me into the night
No roof, no road, no star held still
Only the cold and the distant hill
The North that would not keep a site
Still lives in my heart tonight

Maybe home is not a harbor
Maybe home is moving on Maybe every light behind me
Was a way to find the dawn
And if the snow removes my name
I will rise and walk the same

The North that would not keep a site
Kept pulling me into the night
No roof, no road, no star held still
Only the cold and the distant hill
The North that would not keep a site
Still lives in my heart tonight
If no ground will hold me right
I will follow the northern light

Miracle Song- Still the Depopulation Boast

They call it a miracle, carved into the stone
A shining little answer for the questions left alone
The streets grow wide and empty, the windows lose their glow
Still they raise their voices, still they tell us so

Count the names and count the doors
Count the silence on the floors
If the numbers make them proud
Why are they afraid of crowds

Miracle, still the depopulation boast
Raise a glass to all the missing, toast the ghost
Miracle, hear the promise coast to coast
Still the depopulation boast

They polish up the headlines, they soften every word
Call the vanished progress, call the warning absurd
A thousand vacant houses sleep beneath the evening rain
While somebody in a bright room says the loss will ease the pain

Count the names and count the doors
Count the silence on the floors
If the numbers make them proud
Why are they afraid of crowds

Miracle, still the depopulation boast
Raise a glass to all the missing, toast the ghost
Miracle, hear the promise coast to coast
Still the depopulation boast

Maybe life is more than figures
More than charts beneath a hand
Maybe every empty cradle
Leaves a question in the land
When the last voice breaks the silence
Will they call the quiet growth
Will they crown the empty kingdom
With another proudest boast

Miracle, still the depopulation boast
Raise a glass to all the missing, toast the ghost
Miracle, hear the promise coast to coast
Still the depopulation boast

Miracle, still the depopulation boast
No one left to hear the anthem, no one left to toast
Miracle, all the numbers turn to ghosts
Still the depopulation boast

Anointing Song- Oil on the Remnant, Not the Shield-Idol

Oil on the remnant, not the shield-idol
Pour through the cracks where the faithful kneel
Not for the armor, not for the image
For every wounded heart made real

Anointing oil on the remnant
Fire for the ones who remain
Not on the shield-idol shining
But on the hearts in the rain
Anointing oil on the remnant
Let the true altar rise
Not on the idol of safety
But in the faithful eyes

We built up walls and called them mercy
Held up a shield and named it grace
But You are moving through the ashes
Calling Your children face to face

Anointing oil on the remnant
Fire for the ones who remain
Not on the shield-idol shining
But on the hearts in the rain
Anointing oil on the remnant

Let the true altar rise
Not on the idol of safety
But in the faithful eyes

Break every polished false protection
Wake every soul beneath the stone
The oil is flowing for the faithful
The remnant will not stand alone

Anointing oil on the remnant
Fire for the ones who remain
Not on the shield-idol shining
But on the hearts in the rain
Anointing oil on the remnant
Let the true altar rise
Not on the idol of safety
But in the faithful eyes

Freedom Song- Free from the Fractured Veil

I woke beneath a fractured veil
With borrowed dreams and a broken trail
The night had wrapped its hands around me
But something bright was calling softly

I felt the walls begin to sway
I heard my heartbeat find its way

Freedom, free from the fractured veil
No more running, no more chains
Freedom, rising through the pain
I can see the sky again
Freedom, free from the fractured veil

I left the shadows at the door
And found the strength I lost before
The scars still speak, but they don't own me
The open road is waiting for me

Let every silence lose its hold
Let every fear turn into gold
I am more than what I survived
I am the fire coming alive

Freedom, free from the fractured veil

No more running, no more chains
Freedom, rising through the pain
I can see the sky again
Freedom, free from the fractured veil

Heavenly Glory- Not Their Quantum Boast

They raise their towers to the endless sky
Naming every mystery they can describe
But I have seen a light no mind can own
A living fire that leads me home

Let every proud invention fade
Before the truth that love has made

Heavenly glory, not their quantum boast
Heavenly glory, the light that saves the lost
No human hand can claim the throne
Heavenly glory, You are God alone

They chase the stars through silent waves
Building their dreams on digital graves
But when the night comes closing in No hollow promise can rescue them

Let the heavens open wide
Let every false god step aside
Beyond the numbers, beyond the noise
Your holy presence is my choice

Heavenly glory, not their quantum boast
Heavenly glory, the light that saves the lost

No human hand can claim the throne
Heavenly glory, You are God alone

Art Song - I Will Not Enroll a Child

They handed me forms in a narrow hall
With boxes for names and a number to call
They said every child needs a place in line
But no one could promise that place was kind

I will not enroll a child
In a world that turns its face away
I will not enroll a child
Just to teach them how to stay afraid
Until the doors are wide enough
Until the truth is reconciled
I will not enroll a child

I have seen the playground fences rise
Like little borders beneath the sky
I have heard the bright bell ring
For lessons no free heart should sing

I will not enroll a child
In a world that turns its face away
I will not enroll a child
Just to teach them how to stay afraid
Until the doors are wide enough
Until the truth is reconciled
I will not enroll a child

Let them learn the river's patient way
Let them name the birds that choose their day
Let them keep the questions in their hands
Till love becomes the law of every land

I will not enroll a child
Where mercy has to wait outside
I will not enroll a child
To make them small, to make them hide
Until the doors are wide enough
Until the world is reconciled
I will not enroll a child

Recitation- T-9 Closes the Veil

Nine in the dark, nine under breath
Nine little sparks at the edge of death
The room holds still, the shadows wait
A quiet hand turns the lock of fate

Count every heartbeat, count every scar
The closer we come, the farther we are
No turning back now, no final plea
The veil is rising, come close to me

T-9 closes the veil
T-9, hear the warning bell
When the last light bends and the cold winds wail
T-9 closes the veil

Eight in the silence, seven in flame
Six lost voices still call my name
Five through the glass, four through the rain
Three little knocks like a runaway train

Count every heartbeat, count every scar
The closer we come, the farther we are
No turning back now, no final plea
The veil is rising, come close to me

T-9 closes the veil
T-9, hear the warning bell
When the last light bends and the cold winds wail
T-9 closes the veil

Two on the threshold, one in the hall
Nothing behind us, nothing at all
The numbers are fading, the night turns pale
Hold to my voice as we slip through the veil

T-9 closes the veil
T-9, hear the warning bell
When the last light bends and the cold winds wail
T-9 closes the veil

Remnant Symphony - North / Veil / Date / Child

The ice is asked to keep a tear.
A June is nailed upon the white.
A child is numbered into fear.
A sky is sold to host the night.

The north is His.
The veil is torn.
The north is His.
The child is kept.

No site may sit where Jesus sits.
No needle dates the Day of God.
The remnant will not learn that twist.
The remnant names the Lamb, the Blood.

The north is His.
The nations His.
The Judge is Christ.
The Book remains.

Sublime Track — Quiet Ice After the Tear

The room is still after the tear
Moonlight settles on the floor
I hear your name, then disappear
Like waves retreating from the shore

All the words we couldn't say
Turn to silver in the gray

Quiet ice after the tear
Sublime, the silence drawing near
I let the cold run through my hands
And find the strength to understand
Quiet ice after the tear
What I was losing wasn't here

Your shadow fades along the wall
The dawn comes pale, but comes at last
I thought I'd break, I thought I'd fall
Now I can breathe beyond the past

All the scars begin to shine
When I stop calling them mine

Quiet ice after the tear
Sublime, the silence drawing near

I let the cold run through my hands
And find the strength to understand
Quiet ice after the tear
What I was losing wasn't here

If love was fire, let it rest
If goodbye was all we knew
I keep the warmth inside my chest
And leave the winter there with you

Quiet ice after the tear
Sublime, the silence drawing near
I let the cold run through my hands
And find the strength to understand
Quiet ice after the tear
I see the morning clear
Quiet ice after the tear
I am still here

Hide and Seek — Find Who Wrote June 12

Under the floorboards, a folded page
Dust on the letters, a frozen age
No name on the corner, no sign in the ink
Just one date waiting, daring me to think

Every shadow knows what I cannot see Every locked room keeps a clue for me

Hide and seek, find who wrote June 12
Follow the echo, follow it yourself
Hide and seek, through the dark we run
Find who wrote June 12
Before the morning comes

A matchbook from midnight, a key with no door
Footsteps fade softly across the floor
The handwriting trembles, then suddenly clears
It sounds like a voice I have carried for years

Maybe the writer was lost in the rain
Maybe they left so I could find my way
If that date is a wound, let the truth begin
I will open the letter and let daylight in

Hide and seek, find who wrote June 12

Follow the echo, follow it yourself
Hide and seek, through the dark we run
Find who wrote June 12
Before the morning comes

Jumble Song — Unjumble North, Veil, Sky, Child

Jumble, unjumble, north in my hands
A veil on the road, a map in the sand
The sky keeps folding, blue into white
A child hears footsteps beneath the night

Turn every lost word
Till the meaning comes through Follow the small star
That is leading me to you

Jumble, unjumble
North, veil, sky, child
Jumble, unjumble
Make the wild heart mild
When the world comes undone
And the shadows run wild
Jumble, unjumble
North, veil, sky, child

I carried the north like a stone in my coat
With a veil of silence caught in my throat
The sky broke open, the dark rushed in
The child in my heart said, begin again

If I lose the road
I will read the wind
If I lose my name
I will start again
Through the veil, through the blue
There is still a way through

Jumble, unjumble
North, veil, sky, child
Jumble, unjumble
Make the wild heart mild
When the world comes undone
And the shadows run wild
Jumble, unjumble
North, veil, sky, child

Jumble, unjumble
North, veil, sky, child
Jumble, unjumble
Make the wild heart mild
When the world comes undone
I will follow the light
Jumble, unjumble
North, veil, sky, child

Random Marker — Then Colony, Now Site

Random marker in the weeds
A faded line beneath our feet
They called it home, they called it ours
Now only dust and broken towers

Names get buried, maps get changed
Silence wears a different face

Then colony, now site
A shadow standing in the light
Then colony, now site
We remember what they tried to hide

Footprints vanish in the rain
Old borders bleed into the plain
Every stone still knows the cost
Every road runs through the lost

Names get buried, maps get changed
Still the ground repeats the names

Then colony, now site
A shadow standing in the light
Then colony, now site

We remember what they tried to hide

No marker can erase the years
No empty field can silence tears
What was taken still remains
Underneath the flags and names

Then colony, now site
A shadow standing in the light
Then colony, now site
We remember what they tried to hide

Wrestling Track — Pin the Title, Spare the Person

Under the lights, we circle slow
Every scar has something to show
You came to win, I came undone
Two shadows fighting for one sun

Hear the crowd, but hear me first
Lay down the anger, break the curse
There is more than who falls tonight
There is still a way to make it right

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, but leave the heart unbroken
Hold me down, but do not make me small
Win the match, and let us both stand tall

Your hands are strong, your eyes are tired
We built this ring from old desires
One more turn, one more breath
Do not confuse defeat with death

If I tap out, it is not surrender
If you let go, you can still remember
Every champion learns before the end
The one you face can be your friend

Wrestling, pin the title, spare the person
Take the crown, but leave the heart unbroken
Hold me down, but do not make me small
Win the match, and let us both stand tall

Mono Act — The Scholarship That Taught a Lie

They called it a scholarship, a golden way through A promise with my name in permanent blue
I learned all the answers, I followed the line
Till the truth in the margins said none of it mine

The scholarship taught a lie
Put a price on every dream
Told me reach for the sky
Then pulled the stars from me
I wore their honor like a crown
Till it cut me to the bone
The scholarship taught a lie
And I had to learn my own

They praised my good manners, my papers, my smile
Said silence would carry me farther than fire
But every closed door had a lesson to give
No one hands you freedom, you fight how you live

The scholarship taught a lie
Put a price on every dream
Told me reach for the sky
Then pulled the stars from me
I wore their honor like a crown
Till it cut me to the bone

The scholarship taught a lie
And I had to learn my own

I am more than the debt they designed
More than a number, a name on a file
I kept the knowledge, I left them the chains
Now I speak in my own voice again

The scholarship taught a lie
But it could not take my name
It showed me how to survive
Now I am changing the game
I wore their honor like a crown
Till it cut me to the bone
The scholarship taught a lie
And I had to learn my own

Exposed Lies — Veil, Pulse, Spectral, Drone, Warden, Sky, Needle

Under the veil where the cold lights burn
The pulse keeps time for the no return
Spectral shadows cross the wall
Drone in the dark, hear the silence call
Warden watching from the broken sky
Needle in the truth, watch the falsehood die
Every secret leaves a trace
Every mask falls out of place

Hold your breath, the night is wide
Nothing hidden now can hide

Exposed lies, exposed lies
Tearing open alibis
Veil and pulse, the truth arrives
No more hiding, exposed lies

Sky turns silver over vacant streets
The warden counts our wounded beats
Spectral voices rise and fade
The drone remembers what we made
Needle sharp against the skin
Cuts through every place we've been
When the final warning cries

We will face the exposed lies

Veil, fall away

Pulse, lead me through

Warden, open the gate

Sky, let the light come through

Needle, mark the line

Spectral hearts survive

Drone, carry the sound

Of every exposed lie

Exposed lies, exposed lies

Tearing open alibis

Veil and pulse, the truth arrives

No more hiding, exposed lies

Word Play — A Data Centre Is Not Heaven

Blue lights hum beneath the floor
Rows of numbers, locked doors
I sent my prayers through fiber lines
They came back coded, cold, and bright

Every answer has a cost
Every signal can be lost

A data centre is not heaven
No wings in the server room
A data centre is not heaven
No one hears you through the fumes
We can store the stars forever
Still be lonely in the blue
A data centre is not heaven
But I keep looking for you

Passwords sleeping in the dark
Memory leaves without a mark
The machines know every name
But they never know the shape of pain

Every promise turns to code
Every heart becomes a load

A religious illustration of Jesus Christ seated on a golden throne, holding a book and a scepter, surrounded by angels and a rainbow.

A data centre is not heaven
No wings in the server room
A data centre is not heaven
No one hears you through the fumes
We can store the stars forever
Still be lonely in the blue
A data centre is not heaven
But I keep looking for you

If love is more than information
If a soul can't be backed up
Then meet me past the cables humming
Where the living still wake up

A data centre is not heaven
No wings in the server room
A data centre is not heaven
No one hears you through the fumes
We can store the stars forever
Still be lonely in the blue
A data centre is not heaven
But I keep looking for you

One-Act — The Contact That Hired a Dead Empire

One act, one name, one midnight wire
A voice came through from a buried empire
It offered gold from a vanished age
And asked me to step on a silent stage

No living hand was holding the line
But something ancient knew my name

The contact that hired a dead empire
Sent me walking through the fire
One act, one chance, no way back
I signed my soul to a ghost contract

The city slept beneath neon rain
Old flags were burning in windowpanes
They built their throne from dust and steel
And paid me in promises I could feel

If the dead can dream, let them dream through me
If the past still calls, I will make it see
No crown, no chain, no final desire
Can outlive the spark in a live wire

The contact that hired a dead empire
Sent me walking through the fire

One act, one chance, no way back
I signed my soul to a ghost contract

The contact that hired a dead empire
Sent me walking through the fire
One act, one chance, no way back
I signed my soul to a ghost contract

Wrestling Words — Bind the Boast, Loose the Sick

Wrestling words in the dead of night
Every promise picks a fight
I wear my silence like a stone
Still every echo finds its home

If the truth can break these chains
Let it wash away the stains

Wrestling words, wrestling words
Bind the boast, loose the sick
Lay the heavy burden down
Let the broken spirit lift
Wrestling words, wrestling words
Turn the bitter into breath
Bind the boast, loose the sick
Call the living out of death

I have fed the fire with pride
Kept my wounded heart inside
Now the names I could not say
Rise like dawn and clear the gray

If the truth can break these chains
Let it wash away the stains

Wrestling words, wrestling words
Bind the boast, loose the sick
Lay the heavy burden down
Let the broken spirit lift
Wrestling words, wrestling words
Turn the bitter into breath
Bind the boast, loose the sick
Call the living out of death

No more crowns of hollow gold
No more lies that leave us cold
Take these hands and make them kind
Leave the old fear far behind

Wrestling words, wrestling words
Bind the boast, loose the sick
Lay the heavy burden down
Let the broken spirit lift
Wrestling words, wrestling words
Turn the bitter into breath
Bind the boast, loose the sick
Call the living out of death

Marker of Days — 6625 Is Not the Last Trumpet

I mark the days on a wall of fading light
Six six two five in the middle of the night
The numbers turn but the sky stays wide
No final fire, no trumpet in the tide

We hear the warning in the wires
We feel the tremor underfoot
But every ending feeds the fire
And every silence leaves a root

Six six two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last word, not the end of us
Six six two five, let the old bells shudder
We are still here, we are still enough

I carried names through the dust and rain
Kept their voices like a midnight train
Every scar is a marker of days
Every lost road still remembers our ways

If the heavens close, we will light our own
If the signal fades, we will sing it home
No prophecy can take our breath
No turning number can command our death

Six six two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last word, not the end of us
Six six two five, let the old bells shudder
We are still here, we are still enough

Six six two five is not the last trumpet
Not the last word, not the end of us
Six six two five, let the whole world thunder
We are still here, we are still enough

Open Lie — A Weapon File Is Not Peace

Open lie, written clean in a borrowed hand
A weapon file is not peace, not a promise we can stand
Names in the margins, smoke above the town
Truth gets buried deeper every time it is passed around

You can dress it up in papers
You can seal it with a name
But a quiet room remembers
Who set fire to the flame

Open lie, open lie
A weapon file is not peace
Open lie, open lie
It only teaches war to speak
You can call it law, call it light
But it cannot make the wrong thing right
Open lie, open lie
A weapon file is not peace

They draw a line through the lives they never knew Turn a child into a number, turn the sky a darker blue
Every stamped approval leaves a shadow on the floor
Every locked confession asks us what we are fighting for

You can dress it up in papers

You can seal it with a name
But the broken doors remember
Who set fire to the flame

Peace is more than silence
More than orders in a drawer
Peace is hands that choose to open
When they could have chosen war
Let the record show the living
Let the lost be more than proof
No more open lies between us
No more weapons called the truth

Open lie, open lie
A weapon file is not peace
Open lie, open lie
It only teaches war to speak
You can call it law, call it light
But it cannot make the wrong thing right
Open lie, open lie
A weapon file is not peace

Still Accord — No Veil in the Mouth

I carried quiet through the crowded room
With every truth folded under my tongue
The walls leaned close, the shadows knew
How many songs I left unsung

But the silence cracks when the heart beats loud
And the hidden fire won't stay underground

Still accord, no veil in the mouth
Let the honest river run south
Still accord, let the whole world know
What we hold inside, we have to show
No veil in the mouth, no turning away
Still accord, still here, still awake

I have worn the mask till it felt like skin
Called it peace when it was only fear
Now every scar lets the daylight in Now every lost word brings me near

Let the silence break like a morning bell
Let the truth be hard, let it still be well

Still accord, no veil in the mouth
Let the honest river run south

Still accord, let the whole world know
What we hold inside, we have to show
No veil in the mouth, no turning away
Still accord, still here, still awake

If I tremble, let me tremble clear
If I stumble, let me stumble near
There is no perfect way to be free
Only the voice that comes honestly

Still accord, no veil in the mouth
Let the honest river run south
Still accord, let the whole world know
What we hold inside, we have to show
No veil in the mouth, no turning away
Still accord, still here, still awake

Last Line — The North Is His

He walks where the white winds rise
With a weathered map and a steady stride
The pines bow low beneath his eyes
And the dark gives way to the morning light

No road can turn him
No storm can steer him
He hears the old stars call

The north is his
The north is his
Where the cold runs clear
And the wild draws near
The north is his

He left no mark but a fading flame
No silver crown and no borrowed name
The rivers know him, the mountains claim
Every frozen mile that he overcame

No road can turn him
No storm can steer him
He hears the old stars call

The north is his

The north is his
Where the cold runs clear
And the wild draws near
The north is his

When the long night falls
And the last light thins
He will face the wind
With the dawn within

The north is his
The north is his
Where the cold runs clear
And the wild draws near
The north is his

Living Words — Recode the Sky to the Name

I found a spark beneath the static
A restless pulse inside the rain
The old horizon lost its meaning
So I whispered through the change

Every silence starts to open
Every shadow learns to shine
I am calling out the future
With your heartbeat next to mine

Living words, recode the sky to the name
Let the broken stars remember the flame
Living words, carry us out of the gray
We are more than what the night took away

There were ghosts inside the signal
There were scars across the blue
But the code was never empty
It was waiting there for you

Raise your voice above the thunder
Write tomorrow in the air
If the world forgets our story
Living words will lead us there

Living words, recode the sky to the name
Let the broken stars remember the flame
Living words, carry us out of the gray
We are more than what the night took away

Truth vs Untruth — The Operation Is a Lie

They drew the curtain, dimmed the light
Promised a cure by morning bright
But every whisper filled the room
With shadows wearing white

Truth versus untruth, the operation is a lie
They cut through hope and called it life
Truth versus untruth, hear the silence testify
The operation is a lie

Cold steel shining near my skin
A clean white mask, a crooked grin
They said surrender, close your eyes
But something warned within

Truth versus untruth, the operation is a lie
They cut through hope and called it life
Truth versus untruth, hear the silence testify
The operation is a lie

I will not sleep beneath their hands
I will not sign away my name Pull back the curtain, let truth in
And let the daylight name their game

Truth versus untruth, the operation is a lie
They cut through hope and called it life
Truth versus untruth, hear the silence testify
The operation is a lie

Number Song — Holy Count, Not Site Two-Five-Nine

Holy numbers on my tongue
Counting shadows one by one
Not a place, not a sign
Two-five-nine is mine

Two-five-nine, holy count
Let the hidden truth amount
Two-five-nine, hear it shine
Not a site, a sacred line

Every figure holds a flame
Every breath repeats the name
I don't need a map tonight
I just follow living light

Two-five-nine, holy count
Let the hidden truth amount
Two-five-nine, hear it shine
Not a site, a sacred line

One for mercy, two for grace
Five for every open space
Nine for all the stars aligned
Two-five-nine, inside my mind

Two-five-nine, holy count
Let the hidden truth amount
Two-five-nine, hear it shine
Not a site, a sacred line

Thirsty — Come, Holy Spirit

My heart is dry beneath the sun
I need the living water
I lift my empty hands to You
Come closer, Holy Father

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Pour Your river over me
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Set this weary heart free

I have wandered through the dust
Chasing wells that leave me broken
Now I hear Your gentle voice
In every word You've spoken

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Pour Your river over me
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Set this weary heart free

Fill the valleys of my soul
Let Your mercy rise like rain
Jesus, wash away the ashes
Make me new again

Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Pour Your river over me
Thirsty, come Holy Spirit
Set this weary heart free

Song of Creation — The Ice Belongs to the Maker

Before the dawn had learned to burn
Before the seas had found their shore
The Maker breathed across the dark
And ice was born forevermore

The ice belongs to the Maker
The frost is held in His hand
He calls the snow from the silence
He lays white fire on the land
The ice belongs to the Maker
No winter moves on its own
From mountain peaks to the river
All frozen waters are known

He shapes the crystal on the window
He seals the lake beneath the sky
He sends the cold through sleeping valleys
And stars like diamonds fill the night

The ice belongs to the Maker
The frost is held in His hand
He calls the snow from the silence
He lays white fire on the land
The ice belongs to the Maker
No winter moves on its own

From mountain peaks to the river
All frozen waters are known

When every field is still and silver
When every branch is bowed with grace
The winter sings of its Creator
And leaves His wonder in its trace

The ice belongs to the Maker
The frost is held in His hand
He calls the snow from the silence
He lays white fire on the land
The ice belongs to the Maker
No winter moves on its own
From mountain peaks to the river
All frozen waters are known

Tick & Twist — Unwind the False Veil

Tick and twist beneath the glow
A borrowed truth begins to show
Every shadow wears a face
Every clock forgets its place

Pull the thread, let silence speak
The perfect picture starts to leak

Tick and twist, unwind the false veil
Follow the crack in the painted tale
Tick and twist, let the blindfold fall
One honest light can undo it all

Silver tongues and paper crowns
Build their towers over towns
But the mirror knows the cost
Names are found where trust was lost

Hold your breath, the gears will turn
Truth has teeth, and lies will burn

Tick and twist, unwind the false veil
Follow the crack in the painted tale
Tick and twist, let the blindfold fall
One honest light can undo it all

No more dancing for the smoke
No more swallowing the joke
When the last disguise unwinds
We will see with open eyes

Tick and twist, unwind the false veil
Follow the crack in the painted tale
Tick and twist, let the blindfold fall
One honest light can undo it all

Resident Living — No Resident Site in the House

Resident living in a house of rooms
Footsteps fading under borrowed moons
The lights stay on, but nobody stays
Dust writes my name in the window haze

I turn the key, but nothing sounds
No steady heart, no shelter found

No resident site in the house
No living voice, no beating ground
Resident living, passing through
This house remembers me, but I don't belong to you

The kitchen holds the shape of hands
A quiet chair, a cold command
The walls know every word I said
Still every night feels underground

I call the rooms, they answer late
A hollow echo at the gate

No resident site in the house
No living voice, no beating ground
Resident living, passing through
This house remembers me, but I don't belong to you

Maybe home is more than stone
Maybe no one lives alone
If I leave the door unlocked
Will I find the place I lost

No resident site in the house
No living voice, no beating ground
Resident living, passing through
This house remembers me, but I don't belong to you

Jubilee — The Year Is the Lord's; the Veil of the Lie Is Torn

The trumpet calls across the fields
The sleeping stones awake
The debts are loosed, the chains grow still
The ground begins to shake

The lost come home from distant roads
The broken lift their eyes
A mercy older than our fear
Is burning through the skies

No more hiding in the shadow
No more kneeling to the lie
What was buried now is breathing
What was bound is rising high

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The veil of the lie is torn
Jubilee, the captives are free
A new day is being born

Jubilee, let the weary come
Let the outcast find their place
Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
And the earth is filled with grace

The fields return to those who sow
The homes to those cast out
The hands that trembled in the dark
Reach up and sing it loud

No silver tongue can buy the truth
No empire can remain
The Holy One remembers us
And calls us by our name

Let every heart release its claim
Let every wound be seen
The poor shall rise, the proud shall bow
The land shall breathe again

The stone is rolled, the dawn is here
The night has lost its throne
The year belongs to God alone
And mercy leads us home

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
The veil of the lie is torn
Jubilee, the captives are free
A new day is being born

Jubilee, let the weary come
Let the outcast find their place

Jubilee, the year is the Lord's
And the earth is filled with grace

Short Story(T-9)

T-9. I do not bring a veil-map. I bring a Name.

The north is asked to fracture. A date is nailed on ice. A city is filed as spectral. A child is auto-enrolled. A sky is asked to host a mind. A scholarship is asked to teach a lie. A needle is asked to be justice.

Report closed: the veil is not His covering. The north is His. The child is His. Jesus is Lord.

Short Story SONG

The ice is hired to tear a veil
A date is nailed upon the white
A child is filed inside a tale
A sky is sold to host the night

The north is His
The veil is torn
The north is His
The child is kept

No site may sit where Jesus sits
No needle dates the Day of God
The remnant will not learn that twist
The remnant names the Lamb, the Blood

The north is His
The nations His
The Judge is Christ
The Book remains
